22 In the multitude of science hath ȝ LORDE sūdered them, and made their wayes of dyuerse fashions. Some of them hath he blessed, made moch of them, halowed them, ȝ claymed them to himself. But some of thē hath he cursed, brought thē lowe, ȝ put thē out of their estate. Like as ȝ claye is in the potters hande, ȝ all the ordrynge therof at his pleasure: so are men also in the hande of him ȝ made thē, so that he maye geue them as it liketh him best. A gaynst euell is good, and a gaynst death is life: so is the vngodly a gaynst soch as feare God. Beholde thus all the workes of the ȝyest, ȝ there are ever ȝ two a gaynst two, and one set a gaynst another. I am awaked vp last of all, as one that gathereth after in harvest. In the giftes of God and in his blessinge I am increased, ȝ have fylled my wyne presse, like a grape gatherer. Beholde; how I haue not laboured onely for myself, but for all soch as loue nurture and wyssdome.

23 Hear me O ye greatemen of the people, ȝ harken wȝ yō eares ye rulers of ȝ congregation. Geue not ȝ sonne ȝ wyfe, ȝ brother ȝ frende power ouer the, whyle thou lyuest: ȝ geue not awaye thy substance and good to another, lest it repent the, ȝ thou be fayne to begg therfore thy self. As longe as thou lyuest ȝ hast breth, let no man chaunge the: for better it is thy children to praye the, then ȝ thou shuldest be fayne to loke in their handes. In all thy workes be excellent, that thy honour be neuer stamed. At the tyme whan thou shalt ende thy dayes, and fynish thy lyfe, distribute thine inheritance. The fodder, the whyppe, and the burden belongeth vnto the Ass: Meate, correccion, and worke vnto the seruaunt.

If thou set thy seruaunt to labour, thou shalt fynde rest. But yf thou let him go ydel, he shal seeke libertye. The yock ȝ ȝ whyppe bowe downe the neck, but tame thou thy euell seruaunt with bōdes ȝ correccion. Sende him to labour, that he go not ydle: for Idylnesse bryngeth moch euell. Sett him to worke, for that belongeth vnto him and becōmeth him well. If he be not obedient, bynde his fete: but do not to moch vnto him in anye wyse, ȝ without discrecion do nothinge. If thou haue a (faithfull) seruaunt, let him be vnto the as thine owne soule, for in bloude hast thou gotten him. If thou haue a seruaunt, holde him as thy self, for thou hast neede of him as of thy self. If thou increastest him euell, and kepest him harde, and maigest him to be proude, and to renne awaye from ȝ, thou canst not tell, what waye thou shalt seeke him.

B The lawe shalbe fulfilled without lyes, & wysdome is sufficient to a faithfull mouth. A wyse man þ is well instructe, underston- stonbeth moch: & he þ hath good experiece, can talke of wysdome. He þ hath no experie- ce, knoweth litle: & he þ erreth, causeth moch wick'ednes. Whan I was yet in erreure, I lerned moch also: yee I was so lerned, that I coude not expresse it all, and came oft in pa- rell of death therouer, tyll I was delyuered from it. Now I se, that they which feare God, haue the right sperte: for their hope sto- deth in him, that can helpe the. Who so fea- reth the LORDE, stōdeth in awe of no man, and is not afrayd, for the LORDE is his ho- pe and comforte.

C Blessed is the soule of him þ feareth the LORDE: In whō putteth he his trust: who is his strēgth? For the eyes of the LORDE haue respecte vnto them, that loue him. He is their nighthe proteccion, & strōge groun- de: A defence for the heate, a refuge for the hete noone daye, a sucoure for stomblyng, & an helpe for fallynge. He setteth vp the sou- le, and lighteneth þ eyes: He geueth healeth life, and blessinge. He that geueth an offerin- ge of vnrightheous good, his offerynge is re- fused: and the scornefull dealinges of the vn- rightheous please not God. God hath no de- lyte in the offerynge of þ vngodly, nether maye iyn be reconcyled in the multitude of oblacions. Who so bryngeth an offeryn- ge out of y goodes of y poore, doth enē as one þ kylleth y sonne before y fathers eyes.

D The bled of the nedefull is the life of the poore: he þ defraudeth him therof, is a man, of bloude. Who so robbeth his neghbō of his lyuinge, doth as greate synne as though he slew him to death. He that defraudeth y laborer of his hye, is a bloude shedder. Whā one buyldeth, and another breaketh downe, what profic haue they then but labour? Whan one prayeth, & another curseth, who- se voyce wyl the L O R D E heare? He that washeth himself because of a deed body, & then toucheth the deed agayne, what doth his washinge? The of- ferynge of y rightheous maketh y auter fatt, & a swete smell is it before y hyest. The offe- ryng of the rightheous is acceptable vnto God, & shal neuer be forgottē. The XXXVI. Chapter.

Gue mercy vpon vs O LORDE, thou God of all thinges. Haue respecte vnto vs (shew vs the light of thy mer- cies, & sende y feare amōge y heithē & strañ- gers, which seke not after the: y they maye knowe, how y there is no God but thou, and y they maye shew thy wonderous workes.)

Lift vp thine hande ouer the outlādish hei then, & they maye lerne to knowe thy might & power. Like as thou art halowed in vs be fore them, so brynge to passe, & thou mayest be magnified also in them before vs: & they maye knowe the, like as we knowe the. For there is none other God, but onely thou O LORDE. Renue the tokens, & chaunge the wonderous workes. Shewe thine hāde and thy right arme gloriously. Rayse thy indignacion, & poure out thy wrath. Take awaye the aduersary, & smyte the enemye. Make y tyme shorte, remembre thy couenaunt, that y wonderous workes maye be praysed. Let the wrath of the fyre consume them, that ly ne so careless: and let them perish, that do y people hurte. Smyte in sonder the heade of the prynces, that be oure enemies, and saye: there is none other but we.

B Gather all y trybes of Jacob together a- gaine, & they maie knowe, how y there is none other God but onely thou, & they maie shewe thy wonderous workes, and be thy peo ple & heretage, like as from the begynninge. O LORDE haue mercy vpon the people y hath y name, & vpo Israel, whom thou hast licened to a first borne sonne. O be merciful vnto Ierusalē the cite of thy Sanctuary, y cite of thy rest. Syll Sion with thy unspea- keable vertues, & y people w thy glory. Ge- ue wytnes vnto y creature, whom thou may dest from the begynnyng, and raise vp the prophecies y haue bene shewed in thy name. Rewarde them y wayte for the, & thy pro- phetes maye be founde faithfull. O LORDE heare the prayer of thy seruantes, acordin ge to y blessinge of Aaron ouer thy people: that all they which dwell vpon earth, maye knowe, that thou art the LORDE the eter- nall God, which is from everlastinge.

C The bely deuoureth all meates, yet is one meate better then another. Like as the ton- ge taisteth venyson, so doch an hert of vn- derstondinge marck false wordes. A frowar de hert geueth heynes, but a man of expe- rience liftech him vp agayne. The woman receaueth every man, yet is one daughter bet- ter then another. A fayre wife reioysseth hir husbāde, and a man loueth nothinge bet- ter. If she be louynge & vertuous wichall, then is not hir husbāde like other men. He that hath gotten a vertuous woman, hath a goodly possession: she is vnto him an helpe and piler wher vpon he resteth. Where no hedge is, there the goodes are spoyled: and where no houswife is, there y frēdles moun- neth. Like as there is no credence geuen to a robber, & goeth from one cite to another: So is not y man beleued, that hath nonest, and must turne in, where he maye abyde in the night.

The XXXVII. Chapter.

Very frende sayeth: I wil be frendly vnto him also. But there is some fren- de, which is onely a frende in name. Remayneth there not heynes vnto death, whan a companion and frende is turned to an enemye? O most wicked presumption: fro whence art thou spronge vp, to couer the earth with falsede & disceate? There is some companion, which in prosperite reioysseth with his frēde: but in the tyme of trouble, he taketh parte agaynst him. There is some co- panyon, that mourneth with his frende for the bely sake: but whan trouble commeth, he taketh holde of the shyld. Forget not thy frende in thy mynde, & thynke vpon him in y riches. Euery councler bryngeth forth his counsell: neuertheles there is some, y coun- celeth but for his owne profic. Bewarre of y councler, & be aduysed afore wherto thou wilt vse him, for he wil geue counsell for him self. Lest he cast the lott vpon the, & saye vn- to the: Thy waye and purpose is good, and a fterwarde he stande agaynst the, and loke what shal become of the.

Are no counsell at him, y suspecteth y for an enemye, & hyde y counsell from soch as ha- te y. Are no counsell at a woman, cocernyn ge y thinges y she logeth forner at a fear- ful & faynthearted body, in matters of warre: or at a marchaunt, how deare he wil cheape thy wares towarde his: or at a byer, of sel- lynge: Or at an enuyous man, of thankes- geuyng: Or at the vnmmercifull, of louynge kindnes: Or at y slouthfull, of workinge: Or at an hyrelynge which hath no house, of pro- fit or wealth. (An ydle body wolde not glad- ly heare speake of moch labo.) Take no soch folkes to counsell, but be diligēt to sele coun- cell at a vertuous man, y feareth God, soch one as thou knowest to be a keper of y comaun demētes, which hath a minde after thine ow- ne minde, & is sory for y whā thou stōblest.

And holde thy counsell fast in thine hert: for there is no man more faithfull to kepe it, then thou thy self. For a mā's mynde is som tyme more disposed to tell out, then seuen watchmen that sytt aboue in an hye place lokynge aboute them. And aboue all this praye the hyest, that he wil lede thy waye in faithfulness & trūeth. Before all thy workes are counsell first: and or ener thou doest eny thinge, be well aduysed. There be foure thin ges that declare a chaunged hert, wherout there spungerth euell & good, death & life, & a masterfull conge that bableth moch. Some man is apte and well instructe in many thinges, and yet very vnprofitable vnto himself. Some man there is, that can geue wyse and prudent counsell, and yet is he hated, & cōtynueth a begger: for that grace is not geue him of God, to be accepted. Another is robbed of all wisdom, yet is he wise vnto himself, and the frute of vnderstōdinge is faithfull in his mouth.

D A wyse man maketh his people wyse, & y frutes of his wisdom fayle not. A wyse mā shal be plēteously blessed of God: & all they that se him, shal speake good of him. The life of man stōnderth in y nobre of the dayes, but the dayes of Israel are innumerable. A wyse man shal opteyne faithfulness & credence amonge his people, & his name shalbe perpetual. My sonne, proue thy soule in thy life: & yf thou se any euell thinge, geue it not vnto her. For all thinges are not profitable for all men, nether hath euery soule pleasure in euery thinge. Be not greby in euery eatynge, and be not to haistye vpo all meates. For excessse of meates bryngeth sienes, and glory cometh at the lust to an vnmeasurable heate. Thoro glory haue many one perished: but he that dyereth him self temperately, prolongeth his life.

The XXXVIII. Chapter.

A Honour the physician: honour him because of necessity. God hath created him: for of the best cometh medicine, and he shal receaue giftes of the kynge. The wisdom of the physician bryngeth him to greate worship, & in the sight of the greate men of this worlde, he shalbe honourably taken. The LORDE hath created medicine of the earth, and he that is wyse, wyl not abhoire it. Was not y bytter water made swete with a tre: & that men might lerne to knowe the vertue therof. The LORDE hath geuen men wisdom & vnderstōdinge, y he might be honoured in his wōderous workes. With soch doth he heale men, & taketh awaye their paynes: Of soch doth the Apothecary make a confection, yet can no man perfourme all his workes. For of y LORDE cometh prosperous wealth euer all y earth.

My sonne, despyse not this in thy sickness: but praye vnto the LORDE, & he shal make the whole. Leane of frem synne, & ordre thy handes a right: clēse thine hert frem all wickednes. Geue a swete saoured cffrynge, & y fyne floure for a token of remembraunce: make the cffrynge sate, as one that geueth the first frutes, & geue rowme to the physician. For y LORDE hath created him: let him not go from the, for thou hast nede of him. The houre maye come, y the seke maye be helped thoro them, whan they praye vnto y LORDE, y he maie recover, & get health to lyue longer. He that synneth before his maker, shal fall in to the handes of the physician.

My sonne, brynge forth thy teares ouer the deed: and begynne to mourne, as yf thou haddest suffred greate harme thy self: & the couer his body after a conuenient maner, & despyse not his buryall. Enforce thy self to wepe, & prouoke thy self to mourne, & make lamentacion expediently, and y a daye or two, lest thou be euell spoken of: & then cōforte thy self because of the heuynes. For of heuynes cometh death, the heuynes of y hert breaketh strength. Heuynes and pouerte greuethe the hert in tentacion & offence. Take no heuynes to hert, dryue it awaye, and remember the last thinges. Forget it not, for there is no turnynge agayne. Thou shalt do him no good, but hurte thy self. Remember his iudgmēt, thine also shalbe likeyse: vnto me yesterdaye, vnto the to daye. Let the remembrance of the deed ceasse in his rest, and cōforte thy self agayne ouer him, seynge his spire is departed from him.

The wisdom of the scribe is at conuenient tyme of rest: & he y ceaseth from exercise & labo, shalbe wyse. He that holdeth y plough, & hath pleasure in pioddyng & dryuynge y oxen, & goeth aboute w soch workes, he can speake of oxen. He setteth his hert to make forowes, & is diligent to geue y kyne fodder. So is euery carpenter also & workmaster, that laboureth still night & daye: he carueth, graueth & cutteth out, & his desyre is in sondrye conynge thinges, and his hert ymagineth, how he maye conyngly cast an ymage, his diligence also & watchynge perfourmeth the worke. The yronsmith in like maner bydeth by his stychie, & doth his diligence to laboure the yron. The vapoure of the fyre brenneth his flesh, and he must figne with the heate of the fornace. The noyse of the hammer soundeth euer in his eares, and his eyes loke still vpon the thinge y he maketh. He hath set his minde there vpon, that he wyl make out his worke, and therefore he watcheth, how he maie set it out, and brynge it to an ende.

So doth the potter sit by his worke, he turneth y whele aboute with his fete, he is diligent & carefull in all his doynges, & his laboure and worke is without nombre. He fashioneth the claye with his arme, and wth his fete he tēpereth it. His hert ymagineth how he maye make it pleasaunt, & his diligence is to clense the ouen. All these hope in their hādes, & every one thinketh to be conyng in his worke. Without these maye not the cities be manteyned, inhabited ner occupied: yet come they not hye in the congregacion: they vnderstande not the couenaunt of y^e lawe: they can not declare equitye & iudgment: they can not fynde out the darck sentēces: but thorow them shal the creature of y^e woulde be manteyned: their prayer concerneth onely the worke & labo^r of cōyng.

The XXXIX. Chapter.

Whe y^e applyerh his mynde to vnderstande the lawe of God, doth diligently seke out y^e wysdome of them of the olde tyme, & exercyseth him self in the prophetes. He kepeth y^e sayenges of famous men, and preasseth to the vnderstandinge of darck sentēces of wysdome. He sekerh out y^e mysterye of secrete sayēges, and exercyseth him self therein cōtynually. He doth seruyce amonge greates men, & appeareth before the prynce. He goeth in to a straunge countre, & trauaileth thorow it: loke what good or euell is amōge men, he proueth it & sekerh it out. He purposeth in his hert, to resorte early vnto the LORDE y^e made him, & to praye before the hyest God. He openeth his mouth in prayer, & prayeth for his synnes.

When the greates LORDE wil, he shalbe filled wth the spire of vnderstandinge, y^e he maie then poure out wyse sentences, & geue thankes vnto the LORDE in his prayer. He shal ordie his denyce, and lede his knowlege aright, & geue him vnderstandinge of secrete thinges. He shal shew forth the sciēce of his lerninge, & reioyce in the couenaunt of the lawe of the LORDE. The whole congregacion shal cōmende his wysdome, & it shal neuer be put out. The remembraunce of him shal neuer be forgotten, & his name shal con-tynue from one generacion to another. His wysdome shalbe spoken of, & the whole congregacion shal openly declare his prayse. Whyle he liueth, he hath a greater name thē a thousande besyde: & after his death, the same name remayneth vnto him. Yet wyll I speake of mo men of vnderstandinge, for I am full as the Moone.

Her kē vnto me (ye holy vertuous childre) brynge forth frute, as the rose that is planted by the brooke of the felde, and geue ye a sweete smell as Libanus. Flourish as the rose garden, syng a songe of prayse. O geue thankes vnto God ouer all his workes. Geue glory and honoure vnto the LORDE, shew his prayse with youre lippes. See euen with the songe of youre lippes, with harpes & playenge, and in geuinge thankes vnto him, saye after this maner: All y^e workes of the LORDE are excedinge good, and all his commaundementes are mete and conuenient in due season.

A mā nede not to saie: what is y^e? what is that? for at time conuenient they shal all be sought. At his cōmaundement y^e water was as a wall, & at the worde of his mouth y^e waters stode still. In his commaundement is e- uery thinge acceptable and reconcyled, and his health can not be minished. The workes of all flesh are before him, & there is nothinge hydd from his eyes. He seith from enerlastinge to enerlastinge, and there is nothinge to wonderfull or hye vnto him. A man nede not to saie then, what is this, or that? For he hath made all thinges to do good vnto man. His blessinge shal renne ouer as the streame, and moysture the earth like a floude of water. Like as he maketh the water for drouth, so shal his wiath fall vpon the heithen.

His wayes are playne and right vnto y^e iust, but the vngodly stamble at them. For the good are good thinges created from the begynnynge, and euell thinges for the vngodly. All thinges necessary for the life of man are created from the begynnynge: water, fyre, yron and salt, meel, wheate and hony mylke and wyne, oyle and clothinge. All these thinges are created for the best to the faithfull: But to the vngodly shal all these thinges be turned to hurte and harme. There be spires that are created for vengeance, and in their rigorousnes haue they fastened their tormentes. In the tyme of the ende they shal poure out their strēgth, and pacifie y^e wiath of him that made them. Fyre, hayle, hunger and death: all these thinges are created for vengeance.

The teth of wylde noysome beestes, the scorpions, serpentes, and the swerde are created also for vengeance, to the destruction of the vngodly. They shal be glad to do his commaundementes: and whan nede is, they shalbe ready vpon earth: and whan their houre is come, they shal not overpasse the commaundement of the LORDE.

Therefore hane I taken a good corage vnto me from the begynnynge, and though to put these thinges in wrytinge, and to leave the behynde me. For in due season they are all pleasaunt and good: And therfore prayse the LORDE with whole hert and mouth, ⁊ geue thankes vnto his name.

The XL. Chapter.

A Greate trauaile is created for all mē, and an heuy yock vpon all mens children, from the daye that they go out of their mothers wombe, tyll they be buried in (the earth) the mother of all thinges: namely, their thoughtes and ymaginacions, feare of the hert, counsell, meditations, longing and desyre, the daye of death: from the hiest that syteth vpon the glorious seate, vnto the lowest and most symple vpon the earth: from him that is gorgeously arrayed, and weareth a crowne, vntyll him that is but homely and symple clothed. There is nothinge but wiath, zeale, fearfulness, vnquietnes, and feare of death, rigorous anger and stryfe. And in the night whan one shulde rest and slepe vpon his bedd, the slepe chaungeth his vnderstandinge and knowlege. A litle as nothinge is his rest, in þe slepe as well as in the daye of labour.

He feareth and is dysquyted in the vision of his hert, as one that renneth out of a bat tayll: and in the tyme of health he awaketh, and marueleth that the feare was nothinge. Such thinges happen vnto all flesh, both man and best: but sevenfold to the vngodly. Moreover death, bloudsheddinge, stryfe ⁊ swerde, oppression, honger, destruction and punysshment: these thinges are all created agaynst the vngodly, and for their sakes came the floude also. All that is of the earth, shal turne to earth agayne: and all waters ebb agayne in to the see. All brybes and vnrighteousnes shalbe put awaye, but faithfulness and trouth shal endure for ever. The substance and goodes of þe vngodly shalbe dried vp and syncke awaye as a water floude, and they shal make a sounde like a greate thonder in the rayne.

Frendlynnes and liberalite in the increase and blessinge of God, is like a paradise ⁊ garden of pleasure: such mercy also ⁊ kindnes endureth for ever. To laboꝝ ⁊ to be content with that a man hath, is a swete pleasaunt life: ⁊ that is to synde a treasure about all treasures. Phil. 4. b

Pypinge and harpinge make a swete noyse, but a frendly conge goeth beyonde them both. Thine eye desyret fauoure and beuotie but a grene fede tyme rather the they both. A frende and companyon come together at oportunitie, but about them both is a wife that agreeth with hir husbände. One brother helpeth another in the tyme of trouble, but allmes shal deliuer more then they both. Golde and syluer fasten the fete, but a good counsell is more pleasaunt then they both. Temporall substance and strength lift vp the mynde: but the feare of the LORDE more then they both. The feare of the LORDE wanteth nothinge, and nedeth no helpe. The feare of þe LORDE is as a pleasaunt garde of blessinge, and nothinge so bewtyfull as it is. My soune, lede not a beggers life, for better it were to dye the to begg. Who so loketh to another mans table, taketh no thought for his owne lynynge how to vpholde his life, for he fedeth himself with other mens meate. But a wyse and well nurtoured man wyll bewarte therof. Beggyng is swete in the mouth of the vnshamefast, but in his bely there burneth a fyre.

The XLI. Chapter.

Death, how bytter is the remembrance of the, to a man that seeketh rest and comfote in his substance and riches, vnto the man that hath nothinge to vexe him, and that hath prosperite in all thinges, yee vnto him that yet is able to receaue meate? O death, how acceptable and good is thy iudgment vnto the nedefull, and vnto him whose strength fayleth, ⁊ that is now in his last age, and that in all thinges is full of care and fearfulness: vnto him also that is in dispayre, and hath no hope ner paciencie? Be not thou afrayed of death: remembre them þe haue bene before the: and þe come after þe: this is the iudgment of þe LORDE ouer all flesh. And why wouldest thou be agaynst this pleasure of þe hiest? Whether it be ten, an hundred, or a thousande yeares: death ageth not how longe one haue lyned.

B The children of the vngodly are abhominable children, and so are they that kepe company with the vngodly. The inheritaunce of vngodly children shall come to naught, and their posterite shal haue perpetuall shame and confucion. The children complayne of an vngodly father: and why? for his sake they are rebuked and despyed. Wo be vnto you (O ye vngodly) which haue forsake the lawe of y^e hyest God: If ye be borne, ye shal be borne to cursynge: yf ye dye, y^e curse shal be youre porcion.

B All that is of y^e earth, shal turne to earth agayne: so go the vngodly also out of y^e curse into destruccion. The sorow of men is in their body: but y^e name of the vngodly shal be put out, for it is nothinge worth. Labour to get the a good name, for that shall coneyne surer by the, then a thousande greace treasures of golde. A good life hath a nombre of dayes, but a good name endureth euer.

C My children, kepe wysdome in peace: for wysdome that is hyd and a treasure that is not sene, what profit is in the both? A man that hydeth his foolishnes, is better then a man that hydeth his wysdome. Therefore be ye turned at my wordes: for it is not good, in all thinges and allwaie to be ashamed. True faith must proue and measure it.

B Be ashamed of whordome before father and mother: Be ashamed of lesynge before the prynce and men of auctorite: Of synne, before the iudge and ruler: Of offence, before the congregacion and people: Of vnrighteousnes, before a companyon and frende: Of theft, before y^e neighbours. As for the trueth of God and his couenaunt, be not ashamed therof.

B Be ashamed to lye with thyne elbowes vpon the bried: Be ashamed to lye vpon harlottes: Be ashamed to turne away thy face from thy frende: Be ashamed to take z not to geue: Be ashamed also to lye vpon anothers mans wyfe, and to make many tryflinge wordes with hir mayden, or to stonde by hir bedsyde. Be ashamed to vpbraid thy frende: and whan thou geuest enythinge, cast him not in the teth withall.

The XLII. Chapter.

A Hearse not a thinge trowse, and disclose not the wordes, that thou hast herde in secrete. Be shamefast z well manered in dede, so shall every man fauoure the. Of these thinges be not thou ashamed, and accepte no personne to offende. Namely, of these thinges be not ashamed: Of the lawe of God, of the couenaunt, of indgmet: to brynge the vngodly from his vngodlines vnto righteousness, and to make him a good man: to deale faithfully wth neghbors z companyon: to distribute the heretage vnto y^e frendes: to be diligent to kepe true measure and weight: to be content, whether thou gettest moche or litle: to deale truly wth temporall goodes in byenge and sellynge: to brynge vp children with diligence: to correcte an euell seruauit: to kepe chat thine is fro an euell wyfe: to set a lock where many handes are: what thou delyncest and geuest out to be kepte, to tell it, and to weye it: to wyte vp all the outgeyng and receayng: to enfourme y^e vnlearned and vnwyse: Of the aged, that are iudged of the yonge. If thou be diligēt in these thinges, truly thou shalt be lerned and wyse and accepted of all men.

B The daughter maketh y^e father to watch secretly: and the carefulnes that he hath for her, taketh awaye his slepe: yee in the youth, lest she shulde ouergrowe him: And whan she hath an husbände, lest she shulde be harmed: lest she shulde be defyled or rauyshe in hir virginyte, or gotten with childe in hir fathers house: Or (whan she commeth to the man) lest she behaue herself not right, or cōtynue vnfrutefull. If thy daughter be wanton, kepe her strately, lest she cause thine enemies laugh the to scorne, z the whole cite to geue y^e an euell reporte, and so thou be fayne to heare thy shame of euery man, and be confounded before all y^e people. Beholde not euery bodys bewtye, z haue not moche dwellinge amonge women. For like as the worme and moth commeth out of cle. henge, so both wickednes come of women.

C It is better to be with an euell man, then wth a frendly wyfe y^e putteth one to shame and rebuke. I wyl remembre the workes of the LORDE, and declare the thinge y^e I haue sene. In y^e wordes of y^e LORDE are his workes. The Sone ouerlooketh all thinges wth his shine, z all his workes are full of y^e clernes therof. Hath not the LORDE brought to passe, that his sayntes shulde tell out all his roderous workes, which the allmightie LORDE hath stablyshed? All thinges endure in his glory. He seeketh out the grounde of the depe and the hert, and he knoweth all their ymaginacion z wysdome. For y^e LORDE knoweth all science, and he loketh into y^e token of the time. He declareth the thinges y^e are past and for to come, z discloseth thinges that are secrete. No thought maye escape him, nether maye eny worde be hyd from him. He hath garnyshe the hye excellent werkes of his wysdome, and he is fro everlastinge to everlastinge. Vnto him maye nothinge be added nether can he be mynished, he hath no nede also of eny counsell. O how amiable are all his werkes, z as a sparke to loke vpon: They lyue all, and endure for ever: and whan so euer nede is, they are all obedient vnto him. They are all dubble, one agaynst another: he hath made nothinge that hath faute or blemish. He hath stablyshed the goodes of everychone: and who maye be satisfied with his glory, whan he seith it?

The XLIII. Chapter.

Psal. 8. a A The glory of the heyth, is the fayre and cleare firmament, the bewtye of the heauen in his glorious clearnes. The sonne whan it appeareth, declareth the daye in y goinge out of it, a marvelous worke of the hyst. At noone it burneth y earth, and who maye abyde for the heate therof? Who so kepech an ouen whan it is hote, thie tymes more doth the Sonne burne vpon y mountaynes, whan it bretheth out the syrie beames and shyneth: with the brightnes of it, it blyndeth the eyes. Greate is the LORDE that made it, and in his commaundement he canserch it to renne haistely.

Gen. 1. b The Moone also is in all, and at conuenient season it sheweth the tymes, and is a token of the tyme. The token of the solompe feast is taken of the Moone, a light that mynished and increaseth againe. The Moone is called after the Moone, it groweth wonderfully in hir chaunginge.

Gen. 9. b The armye of heauen also is in the heith, in the firmament of heauen it geueth a cleare and glouous shyne. This is the clearnes of the starres, the bewtifull apparell of heauen, the apparell that the LORDE lighteneth in the heyth. In his holy worke they continue in their ordie, and not one of them fayleth in his watch. Loke vpon y rayne bowe, and prayse him that made it: very bewtifull is it in his shyne. He compaseth the heauen aboute with his clearnes z glory, the handes of the hyst haue beded it. Thorow his commaundement he maketh the snowe to fall, z the thonder of his iudgment to smyte haistely. Thorow his commaundement the treasures are opened, and the cloudes fle as the foules. In his power hath he strengthened the cloudes, and broke the hayle stones.

The mountaynes melt at y sight of him, the wynde bloweth accordinge to his will.

The xliij. Chap.

The sounde of his thonder beateth y earth, and so doth the stoame of the north: the whirle wynde also lighteth downe as a fethered foule, casteth out and spiedeth the snow abroad: and as the greshopers that destroye all, so falleth it downe. The eie marueleth at y bewtye of the whytenesse therof, and the hert is afraied at the raine of it. He poureth out the frost vpon earth, like salt, and whan it is frozen, it is as sharpe as the prycke of a thistle.

C Whan the colde northwynde bloweth, harde Chustall commeth of the water. He lighteth downe vpon all the gatheringes together of water, and putteth on y waters as a brist plate. He deuoureth the mountaynes, and burneth the wyldernes: and loke what is grene, he putterh it out like fyre. The medycine of all these is, whan a cleude commeth haistely: and whan a dew commeth vpon the heate, it shalbe refreshed agayne.

(In his worde he stylleth the wynde,) In his counsell he setteth the depe, and (the LORDE) Jesus planted it. They that sayle ouer the see, tell of his pannels and harmes: and whan we heare it with oure eares, we maruell therat. For there be straunge wonderous werkes, dyuerse maner of nyce beesies and whall fishes. Thorow him are all thinges set in good ordie and perfourmed, z in his worde all thinges endure.

D I speake moch, but I can not sufficiently attayne vnto it, for he himself onely is the perfeccion of all wordes. We shulde prayse the LORDE after all y power, for he is greate in all his werkes. The LORDE is to be feared yee very greate is he, and marvelous is his power. Prayse the LORDE, and magnifie him as moch as ye maye, yet both he farre farre excede all prayse. O magnifie him w all youre power, and laboure earnestly, yet are ye in no wyse able sufficiently to prayse him. Who hath sene him, that he might tell vs? Who can magnifie him so greatly as he is? For there are hyd yet greater thinges the these be: as for vs, we haue sene but few of his werkes. For the LORDE hath made all thinges, and geuen wysdome to soch as feare God.

The XLIII. Chapter.

A commendacion of the olde vertuous fathers.

Et vs commende the noble famous men, and the generacion of oure foreelders and fathers. Many more glorious actes hath the LORDE done, and shewed his greate power euer sens y begynnyng. The noble famous men raigned in their kyngdomes, and bare excellent rule. In their wysdome and understandinge, they followed the counsell shewed in the prophecies. They led the folke thorow the counsell and wysdome of the scribes of the people. Wyse sentences are founde in their instruction. They sought the sweetenes and melody of Musick, and brought forth the pleasaunt songes in scripture. They were riche also, & conde comferte and pacifie those that dwelt with them. All these were very noble and honorable men in their generacions, and were well reported of in their tymes. These haue left a name behynde them, so that their prayse shal allwaye be spokē of. Afterwarde there were some, whose remembraunce is gone. They came to naught and perished, as though they had neuer bene: and became as though they had neuer bene borne, yee & their children also with them.

Neuertheles these are louynge men, whose righteousnes shal neuer be forgotten, but contynue by their posterite. Their children are an holy good heretage: Their sede endured fast in y couenaunt. For their sakes shal their childre & sede contynue for euer, & their prayse shal neuer be put downe. Their bodies are buried in peace, but their name lyueth for euermore. The people can speake of their wysdome, & the congregacion can talke of their prayse. Enoch walked right & acceptably before the LORDE: therfore was he traslared for an example of amendement to y generacions. Noe was a stedfast & righteous man: & in the tyme of wiath he became a recōcylinge. Therfore was he left a remnaunt vnto the earth, whan the floude came. An everlastinge couenaunt was made w him, that all flesh shulde perishe nomore with y water.

Abraham was a greate father of many people, in glory was there none like vnto him. He kepte the lawe of the highest, & came in to a couenaunt with him. He set the couenaunt in his flesh, and whan he was tempted, he was founde faichfull. Therfore swore God vnto him with an ooth, that he wolde blesse all people in his sede, that he wolde multiplie and increase him as the dust of the earth, and to exalte his sede as the starres: yee and that his sede shulde haue y possession and inheritaunce of the londe from see to see, and from the ryuer vnto y borders of the londe.

The xlv. Chap. Fo. liij.

With Isaac dyd he stablish y same couenaunt, for Abrahā his fathers sake. Yee y gracious blessinge and health of all men, and couenaunt dyd he stablish with Isaac, and made it to rest vpon the heade of Jacob. He knew him, in that he prospered him so well and richely, and gaue him an heretage, and sundered his percion by it self, and parted it amouge the twolue trybes. Mercifull men brought he out of him, which founde fauor before all flesh.

The XLV. Chapter.

Moses beloued of God and mē, whose remembraunce is in hye prayse: him hath the LORDE made like in the glory of the sayntes, and magnified him so that the enemies stode in awe of him, thorow his wordes he dyd greate wonders. He made him greate in the sight of kynges, gaue him commaundement before his people, and shewed him his glorious power. He stablished him with faichfulnes and mekenes, and chose him out of all men. For he herde his voyce, and led him in the darcke cloude, and there he gaue him the commaundementes, yee the lawe of life and wysdome, that he might teach Jacob the couenaunt, and Israel his lawes.

He chose Aaron his brother also out of y trybe of Levi, exalted him, & made him soch like. An everlastinge couenaunt made he w him, and gaue him the presthode in the people. He made him glorious in bewtiful aray, and clothed him with the garment of honoure. He put perfecte ioye vpo him, and gyided him with strength. He deckt him with syde clothes and a tunicle, with an euerbody cote also and gyrdle. Rōunde aboute made he him belles of golde, and that many: that whan he went in, the sounde might be herde, that they might make a noyse in the Sanctuary, and geue the people warninge. The holy garment was wrought & broderd with golde, yalow sylke and purple. And in the brestlappe there was a goodly worke, wherein was fastened light and perfectnesse.

Vpon y same also there was a worke fastened and set with costely precious stones, all bounde with golde: and this he brought in his mynistracion. The stones also were fastened for a remembraunce, after the twolue trybes of Israel. Vpon his mytre there was a plate of pure golde, a grauen ymage of holynes, a famous and noble worke, garnished, and pleasaunt to loke vpon. Before him were there sent no soch fayre ornāmentes,

This was now confirmed him with an euerlastinge conenauit, and to his sede, as y^e dayes of heauē: namely, that his childrē shulde allwaye mynstre before him, and persour me the office of the priesthode, and wyshe the people good in his name. Vnto him specially he appoynted the bred for sustenance (for the prestes ate of y^e offerynges of the LORDE) this gaue he vnto him & his sede. The thirde noble and excellent mā is Phineas the sonne of Eleazer, which pleased the God of Israel, because he had y^e zeale & feare of the LORDE. For when the people were turned back, he put himselfe forth right soone, & that with a good wyll, to pacifie the wrath of the LORDE toward Israel. Therefore was there a conenauit of peace made with him, y^e he shulde be the principall amonge the righteous and the people, that he and his posterite shulde haue the office of the priesthode for euer. N Only & stronge in battail was Jesus y^e sonne of Naue, which in steade of Moses y^e prophet was geuen to be captayne of the people (which acordinge vnto his name was a greate sauoure vnto the electe of God) to punyssh the enemies, that rose vp agaynst Israel, & Israel might optayne their inheritaunce. O how greate, noble and excellent was he, when he lift vp his hande, and drew out his swerde agaynst the cities: Who stode so manly before him? For the LORDE himselfe brought in the enemies. Stode not the Sonne styll at his commaundement, and one daye was as lenge as two? He called vpon the hyst & most mightie, whā y^e enemies preassed vpon him on every syde: and the L O R D E herde him with the hayle stones. They smote y^e heithenish people mightely, & in fallinge downe they slew all y^e aduersaries, so that the heithē knewe his hoost, and all his defence, that the LORDE himselfe fought agaynst them, for he folowed vpon the mightie men of them.

The L O R D E gaue strenght also vnto Caleb, which remayned with him vnto his age: so that he wente vp in to the hye places of the londe, and his sede conquered the same for an heretage: that all the childrē of Israel might se, how good a thinge it is, to be obedient vnto the LORDE. And the iudges or rulers (every one after his name) whose hert wente not a whoringe, ner departed from y^e LORDE, and that forsake not the LORDE unfaithfully, whose remembraunce hath a good reporte: Ace their bones flourish out of their place, and their name shal neuer be chaūged.

offred the suckynge lambes. And the LORDE thondred from heauen, and mayde his voyce to be herde wth a greate noyse. He discomfited the prynces of Tyre, & all the rulers of the Philistynes. Before his last ende he made protestacion in the sight of the LORDE & his anoynted, that he toke nether substaunce ner good of eny man, no nor so moch as a shue: & no man might accuse him. After this he tolde, that his ende was at honde, and shewed the kynge also his ende and death: & from y^e earth list he vp his voyce in the prophetic, y^e the vngodly people shulde perishe.

The XLVII. Chapter.

Afterwarde in the tyme of kynge Dauid, there rose vp a prophet called Nathan: for like as the fat is taken awaye from the offrynge, so was Dauid chosen out of the childre of Israel. He toke his pastyme wth the lyons as wth kyddes, and with beares like as with lambes. Slew he not a giaunte whan he was yet but yonge, & toke awaye the rebuke from his people: what tyme as he toke the stone in his hande, & smote downe proude Goliath wth the slynger. For he called vpon the hyst LORDE, which gaue him strength in his right hande, so that he ouerthrew the mightie giaunte in the battayll, that he might see vp the borne of his people agayne.

Thus brought he him to worshiipe aboue all prynces, and made him to haue a good repute in the prayse of the LORDE, y^e he shulde weere a crowne of glory. For he destroyed the enemies on euery syde, rote out the Philistynes his aduersaries, & brake their home in sunder, like as it is brokⁿ yet this daye. In all his workes he praysed y^e hyst & holiest, & ascrybed the honoure vnto him. With his whole hert dyd he prayse and loue him that made him. He set syngers also before the altar, and in their tune he made swete songes. He ordeyned to kepe the holy daies worshipfully, and that the solempne feastes thorow the whole yeare shulde be honorably holden, with prayyinge the name of the LORDE, & with synginge by tymes in the mornynge in the Sanctuary.

The LORDE toke awaye his synnes, and exalted his home for ever. He gaue him y^e cōuenant of the kyngdome, and the trone of worshiipe in Israel. After him there rose vp the wyse sonne called Salomon, and for his sake he droue y^e enemies awaie farre of. This Salomon reigned with peace in his tyme (for God gaue him rest from his enemies on euery syde, that he might buylde him an hou se in his name, & prepare the Sanctuary for ever) like as he was well instructe in his yowth & fylled with wysdome and vnderstōdunge, as it were with a water floude. He coured and fylled the whole londe with similitudes and wyse prudent sentences.

His name wente abroad in the Jles, because of his peace he was beloued. All londes marueled at his songes, proverbes, symilitudes, and at his peace, and at the name of y^e LORDE God, which is called the God of Israel. He gathered golde as tynne, & he had as moch syluer as leade. He was moued in vnorinate loue towarde women, and was ouercome in affeccion. He stayned his honde and worshiipe, yee his posterite defyled he also, in bringinge the wraich of the LORDE vpon his children, and sorowe after his ioyes: so y^e his kyngdome was denyed, & Ephraim became an vnfaithfull & an vnconstant kyngdome. Neuertheles God forsoke not his mercy, nether was he vterly destroyed because of his workes, y^e he shulde leaue him no posterite.

As for y^e sede y^e came vpon him (which he loued) he brought it not vterly to naught, but gaue yet a remnant vnto Jacob, and a rote vnto Dauid out of him. Thus rested Salomon with his fathers, and out of his sede he left behynde him a very foolishnes of the people, and soch one as had no vnderstōdunge: namely, Roboam which turned awaye the people thorow his counsell, and Jeroboam y^e sonne of Nabat, which caused Israel to synne, and shewed Ephraim the waye of vngodlynes: In so moch that their synnes & mysdedes had the vpper hande so sore, that at the last they were dryuen out of the londe for the same: Rec he sought out & brought vp all wickednes, tyll the vengeance came vpon them.

The XLVIII. Chapter.

Then stode vp Elias the prophet as a fyre, and his worde brēt like a cresshet. He brought an hōger vpon the, and in his zeale he made them few in nombre. (For they might not awaye wth the commaūdementes of the LORDE.) Thorow the worde of the LORDE he shut the heauen, and thre tymes brought he the fyre downe. Thus became Elias honorable in his wonderful dedes. Who maye make his boost to be like him? One that was deed raysed he vp from death, & in the worde of y^e hyst he broughte him out of the graue agayne. He cast downe kynges and destroyed them, and the honorable from their seate. Vpon the mount Syna

he herde the punysshment, z vpon Horeb the iudgmet of the vengeance. He prophesied recompensynge vnto kynges, and ordeyned prophetes after him. He was taken vp in the storme of fyre, in a charett of hoyses of the LORDE. He was ordeyned in the reprimyn- ges in tyme, to pacifie the wrath, to turne y hertes of the fathers vnto the children, z to set vp the trybes of Jacob agayne. Blessed were they that saw the, and were garnished in loue: for we lyue in life.

Elias was couered in the storme, but He- liscus was fylled with his mouth. Whyle he lyued he was afrayed of no prynce, and no man might ouercome him. There coude no worde disceane him, z after his death his bo dy prophesied. He dyd wonders in his life, z in death were his workes maruelous. For all this, the people amended not, nether de- parted they from their synnes: tyll they we- re caried awaye prisoners out of the londe, and were scattered abroad in all countrees, so that of them there remayned but a very li- tle people, and a prynce vnto y house of Da uid. Howbe it some of them dyd right, z so- me heaped vp vngodlynes.

Ezechias made his cite stronge, conveyed water in to it, dygged thoro the stony rock with yron, z made vp a well by the water sy de. In his tyme came Sennacherib vp, and sent Rabsches, lift vp his hande agaynst Sion, z defyed them with greate pryde. The trymbled their hertes and handes, so y they sorowed like a woman cranylinge with chil de. So they called vpo the LORDE, which is mercysfull, z lift vp their hādes before him. Immediatly the LORDE herde the out of heauen, and deliuered them by the hande of Esay. He smote the hoost of the Assirians, z his angell destroyed the. For Ezechias had done the thinge that pleased the LORDE, z remayned stedfastly in the waye of Dauid his father. Which Esay was greate z faith full in his visions. In his tyme y Sonne wō- te backward, z he lengthened the kynges li fe. With a right sperte prophesied he, what shulde come to passe at the last: z to soch as were sorowfull in Sion he gaue consolacion, wherewith they might cōforte them selues for evermore. He shewed thinges y were for to come z secrete, or ever they came to passe.

The XLIX. Chapter.

The remembraunce of Iesias is like as whan the Apotecary maketh many precious fyre smellynge thinges to gether. His remembraunce shalbe fyre as hony in all mouthes, and as the playenge of Musick by the wyne. He was appoynted to turne the people agayne, z to take awaye all abhominacions of y vngodly. He directed his hert vnto the LORDE, z in the tyme of the vngodly he set vp the worshippe of God agayne. All kynges (excepte Dauid, Ezechi- as z Josias) comitted wickednes: for euen y kynges of Juda also forsoke y lawe of God. For they gaue their home vnto other, their hond z worshippe also to a straunge people.

Therefore was the electe cite of the Sac- tuary brent with fyre, and the stretes therof laye desolate z waist: for they intreated Je- remy euell, which neuertheles was a prophet ordeyned from his mothers wombe, that he might rote out, breake of, z destroye: z that he might buylde vp, z plante agayne. Eze- chiel sawe the glory of the LORDE in a vi- sion, which was shewed him vpon the cha- rer of the Cherubins. For he thought vpon the enemies in y rayne, to do good vnto soch as had ordred their wayes a right. And the bones of the twelue prophetes flourish from out of their place: for they gaue comforte z consolacion vnto Jacob, and deliuered the faithfully. How shall we prayse Zorobabel, which was as a ringe in the right hande?

So was Iesus also the sonne of Ioseph: these men in their tymes buylde the house, z set vp the Sanctuary of y LORDE agay ne, which was prepared for an everlastinge worshippe. And Nchemias is allwaye to be cōmended, which set vp f: vs the walles y were broken downe, made the portes z bar- res agayne, and buylde oure houses of the new. But vpon earth is there no man crea- ted like Enoch, so: he was taken vp from y earth. And Ioseph, which was lorde of his brethien, z the vpholder of his people: his bones were couered z kepte. Seth z Sem we re in greate honoure amonge y peeples: and so was Adam above all the beastes, whā he was created.

The L. Chapter.

Simon the sonne of Onias the hye prest, which in his life set vp the hou se agayne, z in his dayes made fast the tēple. The heyth of y temple also was founded of him, the dubble buyldinge, z the hye walles of the temple. In his dayes the welles of water flowed out, and were excea dinge full as the see. He take care for his peo- ple, z deliuered them from destruccion. He kepte his cite z made it stronge, that it shul de not be beseged. He dwelt in honoure and worshippe amonge his people, and enlarged the intrance of the house and the courte.

2 Mac. 3. 4

He giveth light as the mounyng starre in the myddest of the cloudes, and as y^e Moone whan it is full. He shyneth as the Sonne in the temple of God. He is as bryght as y^e rayne bowe in y^e fayre cloudes, and flourisheth as the floures and roses in the sprynge of y^e yere, and as the lilies by the ryuers of water: Like as the bryanches vpon the mount Libanus in tyme of Sommer: as a fyre and incense that is kyndled: Like as an whole ornament of pure golde, set with all maner of precious stones: and as an olyuete that is frutefull: and as a Cypress tre which groweth vpon an hye.

Whan he put on the garment of honoure, and was clothed with all bewtye: whan he wente to the holy altare, to garnyshe the couerynge of the Sanctuary: whan he toke y^e porcions out of the prestes hande, he himself stode by the herth of the altare, and his brethren rounde aboute in ordre. As the bryanches of Cedre tre vpon the mount Libanus, so stode they rounde aboute him. And as the bryanches of the olyuete, so stode all y^e sonnes of Aaron in their glory. And y^e he might sufficiently perfourme his seruyce vpon the altare, and garnyshe the offrynge of the hyest God, he stretched out his hande and toke of the drynt offerynge, and poured in of the wyne: so he poured vpon the botome of the auter a good smell vnto the hyest pryncce.

Then beganne y^e sonnes of Aaron to synge, and to blowe with trompettes, and to make a greates noyse, for a remembraunce and prayse vnto the LORDE. Then were the people afrayed, and fell downe to the earth vnder their faces, to worshippe the LORDE their God, and to geue thankes to Almighty God. They sung goodly also with their voyces, so that there was a pleasaunt noyse in y^e greates house of the LORDE. And the people in their prayer besought the LORDE the hyest, that he wolde be mercifull, till the honoure of y^e LORDE were perfourmed. Thus ended they their mynistracion and seruyce.

Then wente he downe, and stretched out his handes ouer the whole multitude of the people of Israel, that they shulde geue praise and thankes out of their lippes vnto y^e LORDE, and to reioyse in his name. He beganne yet once also to praye, that he might openly shewe the thankes geyng before the hyest, namely thus: O geue prayse and thankes (ye all) vnto the LORDE our God, which hath ever done noble and greates thinges: which hath increased our dayes from o^r mothers wombe, and deale with vs according to his mercy: that he wyl geue vs the ioyfulness of hert, and peace for our tymes in Israel. Which faithfully kepe his mercy for vs euermore, and all waye deliuereth vs in due season.

There be two maner of people, that I abhorre from my hert: as for the thirde, whom I hate, it is no people: They that syt vpon the mountayne of Samaria, the Philistynes, and the foolish people that dwell in Sichimis.

I Jesus the sonne of Sirac Eleazarus of Jerusalem, haue tokened vpon these informations and documentes of wysdome and vnderstandinge in this booke, and poured out the wysdome out of my hert. Blessed is he that exerciseth him self therein: and who so taketh soch to hert, shal be wysse. If he do the se thinges, he shal be stronge in all. For the light of the LORDE ledeeth him.

The LI. Chapter.

A prayer of Jesus the sonne of Sirac.

Thank the LORDE and kyng, and praise the O God my Sauoure. I wil yelde prayse vnto y^e name: for thou art my defender and helper, and hast preserved my body from destruction, from y^e snare of traytorious tonges, and from the lippes that are occupied with leyes. Thou hast bene my helper, from soch as stode vpon agaynst me, and hast deliuered me after the multitude of thy mercy, and for thy holy names sake. Thou hast deliuered me from the roaringe of them, that prepared them selues to deuoure me, out of y^e handes of soch as sought after my life: from the multitude of them y^e troubled me, and wente aboute to set fyre vpon me on every syde, so y^e I am not brent in the myddest of the fyre: From the depe of hell, from an vnclane tonge, from lyenge wordes, from the wicked kyng, and from an vnrightheous tonge. My soule shal prayse y^e LORDE vnto death, for my life drew nye vnto hell.

They compassed me rounde aboute on every syde, and there was no man to helpe me. I looked aboute me, yf there were any man that wolde socoure me: but there was none. Then thought I vpon thy mercy O LORDE, and vpon thy actes that thou hast done euer of olde: namely, y^e thou deliuerest soch as putte their trust in the, and ryddest them out of y^e handes of the heithen. Thus lift I vp my prayer from the earth, and prayed for deliuerance from death. I called vpon the LORDE my father, that he wolde not leaue me without helpe, in the daye of my trouble and in the tyme of the proude. I praysed thy name continually, yeldinge honoure and thankes vnto te: and so my prayer was herde. Thou sauedest me from destruction, and deliueredest me fro þe vnrighteous tyme. Therfore wil I acknowledge and praise the, and magnifie þe name of the LORDE.

C Whā I was yet but yonge, or euer I wete astraye, I desyred wysdome openly in my prayer. I came therfore before the temple, & sought her vnto the last. Then floushed she vnto me, as a grape that is soone ripe. My hert reioysed in her, then wente my fote the right waye, yett from youth vp sought I after her: I bowed downe myne eare and receaued her. I founde me moch wysdome, and prospered greatly in her. Therfore wyll I ascribe the glory vnto him, that geueth me wysdome: for I am aduysed to do therafter. I will be gelous to cleue vnto the thinge þe is good, so shal I not be cōfounded. My soule hath wrestled with her, and I haue bene diligent to be occupied in her. I lēft vp myne handes an hye, then was my soule lightened thorow wysdome, that I knowleged my foolishnes. I ordred my soule after her, she & I were one hert from the begynninge, and I founde her in clenness. And therfore shal I not be forsaken.

D My hert longed after her, and I gat a good treasure. Thorow her y LORDE hath geuen me a new tonge, wherwith I wil praise him. Come vnto me ye vnlearned, & dwell in y house of wysdome: withdraue net youre selues from her, but talke & comon of these thinges, for youre soules are very thirstie. I opened my mouth, and spake: Come & bye wysdome without money, bowe downe youre neck vnder hir yock, and youre soule shall receaue wysdome. She is harde at hande, & is content to be founde. Beholde with youre eyes, how that I haue had but litle labour, and yet haue founde moch rest. Receaue wysdome, and ye shall haue plenteousnes of syluer and golde in possession. Let your mynde reioyse in his mercy, &

be not ashamed of his prayse.

The prayer of Azarias and the songe

of y thre children after Theodosios translacon: which wordes are wryten in y thirde chapter of Daniel after the
olde text in Latyn.

Ald they walked in the myddest of the flamme, praysynge God and magnifieng y LORDE. Azarias stode vp, and prayde on this maner, & uen in the myddest of the fyre opened he his mouth, & saide: Blessed be thou (o LORDE God of o fathers) right worthy to be praysed and honoured is þe name of thine for euermore: for thou art righteous in all y thinges þe thou hast done to vs: See faithfull are all y woikes, y wayes are right, & y iudgmētes true. In all y thinges þe thou hast brought vpon vs, & vpon the holy cite of o fathers (euen Iernsalem) thou hast executed true iudgment: See acordyng to right and equitye hast thou brought these thinges vpo vs, because of oure synnes.

For why: we haue offended, & done wickedly, departyng from the: In all thinges haue we trespassed, & not obeyed thy cōmaundementes, net kepte the, nether done as thou hast bydden vs, þe we might prospere. Wherfore, all þe thou hast brought vpon vs, & euer y thinge þe thou hast done to vs, thou hast done them in true iudgment: As in deluyeringe vs in to the hondes of oure enemies, amonge vngodly & wicked abheminations, & to an vnrighteous kinge, yett y most frowarde vpo earth. And now we maye not open o mouthe, we are become a shame & reprove vnto y seruantes, & to the y worshipec the.

Yet for thy names sake (we beseeche the) geue vs not vp for euer, breake net thy cōmaunt, & take not awaye thy mercy from vs, for thy beloued Abrahams sake, for thy seruante Isaacs sake, & for thy holy Israels sake: to whom thou hast spoken & promysed, þe thou woldest multiply their sede as y starres of heauen, & as the londe þe lieth vpon y see shore. So: we (o LORDE) are become lesse the eny people, & be kepte vnder this daye in all the worlde, because of oure synnes: So that now we haue nether prynce, duke, prophet, burnt offeryng, sacrifice, oblacon, incense ner Sanctuary before the.

Nevertheless, in a contrite herte and an humble sprete let vs be receaued, & we maie opteyne thy mercy. Like as in the burnt offerynge of rammes & bullockes, and like as in thousandes of fat lambes: so let o' offrynge be in thy sight this daye, & it maye please y, for there is no cofucion vnto them, & put the re trust in the. And now we folowe the with all o' herte, we feare the, & seke thy face. Put vs not to shame, but deale w' vs after thy louynge kyndnesse, & a cordinge to the multitude of thy mercies. Delyuer vs by thy miracles (o LORDE) & get thy name an honour: that all they which do thy seruantes euell, maye be confounded. Let them be ashamed thorow thy Allmightie power, and let their strength be broken: that they maye knowe, how that thou only art the LORDE God, & hono' worthy thorow out all the worlde.

And the kynges seruantes & put them in, ceassed not to make the ouen hore with wylde fyre, drye strawe, pitch & fagottes: so that the flamme wente out of the ouen vpon a xliij. cubites: yee it toke awaye, & brent vp those Caldees, & it gat holde vpon besyde the ouen. But the angel of the LORDE came downe in to the ouen to Asarias and his felowes, & smote y flamme of the fyre out of the ouen, & made the myddest of the ouen, as it had bene a coole wynde blowinge: so that the fyre nether touched them, greued them, ner dyd them hurte. Then these thre (as out of one mouth) praysed, honoured, and blessed God in the fornace, sayenge:

The story of Susanna which is the XIII chapter of Daniel after the Laryn.

21 Here dwelt a man in Babilō, called Joachim: y toke a wife, whose name was Susanna, (y dough-ter of helchias) a very fayre woman, & soch one as feared God. Hir father & hir mother also were godly people, & taughte
their daughter acordinge to y lawe of Moses. Now Joachim (hir husbonde) was a greate rich man, & had a fayre orcharde ioy-ninge vnto his house. And to him resorted the Jewes comonly, because he was a man of reputacion amonge them. The same yea-re were there made two iudges, sech as the LORDE speakech of: All the wickednesse of Babilon, cometh from y elders (y is) from y iudges, which seme to rule the people. These came ofte to Joachims house, & all soch as had eny thinge to do in the lawe, came thither vnto them.

of Susanna.

22 Now when the people came agayne at after noone, Susanna wente into hir husbō
des orcharde, to walke. The elders seynge
this, that she went in daylie & walked: they burned for lust to her, yee they were almost
out of their wittes, & cast downe their eyes,
that they shulde not se heauē, ner remembre,
y God is a righteous iudge. For they were both wounded w the lone of her, nether durst
one shewe another his grese. And for shame,
they durst not tell her their inordynate lust,
y they wolde sayne haue had to do w her.
Yet they layed wayte for her earnestly from daye to daye, that they might (at the leest)
haue a sight of her. And the one sayde to y
other: Up, let vs go home, for it is dyner tyme.
So they wente their waye from her.

When they returned agayne, they came together, enquerunge out y matter betwixte them selues: yee the one tolde y other of his wicked lust. The apoynted they a tyme, whē
they might take Susanna alone.

It happened also y they spyed out a con-
ueniēt tyme, when she wente forth to walke
(as hir maner was) & no body with her, but two maydēs, & thought to wash her self in the garden, for it was an hote season: And there was not one person there, excepte the two elders, y had hyd them selues, to beholde her. So she sayde to hir maydens: go see me oyle & sope, & shute the orcharde dore, y I maye wash me. And they dyd as she bad them, & shute the orcharde dore, & wente out
them selues at a backe dore, to set the thinge
y she had cōmaunded: but Susanna knewe
not, y y elders laie there hyd within. Now when the maydens were gone forth, y two elders gat them vp, & ranne vpon her, sayen-gemow, the orcharde dores are shute, that no man can se: we haue a lust vnto the, therfore consent vnto vs, and lye with vs.

If thou wilt not, we shall bringe a testimoniall agaynst the: that there was a yonge selowe with the, and that thou hast sent awaye thy maydens from the for the same cause. Susanna sighed, and sayde: Alas, I am in trouble on every syde. Though I fo-lowe youre mynde, it wyll be my death: and yf I consent not vnto you, I can not escape
youre hondes. Wel, it is better for me, to fall
in to youre hondes without the dede doinge,
then to synne in the sight of the LORD: and
with that, she cried out with a loude voyce:
the elders also cried out agaynst her.

Then ranne there one to the orcharde dore, & smote it open. Now when the seruauntes of the house herde y crye in y orcharde,

The story

they rushed in at the backe doore, to see what the matter was. So when the elders tolde them, the seruantes were greatly ashamed, for why, there was neuer such a reporte made of Susanna. On the morow after came the people to Joachim hir housbonde, and 3 two elders came also, full of myschewous ymaginacions agaynst Susanna, to bringe her vnto death, & spake thus before the people: Sende for Susanna 3 daughter of Helchias, Joachims wife. And immediatly they sent for her. So she came wth her father & mother, hir children & all her kintred. Now Susanna was a tender person, & marvelous faire of face. Therfore the wicked men commaunded to take of the clothes from her face (for she was couered) 3 at the leest, they might so be satisfied in hir beutie. Then hir frendes, yee & all they 3 knewe her, began to wepe.

Leui. 24. c These two elders stode vp in the myddest of the people, & layed their hondes vpon 3 heade of Susanna: which wepte, and loked vp towarde heauen, for hir herte had a sure trust in the LORDE. And the elders sayde: As we were walkinge in the orcharde alone, this woman came in wth hir two maydes: whom she sent awaye from her, & sparrd 3 orcharde doores. With that, a yonge felowe (which there was hyd) came vnto her, & laye wth her. As for vs, we stode in a corner of the orcharde. And whē we sawe this wickednes, we rāne to her: & perceaued, 3 they had medled together. But we coude not holde him, for he was stronger then we: thus he opened 3 doore, & gat him awaye. Now whē we had take this womā, we ased her, what yōge fellow this was: but she wolde not tell vs. This is 3 matter, & we be witnesses of 3 same.

Hebr. 4. c The comon sorte beleued them, as those 3 were the elders & iudges of the people, & so they condemned her to death. Susanna cried out wth a loude voyce, & sayde: O euerglastinge God, thou searcher of secretes, thou 3 knowest all thinges afore they come to passe: thou wotest, 3 they haue borne false witness agaynst me: & beholde, I must dye, whereas I neuer dyd any soch thinges, as these men haue maliciously inuented agaynst me. And 3 LORDE herde hir voyce. For whē she was led forth to death, 3 LORDE raised vp 3 spire of a yōge childe, whose name was Daniel, which cried wth a loude voice: I am clene frō this bloude. Thē all 3 people turned thē towarde him, & saide: What meanethese wordes, 3 thou hast spokē Daniel sitde in 3 myddest of thē, & sayde: Are ye soch fooles (O ye childre of Israel) 3 ye cā not discern? ue here conbined a daughter of Israel vnto death, and knowe not the trowth wherfore: Go syt on iudgment agayne, for they haue spoken false witness agaynst her.

Wherfore the people turned agayne in all the haist. And the elders (that is, the principall heades) sayde vnto him: come sit downe here amonge vs, and shewe vs this matter, seynge God hath geuen the as greate honoure, as an elder. And Daniel sayde vnto them: Pute these two asyde one from another and then shal I heare them. When they were put a sinder one from another, he called one of them, and sayde vnto hym: O thou olde cankerde carle, that hast used thy wickednesse so longe: thine vngacious deedes which thou hast done afore, are now come to lichte. For thou hast geuen false iudgements, thou hast oppressed the innocent, and letten the guiltie go free, where as yet the LORDE saith: The innocent and righteous se thou slaye not. Wel than, yf thou hast sene her, tel me, vnder what tre sawest thou them talkyng together? He answered: Vnder a Molbery tre. And Daniel sayde: very wel, Now thou list enen vpon thine heade. Lo the messenger of the LORDE hath receaued the sentence of him, to cut 3 in two.

Then put he him asyde, and called for the other, and sayde vnto him: O thou seditious of Canaan, but not of Juda: Gaynesse hath disceaued the, and lust hath subuerted thine herte. Thus deale ye afore with the daughters of Israel, and they (for feare) consented vnto you: but the daughter of Juda wolde not abyde youre wickednesse. Now tell me than, vnder what tre didest thou take them speakinge together? He answered: vnder a pomgranate tre. Then sayde Daniel vnto him: very wel, now thou leyst also enen vpon thine heade. The messenger of the LORDE stonderh waytinge with the swerde, to cut the in two, and to slaye you both.

With that, all the whole multitude gaue a greate shout, and praysed God, which allwaye deliuereth them 3 put their trust in him. And they came vpon the two elders, (whom Daniel had conuicte with their owne mouth: that they had geuen false witness) and deale with them, enen likewise as they wolde haue done with their neighbour: Yee they dyd accordinge to the lawe of Moses, and put them to death. Thus the innocent bloude was saved the same daye.

21 There was at Babilon an ymage, called Bel: and there were spent
vpon him every daye, xij. cakes,
xl. shepe, and sixe greate portes of wine. Him dyd the kynge worshipe himself, and wente daylie to hono-

sayde vnto him: Why dost not thou worshipe Bel? he answered and sayde: Because I maye not worshi-
pe thinges, that be made w-

heaven and earth, and hath power vpon all flesh. The kynge sayde vnto him: thinkest thou not, þe Bel is a lyuynge God? Or seist thou not, how moch he eateth and drynketh
every daye? Daniel smiled, and sayde: O kynge, disceane not thyselfe: This is but made of claye within, and of metall without, nether
eateth he ever any thinge.

for his prestes, and sayde vnto them: If ye tell me not who this is, that eateth vp these

me, that Bel eateth them, then Daniel shal

so be, acordinge as thou hast sayde. The pres-

So when they were gone forth, the kynge set meates before Bel. Now Daniel had comanded his seruantes to bunge asshes
and these he sifted thorow out all the temple, that the kynge might se. Then wente
they out, and sparre the dore, sealinge it with þe kynge's signet, and so departed. In þe night came the prestes with their wyues and childronke vp all. In the mornynge be tymes at the breate of the daye, the kynge arose, and Da-

are the seales whole yet? he answered: Yee (O kynge) they be whole. Now as soone as he had opened the dore, the kynge looked vnto þe

Then laughed Daniel, and helde the kynge,
that he shulde not go in, and sayde: Beholde
the pavement, marcke well, whose foote steppes are these? The kynge sayde: I se the foote steppes of men, women and children.

Therfore the kynge was angrie, and toke
the prestes, with their wyues and children, and they shewed him þe priuy doores, where they

The kynge sayde: I geue þe leane. Then Da-

S There was in Jewry a prophet called Abacuc, which had made porage, and broken bried in a depe platter, and was goinge in to the felds, for to brynge it to y^e mowers. But the angell of the LORDE sayde vnto Abacuc: go cary the meate that thou hast in to Babilon, vnto Daniel, which is in y^e Lyons denne. And Abacuc sayde: LORDE, I neuer sawe Babilon: and as for the denne, I knowe it not. Then the angel of the LORDE toke him by the toppe, and bare him by the hayre of the heade, and (thorow a mightie wynde) set him in Babilon vpon the denne. And Abacuc cried, sayenge: O Daniel thou seruant of God, haue, take the breakfast, y^e God hath sent y^e. And Daniel saide: O God, hast thou thought vpon me? wel, thou neuer faylest them that loue the. So Daniel arose, & ate: and the angel of the LORDE set Abacuc in his owne place agayne immediatly.

The first Chapter.

After that Alexander the sonne of Philippe, kynge of Macedonia wente forth of the londe of Cethim, and slewe Darins kynge of the Persians and Medes:

It happened, that he toke greate warres in honde, wanne very many stronge cities, and slew many kinges of þe earth: goinge thorow eo þe endes of the world, and gettinge many spoyle of the people: In so moche, þe world stode in greate awe of him, & therfore was he proude in his herte. Now whē he had gathered a mightie stronge hoost, & subdued þe lodes and people with their prynces, so that they became tributaries vnto hi: he fell sick. And whē he perceaued that he must nedes die, he called for his noble estates (which had bene brought vp with him of children) & parted his kyngdome amonge them, whyle he was yet alyue. So Alexander raygned xij. yeres, and then dyed.

After his death fell the kyngdome vnto his prynces, and they opraigned it every one in his rowme, and caused them selues to be crowned as kynges: and so dyd their childre after them many yeres, & moche wickednesse increaced in the world. Out of these came y vngracious rote, noble Antiochus þe sonne of Antiochus the kynge (which had bene a pledge at Rome) & he raygned in þe CCCCvij. yere of the raigne of the Grekes.

In those dayes wete there out of Israel wicked men, which moued moche people to their conseil, sayenge: Let vs go & make a cōnauant with the heithen, & are rounde aboute vs: for sence we departed from them, we haue had moche sorow. So this deuycē pleased them well, and certayne of þe people toke vpon the for to go vnto þe kynge, which gaue them licence to do after the ordinaunce of the heithen. Then set they vp an open scole (at Jerusalem) of the lawes of the heithen, and were nonfor circumsised: but forsoke þe holy Testamente, and ioyned them selues to y heithen, & were cleane solde to do myschese.

So when Antiochus beganne to be mightie in his kyngdome, he wente aboute to opraigne þe londe of Egypte also, that he might haue the domunion of two realmes. Upon this entred he into Egypte with a stronge hoost, with charettes, elephantes, horsmen & a greate nombre of shippes, and beganne to warre agaynst Ptolomy the kynge of Egypte. But Ptolomy was afrayed of him, and fled: and many of his people were wounded to death. Thus Antiochus wāne many stronge cities, and toke awaye great good out of the londe of Egypte.

And after that Antiochus had smytten Egypte, he turned agayne in the CCCCij. yere & wente towarde Israel, and came vp to Jerusalem with a mightie people: and entred proudly into þe Sanctuary, and toke awaye the golden altare, the candilstick, and all þe ornāmentes therof: the table of the shewbride, the pouring vessel, the chargers, the golden spones, the vāle, the crownes and golden apparel of the temple, and brake downe all. He toke also the syluer and golde, the precious Jewels, and the secreete treasures that he founde. And when he had taken awaye all together, caused a greate murther of men, and so fulfilled his malicious pryde, he departed in to his owne londe.

Thus there arose greate heuinesse and misery in all the londe of Israel. The prynces and the elders of the people mourned, the yōgemen and the maydens were defyled, and the sayre beuteye of women was chaunge: the brydegrome and the brydetoke them to mournyng: the londe and those that dwelt therein, was moued: for all the house of Jacob was brought to confucion.

The ii. Chap. Fo. lx.

¶ After two yeares the kynge sent his chiefe treasurer vnto the cities of Iuda, which came to Jerusalem with a greate multitude of people, speakinge peaceable wordes vnto the, but all was disceate: for when they had geuen him credence, he fell sodely vpon the cite, and smote it sore, and destroyed moch people of Israel. And when he had spoyled the cite, he set fyre on it, castinge downe houses and walles on euery syde. The women & their childrentoke they captiue, and led awaye their catell. Then buylded they the castel of Dauid with a greate and thicke wall, and with mightie towres, & made it a stronge holde for them. Besyde all this they sett wicked people and vngodly men to kepe it, stoared it with weapons and vytales: gathered the goodes of Jerusalem, and layed the vpon there: thus became it a cherysh castell.

And this was doneto laye waite for the people that wente in to the Sanctuary, and for the cruell destruction of Israel. Thus they shed innocent bloude on euery syde of the Sanctuary, and defyled it: In somoch that the citesyns were fayne to departe, and the cite became an habitation of straungers, beyng desolate of hir owne seide, for hir owne natyues were fayne to leaue her. Hir Sanctuary was clene waisted, hir holy dayes were turned in to mournynge, hir Sabbathes were had in derision, and hir hono^r brought to naught. Loke how greate hir glory was afore, so greate was hir confucion, and hir ioye turned in to sorow.

¶ Antiochus also the kynge sent out a commission vnto all his kyngdome, that all the people shulde be one. Then they lest every man his lawe, and all the heithen agreed to the commaundement of kynge Antiochus: Xee many of the Israelites consented there vnto, offerynge vnto Idols, and defylinge the Sabbath. So the kynge Antiochus sent his messaungers with his commission vnto Jerusalem, and to all the cities of Iuda: that they shulde solowe the lawes of the heithen, and forbad ether burnt offerynge, meat offerynge or peace offerynge to be made in the temple of God, & that there shulde no Sabbath ner hye feast daye be kepte: but commaunded, that the Sanctuary and the holy people of Israel shulde be defyled.

He commaunded also that there shulde be set vp other altares, temples and Idols: to offre vp swynes flesh and other vncleane beastes: that men shulde leane their children vncircumcised, to defyle their soules with all maner of vncleennesse & abominacions:

that they might so forget the lawe, and chaunge all the holy ordinaunces of God: and that who so ever wolde not do acordynge to the commaundement of kynge Antiochus, shulde suffre death. In like maner commaunded he thorow out all his realme, and sett rulers ouer the people, for to compell them to do these thynges, commaunding the cities of Iuda to do sacrifice vnto Idols.

Then wente the people vnto the heithen by heapes, forsoke the lawe of the LORD, and committed moch euell in the londe: yee and chaced out the secrete Israelites, which had hyd them selues in corners and preuy places. The xv. daye of the moneth Casleu, in the Cxlv. yeare, set kynge Antiochus an abheminable Idol of desolacion vpon the altare of God, and they buylded altares thorow out all the cities of Iuda on euery syde, before the doores of the houses, and in the stretes: where they brent incense, and dyd sacrifice. And as for the booke of the lawe of God, they brent them in the fyre, and rente them in peces. What so ever he was that had a booke of the Testament of the LORD founde by hym, yee who so ever endeuored himself to kepe the lawe of the LORD, the kynges commaundement was, that they shulde put him to death. And thorow his auctorite they executed these thynges every moneth, vpon the people of Israel that were founde in the cities.

The fyue and twenty daye of the moneth, what tyme as they dyd sacrifice vpon the altare (which stode in the steade of the altare of the LORD) acordynge to the commaundement of kynge Antiochus, they put certayne women to death, which had caused their children to be circumcised: Not only that, but they hanged vp the children by the neckes thorow out all their houses, and slewe the circumcisers of them.

Yet were there many of the people of Israel, which determed in them selues, that they wolde not eat vncleane thynges: but chose rather to suffre death, then to be defyled with vncleane meates. So because they wolde not breake the blessed lawe of God, they were cruelly slayne. And this greately rammy increased very sore vpon the people of Israel.

the priest (out of the kyned of Joaris) fro Jerusalem, and dwelt vpon the mount of Modin, and had v. sonnes: Jho called Gad dis: Symon, called Thasi: Judas, other wyse called Machabeus: Eleazer, other wyse called Abaron: and Jonathas, whose surname was Apphus. These sawe the euell, & was done amonge the people of Juda and Jerusalem. And Matathias sayde: Wo is me, alas that euer I was borne, to se this misery of my people, and & piteous destruccio of the holy cite: & thus to syt so styll, it beyng deliuered into the hondes the enemies, hir Sanctuary is come in to the power of straungers, hir temple is, as it were a man & hath lest his good name. Hir precious ornaments are caried awaye captiue, hir olde men are slayne in the stretes, and hir yonge men are fallen thorow the swearde of the enemies.

1. Mac. 1. b

What people is it, that hath not some possession in hir kyngdome? Or who hath not gotten some of hir spoyle? All hir glory is taken awaye. She was a Quene, and now she is become an handmayde. Beholde oure Sanctuary, oure bewtye and honoure is waisted awaye, and defyled by the Gentiles. What helpeth it vs then to lyue? And Matathias reute his clothes, he and his sonnes, and put sackcloth vpon them, & mourned very sore.

B

Then came the men thither which were sent of kynge Antiochus, to compell soch as were fled in to the cite of Modin, for to do sacrifice and to burne incense vnto Idols, and to forsake the lawe of God. So, many of the people of Israel consented and enclined vnto them, but Matathias and his sonnes remained stedfast. Then spake the commissioners of kynge Antiochus, & sayde vnto Matathias: Thou art a noble man, of hye reputation and greate in this cite, hauinge saye children and brethien. Come thou therfore first, and fulfill the kynges commaundement, like as all the Zeithen haue done, yee and & men of Juda, and soch as remayne at Jerusalem: so shal thou and thy children be in & kynges fauoure, and enriched with golde, syluer and greate rewardes.

Matathias answered, and spake with a loude voyce: Though all nacions obeye the kynge Antiochus, and fall awaie euery man fro kepynge & lawe of their fathers: though they consente to his commaundementes, yet wil I & my sonnes and my brethien, not fall from the lawe oure fathers. God forbyd we shulde: that were not good for vs, that we shulde forsake the lawe and ordinaunces of God, and to agre vnto the commaundement of kynge Antiochus. Therfore we will do no soch sacrifice, nether breake the statutes of & lawe, to go another waye. And whē he had spoken these wordes, there came one of the Jewes, which openly in the sight of all, dyd sacrifice vnto the Idols vpon the aulter in the cite of Modin, accordinge to the kynges commaundement.

Ero. 4. e

When Matathias sawe this, it greued him at the herte, so that his raynes shoke withall, and his wrath kindled for very zeale of the lawe. With that he gaue a skippe forth, and kyled the Jew besyde the aulter: hee and slewe & kynges commissioner, that compelled him to do sacrifice, & destroyed the aulter at the same time: soch a zeale had he vnto the lawe of God, like as Phinees dyd vnto Zambri the sonne of Salomi. And Matathias cried with a loude voyce thorow & cite, sayenge: Who so is feruent in the lawe, & wil kepe & couenaunt, let him folowe me. So he and his sonnes fled in to the mountaynes and left all that euer they had in & cite. Many other godly men also departed in to the wyldernesse with their children, their wyues and their catell, and remayned there: for the tyranny increased so sore vpon them.

Num. 25. b

1. Ma. 3. e

Now when the kynges seruantes and the hoost, which was at Jerusalem in the cite of David herde, that certayne me had broken the kynges commaundement and were gone their waye to the wyldernesse in to secrete places, and that there were many departed after them: they folowed vpon them to fight agaynst them in the Sabbath daye, and sayde: Wyll ye yet rebell? Get you hence & do the commaundement of kynge Antiochus, and ye shal lyue. They answered: We wil not go forth, nether wil we do the kynges commaundement, to defyle & Sabbath daye. Then beganne they to fight agaynst them neuerthelesse they gaue them none other answer, nether cast they one stone at them, ner made fast their prieny places, but sayde: We wil dye all in oure innocency, heauen & earth shal testifie with vs, that ye put vs to death wrongeously. Thus they fought agaynst them vpon the Sabbath, & slewe both men and catell, their wyues and their children, to the nombre of a thousande people.

Iosu. 1. e

When Matathias and his frendes herde this, they mourned for them right sore, and sayde one to another: If so be that we all do as oure brethien haue done, and fight not for oure lyues & for oure lawes agaynst the Zei

then: then shall they the sooner rote vs out of the earth. So they cōcluded amonge the selues at the same tyme, sayenge: What so euer he be that cometh to make battayll w vs vpon the Sabbath daye, we wyll fight agaynst him, & not dye all, as o^r biethren y were murthured so haynously. Vpō this came the Synagoge of the Jewes vnto the: strongemen of Israel, all soch as were feruent in the lawe. And all they that were fled for persecucion, came to helpe them, and to stonde by them: In so much that they gathered an hoost of men, and slewe the wicked doers in their gelousy, and the vngodly men in their wiath. Some of the wicked fled vnto the heithen, and escaped.

Thus Matathias and his frendes wente aboute, and destroyed the aulters, and circumcided the childien, that had not yet receaued circumcision: as many as they founde within y coastes of Israel: and folowed mightely vpon the childien of pryde, and this acte prospered in their hondes: In so much, that they kepte the lawe agaynst the power of the Gentiles and the kynge, and gaue not ouer their dominion vnto wicked doers.

S After this when the tyme drew on fast, that Matathias shulde dye, he sayde vnto his sonnes: Now is pryde and persecucion increased, now is the tyme of destruccion and wiathfull displeasure: Wherfore (o my sonnes) be ye feruent in the lawe, and ioperde youre lynes for the Testament of the fathers: call to remembraunce what actes oure fathers dyd in their tyme, so shall yereceauie greate honoure and an everlastinge name.

Remembie Abraham, was not he founde faithfull in tentacion, and it was reckened vnto him for righteousnesse? Joseph in tyme of his trouble kepte the commaundement, and was made a lorde of Egypte. Phinees oure father was so feruent for the honoure of God, that he opraigned the couenant of an everlastinge priesthode. Josue for fulfillingge the worde of God, was made the captayne of Israel. Caleb bare recorde before the cōgregacion, and receaued an heretage. Dauid also in his mercifull kyndnesse, opraigned the trone of an everlastinge kyngdome. Elias beyng gelous and feruent in the lawe, was taken vp in to heaue. Hananias, Asarias and Misael remayned stedfast in faith, and were deliuered out of the fyre. In like maner Daniel beyng vngiltie, was saved from the mouth of the Lyons.

The iiij. Chap. Fo. lxi.

And thus ye maye conside thorow out all ages sens the worlde beganne, that who so euer put their trust in God, were not ouercome. Feare not ye then the wordes of an vngodly man, for his glory is but donge and woimes: to daye is he set vp, and to morow is he gone: for he is turned in to earth, and his memoriale is come to naught. Wherfore (o my sonnes) take good hertes vnto you, and quyte youre selues like men in the lawe: for yf ye do the thinges that are commaunded you in the lawe of the L O R D E youre God, ye shal optaine greate honoure therin.

And beholde, I knowe that youre brother Symon is a man of wysdome: se that ye geue eare vnto him allwaye, he shall be a father vnto you. As for Judas Machabeus, he hath euer bene mightie and stroge from his youth vp: let him be youre captayne, and ordie the battayll of y people: Thus shall ye bryng vnto you all those that fauoure the lawe, and sethat ye auenge the wronge of youre people, and recompence the heithen agayne, and applie youre selues whole to the commaundement of the lawe. So he gaue them his blessinge, and was layed by his fathers: and dyed in the Cxlvj, yeare at Modin, where his sonnes buried him in his fathers sepulchre, & all Israel made greatelamentacion for him.

The III. Chapter.

Then stode vp Judas Machabeus in his fathers steade, and all his biethren helped him: and so dyd all they that helde with his father, and fought with cherfulness for Israel. So Judas gat his people greate honoure: he put on a brest plate as a giaunte, and arayed him self with his harnessse, and defended the hoost with his swearde. In his actes he was like a lyon, & as a lyons whelp roaringe at his praye. He was an enemye to the wicked, and hūted them out: and brent vp those, that vexed his people: So that his enemies fled for feare of him, and all the workers of vngodlynes were put to trouble: soch lucke and prosperite was in his honde. This greued dyuerse kynge, but Jacob was greatly reioysed thorow his actes, and he gat him self a greate name for ever.

He wente thorow the cities of Juda, destroyinge the vngodly out of them, turnynge awaye the wiath from Israel, and receauynge soch as were oppressed: and the fame of him wente vnto the vttemost parte of y earth. Then Appollonius (a prynce of Syria) gathered a mightie greate hoost of the heithen & out of Samaria, to fight agaynst Israel: Which when Judas perceaved, he wente forth to mete him, fought with him, slew him, and a greate multitude with him: the remnaunte fled, and he toke their substance. Judas also toke Appollonius owne swerde, and fought wth it all his life longe.

Now when Seron (another prynce of Syria) herde saye, that Judas had gathered vnto him the congregacion and church of the faithfull, he sayde: I will get me a name and a prayse thorow out the realme: for I will go fight with Judas and them that are with him, as many as haue despised the Kynges commaundement. So he made him ready, and there wente with him a greate mightie hoost of the vngodly, to stonde by him, and to be auenged of the childre of Israel. And when they camenye vnto Bethoron, Judas wente forth agaynst them with a small company. And when his people sawe such a greate hoost before the, they sayde vnto Judas: How are we able (beyng so fewe) to fight agaynst so greate a multitude and so stronge? scinge we be so weery, and haue fasted all this daye?

1. Re. 14. 2 But Judas sayde: It is a small matter for many to be ouercome with fewe: For there is no difference to the God of heauen, to deliuer by a greate multitude or by a small company: for the victory of the battell stondeceth not in the multitude of the hoost, but in the strength commeth from heauen. Beholde, they come agaynst vs with a presumptuous and proude multitude: to destroye vs, oure wyues and oure children, and to robbe vs. But we will fight for oure lyues and for oure lawes, and the L O R D E himself shall destroye the before oure face: therefore be not ye afayed of them.

ron smytten, and his hoost put to flight, and Judas folowed vpon them beyonde Bethoron vnto the playne felde: where there were slayne eight hundred men of them, and the residue fled in to the londe of the Philistynes. Then all the heithen on every syde were afayed for Judas and his brethien: so the rumoure of him came vnto the Kynges eares, for all the Gentiles coude tell of the warres of Judas.

So when Kyng Antiochus herde these tidinges, he was angrie in his mynde: wherefore he sente forth and gathered an hoost of his whole realme, very stronge armies: and opened his treasury, and gaue his hoost a yeares wagies in honde, commaundynge them to be ready at all tymes.

Nevertheless when he sawe, that there was not moneye ynough in his treasures, and that thorow the discorde and persecucion, which he made in the londe (to put downe the lawes that had bene of olde tyme) his custonies and tributes of the londe were misfished: he feared that he was not able for to beare the costes and charges any lenger, ner to haue such giftes, to geue so liberally as he dyd afore, more then the Kynges that were before him.

Wherefore he was heny in his mynde, and thought to go in to Persides, for to take tributes of the londe, and so to gather moch moneye. So he left Lysias (a noble man of the Kynges bloude) to ouersee the Kynges busy-nesses, from the water Euphrates vnto the borders of Egypte: and to kepe well his sonne Antiochus, till he came agayne.

Moreover, he gaue him half of his hoost and elephantes, committed vnto him every thinge of his mynde, concernynge those which dwelt in Juda, and Jerusalem: that he shulde sende out an army agaynst them, to destroye and to rote out the power of Israel and the remnaunt of Jerusalem: to put out their memorall from that place, to set straungers for to inhabit all their quarters, and to parte their londe amonge them. Thus the Kyng toke the other parte of the hoost, and departed from Antioch (a cite of his realme) ouer the water of Euphrates, in the hundred and xlvij. yeare, and wente thorow the hye countrees.

And Lysias chose vnto him Ptolomy the some of Doriminius, Nicanor and Gorgias mightie men, & the Kynges frendes. These he sent with xl. thousande fote men and viij. thousande horsmen, for to go in to the londe of Juda, and to destroye it, as the Kyng commanded. So they wente forth with all their power, and came to Emmaus in to the playne felde. When the marchaūtes herde the rumoure of them, they and their seruantes toke very moch siluer and golde, for to bye the children of Israel to be their bondemen. There came vnto them also yet moche men of warre on every syde, out of Syria ⁊ the from the Palestynes.

S Now when Judas and his brethre sawe that trouble increased, and that the hoost drew nye vnto their borders: consideringe yf Kynges wordes which he commaunded vnto the people: namely, that they shulde utterly waite and destroye them: They sayde one to another: Let vs redresse the decaye of oure people, let vs fight for oure folke and for oure Sanctuary. Then the congregacion were soone ready gathered to fight, to praye and to make supplicacion vnto God for mercy and grace.

1. Mac. 1. d As for Jerusalem, it laye voyde, and was as it had bene a wyldernes. There wente no man in nor out at it, and the Sanctuary was troden downe. The aleauntes kepte the castell, there was the habitacon of the heithen. The myrth of Jacob was taken awaye, the pype ⁊ the harpe was gone from amonge them.

1. Reg. 7. b The Israelites gathered them together, and came to Maspha before Jerusalem: for in Maspha was the place where they prayed aforetyme. So they fasted that daye, and put sackclothes vpon them, cast asphes vpon their heades, rente their clothes, and layde forth the bookes of the lawe (wherout yf heithen sought the licknesse of their ymages) and brought the prestes ornaments, the firstlinges and the Tythes. They set there also the absteyners (which had fulfilled their dayes) before God, and cried with a loude voyce toward heauen, sayenge: what shal we do with these? and whither shall we carry them awaye?

Num. 6. a G For thy Sanctuary is troden downe and defyled, thy prestes are come to heynesse and dishonoure: and beholde, the heithen are come together for to destroye vs. Thou knowest what thinges they ymagyn against vs. How maye we stonde before them, excepte thou (o God) be oure helper?

Exo. 17. d They blew out the trompettes also with a loude voyce. Then Judas ordered captaynes ouer the people: ouer thousandes, ouer hundredes, ouer fiftie, and ouer ten. But as for soch as buylded them houses, married wyues, planted them vynyardes, and those

And Judas sayde: Arme youre selues, be stronge (o my children) make you ready agaynst tomorow in the mornynge, that ye maye fight with these people, which are agreed together to destroye vs ⁊ oure Sanctuary. Better is it for vs to dye in battayll, then to se oure people and oure Sanctuary in soch a miserable case. Nevertheless, as yf will is in heauen, so be it.

L Then toke Gorgias fyne thousande men of fote, and a thousande of the best horsmen: and removed by nyght, to come nye where yf Jewes hoost laye, and so to slaye them sodenly. Now the men that kepte the castell, were the coneyers of them. Then arose Judas to smyte the chefe and principall of the Kinges hoost at Emmaus, for the army was not yet come together. In the meane season came Gorgias by nyght in to Judas tentes: ⁊ when he founde no man there, he sought them in the mostaynes, and thought they had bene fled awaye because of him. But whē it was daie, Judas shewed himself in yf felde with thie thousande men only, which had nether harness nor swear-des to their myndes.

But on the other syde, they sawe that the heithen were mightie and wel harnessed, and their horsmen aboute them, and all these wel experte in fettes of warre. this hoost before oure face this daye: And all heithen shal knowe, that it is God himself, which deliuereth and saucth Israel.

Then the heithen lift vp their eyes: and when they sawe that they were commynge agaynst them, they wente out of their tentes in to the battayll: and they that were wth Judas, blew v^p the trompettes. So they buckled together, and the heithen were discomfited, and fled ouer the playne felde: but the hymnost of them were slayne. For they folowed vpon them vnto Assaremoth, and in to the feldes of Idumea towarde Azot and Jamnia: so that there were slayne of them vpon a thre thousande men. So Judas turned agayne with his hoost, and sayde vnto the people: We not greby of $\frac{3}{4}$ spoyles, we haue yet a battayll to fight: for Gorgias & his hoost are here by vs in the mountaynes, but stonde ye fast agaynst oure enemies, and ouercome them: then maye ye safely take the spoyles.

C As Judas was speakynge these wordes, there apcared one parte of them vpon the mount. But when Gorgias sawe that they of his partie were fled, and the tentes brent vp (for by the smoke they might vnderstande what was done) they perceauynge this, were very sore afrayed: and when they sawe also that Judas and his hoost were in $\frac{3}{4}$ felde ready to stryke battayll, they fled euerychone in to the londe of the heithen.

So Judas turned agayne to spoyle the tentes, where they gat moch golde and syluer, precious stones, purple & greate riches. Thus they wente home, and singe a psalme of thankesgeuynge and praysed God in heauen: for he is gracious, and his mercy endureth for ever: And so Israel had a greate victory in that daye.

Now all the heithen that escaped, came and tolde Lysias euerythinge as it hapened. Wherfore Lysias was sore afrayed and greued in his mynde, because Israel had not gottē soch myffortune as he wolde they shulde, nether as the kynge commaunded. The nexte yere folowinge, gathered Lysias thre score thousande chosen men of forte, and fyue thousande horsmen, to fight agaynst them.

D So they came in to Jewry, and pitched their tentes at Bethoron, where Judas came agaynst them, with tenthousand men. And when he sawe so greate mightie an hoost, he made his prayer and sayde: Blessed be thou (o sauoure of Israel) which diddest destroye the violent power of the giant put this hoost now in to the honde of $\frac{3}{4}$ people of Israel, and let them be confounded in their multitude and horsmen. Make them afrayed, & discomforth the boldnes of their strength, $\frac{3}{4}$ they maye be moued thorow their destruccion. Cast them downe thorow the swearde of thy louers, then shal all they that knowe thy name, prayse the with thankesgeuynge.

So they stroke the batell, and there were slayne of Lysias hoost, fyue thousande men. Then Lysias seyng the discomfetyng of his men, and the manlynesse of the Jewes, how they were ready, ether to lyue or to dye like men: he wente vnto Antioche and chose out men of warre: that when they were gathered together, they might come agayne in to Jewry. Then sayde Judas and his brethren: beholde, oure enemies are discomfited: Let vs now go vp, to close and to repayre the Sanctuary.

Vpon this, all the hoost gathered them together, and wente vp vnto mount Sion. Now when they sawe the Sanctuary laied waiste, the altier defyled, the dores brent vp, the shrubbes growinge in the courtes, like as in a rood or vpon mountaynes, yee and that the prestes Telles were broken downe: They rente their clothes, made greate lamentacion, cast asshes vpon their heades, fell downe flat to the grounde, made a greate noyse with the trompettes, and cried towarde heauen.

Then Judas apoynted certayne men to fight agaynst those which were in the castel, till they had censed the Sanctuary. So he chose prestes $\frac{3}{4}$ were vndefyled, soch as had pleasure in the lawe of God: and they censed the Sanctuary, & bare out the defyled stones in to an vncleane place. And for so moch

So they took whole stones according to the lawe, and buylded a new altar such one as was before, and made up the Sanctuary within and without, and halowed the courtes. The incense layed they vpon the altar, & lighted the lampes which were vpon the candilstick, that they might burne in the temple. They set the shewbread vpon the table, and hanged vp the vail, and set up y temple, as it was afore. And vpon the xxv. daye of the ix. moneth (which is called the moneth of Casleu) in the C. xlvij. year: they rose up by tymes in the mornynge for to do sacrifice (according to the lawe) vpon the new burnt offering altar, that they had made: after the tyme and season that y heithen had defyled it. And all the people fell vpon their faces, worshippynge and thankyng the God of heauen, which had geuen them the victory. So they kepte the dedicacion of the altar viij. dayes, offeringe burnt sacrifices and thank offerings with gladnesse. They deckt the temple also with crownes and shylde of golde, and halowed the portes and celles, and hanged doores vpon them. Thus was there very greete gladnes amonge the people, because the blasphemy of the heithen was put awaye.

It happened also that when y heithen rounde aboute herde, how that the altar and the Sanctuary were set up in their olde estate: it displeased them very sore, wherfore they thought to destroye the generacion of Jacob that was amonge them: In so moch that they beganne to slaye and to persecute certayne of y people. Then Judas fought agaynst the children of Esau in Idumea, and agaynst those which were at Arabathane (for they dwelt rounde aboute y Israelites) where he slewe & spoyled a greate multitude of the. He thought also vpon the malice and unfaithfulnes of the children of Ben, how they were a snare and stoppe vnto y people, and how they layed waite for them in the hie waye: wherfore he shut them vp in to towers, and came vnto them, condemned them, and brent vp their towres, with all that were in them.

Afterwarde wente he agaynst the children of Ammon, wherof he founde a mighty power and a greate multitude of people, with Tymothy their captayne. So he strooke many battayls with them, which were destroyed before him. And when he had slayned them, he wanne Gazer the cite, with the towres belonging thereto, and so turned agayne in to Jewry. The heithen also in Galiaad gathered them together, agaynst the Israelites that were in their quarters, to slaye them: but they fled to the castel of Datheman, and sent letters vnto Judas and his brethren, sayenge: The heithen are gathered agaynst vs on euery syde, to destroye vs, and now they make the for to come and laye sege to y castel, wherunto we are fled, & Timothy is the captayne of their hoost: cometherefore, and deliuer vs out of their bondes: for there is a greate multitude of vs slayne all ready. Yee and oure brethren that were at Tubin, are slayne and destroyed (welye a thousande men) and their wyues, their children and their goodes haue the enemies led awaye captayne.

Whyle these letters were yet a readinge, beholde, there came other messengers from Galilee, with rente clothes: which tolde even the same tydings, and sayde, that they of Prolomais, of Tirus and of Sidon were gathered agaynst them, and that all Galilee was fylled with enemies to destroye Israel. When Judas and y people herde this, they came together (a greate congregacion) to denyse, what they might do for their brethren.

then, that were in trouble and beseged of their enemies. And Judas sayde vnto Symon his brother: chose þ out certayne men, and go delyuer thy brethren in Galilee: As for me and my brother Ionathas, we wyl go in to Galaadithim. So he left Josephus þ sonne of Zachary, and Asarias, to be captaynes of the people and to kepe the remnaunt of the hoost in Jewry, & commaunded them, sayenge: Take the oversight of this people, and se that ye make no warre agaynst the heithen, vntill the tyme that we come agayne. And vnto Symon he gaue thre thousande men for to go into Galilee, but Judas himself had eight thousande in to Galaadithim.

C Then wente Symon in to Galilee, and stroke dyuerse batels w the heithen: whom he discomfited, and folowed vpon them vnto the porte of Ptolomais. And there were slayne of the heithen almost iij. thousande men. So he toke the spoyles of them, and carried awaye the Israelites (that were in Galilee and Arbatis) with their wyues, their children and all that they had, and brought them into Jewry with greate gladnesse. Judas Machabeus also and his brother Ionathas, wente ouer Jordane, and trauallyed iij. dayes iourney in the wyldernes: Where the Nabuthes met them, and receaued them louyngly, and tolde the every thinge that had happened vnto their brethren in Galaadithim, and how that many of them were beseged in Barasa, Bosor, Alimis, Casphor, Mlageth and Carnaim (all these are stronge walled and mightie greate cities) and þ they were kepte in other cities of Galaad also: and tomorrow they are apoynted to brynge their hoost vnto these cities, to take them and to wynne them in one daye.

So Judas and his hoost turned in all the haist in the wyldernes toward Bosor, and wanne the cite, slewe all the males with the swearde, toke all their goodes, and set fyre vpon the cite. And in the night they toke their iourneye from thence, and came to the castell. And by tymes in the mornynge when they looked vp, beholde, there was an innumerable people bearynge ladders and other instrumentes of warre, to take the castell and to overcome them.

When Judas sawe that the battayll beganne, and that the noyse therof wente vp and range in to the heauen, and that there was so greate a crie in the cite: he sayde vnto his hoost: fight this daye for youre brethren. And so came behynde their enemies in thre companies, and blewe vp the trompettes, and cried in their prayer to God.

But as soone as Tymothis hoost perceaued that Machabeus was there, they fled from him, and þ other slewe them downe right sore: so that there were kyled of them that same daye, almost eight thousande men. Then departed Judas vnto Masphe, layed sege vnto it and wanne it, slewe all the males in it, spoyled it, and set fyre vpon it. From thence wente he and toke Casbon, Mlageth, Bosor and the other cities in Galaad.

After this gathered Timothy another hoost, which pitched their tentes before Raphon beyonde the water. Judas sent to spy the hoost, and they brought him worde agayne, sayenge: All the heithen that be rounde aboute vs, are gathered vnto him, and the hoost is very greate: For they haue hyred the Arabians to helpe them, & haue pitched their tentes beyonde the water, and are ready to come and fight agaynst the. So Judas wente on to meete them.

And Timothy sayde vnto the captaynes of his hoost: when Judas and his hoost come nye the ryuer: yf he go ouer first, we shall not be able to withstonde him: for why, he wil be to stronge for vs. But yf he darre not come ouer, so that he pitch his tente beyonde the water: then will we go ouer, for we shalbe stronge ynough agaynst him. Now as soone as Judas came to the ryuer, he apoynted certayne scribes of the people, and commaunded them, sayenge: se that ye leaue none behynde vpon this syde of þ ryuer, but let every man come to the battayll. So he wente first ouer vnto them, and his people after him.

And all the heithen were discomfited before him, and let their weapons fall, and ranne in to the temple that was at Carnaim. Which cite Judas wanne, and brent the temple with all þ were in it: So was Carnaim subdued, and might not withstonde Judas. Then Judas gathered all the Israelites that were in Galaadithim, from þ leest vnto the most, with their wyues and their children (a very greate hoost) for to come in to the londe of Juda.

So they came vnto Ephron, which was a mightie, greate and stronge cite, and laye in their waye. For they coude not go by it, neither of the right honde ner of the left, but must go thorow it. Nevertheless they that were in the cite, wolde not let them go thorow, but walled vp the portes with stones.

And Judas sent vnto the with peaceable wordes, sayenge: Let vs passe thorow yourre londe, that we maye go in to oure owne countre: there shal no body do you harme, we wil but only go thorow. But they wolde not let them in.

Wherfore Judas commaunded a proclamation to be made thorow out the hoost, that every man shulde kepe his ordre: and so they dyd their best like valeaunt men.

And Judas beseged the cite all that daie and all that night, and so wanne it: where they slewe as many as were males, and destroyed the cite, and spoyled it, and wete thorow all the cite ouer them that were slayne. Then wente they ouer Iordane in to the playne felde before Bethsan. And Judas helped those forward that came behynde, and gauethe people good exortacion all y waye thorow, till they were come in to the londe of Iuda. fully. Nevertheless they came not of the seide of these men, by whom Israel was helped. But the men that were with Judas, were greatly commended in the sight of all Israel and all heithen, where so euer their name was herde vpo, and the people came vnto them byddinge them welcome.

After this wente Judas forth with his brethren, and fought agaynst the children of Esau, in the londe y lieth toward the south where he wanne the cite of Hebron and the townes that lye besyde it: and as for the walles and towres rounde aboute it, he brent them vp. Then remoued he to go in to the londe of the Philistines, and wente thorow Samaria. At the same tyme were there many prestes slaine in y battayll, which wilfully without aduysment wente out for to fight to get them honoure. And when Judas came to Azot in the Philistynes londe, he brake downe their altars, brent the ymages of their Idols, spoyled the cities, and came agayne in to the londe of Iuda.

The VI. Chapter.

Now when kynge Antiochus traunayed thorow the hye countrees, he herde that Elymas in Persia was a noble and plenteous cite in silver and golde, and that there was in it a very rich temple: where as were clothes, cote armoures and shylles of golde, which Alexander the sonne of Philippe kynge of Macedonia had left behynde him. Wherfore he wente aboute to take the cite and to spoyle it, but he was not able: for y citises were warned of it, and fought with him. And so he fled, and departed with greate heynesse, and came agayne in to Babilon. Morouer there came one which brought him tidinges in Perside, y his hoostes which were in the londe of Iuda, were dryuen awaye, and how that Lisias wente forth first with a greate power, and was dryuen awaye of the Jewes: how they had wonne the victory, and gotten greate goodes out of the hoostes that perished: how they had broken downe the abhominacion, which he set vp vpon the altare at Jerusalem, and fenced the Sanctuary with hye walles, like as it was afore: yee and Bethsura his cite also.

So it chaunced, that when the kynge had herde these wordes, he was a frayed and greued very sore. Wherfore he layed him downe vpon his bed, and fell sicke for very sorow: and all because it had not happened as he had deuysed. And there continued he longe, for his grese was ever more and more, so y^e he sawe he must nedes dye. Therefore he sent for his frendes, & sayde vnto them: y^e slepe is gone from mine eyes, for y^e very sorowe & veraciō of herte y^e I haue. For when I conside in my mynde y^e greate aduersite y^e I am come vnto and the ploudes of heuynesse which I am in, where as afore tyme I was so mery, and so greatly set by (by reason of my power) Againe, cōsideringe y^e enell y^e I haue done at Jerusalem, from whence I toke all y^e riches of golde and syluer y^e were in it, & sent to fetch awaye the inhabitants of Jewry without eny reason why: I knowe, y^e these troubles are come vpon me for the same cause. And beholde, I must dye with greatesorow in a straunge londe.

Then called he for one Philippe a frende of his, whom he made ruler of all his realme and gaue him the crowne, his robe and his rynge: that he shulde take his sonne Antiochus vnto him and brynge him vp, till he might raigne himself. So the kynge Antiochus dyed there, in the Cxliij. ycare. When Lysias knewe that the kynge was decd, he ordened Antiochus his sonne (whom he had brought vp) to raigne in his fathers steade) and called him Eupator. Now they that were in the castel (at Jerusalem) kepte in the Jewes rounde aboute the Sanctuary, and sought ever styll to do them harme, for the strengthenyng of the herthen.

Wherefore Judas thought to destroye them, and called all the people together, y^e they might laye sege vnto them. So they came together in the Cl. ycare, and beseged iⁿ the layenge forth their ordinaunce and instrumentes of warre. Then certayne of them y^e were beseged wente forth (vnto whom some vngodly men of Israel ioyned the selues also) and wente vnto the kynge, sayēge: How longe wil it be, or thou punysh and avenge oure brethien? We haue bene ever mynded to do thy father seruyce, to walke in his statutes, and to obeye his commaundementes: Therefore oure people fell from vs, and where so ener they founde eny of vs, they slewe them: and they haue not only medled with vs, but with all oure countrees: and beholde, this daye are they beseginge the castell at Jerusalem, and haue made vp the stronge holde in Bethsura: And ys thou doest not preuente them right soone, they wil do more then these, and thou shalt not be able to overcome them.

When the kynge herde this, he was very angrie, and called all his frendes, the cap-

taynes of his fote men and of all his horse men together. He hyred men of warre also out of other realmes and out of the Isles of the see, which came vnto him. And the nombre of his hoost was an hundreth thousande fote men, and twenty thousande horsmē, & xxxij. Elephantes wel exercised to battayll These came thorow Ioumea vnto Bethsura, and beseged it a longe season, and made dyuerse instrumentes of warre agaynst it. But the Jewes came out and brient them, and fought like men. Then departed Judas from the castell at Jerusalem, and remoued y^e hoost towarde Bethzacarā ouer agaynst the kynges armye.

So the kynge arose before the daye, and brought the power of his hoost in to y^e waie to Bethzakaran, where the hoostes made them to the battayll, blowyng the trompettes. And to prouoke the Elephantes for to fight, they shewed them the sappe of reed grapes and molberies. And deuyled the Elephantes amonge the hoost: so that by euery Elephante there stode a M. men wel harnessed, and helmettes of stele vpon their heades: Rec vnto euery one of the Elephantes also, were ordened v. C. horsmen of the best, which waited of the Elephante, goinge where so ever he wente, and departed not from him. Every Elephant was covered wth a stronge tower of wod, where vpon were xxxij. valaunt men wth weapens to fight, & within it was a man of Inde to rule the beest.

As for the remnaunt of the horsmen, he set them vpon both the sydes in two partes with trompettes, to prouoke the hoost, and to sterc vp such as were slowe in the armye. And when the Sonne shone vpon their shyldes of golde and stele, the mountaynes glistered agayne at them, & were as bright as the cresshettes of fyre. The kynges hoost also was deuyled, one parte vpon the hie mountaynes, the other lowe beneth: so they wente on, eatyng good hede, and keepinge their ordie. And all they that dwelt in the londe, were afrayed at the noyse of their hoost, when the multitude wente forth, and when the the weapens smote together, for the hoost was both greate & mightie. Judas also and his hoost entred in to the battayll, and slewe vi. C. men of the kynges armye.

Now when Eleasar the sonne of Saura dyd se one of y^e Elephantes deckt wth the kynges badge, and was a more goodly beest the other: He thought y^e kynge shulde ke vpo him, and ioperde himself to deliuer his people, and to get him a perpetuall name.

The i. booke of the Machabees.

Wherefore he ranne with a courage vnto the Elephante in the myddest of the hoost, smytinge them downe of both the sydes, and slewe many aboute him. So wente he to the Elephantes fete, and gat him vnder him, and slewe him: then fell the Elephante downe vpon him, and there he dyed. Judas also and his men seinge the power of the kinge and the mightie violence of his hoost, departed from them. And the kynges armye wente vp agaynst them towarde Jerusalem, and pitched their tentes in Jewry besyde mount Sion. Moreover the kyng tooketruce with them that were in Bethsura.

But when they came out of the cite(because they had no vytales within, and the londe laye vntyll the kyng took Bethsura, and set men to kepe it, & turned his hoost to the place of the Sanctuary, and layed sege to it a greate whyle. Where he made all maner ordinaunce: handbowes, fyrie darteres, rackettes to cast stones, scorpions to shute arrowes, and slynges. The Jewes also made ordinaunce agaynst theirs, and fought a longe season.

But in the cite there were no vytayles, for it was the seventh yeare of the warres, and those haithen that remayned in Jewry had eaten vp all their stoare. And in the Sanctuary were few men lefte, for the hunger came so vpon them, that they were scattered abrode everyman to his owne place.

So when Lysias herde, that Philippe (whom Antiochus the kyng whyle he was yet lyvinge, had ordered to bringe vp Antiochus his sonne, that he might be kyng) was come agayne out of Persia and Media with the kynges hoost, and thought to opeayne the kyngdome: he gat him to the kyng in all the haist and to the captaynes of the hoost, and sayde: we decrease daylie, and oure vytales are but small: Agayne, the place that we laye sege vnto, is very stronge, and it were oure parte to se for the realme. Let vs agre with these men and take truce with them, and with all their people, and graunte them to lyue after their lawe, as they dyd afore. For they be greued and do all these thinges agaynst vs, because we haue despyed their lawe. So the kyng and the prynces were content, and sent vnto them to make peace, and they receaved it. Now whē the kyng and the prynces had made an ooth vnto them, they came out of the castel, and the kyng wete vp to mount Sion. But when he sawe that y place was wel fenced, he brake the ooth that he had made, and commaunded to destroye the wall rounde aboute. Then departed he in all the haist, and returned vnto Antioche, where he founde Philippe hauynge dominion of the cite. So he fought agaynst him, and toke the cite agayne in to his hondes.

The VII. Chapter.

In the Clj. yeare came Demetrius & some of Seleucus from y cite of Rome with a small company of men, vnto a cite of the see coast, and there he bare rule. And it chaunced, that when he came to Antioch the cite of his progenitours, his hoost toke Antiochus and Lysias, to bringe them vnto him. But when it was tolde him, he said: let me not se their faces. So the hoost put them to death. Now when Demetrius was set vpon the trone of his kyngdome, there came vnto him wicked and vngodly men of Israel: whose captaine was Alcimus, that wolde haue bene made hye prest. These men accused the people of Israel vnto the kyng, sayenge: Judas and his brethrien haue slayne thy frendes, and dryuen vs out of oure owne londe. Wherefore sende now some man (to whom thou gapest credence) that he maye go and se all the destruccion, which he hath done vnto vs and to the kynges londe, and let him be punished with all his frendes and fauourers.

Then the kyng chose Balthides a frende of his, which was a man of greate power in the realme (beyonde the greate water) and faithfull vnto the kyng: and sent him to se the destruccion that Judas had done. And as for that wicked Alcimus, he made him hye prest, and commaunded him to be auenged of the children of Israel. So they stode vp, and came with a greate hoost in to y londe of Juda, sendinge messaungers to Judas & his brethre, & speakinge vnto them w peaceable wordes: but vnder disceate. Therefore Judas & his people belueued not their saunge, for they sawe y they were cometh a greate hoost.

After this came y scribes together vnto Alcimus & Balthides, trustinge the best vnto them. And first, y Assideans requyred peace of them, sayenge: Alcimus y prest is come of the sede of Aarō, how can he disceane vs? So they gaue them louige wordes, & swore vnto them, and sayde: we wil do you no harme, nether youre frendes: and they belened them. But the very same daye toke they ly men of them, & slewe thē: accordinge to y wordes y are witten: They haue cast y flesh of y sanctes, & shed their bloude rounde aboute Jerusalem, & there was nomā y wolde bury thē.

The i. booke of the Machabees.

So there came a greate feare and drede amonge the people, sayenge: there is nether treuth nor righteousnesse in them, for they have brokē the appoyntment and ooth that they made. And Balthides remoued his hoost from Jerusalem, and pitched his tente at Bethzecha: where he sent forth, and toke many of them that had forsaken him: he slewe many of the people also, and cast them in to a greate pyrr. Then committed he the londe vnto Alcimus, and left men of warre with him to helpe him, and Balthides himself wente vnto the kynge. And thus Alcimus defended his hie priesthode, and all soch as vexed Israel, resorted vnto him: In so moch that they optayned the lōde of Juda, and dyd moch euell vnto the Israelites.

Now when Judas sawe all the myschefe that Alcimus and his company had done (yee more then the heichē them selues) vnto the Israelites: he wente forth rounde aboute all the borders of Jewry, and punyshed those unfaithfull rennagates, so that they came no more out in to the countre. So whē Alcimus sawe, that Judas and his people had gotten the vpperhande, and that he was not able to abyde them: he wente agayne to the kynge, and sayde all the worst of them that he coude. Then the kynge sent Nicanor, one of his chiefe prynces (which bare enell wyl vnto Israel) and commaunded him, that he shulde vtterly destroye the people.

So Nicanor came to Jerusalem with a greate hoost, and sent vnto Judas and his brethren with frendly wordes (but vnder disceate) sayenge: there shal be no warre betwixte me and you: I wil come with a few men, to se how ye do, with frenshipe. Upon this he came vnto Judas, and they saluted one another peaceably: but the enemies were appoynted to take Judas by violence. Neuertheles it was tolde Judas, & he came vnto him but vnder disceate: wherfore he gat him awaie from him, and wolde se his face nomore. When Nicanor perceaued & his counsell was bewrayed, he wente out to fight agaynst Judas, besyde Capharsalama: Where there were slayne of Nicanors hoost, v. M. men: the residue fled vnto the castell of David.

After this came Nicanor vp vnto mount Sion: and the prestes with the elders of the people wente forth to salute him peaceably, & to shewe him & burnt sacrifices & were offered for the kynge. But he laughed thē to scorne, mocked thē, defyled their offeringes, and spake disdainably, yee and swore in his wroth, sayenge: If Judas and his hoost be not deliuered now in to my hondes, as soone as ener I come agayne (and saye well) I shal burne vpon this house. With that, wente he out in a greate anger. Then the prestes came in, and stode before the altar of the temple, wepinge & sayenge: For so moch as thou (o LORDE) hast chosen this house, that thy name might be called vpon therin, and it shulde be an house of praier and petition vnto thy people: Be avenged of this mā & his hoost, and let them be slayne with & swearde: remembre the blasphemies of them, & suffre them not to continue eny longer.

When Nicanor was gone from Jerusalem, he pitched his tente at Bethoron, and there an hoost met hī out of Siria. And Judas came to Adarsa with iij. M. mē, & made his prayer vnto God, sayenge: O LORDE, because the messangers of kynge Senacherib blasphemed the, the angel wente forth, and slewe an CCCC. thousande of them: Euen so destroye thou this hoost before vs to daie that other people maye knowe, how that he hath blasphemed thy Sanctuary: and punyssh him, a cordinge to his maliciousnesse.

And so the hoostes stroke the felde, the thirtente daye of the moneth Adar: and Nicanors hoost was discomfited, and he himself was first slayne in the battayll. When Nicanors men of warre sawe that he was kyllēd, they cast awaye their weapons and fled: but the Jewes folowed vpon them an whole dayes iourney, from Adazer vnto Gazara, blowinge with the trompettes, and makinge tokens after them. So the Jewes came forth of all the townes there aboute, and blew out their hornes vpon them, and turned agaynst them: Thus were they all slayne, and not one of them left.

Then they toke their substaunce for a pray, and smote of Hicanors heade & his right honde (which he helde vp so proudly) and brought it with them, and hanged it vp afore Jerusalem. Wherfore the people were exceedingly reioysed, and passed euer that daye in greate gladnesse. And Judas orde-

And as touchinge the euell that Demetrius hath done vnto the Jewes, we haue wrytten vnto him, sayenge: Wherfore layest thou thy heavy yocke vpon the Jewes oure frendes and louers? If they make eny complaynte of the agayne vnto vs, we shal defende them, and fight with the by see and by lande.

The IX. Chapter.

In y meane season when Demetrius herde that Ticanor & his hoost was slayne in the felde, he proceeded further to sende Bachides and Alcimus againe into Jewry, and those that were in ther. ghe wynges of his hoost, with them. So they wēte forth by the waye that ledeth vnto Galgala, and pitched their tentes before Mesa-loth which is in Arbellis, and ranne the cite, and slewemoch people. In y first moneth of the Clij. ycare, they brought their hoost to Jerusalem, and rose vp and came to Berea, with xx. M. fore men, and ij. M. hoismen.

Now Judas had pitched his tente at Laiza, with thre thousande chosen men. And when they sawe the multitude of the other army y it was so greate, they were sore afrayed, & many conveyed them selues out of the hoost, In so moch y there abode no more of them but viij. C. men. When Judas sawe that his hoost fayled him, and that he must nedes fight: it brake his herte, y he had no tyme to gather them together: wherfore the man was in extreme trouble. Neuerthelesse he sayde vnto them, y remayned with him: Up, let vs go agaynst oure enemies, peraduanture we shal be able to fight with them. But they wolde haue stopped him, sayenge: we shall not be able, therfore let vs now saue oure lyues, and turne agayne to o brethien, and then wil we fight agaynst the,

for we are here but fewe. And Judas sayde: B God forbyd, that we shulde fle from them. Wherfore yf oure tyme be come, let vs dye manfully for oure brethien, and let vs not stayne oure honoure. Then the hoost removed out of the tentes, & stode agaynst them. The hoismen were denyded in two partes: the slyng casters and the archers wente before the hoost, and all the mightie men were forrest in the felde. Bachides himself was in the right wyng of the batell, & the hoost diuene nye in two partes, and blewethe trompettes. They of Judas syde blew y trompettes also, & the earth shoke at the noyse of the hoostes, and they stroke a felde from the morow till night. And when Judas sawe y Bachides hoost was strongest of the right syde, he toke with him all the hardy mē, and brake the right wyng of their ordie, and followed vpon them vnto the mount Azot.

Now when they which were of the leste wyng, sawe that the right side was discomfited, they persecuted Judas and them that were w him. Then was there a sore battayll, for many were slayne and wounded of both the parties, Judas also himself was kyled, and the remnaunt fled. So Jonathas and Symō toke Judas their brother, and buried him in his fathers sepulchre in the cite of Modin. And all the people of Israel made grea- te lamentacion for him, and mourned longe, sayenge: Alas, that this worthy shulde be slayne, which deliuered y people of Israel. As for other thinges pertainyng to y battayls of Judas, the nobles actes that he did and of his worthynesse: hey are not writte, for they were very many.

And after the death of Judas, wicked nē came vp in all the coastes of Israel, and there arose all sech as worke vngodlynesse. In those dayes was there a grea- te verth in the lande, and all the countre gaue euer them selues & theirs vnto Bachides. So Bachides chose wicked men, and made them lordes in the lande. These sought out and made search for Judas frendes, and brought them vnto Bachides: which auenged himself vpon the with grea- te despice. And there came so grea- te trouble in Israel, as was not sene the time that no prophet was sene there.

Then came all Judas frendes together, and sayde vnto Jonathas: For so moch as thy brot her Judas is deed, there is none like him to go forth agaynst o enemies, agaynst Bachides, and sech as are aduersaries vnto oure people. Wherfore this daye we chose the for him, to be oure prynce and captayne to orde our batell. And Jonathas toke the gouernaunce vpon him at the same tyme, and ruled in steade of his brother Judas. When Bachides gat knowlege therof, he sought for to slaye him: But Jonathas and Symon his brother, perceauynge that, fled in to y wildernesse of Thecua with all their company, and pitched their tētes by the water pole of Asphar.

Which when Bachides vnderstode, he came ouer Jordane with all his hoost vpon y Sabbath daye. Now had Jonathas sent his brother Jhon (a captayne of the people) to praye his frendes the Nabuthites, y they wolde lende them their ordinaunce, for they had moch. So the children of Jambry came out of Madaba, & toke Jhon & all y he had, & wente their waye withall. Then came worde vnto Jonathas & Symon his brother, y the children of Jambry made a greate marriage, & brought y bryde from Madaba with greate pompe: for she was doughter to one of the noblest prynces of Canaan. Wherefore they remembred the bloude of Jhon their brother, and wente vp, and hyd them selues vnder the shadowe of the mountayne.

So they lift vp their eyes, and looked: and beholde, there was moch a doo, & greate repaire: for the brydegrome came forth, & his frēdes and his biethren met them with tympany, instrumentes of musick, and many weapēs. Then Jonathas and they that were with him, rose out of their stonkinge places agaynst them, and slewe many of them. As for the remnaunt, they fled in to y mountaynes, and they toke all their substaunce. Thus the marriage was turned to mournynge, and y noyse of their melody in to lamentacion. And so when they had auenged the bloude of their brother, they turned agayne vnto Jordane.

Bachides hearinge this, came vnto y very border of Jordane with a greate power vpon the Sabbath daye. And Jonathas sayde to his company: let vs get vp, & syght agaynst our enemies: for it stonderth not with vs to daye, as in tymes past: Beholde, y enemies are in our waye, y water of Jordane vpon the one syde of vs, with bandes, fennes and woddes of y other syde, so y there is no place for vs to departe vnto. Wherefore crie now vnto heauen, that ye maye be delyuered from the power of your enemies. So they stroke the batell. And Jonathas stretched out his honde to smyte Bachides, but he fled backward. Then Jonathas and they y were with him leapt in to Jordane,

The ix. Chap. Ho. lxxij.

& swymmed ouer Jordane vnto him, & there were slayne of Bachides syde that daye, a thousande men.

Therefore Bachides w his hoost turned agayne to Jerusalem, & buylte vp y castels & stronge holdes that were in Jewry, Jericho, Emmaus, Bethoron, Bethel, Thānata, Phara & Thopo, w hye walles, w portes & with lockes: & set men to kepe them, y they myght vse their malice vpon Israel. He walled vp Bethsura, Gazara & the castell at Jerusalem also, & prouyded them w men & vytales: He toke also the chiefe men sonnes in the countre for pledges, and put them in the castell at Jerusalem to be kepte.

Afterwarde in the C. liij. yeare in the seconde monerch, Alcimus comaunded, that y walles of the ynnmost Sanctuary shulde be destroyed, & the buyldinges of y prophetes also. And when he beganne to destroye the, y thinges y he were aboute, were hyndered: for he was syncten w a palsey, & his mouth shut, so y he coude nomore speake ner comaunde eny of his house cōcerninge his busynesse. Thus dyed Alcimus in greate misery at the same tyme. And whē Bachides sawe y Alcimus was deed, he turned agayne to y kynge, & so the londe was in rest ij. yeares. Then all the vngodly men helde a counsell, sayenge: Beholde, Jonathas and his cōpany are at ease, & dwell without care. Wherefore let vs brynge Bachides hither, & he shall take them all in one night.

So they wote & gaue Bachides this counsell, which arose to come w a greate hoost, & sent letters priuely to his adherentes which were in Jewry, to take Jonathas & those y were with him: but they might not, for the other had gotten knowlege of their deuoyce. And Jonathas toke L. men of the countre (which were the ryngleders of them) & slewe them. Then Jonathas and Symon w their cōpany departed vnto the cite Bethbessen, which lieth in the wylbernesse, and repaired the decaye therof, & made it stronge. When Bachides knewe this, he gathered all his hoost, and sent worde to them that were of Jewry. Thē came he and layed sege to Bethbessen, and fought agaynst it a longe season, and made instrumentes of warre. Now Jonathas lefte his brother Symon in the cite, and wente forth himself in to the countre, and came with a certayne nombre, and slewe Odares and his biethren and the children of Phaseron in their tentes: so y he beganne to be stronge, & to increase in power.

As for Symon and his company, they wente out of the cite, and brēt vp the instrumētes of warre, and fought agaynst Bachides, and discōfited him. And Bachides was sore vexed, because his counsell and trauayle was in vayne. Wherfore he was wroth at þe wicked men that gaue him counsell to come in to their londe) and slew many of them. Then purposed he with his company to go awaye in to his owne countre: wherof whē Jonathas had knowlege, he sent embassitours vnto him, for to make peace with him, & þe he shulde deliuer him his prisoners agayne. To the which Bachides cōsented gladly, and dyd accordinge to his desyre: yee and made an ooth, that he shulde neuer do him harme all the dayes of his life. So he restored vnto him all the prisoners that he had taken out of the londe of Juda, and thē turned and wente his waye in to his owne londe, nether proceeded he eny further to come vnto þe borders of Juda. Thus Israel had no more warre. And Jonathas dwelt at Machmas, and beganne there to gouerne the people, and destroyed the vngodly men out of Israel.

1. Mac. 9. c

In the C. lx. yere came Alexander & some of noble Antiochus, and toke Prolomais, whose citisens receaued him, and there he raigned. When Demetrius herde therof, he gathered an exceeding greate hoost, and wēt forth agaynst him to fight. Wherfore Demetrius sent letters vnto Jonathas with louynge wordes, and praysed him greacly. For he sayde: we wyll first make peace with him, before he bynde him selfe with Alexander agaynst vs: els he shall remembre the euell that we haue done agaynst him, his brother & his people. And so he gaue Jonathas leue to gather an hoost, to make weapons, and to be confederate wth him, and commaunded the pledges that were in the castell, to be deliuered vnto him.

Then came Jonathas to Jerusalem, and

red the letters in the audiance of all the people, and of them that were in þe castell. And therfore were they sore a frayed, because they herde, that the kynge had geuē him licence to gather an hoost. Thus were the pledges deliuered vnto Jonathas, which restored them to their elders. Jonathas also dwelt at Jerusalem, and beganne to buylde vp and to repayre the cite: commaunding the worke men, to wall it, and the mount Sion rounde aboute with fre stone, to be a stronge holde, and so they dyd. As for the heithen that were in þe castels which Bachides had made vp, they fled: so that every man left the place, and wēt in to his owne countre. Only at Bethsura remayned certayne of the Jewes, which had forsaken the lawe and cōmaundementes of God, for Bethsura was their refuge.

Now when kynge Alexander herde of þe promises þe Demetrius had made vnto Jonathas, and when it was tolde him of þe batels and noble actes, which he and his brethren had done, and of the greate trauayles that they had taken: he saide: where shal we fynde soch a man: wel, we will make him our frende, & be confederate with him. Upon this he wrote a lettre vnto him, wth these wordes: Kynge Alexander saluteth his brother Jonathas. We haue herde of the, & thou art a valiant man, & mete to be oʒ frende: wherfore this daye we ordene the to be the hye prest of thy people, and to be called the kynges frende. (Upon this, he sente him a purple clotheinge & a crowne of golde) & thou mayest conside what is for oure profic, & kepe frendshipe towarde vs.

So in the vij. moneth of the C. lx. yere vpon the solempne fast daye of the tabernacles, Jonathas put the holy rayment vpon him. Then gathered he an hoost, & made many weapons. Which when Demetrius herde, he was maruelous sory, & sayde: Alas, what haue we done, & Alexander hath preuented vs in gettinge the frendshipe of the Jewes, for his owne defence: yet wil I wyte louingly vnto them also, yee & promise them dignities & rewardes, & they maye be of my syde. Wherupon he wrote vnto thē these wordes: Kynge Demetrius sendeth gretinge vnto y people of the Jewes. Where as ye haue kepte yoʒ conenaunt towarde vs, & cōtinued in oʒ frendshipe, not enclynge to oure enemies we were glad, when we herde therof. Wherfore remayne still & be faithfull to vs: & we shal wel recōpense you for the thinges, & ye haue done on oʒ partie: we shal release you of many charges, and geue you rewardes.

And now I discharge you & all y^e Jewes from tributes, I forgiue you the customes of salt, and release you of the crowne taxes, of the thirde parte of scede, and half of the frute of trees, which is myne owne dewty. These I leane for you, from this daye forth: so that they shall not be taken of the londe of Iuda ner of the thre cities which are added therunto out of Samaria and Galilee, from this daye forth for euermore. Ierusalem also with all thinges belöginge therto, shall be holy and fre, yee y^e tiches & tributes shall pertayne vnto it. As for the power of y^e castell which is at Ierusalem, I remytte & geue it vnto the hye priest, that he maye set in it such men, as he shall chose to kepe it. I frely deliuer all the Jewes that are prisoners thorow out all my realme: so that euery one of them shall be fre from payenge any tribute, yee euen of their catell.

All the solēpne feastes, Sabbathes, Cleuermones, the dayes appoynted, the thre daies before and after the feast shall be fre for all the Jewes in my realme: so that in them no man shall haue power to do eny thinge, or to moue eny busynesse agaynst eny of them in eny maner of cause. There shall xxx. M. also of the Jewes be witten vp in the kynges hoost, and haue their wages payed, as all ocher men of warre of the kynges shulde haue: and of them shall be ordened certayne, to kepe the kynges stronge holdes: yee and some of them shall be set ouer the kynges busynesse, that they maye faithfully deale with the same. The Jewes also shall haue prynces of their owne, & walke in their owne lawes, as the kyng hath commaunded in the londe of Iuda.

And the thre cities that are fallen vnto Jewry from the countre of Samaria and Galilee: shall be taken as Jewry, and be vnder one: nether be subiecte to eny strange lord, but to the hye priest. As for Ptolomais and the londe pertayninge therto, I geue it vnto the Sanctuary at Ierusalem, for the necessary expēces of the holy thinges. Moreover, I will geue euery yere xx. M. Syckles of syluer out of y^e kynges chequer (which pertayneth vnto me) to the worke of the temple: yee & loke what remayneth (which they y^e had ourematters in honde in tymes past, haue not payed) that same shall they geue vnto them also. And besydes all this, the v. M. syckles which they toke yearly of the rētes of the Sanctuary, shall belonge vnto the priestes that do seruyce.

The x. Chap. Fo. lxxiij.

Item, who so euer they be that fle vnto the temple at Ierusalem or within the liberties therof, where as they are fallen in to the kynges daunger for eny maner of busynes, they shall be pardoned, and all the goodes that they haue in my realme, shall be fre. For the buyldinge also & repayinge of the worke of the Sanctuary, expēces shall be geuen out of the kynges Chequer: yee and for the makinge of the walles rounde aboute Ierusalem, for the breakinge downe of the olde, and for the settinge vp of the stronge holdes in Jewry, shall y^e costes and charges be geuen out of the kynges Chequer.

But when Ionathas and the people herde these wordes, they gaue no credence vnto them, nether receaued them: for they remembred the greates wickednesse that he had done vnto Israel, and how sore he had vexed them. Wherefore they agreed vnto Alexander, for he was a prynce that had dealte frendly with them, and so they stode by him allwaye. The gathered kyng Alexander a greates hoost, and brought his armye agaynst Demetrius. So y^e two kynges strook battayll together, but Demetrius tooke flight, and Alexander folowed after and fell vpon them. A mightie sore fynde was it, continuinge till the Sonne wente downe, and Demetrius was slayne the same daye.

And Alexander sente embassieurs vnto Ptolomy the kyng of Egypte with these wordes, sayenge: For so moch as I am come agayne to my realme, and am set in the throne of my progenitors, and haue gotten the dominion, ouercome Demetrius, conquered the londe, and stricken a felde with him, so that we haue discomfited both him and his hoost, and syt in the throne of his kyngdome. Let vs now make frendshipe together, geue me thy daughter to wife: so shall I be thy sonne in lawe, and both geue the rewardes, and hir greates dignite. Ptolomy the kyng gaue answer, sayenge: Happy be the daye wherein thou art come agayne to the londe of thy progenitors, and set in the throne of thy kyngdome. And now will I fulfill thy wutyng: but meete me at Ptolomais, y^e we maye se one another, and that I maye marry my daughter vnto the accordinge to thy besyre. So Ptolomy wote out of Egypte with his daughter Cleopatra, & came vnto Ptolomais in y^e Cxij. yere: where kyng Alexander met him, & he gaue Alexander his daughter Cleopatra, and married them at Ptolomais with greates worshippe, like as the maner of kynges is to be.

Then wrote kynge Alexander vnto Jonathas, that he shulde come and mete him. So he wente honorably vnto Ptolomais, & there he met the two kinges, and gaue them greate presentes of golde and syluer, & founde fauoure in their sight. And there came together agaynst Jonathas certayne wicked men and vngacious personnes of Israel, makinge complayntes of him, but the kynge regarded them not. As for Jonathas, the kynge commaunded to take of his garments, and to clothe him in purple: and so they dyd. Then the kynge appoynted him to sit by him, and sayde vnto his prynces: Go with him in to the myddest of the cite, and make a proclamacion, that no man complayne agaynst him of eny matter, and that no man trouble him for eny maner of cause.

So it happened that when his accusers sawe the worshippe which was proclaimed of him, & that he was clothed in purple: they fled enerychone. And the kynge made moch of him, wrote him amonge his chiefe frendes, made him a duke, and partaker of his deminion. Thus Jonathas wente agayne to Jerusalem with peace and gladnesse. In the Cxv. yeare came Demetrius the sonne of Demetrius from Creta in to his fathers londe: wherof when Alexander herde tell, he was right sorry, and returned vnto Antioche. And Demetrius chose Appollonius (which had the gouernaunce of Celsyria) to be his cap-

1. Mac. 7. 2

So he gathered a greate hoost and came vnto Jamnia, and sende worde vnto Jonathas the hye priest, sayenge: Darrest thou stande vs thy self alone? As for me, I am but laughed to scorne and shamed, because thou prouest thy strength agaynst vs in the mountaynes. Now therfore yf thou trustest in thyne owne strength, come downe to vs in to the playne felde, and there let vs proue oure strength together: thou shalt fynde, that I haue valeaunt men of warre with me: and shalt knowe who I am, & the other that stande by me.

Which saye, that youre fote is not able to stande before oure face, for thy fathers haue bene twyse chaced in to their owne londe. And now, how wilt thou be able to abyde so greate an hoost of hoismen and fotemen in the felde, where as is nether rocke, stone ner place to fle vnto?

When Jonathas herde the wordes of Appollonius, he was moued in his mynde: wherfore he chose x. thousande men and wente out of Jerusalem, and Symon his brother met him for to helpe him: And they pitched their tentes at Joppa, but the cite keppe him forth, for Joppa was an holde of Appollonius. Then Jonathas layed sege to it, and they that were in the cite, for very feare let him in: and so Jonathas wanne Joppa. Appollonius hearinge of this, toke this thousande hoismen, with a greate hoost of fote, and wente as though he wolde go to Azotus, & came immediately in to the playne felde: because he had so many hoismen, and put his trust in the. So Jonathas folowed vpon him to Azotus, & there they stroke the battayll. Now had Appollonius lefte a M. hoismen behynde them pryuely in the cetes. And when Jonathas knewe that soch waite was layed behynde them, they were rounde aboute the enemies hoost, and shot dardes at the people from the mornynge to the euenynge. As for Jonathas people, they kepte their ordie as he had commaunded them, & the enemies hoises were ever labouringe.

Then brought Symon forth his hoost, and set them agaynst the foremen. For the hoismen were weery already. So he discomfited them, and they fled. And they that were scatred in the felde, gat them to Azotus, and came in to the temple of Dagon their Idol, that they might there saue their lyues. But Jonathas set fyre vpon Azotus and all the cities rounde aboute it, & toke their goodes, and brent vp the temple of Dagon with all them that were fled in to it.

Thus were slayne and brent well nye viij. thousande men. So Jonathas remoned the hoost from thence, and brought them to Ascalon: where that men of the cite came forth, and met him with greate worshippe. After this wente Jonathas and his hoost agayne to Jerusalem, with greate substaunce of good. And when kynge Alexander herde these thinges, he thought to do Jonathas more worshippe, & sent him a colar of golde, as the vse is to be geuen vnto soch as are of the kinges nexte bloude. He gaue him also that cite of Accaron (with the londes belongynge therto) in possession.

The XI. Chapter.

Now yf kynge of Egypte gathered an hoost, (like the sonde that lieth vpon the see shore) and many shippes: and wente aboute thorow disceate to eptayne yf king dome of Alexander, & to ioyne it vnto his owne realme. Vpon this he toke his iourneye in to Syria, & was letten in to the cities, and men came forth to mete him: for kinge Alexander had comaunded them so to do, because he was his father in lawe. Now when Ptolomy entred in to eny cite, he leste mē of warre to kepe it, and this he dyd thorow out all y cities. And when he came to Azotus, they shewed him the temple of Dagon and Azotus that was brent vp, with the other thinges which were destroyed, the deed bodie cast abroad, and y graues that they had made by the waye syde, for soch as were slayne in the felde: And tolde the kynge that Jonathas had done all these thinges, to the intēt they might get him euell will. But the kynge sayde not a worde therto.

And Jonathas met the kynge with greates hono^r at Joppa, where they saluted one another, and toke their rest. So when Jonathas had gone with y kynge, vnto the water that was called Eleutherus, he turned agayne to Jerusalem. Now Ptolomy had gotten the dominion of the cities vnto Seleucia vpon the see coast, ymaginyng wicked counceils agaynst Alexander, & sent embassours vnto Demetrius, sayenge: Come, let vs make a bonde betwixte vs, so shall I geue the my daughter that Alexander hath, and thou shalt raigne in thy fathers kyngdome. I repente that I gaue Alexander my daughter, for he goeth aboute to slaye me. And thus he flattered Alexander, because he wolde haue had his realme.

Thus he toke his daughter from him, gaue her vnto Demetrius, and forsoke Alexander, so that his malice was openly knowne. And Ptolomy came to Antioche, where he set two crownes vpon his owne heade: the crowne of Egypte and of Asia. In the meane season was kynge Alexander in Cilicia, for they that dwelt in those places, had rebelled agaynst him. But when Alexander herde of this, he came to warre agaynst him. So kynge Ptolomy brought forth his hoost and met him with a mightie power, and chased him awaye. Then fled Alexander in to Araby, there to be defended, and kynge Ptolomys honoure increased. And Zabdiel the Arabian smote of Alexanders heade, and sent it vnto Ptolomy. But the thirde daye after, died kynge Ptolomy himself: and they whom he had set in the stronge holdes, were slayne of those that were within y cities. And Demetrius raigned in y hundreth and seven and sixtie yeare.

At the same tyme gathered Jonathas them that were in Jewry to laye sege vnto the castell which was at Jerusalem, and so they made many instrumentes of warre agaynst it. Then wente there certaine vngod

ly personnes (which hated their owne people) vnto kynge Demetrius, and tolde him, that Jonathas beseged y castell. So when he herde it, he was angrie, and Immediately came to Ptolomais, and wrote vnto Jonathas, that he shulde not laye sege to the castell, but come and speake with him in all the haist. Nevertheless when Jonathas herde this he commaunded to besege it. He chose also certayne of the elders and priestes of Israel, and put him self in the parell, and toke with him golde, syluer, clothinge and diuerse presentes: and wente to Ptolomais vnto the kynge, and founde him gracious.

And though certayne vngodly men of his owne people made complayntes vpon him, yet the kynge intreated him, like as his predecessours had done before: and promoted him in the sighte of all his frendes, confirmed him in the hye priesthode with all the worshippe y he had afore, and made him his chiefe frende. Jonathas also desyred the kynge that he wolde make Jewry fre, with the thre head cities of Samaria and the lordes pertainyng therto: vpon this dyd Jonathas promyse him thre talents. Where vnto the kynge consented, and gaue Jonathas wytyng of the same, conteynyng the se wordes: kynge Demetrius sendeth greetinge vnto his brother Jonathas and to the people of y Jewes. We sende you here a copy of the lettre which we dyd wyte vnto oure elder Lathenus, concernyng you, that ye shulde knowe it.

Kynge Demetrius sendeth gretyng vnto Lathenus his elder. For the faithfulness that oure frendes the people of the Jewes kepe vnto vs, and for the longynge kyndnesse which they beare toward vs: we are determined to do them good. Wherfore we ordeine all y coastes of Jewry with the thre cities, Lyda and Ramatha (which are added vnto Jewry from Samaria) & all y lordes pertainyng there vnto, to be frely separated for soch as do sacrifice in Jerusalem: both concernyng the paymētes which the kynge toke yearly afore tyme, & y frutes also of the earth & trees. As for other tithes & tributes y belonged vnto vs, we discharge the therof from this tyme forth. In like maner we graunte vnto the all the customes of salt and crowne taxes, which were brought vnto vs. And this fredome shal they haue firme & stedfast, fro this tyme forth for euermore. Therfore se y ye make a copy of these o letters, and deliuer it vnto Jonathas: that it maye be kepte vpon y holy mount in a couenient place.

The i. booke of the Machabees.

E After this, when Demetrius the kynge sawe that his londe was in rest, and that no resistance was made him: he sent away all his hoost every man to his owne place, excepte an armie of straungers, whom he brought from the Isles of the heithen, wherfore all his fathers hoost had euell wyll at him. 1. MAC. 12. 2 Now was there one Triphon (that had bene of Alexanders parte afore) which when he sawe that all the hoost murmured agaynst Demetrius: he went to Eumolpue the Arabian (that brought vp Antiochus the sonne of Alexander) and laye sore vpon him, to delyuer him this yonge Antiochus: that he might raigne in his fathers steade. He tolde him also what greate euell Demetrius had done, & how his mē of warre loued him not: & so remayned there a lōge season.

And Jonathas sent vnto kynge Demetrius, to dryue them out which were in the castell at Jerusalem and in the other refuges, for they dyd Israel greate harme. So Demetrius sent worde vnto Jonathas, sayenge: I wil not only do these thinges for the and thy people, but at tyme conuenient I wil do both the & thy people greate worshippe. But now thou shalt do me a pleasure, yf thou wilt sende men to helpe me: for all myne armie is gone fro me. So Jonathas sent him iij. M. stronge men vnto Antioche, and they came vnto the kynge, wherfore the kynge was very glad at their commynge. But they that were of the cite (enen an Cxx. thousande mē) gathered them together, & wolde haue slayne the kynge, which fled in to his courte: & the citsyns kepte the stretes of the cite, and beganne to fight.

Then the kynge called for the Jewes helpe, which came vnto him all together, & wente abroad thorow the cite, and slew the same daye an C. M. men: set fyre vpon the cite, gat many spoyle in that daye, and delyuered yf kynge. So when the citsyns sawe that the Jewes had gotten their wyll of the cite, and they them selues dispoyned of their purpose: they made their supplicacion vnto the kynge, sayenge: Graunte vs peace, and let the Jewes ceasse from troublinge vs and the cite, and vpon this they cast away their weapons. Thus they made peace, and yf Jewes gat greate worshippe in the sight of the kynge, and in the sight of all that were in his realme, and were spoken of thorow out the kynngdome: and so they came agayne to Jerusalem with greate goodes.

G So the kynge Demetrius sat in the trone of his kynngdome, and had peace in his lōde

The xi. Chap.

Nevertheless he dyssembled in all that ever he spake, & with drewe him self from Jonathas, nether rewarded him accordinge to the benefites which he had done for him, but troubled him very sore. After this came Triphon agayne with yonge Antiochus, which raigned & was crowned kynge. Then there gathered vnto him all y men of warre, whō Demetrius had put away: these fought agaynst Demetrius, which fled & turned his backe. So Triphon toke the Elephantes, & wanne Antioche. And yonge Antiochus wrote vnto Jonathas, sayenge: I confirme the in thy presthode, & make y ruler of iij. countrees, yf thou mayest be a frende of y kynges.

Vpon this he sent him golden vessel to be serued in, and gaue him lene to drynke in golde, to be clothed in purple, and to weere a collar of golde, he made his brother Symon also capayne, from the coostes of Tyus vnto the borders of Egipte. Then Jonathas toke his iourney, & wente thorow y cities beyōde the water (of Jordane) and all the men of warre of Syria gathered thē vnto him for to helpe him. So he came vnto Ascalon, and they of the cite receaued him honorably: & from thence wente he vnto Gaza, but they wolde not let him in: wherfore he layed sege vnto it, burnynge vp and spoylinge the places that were aboute the cite.

And the citsyns of Gaza submytted thē selues vnto Jonathas, which made peace with them, but toke of their sonnes to pledge, sent thē to Jerusalem, & wente thorow the countre vnto Damascus. Now when Jonathas herd that Demetrius princes were come in to Cades (which is in Galilee) with a greate hoost, purposinge to put Demetrius out from medlinge in the realme: he came agaynst them, and lefte Symon his brother in the londe: which came to Bethsura, and layed sege to it a longe season, and discomfited them. So they desyred to haue peace w him, which he graunted them, & afterwarde put them out from thence, toke the cite, and set me to kepe it. And Jonathas with his hoost came to the water of Genesar, and by tymes in the mornynge gat them to the playne felde of Azor.

And beholde, the hoostes of the heithen met the in the felde, and layed watch for the in the mountaynes: so when Jonathas came agaynst the, the other (which were layed to watch) rose out of their places, and fought, and they that were of Jonathas syde, fled every man: and there was not one of the lefte, excepte Matathias the sonne of Absalomus, and Judas the sonne of Calphi the capayne of the hoost. The Jonathas rente his clothes, layed earth vpon his heade, made his prayer, and turned agayne to the in y felde: where they fought together, and he put them to flight. Now when his owne me were fled, sawe this: they turned agayne vnto him, and helped him to folowe vpon all their enemies vnto their tentes at Cades. So there were slayne of the heithen the same daye, iij. M. men, and Jonathas turned agayne to Jerusalem.

The XII. Chapter.

Jonathas seyng that y tyme was mete for him, chose certaynemen and sent them vnto Rome for to stablish and to renue the frendshipe w the. He sent lettres also vnto Sparta, and to other places in like maner. So they wete vnto Rome and entred in to y counsell, and sayde: Jonathas y hye priest and the people of y Jewes sent vs vnto you, for to renue y olde frendshipe and bonde of loue. Vpon this y Romaynes gaue the fre passortes, y me shulde lede the home in to y lode of Juda peaceably. And this is y copy of the lettres that Jonathas wrote vnto the Sparcians:

Jonathas y hye priest w y elders, prestes, and the other people of y Jewes, sende greetynge vnto y Sparcians their brethre. There were lettres sente longe ago vnto Onias y hye priest, from Arius which than raigned amonge you: that ye are oure brethren, as the wrytinge made therupon specifeth. And Onias increated the embassitoure that was sent, honorably, and receaued y lettres: wherein there was mencion made of the bonde of loue and frendshipe. But as for vs, we nede no such wrytinges: for why, we haue the holy booke of scripture in oure bondes to oure comforte. Neuerthelesse we had rather sende vnto you, for the renuyng of y brotherhode and frendshipe: lest we shulde be straunge vnto you, for it is longe, sens y tyme y ye sent worde vnto vs. Wherefore in y sacrifices y we of

fre and other ceremonies vpon y hye solempne dayes and other we allwaye remembre you without ceassyng (like as reason is, and as it becommeth vs to thynke vpon oure brethren) yee and are right glad, of youre prosperous honoure.

And though we haue had greates troubles and warres, so that the kynges aboute vs haue foughten agaynst vs: yet wolde we not be greuous vnto you ner to other of oure louers and frendes in these warres. For we haue had helpe fro heauē, so that we are deliuered, and oure enemies subdued. Wherefore we chose Flumenius the sonne of Antiochus and Antipater the sonne of Jason, and senter them vnto the Romaynes, for to renue the olde bonde of frendshipe and loue with them. We commaunded them also to come vnto you, to salute you, and to deliuer you letters, concerninge the renouacion of y brotherhode. And now ye shal do right wel, to geue vs an answer there vnto.

And this is the copy of the wrytinge, which Arius the kyng of Sparta sente vnto Onias: Arius kyng of the Sparcians sendeth greetynge vnto Onias the hye priest. It is founde in wrytyng, that the Sparcians and Jewes are brethren, and come of the generacion of Abraham. And now for so much as this is come to oure knowlege, ye shal do wel, to wryte vnto vs of youre prosperite. As for vs, we haue wrytten to mynde vnto you: Oure catell and goodes are yours and yours, ours. These thinges haue we commaunded to be shewed vnto you.

When Jonathas herde, that Demetrius prieces were come forth to fight agaynst him with a greater hoost the afore, he wente fro Jerusalem, and met the in the lode of Hemath, for he gaue them not space to come in to his owne countre. And he sent spyes vnto the tentes, which came agayne and tolde him, that they were appoynted to come vpon him in the night season. Wherefore when the Sonne was gone downe, Jonathas commaunded his men to watch all y night, and to be ready w weapens for to fight: and set watchmen rounde aboute the hoost. But when the aduersaries herde that Jonathas was ready w his men to the battayll, they feared and were afraied in their hertes, and kyndled fyres in their tentes, brake vp, and gat them awaye. Neuertheles Jonathas and his company knewe it not till the mornynge, for they sawe the fyres burnynge.

Then Jonathas folowed vpon the, but he might not ouertake them, for they were gone ouer the water Eleutherus. So Jonathas departed vnto y^e Arabians (which were called Zabadei) slewe them, & toke their goodes. He proceeded furthur also, and came vnto Damascus, & wente thorow all that countre. But Simon his brother toke his iourney and came to Ascalon and to the nexte stronge holdes: departinge vnto Joppa, and wanne it. For he herde, that they wolde stonde of Demetrius partie: wherfore he sent me of warre in the cite, to kepe it. After this came Jonathas home agayne, & called the elders of the people together: and deuysed with the for to buylde vp the stronge holdes in Jewry, and the walles of Jerusalem, to set vp an hye wall betwixte the castell and y^e cite, for to separate it from the cite, that it might be alone, and that men shulde nether bye nor sell in it.

Vpō this they came together for to buylde vp the cite: and for moch as the wall vpō the broke of the west syde (called Caphetheta) was fallen downe, they repayred it. And Symon set vp Adiada in Sephela, and made it stronge, settinge portes & lockes vpō it. Now when Triphon purposed to raigne in Asia, to be crowned, and to slaye the kynge Antiochus: he was afrayed that Jonathas wolde not suffre him, but fight against him. Wherfore he wente aboute to take Jonathas, and to kyll him.

So he departed, and came vnto Bethsan. Then wente Jonathas forth against him to the battayll with fourtye thousande chosen men, and came vnto Bethsan also. But whē Triphon sawe that Jonathas came with so greaue an hoost to destroye him, he was afrayed: and therfore he receaued him honorably, commended him vnto all his frendes, gaue him rewardes, and commaunded his men of warre to be as obediēt vnto him as to himself.

And saide vnto Jonathas: why hast thou caused this people to take soch trouaile, seyn

ge there is no warre betwixte vs? Therfore sendethem home agayne, & chose certaine me to waite vpon the, & come thou to me to Ptolomais: for I wil geue it the, wth the other stronge holdes, men of warre and their officers: As forme, I must departe, this is only y^e cause of my comynge. Jonathas beleued him, & dyd as he sayde, puttinge awaye his hoost, which wente in to y^e londe of Juda. He kepte but iij. M. by him, wherof he sente ij. M. in to Galilee, & one M. wente with himself.

Now as soone as Jonathas entred in to Ptolomais, the citsyns sparred the gates of the cite, and toke him, and slewe all them with the swerde, that came in with him. Then sent Triphon an hoost of fote me and hoisemen in to Galilee and in to the greaue playne felde, to destroye all Jonathas company. But when they knew that Jonathas was taken, and all they slayne that wayted vpon him: they toke counsell together, and came forth ready to the battayll. So when they which folowed vpon them, sawe, that it was a matter of life, they turned backe agayne. As for the other, they wente in to y^e londe of Juda peaceably, & bewayled Jonathas, & them that were with him right sore. And Israel made greaue lamentacion. The all the heithen y^e were rounde aboute them, sought to destroye the. For they sayde: now haue they no captayne, nor eny man to helpe them. Therfore let vs overcome them, and rote out their name from amonge men.

The XIII. Chapter.

Now whan Symon herde that Triphon gathered a greaue hoost, to come in to y^e londe of Juda, and to destroye it: and sawe y^e the people was in greaue fearfulness and care: he came vnto Jerusalem, and gathered the people together, & gaue the exortacion, sayenge: Ye knowe what greaue battayls I and my brethien & my fathers house haue stryken for the lawe & the Sanctuary, and what maner of troubles we haue sene: thorow occasion wherof, all my brethien are slayne for Israels sake, and I am left alone. And now let not me spare myne owne life in eny maner of trouble, for I am no better then my brethien: but wil avenge my people and the Sanctuary, oure children and oure wyues: for all the heithen are gathered together, to destroye vs of very malice.

At these wordes the hartes of the people were kyndled together, so that they cried with a loude voyce, sayenge: Thou shalt be captayne in steade of Judas & Jonathas thy brethren, ordre thou onre batell, 7 what so ener thou commaundest vs, we shall do it. So he gathered all the men of warre, makinge haist to fymish all the walles of Jerusalem, which he made stronge rounde aboute.

B Then sent he Jonathas the sonne of Absalomus wth a fresh hoost vnto Joppa, which diuene them out & were in the castell, and remayned there himself. Triphon also removed from Ptolomais with a greate armye, to come in to the londe of Juda, and Jonathas with him in warde. And Simon pitched his tentes at Addus before the playne felde.

But when Triphon knewe that Symon stode vp in steade of his brother Jonathas, and that he wolde warre agaynst him: he sent messaungers vnto him, sayenge: Where as we haue kepte Jonathas thy brother, it is for money that he is owynge in the kyngees accompte, concernynge the busynesse & he had in honde. Wherefore sende now an C. talentes of syluer and his two sonnes for suretie, that when he is lette forth he shal not forsake vs: and we shal sende him agayne. Nevertheless Symon knewe, that he dyssembled in his wordes: yet commaunded he the money & childien to be delyuered vnto him: lest he shulde be the greater enemye agaynst & people of Israel, and saye: because he sent him not the money and the childien, therefore is Jonathas deed.

C So Symon sent him the childien and an hundred talentes, but he dyssembled, & wolde not let Jonathas go. Afterwarde came Triphon in to the londe, to destroye it, and wente rounde aboute by the waye, & ledeth vnto Ador. But where so ever they wente, thither wente Symon and his hoost also. Now they that were in the castell, sent messaungers vnto Triphon, that he shulde make haist to come by the wyldernes, and to sende them vytales: And Triphon made ready all his horsmen to come that same night. Nevertheless it was a very greate snowe, so that he came not in Galaadithum. And whē he diuene nye Baschama, he slewe Jonathas and his sonnes there, and then turned for to go home in to his owne londe.

Thē sente Symon for to fet his brothers deede coarce, and buried it in Modin his fathers cite. So all Israel bewayled him with greate lamentacion, and mourned for him very longe. And Symon made open the sepulcre of his father and his brethren a buyldynge hye to loke vnto of fre stone behynde and before: and set vp seven pylers, one agaynst another (for his father, his mother and foure brethren) and set greate pilers rounde aboute, with armes vpon them for a perpetuall memory, and caried shippes besyde the armes: & they might be sene of mē saylinge in the see. This sepulcre which he made at Modin, stondeth yet vnto this daye.

Now as Triphon wente forth to walke wth & yōge kynge Antiochus, he slewe him traiterously, and raigned in his steade, crowned himself kynge of Asia, and dyd moch euell in the londe. Symon also buylde vp the castles in Jewry, makinge them stronge with hye towres, greate walles, portes and lockes, and layed vp vytales in the stronge holdes. And Symon chose certayne men, and sente them to kynge Demetrius: to desyre him, & he wolde discharge the londe from all bondage, for Triphon had spoyled it very sore. Where vpon Demetrius the kynge answered him, & wrote vnto him after this maner:

Demetrius & kige sendeth gretinge vnto Symon the hye priest his frende, with the elders and people of the Jewes. The golden crowne and precious stone & ye sente vnto vs, haue we receaued: and are ready to make a fied fast peace with you, yee and to wryte vnto oure officers, for to release you, concernynge the thinges wherin we made you fre: and the appoyntment & we make with you, shalbe firme and stable. The stronge holdes which ye haue buylde, shal be youre owne. As for eny over sight or fawte committed vnto this daye, we forgeue it, and the crowntax that ye ought vs also. And where as was eny other tribute in Jerusalem, it shal now be no tribute: and loke who are mee amonge you to be in oure courte, let them be witten vp, that there maye be peace betwixte vs.

Thus the yock of the heithen was taken from Israel, in the hundred and seuentie yere. And the peple of the Jewes beganne to write in their lettres and actes on this maner: In & first yere of Symon the hye priest, and prynce of the Jewes.

In those dayes wente Symon vnto Gaza, and beseged it rounde aboute, where he set vp ordinaunce of warre. And wanne a towre, which he toke. So they that gat in to the towre leapt into the cite, which was in a greate feare: In so moch that the people of the cite rente their clothes, and clymmed vp vpon the walles with their wyues and children, beseking Symon to be as one with them, sayenge:

O reward vs not after & wickednes, but be

S gracious vnto vs, and we shal do y^e seruyce. Then Symon for very pite, wolde fight no more agaynst them, but put them out of the cite, and caused the houses (wherin the ymagines were) to be clenſed: and ſo entred the cite with psalmes of prayſe, geuynge thankes vnto the L O R D E. So when he had caſt all abhominaciōs out of the cite, he ſet ſoch men in it as kepte the lawe of God, and made the cite ſtronger, and builded a dwelling place for himſelf.

Now when they in the caſtell at Jeruſalem were kepte ſo ſtrately, that they coude not come forth ner in to countrie, and might nether bye ner ſell: they were very hungrie, and many of them famiſhed to death: In ſo moche that they beſought Symon to be at one with them, which he granted them. So he put them out from thence, and clenſed the caſtell from fylchynneſſe. And vpon the xxiij. daye of the ſeconde moneth in the Cxxxj. yere they entred in to it with thankesgeuynges and braunches of palme trees, with harpes, crowdes, cymbals, and lutes, ſyngynge psalmes and ſonges of prayſe vnto God, for that the greates enemy of Iſrael was overcome.

And Symon ordered that the ſame daye ſhulde be kepte every yere in gladneſſe, and made ſtronger the hyll of the temple that was beſyde the caſtell, where he dwelt himſelf with his company. Symon alſo perceauynge that Jhon his ſonne was a mightie man of armes, made him captayne of all the hoofteſ, and cauſed him to dwell at Gaza.

The XIII. Chapter.

In the Cxxxj. yere gathered kynge Demetrius his hoofte, and departed vnto Media, to gett him helpe for to fight agaynst Triphon. Now when Arſaces the kynge of Perſia and Media herde, that Demetrius was entred within his borders: he ſente one of his prynces to take him alyue, and to brynge him vnto him. So he wente and ſlew Demetrius hoofte, toke himſelfe, brought him to Arſaces, which kepte him in warde. And all the londe of Iuda was in reſt, ſo longe as Symon lyued: for he ſought the wealth of his people, therefore were they glad to haue him for their ruler, and to do him worſhippe allwaye.

Symon wanne the cite of Joppa alſo for an haven towne, and made it an intrauce in to the Iles of the ſee. He enlarged the borders of his people, and cōquered them more londe: He gathered vp many of their people that were priſoners: he had the dominion of Gaza, Bethſura and the caſtell, which he clenſed from fylchines, and there was no mā that reſiſted him: So that every man tyllid his grounde in peace, the londe of Iuda and the trees gaue their frute and encrease. The elders ſat all in iudgment, and toke their deuoyce for the wealth of the londe: the yonger men put on worſhippe and harnesse vpon them. He prouyded vytayles for the cities, and made goodly ſtronger holdes of them: ſo that the fame of his worſhippe was ſpoken of vnto the ende of y^e worlde. For he made peace thorow out the londe, and Iſrael was full of myrth and ioye.

Every mā ſat vnder his vyne & fyge trees and there was no man to fraye them awaye. There was none in y^e londe to fight agaynst them, for then the kinges were overcome. He helped thoſe that were in aduerſite amonge his people, he was diligent to ſe y^e lawe kepte: as for ſoch as were vngodly and wicked he toke the awaye. He ſet vp y^e Sanctuary, & encreaſed the holy veſſels of the temple.

When y^e Romaynes and Sparcians had gotten worde, y^e Jonathas was deed, they were right ſory. But when they herde y^e Symon his brother was made hye prieſt in his ſteade, and how he had wonne the londe agayne wth the cities in it: they wrote vnto him in tables of laton, to renue the frendſhippe & bonde of loue, which they had made afore with Judas & Jonathas his brethre. Which writinges were red before the congregacion at Jeruſalem.

And this is the copy of the lettres, that the Sparcians ſent: The Senacours and ciueſyns of Sparta ſende gretinge vnto Simō y^e greates prieſt wth the elders, prieſtes, & y^e other people of the Jewes their brethre: Whē y^e embassiours that were ſente vnto y^e people, certified vs of youre worſhippe, honoure and prosperous wealth: we were glad of their cōmynge, and haue written the earande which they ſpake before the counsell of the people: namely, that Tumenius the ſonne of Antiochus, and Antipater the ſonne of Jaſon the Jewes embassiours are come vnto vs, for to renue the olde frendſhippe with vs. Vpon this the people conſented, that the men ſhulde be honorably intreated, and that the copy of their earande ſhulde be written in the ſpeciall booke of the people, for a perpetuall memory vnto the Sparcians: yee and that we ſhulde ſende a copy of the ſame vnto Symon the greates prieſt.

D After this dyd Symon sende Flumenius vnto Rome, with a golden shylde of a thousande pounce weight, to confirme the frendshipe with them: which when the Romaynes vnderstode, they saide: what thakes shal we recompence agayne vnto Symon & his childien? For he hath stablished his brethre, and ouercome the enemies of Israel. Wherefore they graunted him to be fre. And all this wrote the Jewes in tables of lator, and nailed it vnto the pilers vpon the mount Sion. The copy of the writinge is this:

The xviij. daye of y^e moneth Elul in the Cxxxij. yeare in the thirde yeare of Symon the hye prest, in the greate congregacion of y^e prestes, rulers of the people, and elders of the countre at Asaramel, were these wordes openly declared:

E For so moch as there was moch warre in oure londe, therefore Symon y^e sonne of Mathathias (come of the childien of Jacob) and his brethren, put them selues in parell, and resisted the enemies of their people: that their Sanctuary and lawe might be maneyned, and dyd their people greate worshippe. Jonathas in like maner, after that he had gouerned his people and bene their hye prest: dyed, and lyeth buried besyde his elders.

After that wolde their enemies haue trodden their holy thynges vnder fote, destroyed their londe, and vterly waisted their Sanctuary. Then Symon withstode them, and fought for his people, spent moch of his owne money, weapened the valeaunt men of his people, gaue them wages, made stronge y^e cities of Iuda, with Bethsura that lieth vpon the borders of Jewry, (where the ordinance of their enemies laye somtyme) & set Jewes there for to kepe it.

S He made fast Joppa also, which lieth vpon the see, and Gaza that bordieth vpon Azotus, (where the enemies dwelt afore) and there he set Jewes to kepe it: and what so euer was mete for the subduynge of the aduersaries, that layed he therin. Now when the people sawe the noble actes of Symon, and what worshippe he purposed to do for them, his godly behauioure, and faithfulnessse which he kepte vnto them, & how he fought by all waies y^e wealth of his people, because he dyd all this, therefore they chose him to be their pryncce & hye prest. And in his tyme they prospered wel by him, so y^e the heathens were take out of their londe: & they also which were in the cite of David at Ierusalem in the castell (where they wente out and desiled all thynges that were aboute the Sanctuary, and did greate harme vnto clenynes) and Symon put men of the Jewes in it, for the defence of the londe and the cite, and set vp the walles of Ierusalem.

And kynge Demetrius confirmed him in his hye presthode, made him his frende, and dyd him greate worshippe. For he herde that the Romayns called y^e Jewes their frendes, louers and brethren: how honorably they receaued Symons embassicours: how y^e Jewes and prestes consented that he shulde be their pryncce and hye prest perpetually (till God raysed vp the true prophet) and that he shulde be their captaigne, to care for the Sanctuary, and to set officers vpon the wortes therof, ouer the londe, ouer the weapens, ouer the houses of defence, to make prouision for the holy thynges, and to be obeyed of euery man, and all the writinges of y^e londe to be made in his name: that he shulde be clothed in purple and golde, and that it shulde be lawfull for none of the people nor prestes to breake eny of these thynges, to withstonde his wordes, ner to call eny congregacion in the londe without him: that he shulde be clothed in purple, and weere a colar of golde: And yf there were eny which disobeyed or brake this ordinaunce, that he shulde be punyshed.

So all the people consented to alowe Symon, and to do accordyng to these wordes. Symon also himselfe toke it vpon him, and was contente to be the hye prest, the captaigne and pryncce of the Jewes and prestes, and to gouerne them all. And they commaunded to make this writinge in tables of lator, and to fasten it vnto the compasse of the Sanctuary in an open place: and to laye vp a copy of the same in the treasury, that Symon and his posterite might haue it.

The XV. Chapter.

Now, kynge Antiochus the sonne of Demetrius sente lettres from the Isles of the see, vnto Symon the hye prest and pryncce of the Jewes, and to all the people, conteyninge these wordes: Antiochus the kynge sendeth gretinge vnto Symon the hye prest and to the people of the Jewes. For so moch as certayne wicked men haue gotten the kyngdome of oure progenitors, I am purposed to chalenge the realme agayne, and to restore it to the olde estate.

Wherefore I haue gathered a greate host

The i. booke of the Machabees.

and made shippes of warre: that I maye go thorow the countre, and be auenged of them which haue destroyed oure londe, and waylted many cities in my realme. And therefore now I make the fre also from all the tributes, wherof all kynges my progenitours haue discharged the, and from other customes (wher from they haue released the) what so euer they be: Yee I geue the leaue to smyte money of thine owne within thy londe. As for Jerusalem, I wil that it be holy and fre:
and all the weapens and houses of defence
which thou hast buylded and kept in thine
hondes, shal be thine. Whereas any thinge is or shal be owinge vnto the kyng, I forgiue it the, from this tyme forth for evermore.
And when we haue obtayned oure kyngdo-
me, we shal do the, thy people and the temple greate worship: so that youre honour
shal be knowne thorow out þ whole worlde.

In the Cxxiiij. yeare wente Antiochus in to his fathers londe, and all the men of war-re came together vnto him, so that fewe were left with Triphon. So the kyng Antiochus folowed vpon him, but he fled vnto Dora, which lieth by the see syde: for he sawe þ
there was myschefe comminge vnto him,
and that his hoost had forsaken him. Then came Antiochus vnto Dora with an hūdreth &
twentye thousande men of armes vpon fore, and eight thousande horsmen. So he com-passed the cite rounde aboute, and þ shippes came by the see. Thus they vered the cite by londe and by water, in so much that they suffired no man to go in nor out.

1. Ma 14. d

In the meane season came Numenius (&
they that had bene with him) from the cite of Rome, hauinge lettres witten vnto the kynges and prouincies, wherin were conteyned these wordes: Lucius the Mayre of Rome sendeth gretinge vnto Ptolomy the kyng.
The embassitours of the Jewes oure frēdes beinge sent from Symon the hye prest
and from the people of the Jewes, came vn-
to vs, for to renue the olde frendshipe and bonde of loue, and brought a shylde of golde weyenge a thousande pounde, which we were contente to receaue of them. Wherfore we thought it good to wryte vnto the kynges & prouincies, to do them no harme, nor to take
parte agaynst the, their cities ner countrees
nether to mayntene their enemies agaynst
them. If there be any wicked personnes ther
forc fled from their countre vnto you, dely-
them vnto Symon the hye prest, þ he maye
punysh them acordinge to their owne lawe.

The same wordes wrote the Romaynes

The xv. Chap.

also vnto Demetrius the kyng, to Attalus, Araba, Arsaces and to all regions: as Samsanes, to them of Sparta, Delo, Mido, Sy-don, Caria, Samos, Pamphilia, Lycia, Alicarnassum, and to þ Rhodes: to Gaselis, Coo, Sida, Arado, Goityna, Gnydum, to Cypres
and to Cyren. And of euery lettre they sent a copy to Symon the hye prest and to the people of the Jewes. So Antiochus the kyng brought his host vnto Dora the seconde ty-
me, to take it: where he made diuerse ordinaū-
ces of warre, and kepte Triphon in, þ he shul-de not come forth. Then Symon sent Antiochus two thousande chosen mē to helpe him
with golde, syluer and other plenteous geer:
Nevertheless he wolde not receaue them,
but brake all þ couenaunt which he made to Symon afore, & withdrew himself fro him.

He sent Athenobius also a frende of his
vnto Symon, for to reason with him, sayenge: Re witholde fro me Joppa and Gaza (&
the castell that is at Jerusalem) which are cities of my realme, whose borders ye haue destroyed, and done greate euell in the londe, hauynge the dominaciō in many other places of my kyngdome. Wherfore delyuer now þ
cities which ye haue takē, & þ tributes of þ places þ ye haue rule vpon with out the borders of Jewry: Or els geue me fyne hūdreth talentes of syluer, yee and for the harme that ye haue done in the cities and for the tributes of the same, other fyve hundred talētes.
If no, we shal come and fight agaynst you.

So Athenobius the kynges frende came to Jerusalem, and when he sawe þ greate wor-shipe and honoure of Symon in golde, syluer
and so greate plenty of ornaments: he marveled, and tolde Symon as the kyng commaunded him. Then answered Symon and saide vnto him: As for vs, we haue nether taken other mēs londe, ner witholdē them, but only oure fathers heretage, which oure enemies had vnrighteously in possession a cer-tayne tyme. This heretage of oure fathers haue we chalenged in processe of tyme. And where as thou cōplaynest concernynge Joppa and Gaza, they byd greate harme to þ people and in þ londe, yett wyll we geue an C.
talentes for them.

Nevertheless Athenobius answered him
not one worde, but turned agayne wrothfully vnto þ kyng, and tolde him all these wor-des, and the greate dignite of Symon with all that he had sene, and the kyng was very angrie. In the meane tyme fled Triphon by shippe vnto Orthosaida. Then the kyng made Cendebeus captayne of the see coast, &

gane him an hoost of fote men and horsmen, comandinge him to remoue y^e hoost toward Jewry, & to buylde vp the cite of Cedron, to make vp y^e portes, & to warre agaynst y^e people of the Jewes. As for the kynge him self, he folowed upon Triphon. So Cendebeus came vnto Jamnia, & beganne to vere y^e people, to treade downe Jewry, to take the people presoners, to slaye the & to buylde vp Cedron: where he set horsmen & other men of warre, that they might come forth and go thorow the stretes of Jewry, like as the kynge had commaunded him.

The XVI. Chapter.

A Then came Jhon vp from Gaza, and tolde Symon his father, what Cendebeus had done amonge their people. Vpon this called Symon two of his eldest sonnes, Judas & Jhon, and sayde vnto them: I and my brethren & my fathers house, haue ener from oure youth vp vnto this daye, foughten agaynst the enemies of Israel, & God gaue vs good fortune to deliuer Israel oft tymes. And now for so moch as I am olde, be ye in steade of me & my brother, to go forth & fight for oure people, & the helpe of God be wth you. So he chose xx. M. fightinge men of the countre, with horsmen also, which wente forth agaynst Cendebeus and rested at Modin.

In the mornynge they arose, & wete in to y^e playne felde: and beholde, a mightie grea te hoost came agaynst the, both of fote men & horsmen. Now was there a water broke betwixte them, & Jhon remoued the hoost toward the. And when he sawe that the people was afrayed to go ouer y^e water broke, he wente ouer first him self: and the men seynge this, folowed him.

23 Then Jhon set his horsmen & fote men in ordie, the one by the other, for their enemies horsmen were very many. But when they blew vp the prestes trompettes, Cendebeus fled wth his hoost, wherof many were slayne, and the remnaunt gat them to their stronge holde. Judas also Jhons brother was wounded at y^e same tyme. And Jhon folowed still vpon y^e enemies, till he came to Cedron which he buylde. The enemies fled also vnto the towres y^e were in y^e felde of Azotus, & those dyd Jhon burne vp. Thus there were slayne ij. M. men of them, & Jhon turned agayne peaceably in to Jewry.

And in the felde of Jericho was Ptolemy the sonne of Abobus made captaigne: which because he had abundaunce of syluer & golde, (for he had married the doughter of Symon the hye prest) waxed proude in his mynde, & thought to conquere the lode, ymagininge falsed agaynst Symon & his sonnes, to destroye the. Now as Symon was goynge aboute thorow the cities, y^e were in y^e countre of Jewry, and carynge for them: he came downe to Jericho, with Matathias & Judas his sonnes, in the Cxxxvij. yeare, in y^e first moneth called Sabat. Then Ptolemy y^e sonne of Abobus receaued them (but wth disceate) in to a stronge house of his called Doch, which he had buylde, where he made them a bandet.

So when Symon & his sonnes were merry & had dronken well, Ptolemy stode vp wth his men (wh^o he had hyd there) & toke their weapons, entred in to the bandet house, & slewe Symon wth his two sonnes, & certayne of his seruantes. Soch greate vnfaichfulnesse dyd Ptolemy in Israel, and recompensed euill for good. Then wrote this Ptolemy y^e same vit to kynge Antiochus, requyringe him that he shulde sende him an hoost to helpe him: & so shulde he deliuer him the lode, wth the cities & tributes of the same. He sent other men also vnto Gaza, for to take Jhon: & wrote vnto the captaines to come to him, & he shulde geue them syluer, golde and rewardes. And to Jerusalem he sent other, to take it and the Sanctuary.

The ranne there one before, & tolde Jhon in Gaza, that his father & his brethren were slayne, and how that Ptolemy had sent to slay him also. Wh^{en} Jhon herde this, he was sore abashed, and layed h^odes of them that were come to destroye him, and slewe them: for he knowe, that they wente aboute to kyll him.

As for other thinges concernynge Jhon: of his warres, of his noble actes (wherin he behaued him self manfully) of the buyldinge of walles which he made, and other of his dedes: They are written in the cronicle.

The first Chapter.

He brethren of y Jewes which be at Jerusalem & in the londe of Jewry, wish vnto those brethren of y Jewes that are thorough out Egypte: good fortune, health and peace.

God the LORDE be gracions vnto you, & thynke vpon his couenaunt þ he made w Abraham, Isaac & Jacob his faithfull seruantes: and geue you all soch an herte, that ye maye loue and serue him, yee and perfonr me his wyll with an whole herte and of a wyllinge mynde: he opene youre hertes in his lawe and in his commaundementes, sende you peace: heare youre prayers, be at one with you, and neuer forsake you in tyme of trouble. This is heare oure prayer for you. Deut. 10. 1

What tyme as Demetrius raigned, in the Cxxx. yeare, we Jewes wrote vnto you in y trouble and violence that came vpon vs. In those yeares after that Jason departed out of the holy londe and kyngdome, they brent vp the portes, and shed innocent bloud. Then made we oure prayer vnto þ LORDE, and were herde: we offred, and lighted the candels, settinge forth cakes and bried. And now come ye vnto the feast of tabernacles in the moneth Caslen. Leuit. 23. 1

In the Cxxxvij. yeare y people þ was at Jerusalem and in Jewry, the counsell and Judas him self, sent this wholsome salutation vnto Aristobolus kyng Ptolomys master, which came of the generacion of the anoynted prestes: and to the Jewes that were in Egypte: In so much as God hath deliuered vs from greate perils, we thanke him hylie, In that we resisted so mightie a kyng. And why? he brought men out of Persis by heapes, to fight agaynst vs and the holy cite. For as he was in Persis (namely, þ capayne w the greate hoost) he perished in the temple of Elanias, beyng disceaued thow the deuyc of Elanias prestes. For as he was purposed to hane dwelt there, Antiochus & his frendes came thither, to receaue moch moneye for a dowry. So whē Elanias prestes had layed forth þ moneye, he entred with a small company in to the compasse of the temple, and so they shut the temple.

Now when Antiochus entred by openynge the pryncy intrance of the temple, þ prestes stoned þ capayne to death, hewed the in peces that were with him, smote of their heades, and throwe them out. In all thinges God be praysed, which hath deliuered the wicked in to oure hondes. C

The .ij. booke of the Achabees.

Where as we now are purposed to kepe the purification of the temple vpon þe xxv. daye of the moneth Casleu, we thought necessary to certifie you therof: that ye also might kepe the tabernacles feast daye, & the daye of the fyre, which was geuen vs when Nehemias offred, after that he had set vp þe temple & the altar. For what tyme as oʳ fathers were led awaye vnto Persia, þe prestes (which then sought the honoʳ of God) to kepe þe fyre pryncely from þe altar, & hyd it in a valley, where as was a depe drye pyt: & ther in they kepte it, because the place was vnknowne to every man. Now after many yeres when it pleased God, þe Nehemias shulde be sent from the kynge of Persia: he sent the childers children of those prestes (which had hyd the fyre) to seke it. And as they tolde vs, they founde no fyre, but thicke water.

¶ The commaunded he them to drawe it vp, & to brynge it him, & þe offerynges withall. Now when þe sacrifices were layed on & ordred, the prest Nehemias commaunded to sprenkle them & the wod wth the water. Whē this was done, & the tyme come þe Sonne shone, which afore was hyd in the cloude: there was a greate fyre kyndled, In so moch þe euery man marueled. Now all the prestes prayed, whyle the sacrifice was a makynge. Jonathas prayed first, and þe other gaue an swere.

And Nehemias prayer was after this maner: O LORDE God maker of all thinges, thou fearfull & stronge, thou righteous & mercifull, thou þe art onely a gracious kynge, onely lyberall, onely iust, Almightie and everlastinge, thou þe deliuerest Israel from all trouble, thou þe hast chosen the fathers & halowed them: receaue the offeringe for the whole people of Israel, preserve thine owne porcion, & halowe it. Gather those together, þe are scattede abrode from vs: deliuer them þe are vnder the heithens bondage, loke vpon them which are despyed & abhorred, þe the heithen make knowe & se, how þe thou art oʳ God: punyshe them þe oppresse, and proudly put vs to dishonoure. Set þe people agayne in thy holy place, like as Moses hath spokē.

¶ And the prestes songe psalmes of thankesgynges, so longe as the sacrifice endured. Now when the sacrifice was bient, Nehemias commaunded the greate stones to be sprenkled wth the residue of the water. Which when it was done, there was kyndled a flame of the also: but it was consumed thorow the light, þe shyned from the altar. So whē this matter was knowne, it was tolde the Kynge of Persia, that in the place where the prestes (which were led awaye) had hyd fyre, there appeared water in steade of fyre, & that Nehemias & his company had purified the sacrifices withall. Then the kynge consideringe & ponderynge þe matter diligently, made him a temple, to proue the thinge þe was done. And whē he founde it so in dede, he gaue the prestes many giftes & dyuerse rewardes: yee he toke them wth his owne hōde, & gaue the. And Nehemias called the same place Neptchar, which is as moch to saye as a cleansing: but many men call it Nepti.

¶ It is wrytten also, how the prophet (at þe commaundement of God) charged them, to take the tabernacle & the arke wth them: & he wente forth vnto the mountaine, where Moses clymmed vp, & sawe þe heretage of God. And when Jeremy came there, he founde an open caue, wherin he layed the tabernacle, þe arke & the altar of incense, & so stopped the hole. There came certayne men together also folowinge him, to marche the place, but they coude not fynde it. Which when Jeremy perceaued, he reproveth the, sayenge: As for that place, it shalbe vntowne, vntill þe tyme that God gather his people together agayne, & receaue the vnto mercy. Then shal God shewe them these thinges, & the maiesty of the LORDE shal appeare, & the cloude also, like as it was shewed vnto Moses: & like as when Salomon desyied þe place might be sanctified, & it was shewed him.

In y Annotacions & wytynges of Jeremy, were these thinges put also: & how he made a lybrary, & how he gathered out of all countrees the bookes of the prophetes, of David, the epistles of the kynges, and of the pientes. Euen so Judas also, loke what he lerned by experiece of warre, & soch thinges as hath happened vnto vs, he gathered the all together, & so we haue them by vs. If ye now desyre to haue the same, sende some body to fetch them vnto you. Deut. 30. 2

As concernynge Judas Machabees & his brethren, the purification of the greates temple, the dedicacion of the altare, yee & of the warres y concerne noble Antiochus and Eupator his sonne, of the shynynge y came downe from heauen vpon these, which manfully defended the Jeres. (For though they were but fewe, yet defended they the whole londe, droue awaye y enemies hoost, recouered agayne the temple, y was spoken of thorow out all the worlde, deliuered the cite, doyng their best y the lawe of the LORDE which was put downe, might w all tranquillite be restored agayne vnto the LORDE, y was so mercifull vnto the.) As touchynge Jason also of Cyren, we haue vnder take cōpendiously to brynge in to one booke, the thinges y were cōprehended of him in fyue. For we cōsideringe the multitude of the bookes, and how harde it shulde be for them y wolde medle with stones and actes (and that be cause of so dyuerse matters) haue vnder taken so to compichende the stories: that soch as are disposed to reade, might haue pleasure and pastyme therein: and that they which are diligent in soch thinges, might the better thinke vpon them: yee and that who so euer red them, might haue profit thereby.

Neuerthelesse we oure selues that haue medled with this matter for the shorTENynge of it, haue taken no small labour, but greates diligence, watchynge and trauayle. Like as they that make a feast, wolde sayne do other men pleasure: Euen so we also (for many mens sakes) are very wel content to take the labour, where as we maye shortly comprehend, the chynge that other men haue truly wrytten.

For he y buyldeth an house a new, must prouyde for many chynge to y whole buyldinge: but he that payneth it afterwarde, seteth but only what is comly, mete and conuenient to garnysh it withall. Euen so do we also in like maner. And why? He that begynneth to wryte a story for the first, must with his vnderstandinge gather the matter together, set his wordes in ordre, and diligently sette out euery parte: But he that afterwarde wyll shorten it, vseth few wordes, and toucheth not the matter at the largiest. Let this be sufficient for a prologe, now wyll we beqynne to shewe the matter: for it is but a foolish thinge to make a longe prologe, and to be shorte in the story it self.

The iij. Chapter.

What tyme as the holy cite was inhabited in all peace and wealth, & when the lawes were yet very well kepte. (For so was it ordered by Onias the hye priest and other godly men, that were enemies to wickednesse:) It came therto, that euen the kynges and prynces the selues dyd the place greates worshippe, and garnysched y temple with greates giftes: In so moch that Seleucus kyng of Asia of his owne rentes bare all the costes beloninge to the seruyce of the offerynges. Then Symon of the trybe of Ben Jamin, a ruler of the temple, laboured to worke some myschefe in the cite: but the hye priest resisted him.

1. Mac. 3. 1

Neuerthelesse when he might not overcome Onias, he gat him to Appolonius the sonne of Thersa (which the was chiefe lorde in Celosyria and Phenices) and tolde him, y the treasury in Jerusalem was full of innumerable money, and how that the comons goodes (which belonged not vnto the offerynges) were excedinge greates also: yee and how it were possible, that all these might come vnder the kynges power.

Now when Appolonius had shewed the kyng of the moneye, as it was tolde him: y kyng called for Heliodorus his steward, and sent him with a commaundement, to brynge him the sayde money. Immediately Heliodorus toke his iourney, but vnder a colour, as though he wolde go thorow Celosyria and Phenices to vsset the cities, but his purpose was to fulfill the kynges pleasure. So when he came to Jerusalem, and was lonynge receaued of the hye priest in to the cite: he tolde what was determind concernyng the moneye, and shewed the cause of his commynge: heared also, yf it were so in dede. Then the hye prest tolde him, that there was soch money layed vp for the vpholdinge of weddowes and fatherlesse childre, and how that a certayne of it belonged vnto Hyrcanus Tobias a noble man: and that of all the moneye (which that wicked Symon had bewrayed) there were iij. hundred talents of syluer, and ij. hundred of golde: yee & that it were impossible for those mens meaninge to be disceaued, that had layed vp their moneye in the place and temple (which is had in worshippe thorow the whole worlde) for the mayntenaunce and honoure of y^e same. Whervnto Heliodorus answered, y^e the kynge had commaunded him in eny wyse, to brynge him the moneye.

C So at the daye appoynted, Heliodorus entred into the temple to ordie this matter. But there was no small feare thorow out the whole cite. The prestes fell downe before the aulter in their vestimentes, and called vnto heauen vpon him, which had made a lawe concernynge stuffe geuen to kepe, that they shulde be safely preserved, for soch as comitte them vnto keepynge. Then who so had looked the hye prest in the face, it wolde hane greued his herte: for his countenaunce and the chaunginge of his coloure, declared the inwarde sorowe of his mynde. The mā was all in heuynesse, and his body in feare: wherby they that looked vpon him, might perceaue the greife of his herte. The other people also came out of their houses by heapes vnto the comon prayer, because the place was like to come in to confucion. The women came together thorow the stretes, with hayrie clothes aboute their brestes.

D The virgins also that were kepte in, ranne to Onias, some to the walles, other some looked out at the wyndowes: yee they all helde vp their hondes toward heaue, & prayed. A miserable thinge was it, to loke vpon the comon people, & the hye prest beyng in soch trouble. But they besought Almighty God, that the goodes which were committed vnto thē, might be kepte whole, for those that had deliuered them vnto their keepynge. Nevertheless the thinge that Heliodorus was determed to do, that perfourmed he in the same place, he him self personally beyng aboute the treasury with his men of warre. But the spere of Almighty God shewed him self openly, so that all they which presumed to obeye Heliodorus, fell thorow y^e power of God in to a greate fearfulness & drede. For there appeared vnto them an horse, with a terrible man syttinge vpon him, deckt in goodly aray, and the horse smote at Heliodorus with his fore fete. Now he that sat vpon y^e horse, had harnesse of golde vpon him.

Moreover there appeared ij. fayre and beautiful yongemen in goodly aray, which stode by him, scourged him of both the sydes, & gaue him many stripes without ceassing. With that, fell Heliodorus sodenly vnto the ground. So they toke him vp (beyng compassed aboute with greate darkness) and bare him out vpo a beare. Thus he that came with so many runners and men of warre in to y^e sayde treasury, was borne out, where as no man might helpe him: and so the power of God was manifest and knowne. He laye still donne also by the power of God, destitute of all hope and life. And they prayd the LORDE, that he had shewed his power vpon his place and temple, which a litle afore was full of feare & trouble: and that thorow the revelacion of the Almighty LORDE it was fylled with ioye and gladnesse.

The certaine of Heliodorus frēdes praied Onias, that in all haist he wolde call vpon God, to graunte him his life, which was geuynge vp the goost. So the hye prest considered the matter, and lest the kynge shulde suspecte that the Jewes had done Heliodorus some euell: he offred an healt offeringe for him. Now whē y^e hye prest had opteyned his petition, the same yonge mē in the same clothinge appeared, & stode besyde Heliodorus, sayenge: Thanke Onias y^e hye prest, for for his sake hath y^e LORDE graunted the y^e life: therfore seyng y^e God hath scourged y^e, gene him prayse & thanks, and shewe euery man his might & power. And whē they had spoken these wordes, they appeared nomore.

So Heliodorus offred vnto God, made greate vowes vnto him which had graunted him his life, thanked Onias, toke his hoest, & wēt agayne to y^e kinge. Thē testified he vnto euery mā, of y^e greate workes of God, y^e he had sene wth his eyes. And whē the kynge axed Heliodorus who were mete to be sent yet once agayne to Jerusalem, he sayde: If thou hast eny enemy or aduersary vnto thy realme, sende him thither, & thou shalt haue him punished, yf he escape wth his life: for in y^e place (no doute) there is a speciall power & workinge of God. For he y^e dwelleth in heaue, visiteth & defendeth y^e place: & all y^e come to do it harme, he punyssheth & plageth thē. This is now y^e matter concerninge Heliodorus, & y^e keepynge of y^e treasury at Jerusalem.

The III. Chapter.

1. Ma. 3. 2

This Symon now (of whom we spake afore) beyng a bewrayer of the money and of his owne naturall countrey, reported the worst of Onias: as though he had moued Heliodorus vnto this, and as though he had bene a brynger vp of euill. Thus was he not ashamed to call him an enemy of his realme, that was so faithfull an overseer & defender of the cite & of his people: yee & so feruent in the lawe of God. But when the malice of Symon increased so farre, & thow his frendes there were certayne manslaughters comitted: Onias considered the perill & might come thow this strife, and how that Appollonius (namely the chefe lord in Celosyna and Phenices) was all set vpon tyranny, and Symons malice increased the same: he gat him to the kynge, not as an accuser of the citisyns, but as one that by himself intended the comon wealch of the whole multitude. For he sawe it was not possible to lyue in peace, nether Symon to leane of from his foolishnesse, excepte the kynge dyd loke hereto.

But after the death of Seleucus, when Antiochus (which is called the noble) toke the kyngdome: Jason the brother of Onias laboured to be hys prest: for he came vnto the kynge, and promised him thre hundred & lxx. talentes of syluer, & of the other reues lxxx. talentes. Besydes this he promised him yet an C. & L. yf he might haue a scole of y children, and that he might call them of Jerusalem Antiochians. Which when the kynge had graunted, & he had gotten the superiourite: he begane immediatly to drawe his kynsmen to the custome of the heithen, put downe the thinges, that the Jewes had set vp of loue, by Jhon the father of Eupolemius (which was sent embassicoure vnto Rome, for to make the bonde of frendshipe and loue.) he put downe all the lawes & liberties of the Jewes, and set vp wicked statutes. he durst make a fightinge scole vnder a castell, and set fayre yongemen to lerne the maners of whores and brodeles.

Chis was now the begynnynge of the heithenish & straunge conuersacion, brought in thow the vngacious and vnherbe wickednesse of Jason (which shulde not be called a prest, but an vngodly personne.) In so much, that the prestes were now nemore occupied aboute the seruyce of the aulter, but despyed the temple, regarded not the offrynges: yee gaue their diligēce to lerne to fight, to rustle, to leape, to daunce, & to put at stone: not settinge by the bond of his fathers, but liked the glory of the Grekes best of all: for the which they stroue periously, and were gredy to folowe their statutes, yee their lust was in all thinges to be like the, which afore were their enemies & destroyers. Howbeit to do wickedly agaynst the lawe of God, shal not escape unpunished: but of this we shal speake here after.

What tyme as the Olympiades sportes were played at Tyus (the kynge him selfe beinge presente) this vngacious Jason sent wicked men, bearinge from them of Jerusalem (which now were called Antiochians) iij. C. diachmas of syluer for an offerynge to Hercules. These had they that caried them, desyred vnder such a fashio, as though they shulde not haue bene offred, but bestowed to other vses. Neuertheles he that sent them, sent them to the intent that they shulde be offred vnto Hercules. But because of those that were present, they were geuen as to the makynge of shippes. And Appollonius the sonne of Nestus was sent in to Egypte, because of the noble men of kynge Ptolomy Philometor. Now when Antiochus perceaued that he was put out from medlinge in the realme, he sought his owne profic, departed from thence, came to Joppa, & then to Jerusalem: where he was honorably receaued of Jason & the cite, & was brought in wth torchlight and with greate prayse: and so he turned his hoost vnto Phenices.

After iij. yeare Jason sent Menelaus (the fore sayde Symons brother) to beare the money vnto the kynge, & to bringe him answer of other necessary matters. But he (when he was praysed of the kynge for magnificence of his power) turned the hye presthode vnto himselfe, layenge vp iij. C. talentes of syluer for Jason. So whē he had gotten comādemētes from the kynge, he came, hauinge no thinge but becometh a prest, but bearinge the stomack of a cruell tyrante, & the wiach of a wylde brute beest. Then Jason (which had disceined his owne brother) seyng that he himselfe was begyled also, was fayne to fle into the lode of the Ammonites, & Menelaus gat the dominio. But as for the moneye that he had promised vnto the kynge, he dyd no thinge therein, when Sosstratus the ruler of the castell requyred it of him. (For Sosstratus was the man, that gathered the customes) wherfore they were both called before the kynge. Thus was Menelaus put out of the presthode, & Lysimachus his brother came in his steade. Sosstratus also was made lord of the Cyprians.

These were reformed very fift yeare.

1. Mac. 4. 3

It happened in þe meane season, & þe Tharsians & Malloicians made insurrecciō, because they were geuen for a present vnto Kyng Antiochus concubine. Then came þe kyng in all þe haist, to still them agayne and to pacifie the matter, leauynge Andronicus there to be his debyte, as one mete therfore. Now Menelaus supposinge that he had gotten a right convenient tyme, stole certayne vessels of golde out of the temple, and gaue the to Andronicus for a present: and some he solde at Tyus and in the cities therby.

Which when Onias knewe of a suretye, he reprimed him: but he kepte him in a sanctuary besyde Daphnis, that lyeth by Antioche. Wherfore Menelaus gat him to Andronicus, and prayed him that he wolde slaye Onias. So when he came to Onias, he counceled him craftely to come out of the sanctuary, geuynge him his honde with an ooth (how be it he suspecte him) and the he slew Onias, without eny regarde of righteuousnesse. For the which cause not only the Jewes, but other nations also toke indignacion, and were displeased for the vnrightheous death of so godly a man.

And when the kyng was come agayne from Cilicia, the Jewes and certaine of the Gekes wente vnto him, complayninge for the vnrightheous death of Onias. See Antiochus himself also was sorry in his mynde for Onias, so þe it pitied him, and he wepte, remembringe his sobernesse and manerly behauiour. Wherfore he was so kyndled in his mynde, þe he commaunded Andronicus to be striped out of his purple clothinge, & so to be led thorow out all the cite, yee and þe vngacious man to be slayne in þe same place, where he committed his wickednes vpon Onias. Thus þe LORDE rewarded him his punishment, as he had deserved. Now when Lysimachus had done many wycked dedes in þe temple thorow the counsell of Menelaus, and the voyce came abroad: the multitude gathered the together agaynst Lysimachus, for he had caried out now moch golde.

So when the people arose and were full of displeasure, Lysimachus armed iij. M. vntures to defende him: a certayne tyrant beyng their captayne, which was growen both in age & woodnesse. But when the people vnderstode the purpose of Lysimachus, some gat stones, some good stronge clubbes, & some cast asshes vpon Lysimachus. Thus there were many of the wounded, some beyng slayne, & all the other chaced awaye. But as for þe wycked churchrobber himself, they kyllled him besyde the treasury. Of these matters therfore there was kepte a courte agaynst Menelaus.

Now when þe kyng came to Tyus, they made a cōplaynte vnto him of Menelaus, concerninge this busynesse, & þe embassicours were thie. But Menelaus wente & promised Ptolomy to geue him moch money, yf he wolde perswade the kyng. So Ptolomy wete to the kyng in to a courte (where as he was set to coole him) & bughte him out of þe mynde. In so moch þe he discharged Menelaus fro þe accusacions, & not withstandinge was cause of all myschefe: and those poore men (which yf they had tolde their cause, yee before the Scythians, they shulde haue be iudged innocent) he cōdemned to death. Thus were they so one punyshed, which folowed vpo þe matter for þe cite, for þe people, & for þe holy vessell. Wherfore they of Tyus toke indignacion, & buried the honorably. And so thorow þe covetousnesse of them that were in power, Menelaus remayned still in authorite, increasynge in malyce, to the hurte of the citesyns.

The V. Chapter.

In þe same tyme Antiochus made him ready to go agayne in to Egipte. There were there sene at Jerusalem (xl. dayes lōge) hoisimē runnynge to and fro in the ayre, which had rayment of golde, & speares. There were sene also whole hoostes of mē weapened, & houses runnynge in an ordie, how they came together, how they helde forth their shildes, how þe harnessed men drew out their sweardes, & shot their dartes. The shyne of þe golde weapens was sene, & of all maner of armure. Wherfore euery mā prayed, þe those tokens might turne to good. Now whē there was gone forth a false rumō, as though Antiochus had bene deed: Jason toke a M. mē, & came so dely vpo þe cite. The citesyns ran vnto þe walles, at þe last was þe cite taken, and Menelaus fled in to the castell.

As for Jason, he spared not his owne citesyns in the slaughter, nether considered he what greute euell it were, to destroye þe prosperite of his owne kynsmen: but dyd as one that had gotten the victory of his enemies, and not of his frendes. For all this gatt he not the superiourite, but at the last receaued confucion for his malice, and fled agayne like a vagabunde in to the londe of the Ammonites. Finally (for a reward of his wickednesse) he was accused before Archas the kyng of the Arabians: In so moch that he was sayne to fle from cite to cite, beyng despysed of euery man as a forsaker of the lawes, and an abhominable personne. And at þe last (as an open enemy of his owne naturall countre and of the citsyns,) he was dryuen into Egypte.

Thus he þe afore put many out of their owne natyue londe, peryshed from home himself. He went to Lacedemon, thinkinge there to haue gotten succoure by reason of kynrede. And he that afore had casten many one out vnburied, was throwen out himself, no man mournynge for him, ner puttinge him in his graue: so that he nether enioyed þe buriall of a straunger, nether was he partaker of his fathers sepulcre.

E Now when this was done the kinge suspecte, þe the Jewes wolde haue fallen from him: wherfore he came in a greate displeasure out of Egypte, and toke the cite by violence. He commaunded his men of warre also, that they shulde kylle and not spare, but slaye downe such as wold stode them, or clynmed vp vpon y houses. Thus was there a greate slaughter of yonge men, olde men, women, children and virgins. In iij. dayes were there slayne lxxx. M. fourty thousande put in prison, and no lesse solde. Yet was he not content wth this, but durst go in to the most holy temple (Menelaus that traytoure to þe lawes and to his owne naturall countre, beyng his gyde with his wicked hondes toke y holy vessell, which other kynges and cities had gyven thither for y garnishinge and hono of y place: the toke he in his hondes unworthely, and defyled them.

So madd was Antiochus, that he considered not, how that God was a litle wroth for the synnes of them that dwelt in the cite, for the which soch confusion came vpon that place. And why? yf it had not happened them to haue bene lapped in many synnes, this Antiochus (as soone as he had come) had sodenly bene punished, and shot out for his presumptiō: like as Heliodorus was, whom Seleucus the kyng sent to robbe y treasury. Menertheles God hath not chosen the people for the places sake, but the place for the peoples sake: and therefore is the place become partaker of the peoples trouble, but afterwarde shall it enioye the wealth of them. And like as it is now forsaken in the wraeth of allmighty God, so when the grea- te God is reconcyled, it shal be set vp in hys worshippe agayne.

So when Antiochus had taken a M. and viij. C. talentes out of the temple, he gat him to Antioche in all the haist, thinkinge in his pryde, that he might make mē sale vpon the drye londe, and to go vpon þe see, soch an hys mynde had he. He lefte debites there to vere the people: At Jerusalem lefte he Philippe a Phugian, in maners more cruell the himself þe set him there: At Gasim he lefte Andronicus and Menelaus, which were more greuous to the citsyns then other. Now as he was thus set in malyce agaynst þe Jewes, he sent Appollonius an hated prynee, wth xxij. M. cōmaunding him to slaye all those þe were of perfecte age, and to sell the womē, maydes and children. When he came now to Jerusalem, he fained peace, and kepte him still vntill y Sabbath daye. And then he commaunded his men to take them to their weapons (for þe Jewes kepte holy daye) and so he slewe all them þe were gone forth to the open playe, runninge here and there thorow the cite with his men wapened, and murthured a greate nombre. But Judas Machabens which was the tenth, fled in to the wyldernesse, led his life there with his company amonge the wyld beasts and vpon the mountaynes: dwellinge there and eatinge grasse, lest they shulde be partakers of the fylthyngesse.

The VI. Chapter.

Not longe after this, sent the kyng a messaunger of Antioche, for to compell þe Jewes to alce þe ordinaunces of þe fathers and the lawe of God, to defyle the temple y was at Jerusalem, and to call it the temple of Jupiter Olympius: and þe they shulde be in Gazarim, as those which dwell at þe place of Jupiter the harberous. This wicked sedi- ciō of y vngodly was heuy vpon all y people: For y temple was full of voluptuousnes bebbinge and bollinge of y heithē, of ribandes and harlottes together. The womē wente in to y holy place, and bare in that was not lausfull. The altier also was full of vnlawfull thinges, which y lawe forbyddeth to laye vpon it. The Sabbathes were not kepte, the other solemne feastes of y londe were not regarded. To be plaine, there durst no mā be a knowne that he was a Jewe.

The ij. booke of the Machabees.

In the daye of the kynges byrth they were compelled perforce to offere: & when y feast of Bacchus was kepte, they were cōstrayned to weere garlandes of yven, and so to go aboute for the honoure of Bacchus.

B Moreover thorow the counsell of ptolomy, there wente out a commaundement in y nexte cities of the heithen, y they shulde increate the Jewes in like maner: namely, to cōpell the for to do sacrifice after y lawes of y Gentiles: and who so wolde not, to put them to death. A piteous thinge was it to se. There were ij. women accused to have circumcised their somes, whom when they had led rounde aboute the cite (the babes hanginge at their brestes) they cast them downe headlinges over the walles. Some y were crepte into dennes and had kepte the Sabbath, were accused vnto philippe, and brent in the fyre: because that for the feare of God they kepte the commaundement so stiffly, and wolde not defende them selues.

Now I beseeke all those which reade this booke, that they refuse it not for these falles of aduersitee: & iudge the thinges (y are happened) for no destruccion, but for a chastenynge of o people. And why? Whē God suffreth not synners longe to folowe their owne mynde, but shortly punyssheth them, it is a tokē of his greate louynge kyndnes. For this grace haue we of God more then other people, y he suffreth not vs longe to synne vnpunished like other nacions, that when the daye of iudgment cometh, he maye punyssh the in the fulnes of their synnes. If we synne, he correcteth vs, but he neuer withdraweth his mercy frō vs: & though he punyssh aduersitee, yett doth he neuer forsake his people. But let this that we haue spokē now w few wordes, be for a warninge & exortaciō of y heithē. Now wil we come to the declaringe of the matter. Eleazar one of y principall scribes, an aged mā & of a wel fauored cōtēnaūce, was cōstrained to gape w opē mouth & to eate swynes flesh. But he desyunge rather to dye gloriously thē to liue w shame, & freed himself willigly to y martirdome. Now whē he sawe y he must nedes go to it, he toke it paciētly: for he was at a poynte w himself, y he wolde consente to no vnlawfull chynge for eny pleasure of life. They y stode by beyng moued w pyte (but not a right) for y olde frendshipe of the man, toke him asyde priuily, and prayed him y he wolde let soch flesh be brought him as were lawfull to eate, & thē to make a cōtēnaūce as though he had eaten of y flesh of y sacrifice liē as the kyng

commaunded, for so he might be deliuered from death: & so for the olde frendshipe of y man, they shewed him this kyndnes. But he beganne to conside his discrete and honorable age, his noble and worshipfull stocke, and how y frō his youth vp he had bene of an honest and good conuersacion, yee & how constantly he had kepte y ordinaunces and lawes commaūded by God, wherfore he gaue them this answer, and sayde:

Yet had I rather first be layed in my graue. For it becommeth not myne age (sayde he) in eny wyse to dyssemble, wherby many yonge personnes might thinke, that Eleazar beinge lxxx. yeare olde and ten, were now gone to a straunge life: and so thorow myne ypocrysy (for a litle tyme of a transitory life) they might be discaued: by this meanes also shulde I defyle myne age, & make it abhominable. For though I were now deliuered from the tormentes of men, yet shulde I not escape the honde of allmightie God, nerher alyue ner deed. Wherfore I will dye manfully, & do as it becommeth myne age: Wherby I maie peraduenture leaue an exāple of stedfastnesse for sech as be yonge, yf I w a ready mynde & manfully dye an honest death, for the most worthy and holy lawes.

Amos. 1. a

When he had sayde these wordes, immediately he was drawn to the toimēte. Now they that led him and were mylde a litle afore, beganne to take displeasure, because of the wordes y he sayde: for they thought he had spokē them of an hye mynde. But whē he was in his martirdome, he mourned and sayde: Thou (O LORDE) which hast the holy knowlege, knowest openly: that where as I might be deliuered frō death, I suffre these sore paynes of my body: but in my mynde I am wel contente to suffre them, because I feare the. Thus this man dyed, leauynge y memoriaill of his death for an exāple, not only vnto yongemen, but vnto all y people, to be stedfast and manly.

The VII. Chapter.

It happened also that there were viij brethien (with their mother) taken, & compelled by the kyng agaynst the lawe, to eate swynes flesh: namely w scourges and lathen whippes. And one of them which was y chefe, sayde: What sekest thou, and what requyrest thou of vs? As for vs, we are ready rather to suffre death, then to offende the lawes of God and the fathers. Then was the kyng angrie, and bad heare cauidions and brasen portes. Which when they were made hore, immediately

he commaunded þe tonge of him that spake first, to be cut out, to pull the slynnne ouer his heade, to payre of the edges of his handes and fete: yee and that in the sight of his mother and the other of his brethren. Now when he was cleane marred, he commaunded a fyre to be made, & so (whyle there was eny breath in him) to be fryed in the caudron, In the which when he had bene longe payned, the other brethren with their mother exorted him to dye manfully, sayenge: The LORDE God shal regarde the treuth, and comforte vs, like as Moses testifieth and declareth in his songe, sayenge: and he wyl haue compassion on his seruautes.

Deut. 32. c

So whē the first was deed a fter this maner, they brough the seconde to haue him in derision, pulled the slynnne with the hayre ouer his heade, and axed him, yf he wolde eate swynes flesh, or he were payned in þe other membres also therow out his body. But he answered boldly, and sayde: I will not do it. And so was he tormented like as y first. And whē he was enē at y geuinge vp of y goost, he sayde: Thou most vngacious personne puttest vs now to death, but the Kyng of þe wolde shall rayse vs vp (which dye for his lawes) in y resurreccion of euerlastinge life.

After him, was the thirde had in derision: and when he was requyred, he putt out his tonge, and that right soone, holdinge forth his handes manfully, and spake with a stedfast faith: These haue I of heauē, but now for the lawe of God I despise them: for my trust is, that I shall receaue them of him agayne. In so moch that the kyng and they which were with him, marvelled at the yonge mans boldnesse, that he nothinge regarded the paynes.

Now when he was deed also, they vexed the fourth with commentes in like maner. So when he was now at his death, he sayde: It is better that we beyng put to death of mē, haue oure hope and trust in God, for he shal rayse vs vp agayne. As for the, thou shalt haue no resurreccion to life.

Ioh. 1. c

And when they had spoken to the fift, they tormēted him. Then looked he vnto y kyng, & sayde: Thou hast power amōge mē (for thou art a mortall man also y self) to do what thou wilt, but thinke not, þe God hath forsaken o generacion. Abydethe, tary styll a whyle, & thou shalt see the greete power of God, how he wil punyssh the & chy sede.

After him they brought the sixte, which beyng at the poynte of death, sayde: Be not disceaue(d o kyng) for this we suffre for oure

owne sakes, because we haue offended oure God, & therfore marvelous thinges are shewed vpon vs. But thinke not thou (which takest in honde to stryue agaynst God) that thou shalt escape unpunished.

This excellent mother (worthy to be well reported of, and had in remembrance) sawe hir seven sonnes dye in one daye, and suffred it paciētly, because of the hope that she had in God: Yee she exorted euery one of them in especiall, and that boldly and stedfastly, w parfitte wysdome, watynge vp hir wyuysly thought with a manly stomacke, and sayde vnto them: I can not tell how ye came in my wombe, for I nether gaue you breth ner soule, no ner life. It is not I þe ioyned & mēbres of y bodies together, but I maker of þe wolde, which fashioned þe byrth of mā, & begāne all thinges. Euen he also of his owne mercy shall geue you breath and life agayne, like as ye now regarde not youre owne selues for his lawes sake.

Now thought Antiochus that she had despysed him, therfore he let her go with hir reprobous, and beganne to exorte the yongest sonne (which yet was left) not only w wordes but swore vnto him w an ooth, þe he shulde make him a rich & welthy man (yf he wolde forsake þe lawes of his fathers) yee and þe he shulde geue him, what so ever were necessary for him. But whē the yonge man wolde not be moved, for all these thinges, he called his mother, & counceled her to save hir sonnes life. And when he had exorted her with many wordes, she promised him, that she shulde speake vnto hir sonne. So she turned her vnto him (laughinge & cruell tyrante to scorne) & spake w a boylde voyce: O my sonne, haue pittie vpon me, þe bare I ix. monethes in my wombe, that gaue the sucke, nourished the and brought the vp vnto this age. I beseeke the (my sonne) loke vpon heauen and earth and all that is therein, and conside, that God made them and mans generacion of naught: so shalt thou not feare this hangman, but suffre death stedfastly, like as thy brethren haue done: that I maye receaue the agayne in the same mercy with thy brethren.

Whyle she was yet speakynge these wordes, the yonge man sayde: Whom loke ye for? Wherfore do ye tary? I wil not obeye the kynges commaundement, but the lawe that God gaue vs by Moses. As for the that ymaginest all myschefe agaynst the Jewes, thou shalt not escape the honde of God: for we suffre these thinges, because of oure synnes.

The .ij. boke of the Machabees. The viij. Chap. Fo. lxxvij.

S And though God be angrie with vs a litle whyle (for o^r chasteuninge & reformation,) yet shal he be at one agayne wth his seruantes. But thou. (O shamefull & most abhominable personne.) Pryde not thy self thorow wayne hope, in beyng so malicious vpon y^e seruantes of God: for thou hast not yet escaped the iudgment of the God, which is all mighty, & seyth all thinges. My brethren y^e haue suffred a litle payne, are now vnder the couenaunt of everlastinge life: but thorow the iudgment of God, thou shalt be punysshed righteously for thy pryde.

As for me (like as my brethren haue done) I offre my soule & my body for y^e lawes of o^r fathers, callinge vpon God, y^e he will soone be mercifull vnto o^r people: yee & wth payne & punysshment to make the graunte, y^e he only is God. In me now & in my brethren y^e wrath of almighty God is at an ende, which righteously is falle vpon all o^r people. Then y^e kynge beyng kyndled in anger, was more cruell vpon him then vpon all y^e other, & toke indignaciō, y^e he was so lightly regarded. Se this yonge mā dyed vndefiled, & put his trust stil in y^e LORDE. Last of all after y^e sonnes, was y^e mother put to death also. Let this now be ynough spoken, concernynge y^e offringes, & extreme cruellnesse. The VIII. Chapter.

A Then Judas Machabeus and they y^e were wth him, were pryncely in to y^e townes, called their kynfolkes & frendes together, toke vnto them all soch as continued yet in the faith & lawe of y^e Jewes, and brought forth vs. III. men. So they called vpon the LORDE, y^e he wolde haue an eye vnto his people, which was troddē downe of euery mā: to be gracious vnto y^e temple, y^e was defyled of the vngodly: to haue cōpassion vpon y^e destruction of the cite, (which was shortly like to be laied waist) to heare y^e voyce of y^e bloude y^e cried vnto him: to remēbre y^e most vnrightheous deathes of yonge innocent children, the blasphemies also done vnto his name, & to punyssh thē. Now whē Machabeus had gathered this multitude together, he was to mightie for the heithen (for y^e wrath of y^e LORDE was turned in to mercy) he fell vpon the townes & cities vna warres, brent them, toke the most comodious places, & slewe many of the enemies. But specially he made soch chases by night, in so moch that his manlynesse was spoken of euery where.

S So when Philippe sawe that the man increased by litle and litle, and that the matter prospered with him for the most parte: he wrote vnto ptolomy (which was a captayne in Celosiria & Phenices) helpe him in y^e kynges busynes. Thē sent he Tlicanor patrocli (a speciall frende of his) in all y^e haist, & gaue him of y^e comon sorte of the heithen no lesse then xx. III. harnesssed men, to rote out y^e whole generacion of the Jewes, hauinge to helpe him one Gorgias a man of warre, which in matters concernynge battayls had greate experience. Tlicanor ordered also the tribute (which the Romaynes shulde haue had) to be geuen vnto the kynge, out of the captiuyte of the Jewes, namely ij. III. talentes. And immediatly he sent to y^e cities of y^e see coast, requyringe thē for to bye Jewes to be their seruantes & bonde men, promisyng to sell them lxxx. and ten for one talente: but he considered not the wrath of almighty God, y^e was to come vpon him.

When Judas knewe of this, he tolde the Jewes y^e were wth him, of Tlicanors comynge. Now were there some of them fearfull, not trustinge vnto the rightuousnes of God and fled their waye. But the other y^e remayned, came together & besought the LORDE, to deliuer thē fro y^e wicked Tlicanor, which had solde thē or euer he came nye them: and though he wolde not do it for their sakes, yet for the couenaunt that he made wth their fathers, & because they called vpon his holy & glorious name. And so Machabeus called his men together, namely aboute vi. III. exortinge them not to agree vnto their enemies, nether to be afrayed for y^e multitude of their aduersaries comynge agaynst them vnrightheously: but to fight manly, consideringe y^e reprofes that they had done to the holy place without cause, how they had despyed and oppressed the cite, yee and destroyed y^e lawes of the fathers. For they (sayde he) trust in their weapons and boldnesse, but oure confidence is in the almighty LORDE, which in the twinklinge of an eye maye both destroye them that come agaynst vs, and all the worlde.

He exorted them also to call to remēbrance the helpe, that God shewed vnto their fathers: as whē there perished an C. & lxxxv. III. of Sennacheribs people: And of y^e battail y^e they had in Babilō agaynst y^e Galacians: how y^e all the Macedoniās y^e came to helpe thē, stode in feare: & how they beyng but on ly vi. so moch that he put of his glorious raymet, fled by see, and came alone to Antioche w-greate shame z dishonr, which he gat tho-row the destrucion of his hoost. Thus he þe promysed the Romaynes to paye the their tribute, when he toke Jerusalem: beganne
now to saie planely, that God was þe defender of the Jewes, z therfore not possible to wounde them, because they folowed þe lawes which God had made.

The IX. Chapter.

AT the same tyme came Antiochus a-gayne with dishonoure out of Persia.
For when he came to Persopolis, and vndertoke to robbe the temple and to subdue
the cite, the people ranne together and defended them selues, in so moch þe he and his were fayne to fle with shame. And so after that flight, it happened, that Antiochus came agayne with dishonoure. But when he came to Egbathana, he gat knowlege what was happened vnto Nicanor z Timotheus.
Now as he was auaucinge himself in his
wraith, he thought he was able to avenge
the injury that was done to them, vpon the Jewes: and therfore commaunded to make ready his charet, haistinge on his iourney
without ceassing: the iudgmēt of God prouokynge him, because he had spokē so proudly, that he wolde come to Jerusalem, and make it a graue of the Jewes. But the LORDE
God of Israel, that seith all thinges, smote
him with an invisible plage, which no man
coude heale.

B For as soone as he had spoken these wor-
des, there came vpon him an horrible payne
of his bowels, z a sore greife of the tharmes.
And þe was but right: for he had martyred
other mens bowels with dyuerse and straū-
ge tormentes, how be it he wolde in no wyse ceasse from his malice. Yet he was yet the prouder, and more malicious agaynst the Jewes: But whyle he was commaunding
to make haist in the matter, it happened þe
he fell downe violently from the charet, so þe
it brused his body, z dyd him greate payne.

And so he that thought he might commaunde þe floudes of the see (so proude was he beyonde the condiciō of man) and to weye
the hye mountaynes in a payre of scales,
was now brought downe to the grounde, z
caried vpon an horsflytter, knowlegynge þe

manifest power of God vpon him: so that & wicked body of his was full of wormes,
 which in his payne fell quyd out of his flesh: In so moch & his hoost was greued with the smell and styncke of him. Thus he that a litle afore thought he might reach to the starres of heauen, him might no man
 now abyde ner beare, for the vehemence of styncke.

C Therefore he beyng brought from his greate pryde, begane for to come to y know
 lege of him self: for the punysshment of God
 warned him, & his payne increased euer more & more. And when he him self might not abyde his owne styncke, he sayde these wor-des: It is reason to be obedient vnto God, &
 that a man desyre not to be like vnto him.
 This wicked personne prayed also vnto the L O R D E, of whom he shulde haue opeained
 no mercy. And as for the cite that he came vnto so haistely, to bryng it downe to the grounde, & to make it a graue for deed men:
 now he desyret to deliuer it fre. And as tou-chinge y Jewes, whom he had indged not worthy to be buried, but wolde haue cast the
 out for to be deuoured of the foules and wyl-
 de beastes, sayenge, that he wolde haue destroyed both olde and yonge: Now he promi-
 sch, to maketh the like y citesyns of Athens.
 And where as he had spoyled the holy temple afore, now he maketh promyse to garnish it with greate giftes, to increase the holy ornamente, and of his owne rentes to beare the costes and charges belonging to the offerynges: yee and that he wolde also become a Jewe him self, to go thorow euery place of the wolde, and to preach the power
 of God.

D But when his paynes wolde not ceasse,
 (for the righteous iudgmet of God was come vpon him) out of a very despayre he wrote vnto the Jewes a lettre of intercession, coteyninge these wordes: The kynge and pryn-ce Antiochus wyssheth vnto the vertuous ci-tiesyns of the Jewes, moch health and good prosperite.

As ye and youre children fare well, and
 yf all thinges go after youre mynde: we ge-ue greate thankes. In my sicknesse also do I remembre you louyngly: for as I came out of persia, and was taken with sore disease: I thought it necessary to care for the comon wealch. Wether despare I in my self,
 but haue a good hope to escape this sicknes.

But considerynge that my father led an
 hoost some tyme in y hyer places, & shewed
 who shulde raigne after him, that yf there

happened eny cōtrouersy, or eny harbe thin-ge were declared, they in the londe might knowe their chiefe lord, & there shulde be no insurreccion: Agayne, when I pondre by my self, how that all y mightie men and neghbours rounde aboute, are layege waite, and loke but for oportunitie to do harme: I haue
 ordened that my sonne Antiochus shall raig-ne after me, whom I oft commended to many of you, when I was in the hyer kyngdomes, and haue wrytten vnto him as it fo-loweth herafter. Therefore I praye you and requyre you, to remembre the benefites that I haue done vnto you generally and in especiall. For I hope that he shall be of sober & louyng behauiour, and yf he folowe my de-
 uyce, he shal be indifferent vnto you.

Thus that murtherer and blasphemur of Dan. 4. e
 God was sore smytte: and like as he had in-treated ocher men, so he dyed a miserable
 death in a straunge countre vpon a mountayne. And his body dyd Philippe (that wēte with him) cary awaye: which fearynge
 the sonne of Antiochus, wente into Egypce to Ptolomy Philometor.

The X. Chapter.

Now Antiochus now & his company (tho row the helpe of the L O R D E) want 2
 ne the temple and the cite agayne, 1. Mac. 4. e.
 destroyed the alters and chapels that the heich had buylded thorow the stretes: clen-sed the temple, made another altcr of brie-
 ke stone, and after ij. yeares they offered sacrifices, set forth the incense, the lightes and shewe bied. When that was done, they fell downe flat vpon the grounde, and besoughe
 the L O R D E, that they might come nomore
 into soch trouble: but yf they synned eny more agaynst him, he him self to chasten them
 with mercy, and not to come in the hondes
 of those aleauntes and blasphemous men.

Now vpon the same daye that y straun-gers poluted the temple, it happened that on the very same daye it was clensed agayne: namely, the xxij. daye of the moneth called Casleu. They kepte viij. dayes in glad-nesse, like as in the feast of the tabernacles:
 remembrynge that not longe afore, they hel-
 de the feast of y tabernacles vpon the mountynes and in dennes like beastes. And to y same token they bare grene bowes, brannches and palmes before him that had geuen them good fortune to clense his place. They agreed also together, and made a statute, y
 euery yeare those dayes shulde be solemply
 kepte of all the people of the Jewes.

The ij. booke of the Machabees.

Now Antiochus then (that was called the noble) dyed, it is sufficiently tolde. Now to we speake of Nicanor the sonne of that wicked Antiochus, how it happened with him: and so with few wordes to comprehend the aduersite that chaunced in 3 warres. When he had taken in the Kingdome, he made one Lysias (which had bene captayne of the hoost in Phenices and Syria) ruler ouer the matters of the realme. For Ptolomy that was called Macron, beyng a ruler for the Jewes (and specially, to syt in iudgment for soch wronge as was done vnto them) undertoke to deale peaceably with them. For the which cause he was accused of the frendes before the Emperor: and when he was suspecte to be a traytoure (because he had left Cyprus, that Philometor had committed vnto him: and because he departed from noble Antiochus, that he was come vnto) he poysoned himself, and dyed.

Now when Gorgias was gouernoure of the same places, he toke straungers and undertoke oft tymes to warre with 3 Jewes. Moreover the Idumeans that helde the strong holdes, receaued those that were dryuen from Jerusalem, and toke in honde to warre also. But they that were with Machabeus, besought and prayed vnto the L O R D E, that he wolde be their helper: and so they fell in to the stronge holdes of the Idumeans, & wanne many places by strength: Soch as came agaynst them they slew, and kylled no lesse (of all together) then twentye thousande. Neuerthelesse some (no lesse then nyne thousande) were fled in to two stronge towres, hauynge all maner of ordinaunce to withstonde them.

Then Machabeus leauynge Symon, Josephus, Zachaus and those that were with them, (which were very many) wente to besege the, and to fight where most nede was. Now they that were with Symon beyng led with couetousnesse, were intreated for money, thorow certayne of those that laye in the towres: toke lxx. M. drachmas, & let some of them escape. But when it was tolde Machabeus what had happened, he called 3 captaynes of the people together, accusynge those performes, that they had solde the brethien for money, and let their enemies go. So he slewe those traytours, & immediately wente in honde with the 2 towres. And when they had ordred them selues manly with their weapens & hondes, they slewe in 2 two castles moe then twentie thousande.

Now Timotheus whom the Jewes had overcome afore, gathered a multitude of straunge people, broughte an hoost also of hoismen of the Asians, to wyne Jewry by strength. But when he diene nye, Machabeus and they that were wth him fell to their prayer, sprenckled ashes vpon their heades, beyng gvyded wth hayrie cloth aboute their loines, fel downe before y^e altier, & besought the L O R D E that he wolde be mercifull to them, but an enemy vnto their enemies, and to take parte agaynst their aduersaries, accordinge as it is promised in the lawe. So after the prayer, they wente on further from the cite: and when they came nye the enemies, they prepared them selues agaynst them.

The battayll now beyng greete, there appeared vnto the enemies from heauen v. men, vpon horſeback with brydels of golde, ledinge the Jewes, and two of them hannyng Machabeus betwixte them, & kepte him ſafe on every ſyde wth their weapōs, but ſhot dartes and lightemnges vpon the enemies, where thorow they were confounded with blyndneſſe and ſo ſore aſtrayed, that they fell downe. There were ſlayne of ſote ment twenty thouſande and fyue hundreth, and ſixe hundred and threty horſemen. As for Timotheus him ſelf, he fled vnto Gazar a very ſtrōge holde, where Cereas was captayne. But Machabeus and his company layed ſege to it cherfully iij. dayes. Now they that were within, truſtinge to the ſtrength of the place, curſed & banned exceedingly, and made greete crafynge with wicked wordes. Neuertheleſſe vpon the fifth daye in the mornynge, xx. yongemen of Machabeus cōpany, beyng ſet on fyre in their myndes becauſe of the blaſphemy: came manfully vnto the wall, and with bolde ſtomackes they and their other companyons clynmed vp vpon the towres, vnderſtandynge to ſet fyre vpon the portes, & to burne thoſe blaſphemous perſonnes quyte. Two dayes were they deſtroyenge the caſtell, which when they founde Timotheus (that was crept in to a corner) they kylled him, and ſlew Cereas his brother in like manner with Appollophanes. When this was done, they ſunge pſalmes, with prayſes and chantes geuynges vnto the LORDE, which had done ſo greete thinges for Iſrael, & geuen them the victory.

The XI. Chapter.

After longe after this, Lyſias the kyngeſ ſteward and a kynſman of his, (which had the gouernance of his matters,) toke ſore diſpleaſure for the thinges that had happened: and when he had gathered lxxx. M. men of ſote with all the hoost of the horſemen, he came agaynſt the Jewes, thynkyng to wyne the cite, to make it an habitacion for the heithen, and the temple wolde he haue to be an houſe of lucre, like as the other goddes houſes of the heithē are, & to ſell & preſtes office enery yere: Not conſideringe the power of God, but was wylde in his mynde, truſtinge in y^e multitude of ſotemen, in thouſandes of horſmen, and in his lxxx. Elephantes.

So he came into Jewry & then to Beth ſura (a caſtell of defence lyenge in a narrow place, v. furlonges from Jeruſalē) and wan-

Now when Machabeus and his company knew that the ſtrōge holdes were taken, they fell to their prayers with wepyng and teares before the LORDE: and all the people in like maner beſought him, that he wolde ſende a good angell to deliuer Iſrael. Machabeus him ſelf was the firſt that made him ready to the battayll, exortynge the other that were with him, to ioperde themſelues and to helpe their bretherē. And when they were goynge forth of Jeruſalem together with a ready and wyllynge mynde, there appeared before them vpon horſbacke a mā in whyte clothinge with harnesse of golde, ſhakinge his ſpeare. Then they prayſed & LORDE all together, which had ſhewed them mercy, and were conſorted in their myndes: in ſomoch that they were ready, not only to fight with men, but with y^e moſt cruell beaſtes, yee and to runne thorow walles of yron.

Thus they wente on wyllingly hannyng an helper from heauē, and the LORDE mercifull vnto them. They fell mightely vpon their enemies like lyons, brought downe x. M. ſote men, xvi. C. horſmen, put all & ether to flight, many of them beyng wounded, and ſome gat away naked. Nee Lyſias him ſelf was ſayne to fle ſhamefully, and ſo to eſcape. Neuertheleſſe the man was not without vnderſtandynge, but conſidered by him ſelf that his power was myniſhed, and pondered how & Jewes beyng defended by the helpe of Almyghty God, were net able to be ouercome: wherefore he ſent them worde, and promiſed, that he wolde conſente to all thinges which were reaſonable, and to make the kynge their frēde. To the which prayer of Lyſias Machabeus agreed, ſekynge in all thinges the comon wealth: and what ſo euer Machabeus wrote vnto Lyſias concernynge the Jewes, the kynge grarned it. For there were lettres writte vnto y^e Jewes from Lyſias conceynynge theſe wordes:

The ij. booke of the Machabees.

D Lysias sendeth gretinge to the people of the Jewes. Jhon and Absalon which were sent from you, delyuered me wrytinges, and requyred me to fulfill the thinges concernynge their earande. Therefore loke what might be graunted, I certified & kynge therof: and what so ever was conuenient, I agreed thereto. If ye now wyll be faithfull in the matters, I shal endeuor my self hereafter also to do you good. As concernynge other thinges by enery article therof: I have committed them to youre messaungers, and to those whom I sent vnto you, to comon with you of the same, fare ye well. In the hundred and xliij. yere, the xxij. daye of the moneth Dioscorinthius.

Now the kynge's letter conteyned these wordes: Kynge Antiochus sendeth gretinge vnto his brother Lysias. For so much as our father is now deed, our wyll is, that they which are in our realme, lyue without eny insurreccion, and every man to be diligent in his owne matters. We vnderstande also, that the Jewes wolde not consent to our father, for to be brought vnto the custome of the Gentiles, but stiffly to kepe their owne statutes: for the which cause they requyre of vs also, to let them remayne still by their owne lawes.

E Wherefore our minde is, that this people shalbe in rest: we haue concluded and determined also, to restore them their temple agayne: that they maye lyue accordinge to the vse & custome of their forefathers. Thou shalt do vs a pleasure therefore, if thou sende vnto them & agre with them: that when they are certified of our mynde, they maye be of good chere, and loke to their owne wealth.

And this was the letter, that the kynge wrote vnto the Jewes: Kynge Antiochus sendeth gretinge vnto the counsell and the other people of the Jewes. If ye fare well, we haue our desyre: as for vs, we are in good health. Menelaus came and tolde vs, how & your desyre was to come downe to your people, which are with vs.

S Wherefore those that wyll come, we geue them fre libertie, vnto the xxx. daye of the moneth of Apull, that they maye vse & meates of the Jewes and their owne lawes, like as afore: and none of them by eny maner of wayes to haue harme, for thinges done in ignorance. Menelaus whom we haue sent vnto you, shal comon with you at large, fare ye well. In the Cxliij. yere, the xv. daye of the moneth of Apull.

The Romaines also sent a letter, conteynyng these wordes: Quintus Memmius & Titus Manlius embassadours of the Romaines, sende gretinge vnto the people of the Jewes. Loke what Lysias the kynge's kynsman hath graunted you, we graunte you the same also. But as concernynge the thinges which he referred vnto the kynge, sende hither some with speede: and pōbre the matter diligently amonge youre selues, that we maye cast & best to your profite, for we must departe now vnto Antioche. And therefore wryte shortly agayne, that we maye knowe your mynde. Fare well. In the hundred and xliij. yere, the xv. daye of the moneth of Apull.

The XII. Chapter.

When these coneuantes were made, Lysias wente vnto the kynge, and y Jewes ryll'd their grounde. But Timotheus, Appollonius the sonne of Gemi, Jerome and Demophon & priente, Nicanoz & caprayne of Cypers, and they that laye in those places: wolde not let them lyue in rest and peace. They of Joppa also dyd euen soch a shamefull dede: They prayed & Jewes that dwelt amonge them, to go with their wyues and children in to the shippes which they had prepared, & dyd with them, as though they had ought them no euell wyll. For so much then as there was gone forth a generall proclamaciō thorow y cite because of peace, they consented thereto, and suspecte nothinge: but when they were gone forth in to the depe, they drowned no lesse then ij. C. of them.

When Judas knew of this cruell shewd vnto his people, he commaunded these that were with him to make them ready, exortynge them to call vpon God the righte iudge: wōte forth agaynst those murtherers of his brethē, set fyre in y haven by night, brent vp y shippes, and those that escaped from the fyre, he slewe with the swearde. And when he had done this, he departed as though he wolde come agayne, and rote out all them of Joppa. But when he had gotte worde that the Jamnites were mynded to do in like maner vnto y Jewes which dwelt amonge them, he came vpon the Jamnites by night, and set fyre in the haven with the shippes: so that the light of the fyre was seene at Jerusalem, vpon a ij. C. & xl. furlonges.

Now when they were gone from thence ix. furlonges, in their iourney towards Timotheus: v. thousande men of fote and v. hundred horsmen of the Arabians fought with him. So when the batell was earnest, and prospered with Judas thorow the helpe of God: y residue of the Arabians beyng overcome, besought Judas to be at one with them, and promised to geue him certayne pastures, & to do him good in other thinges. Judas thynkyng that they shulde indeede be profitable concernyng many thynges, promised them peace: wherupon they shoke hondes, and so they departed to their tentes. Judas wente also vnto a cite, which was very fast keppe w brydges, fenced round aboute with walles, & dyuerse kyndes of people dwellinge therein, called Caspin.

C They that were within it, put soch trust in the strength of the walles, & in their store of vytales: that they were the slacke in their doynges, cursinge and reuylinge Judas with blasphemies, and speakyng soch wordes as it becommeth not. But Machabens callyng vpon the greate prynce of y wolde (which without eny battayll rammes or ordinaunce of warre, byd cast downe the walles of Jericho, in the tyme of Josue) fell manfully vpon the walles, toke the cite, and (thorow the helpe of the LORDE) made an excedinge greate slaughter: In so much that a lake of ij. furlonges brode which laye therby, semed to flowe with the bloude of the slayne.

Then departed they from thence vij. C. and L. furlonges, and came to Taraca vnto

y Jewes that are called Tubianei. But as for Timotheus, they coude not get him there: for (not one matter dispatched,) he was departed from thence, and had lefte certayne men in a very stronge holde. But Dositheus and Sosipater which were captaynes with Machabens, slewe those y Timotheus had lefte in the house of defence, euen x. M. men. And Machabens prepared him with y vj. M. men y were aboute him, set them in ordre by companies, and wente forth agaynst Timotheus, which had with him an C. and xx. M. men of force, ij. M. and v. C. horsmen.

When Timotheus had knowlege of Judas commynge, he sent the women, children and the other baggage vnto a castell called Carnion. (For it coude not be wonne, & was harde to come vnto, the wayes of the same places were so narrow) and when Judas company came first in sight, the enemies were syncten with feare, thorow the presence of God, which seyth all thinges: In so much y they sleynge one here, another there, were rather discomfited of their owne people, & wounded w the strokes of their owne swear des. Judas also was very earnest in folowinge vpon them and punysshinge those vngodly, and slewe xxx. M. men of them. Timotheus also himself fell in to the hendes of Dositheus & Sosipater, whom he besought with many prayers, to let him go with his life: because he had many of the Jewes fathers and brethien in preson, which (yf they put him to death) might be disapoynted. So when he had promised faithfully to deliuer them agayne acordyng to the condicion made, they let him go without harme. for the healeth of y brethien. And when Judas had slayne xxv. M. he wente from Carnion.

Now after y he had chased awaye and slayne his enemies, he remoued the hoost towarde Ephrona stronge cite, wherin dwelt many dyuerse people of the Zeichen, and y stronge yonge men keppe the walles, defendinge the mightely. In this cite was much ordinaunce, and prouysion of dartes. But when Judas and his company had called vpon Almighty God, (which w his power breaketh the strength of the enemies) they wanne the cite, and slewe xxv. M. of them y were within. From thence wente they to the cite of the Scythians, which lieth vj. C. furlonges from Jerusalem. But when y Jewes which were in the cite testified, that the cite syns dealte lounyngly with them, yee and intreated them kyndly in y tyme of their aduersite, Judas and his company gaue them

When they now that were of Gorgias syde, had fought longe and were weery: Judas called vpon the LORDE that he wolde be their helper, & captaigne of the felde: and with that, he beganne with a manly voyce to take vp a songe of prayse, and a crie: In so moch that he made the enemies a frayd, and Gorgias men of warre to take their flight. So Judas gathered his hoost, and came in to the cite of Abdolla. And when the seventh daye came vpon them, they clenfed them selues (as the custome was) & kepte the Sabbath in the same place. And vpon the daye folowing, Judas & his company came to take vp the bodies of them that were slayne, and to bury them in the fathers graues. Now vnder the cotes of certayne Jewes which were slayne, they founde Jewels that they had taken out of the temple and from the Idols of the Jammeers: which thinge is forbydden the Jewes by the lawe. They fell downe also vnto their prayers, and besought God, that the sawte which was made, might be put out of remembraunce. Besydes that, Judas exorted the people earnestly, to kepe them selues from soch synne: for so moch as they sawe before their eyes, that these men were slayne for the same offence. So he gathered of euery one a certayne, in so moch that he broughte together two thousande drachmas of syluer, which he sent vnto Ierusalem, that there might a sacrifice be offred for the mysdede. In the which place he dyd well & right: for he had some consideration & pondryng of his life after this tyme. For yf he had not thought that they, which were slayne, dyd yet lyue, it had bene superfluous and vayne, to make eny vowe or sacrifice, for that they were deed. But for so moch as he sawe, Menelaus also ioyned himself with them (but with greate disceate, & spake saye to the kynge, not for eny good of the countrey, but because he thought to haue bene made some greate man of auctourite. But the kynge of the kynge moued Antiochus mynde agaynst this vngodly personne, & Lysias infourmed the kynge, that this Menelaus was the cause of all myschefe: so that the kynge commaunded to take him, and (as the manner of them is) to put him vnto death in the same place.

2. Ma. 4.1

There was also in the same place a tower of L. cubites hye, heaped with asshes: but aboue it was so made, that men might loke downe on euery syde. Where in to the kynge commaunded that shamefull person to be cast amonge the asshes, as one that was cause of all vngodlynesse. And reason it was, that the vnchaste shulde dye soch a death, and not to be buried: for he had done moch myschefe vnto the altier of God (whose fyre and asshes were holy) therfore was it right, that he himself also shulde be destroyed with asshes.

B

But the kynge was woode in his mynde, & came to shewe himself more cruell vnto the Jewes, then his father was. Which when Judas perceaued, he commaunded the people to call vpon the LORDE night and daye: that he wolde new helpe them also, like as he had done allwaye: (For they were a frayd to be put from their lawe, from their naturall countre and from the holy temple:) and not to suffre the people (which a litle whyle afore beganne to recouer) to be subdued agayne of the blasphemous nations.

2. Ma. 10.1

So when they had done this together, and besought the LORDE for mercy, with wepyng and fastynge thre dayes longe, flat vpon the grounde: Judas exorted them, to make them selues ready. But he and the elders together denyed, to go forth first with their people, afore the kynge brought his hoost in to Jewry, and afore he beseged the cite, & so to committe the matter vnto God. Wherfore he ascribed the power of all thinges vnto God the maker of þ̄ worlde, exortinge his people to fight manfully, (yee euen vnto death) for þ̄ lawes, the temple, þ̄ cite, their owne natyue countre, & to defende þ̄ citesyns: & set his hoost before Modin. He gaue them also þ̄ were w̄ him, a token of þ̄ victory of God, chosinge out the manlyest yongemen, wente by night in to the kynges payllion, slewe of the hoost xiiij. Thus when they had brought a greate feare & rumor amonge þ̄ tentes of their enemies, and all thinges wente prosperously w̄ them, they departed in the breake of þ̄ daye, God beyng their helper & defender. Now when the kyng perceaued the manlynesse of the Jewes, he wente aboute to take the strange places by craft, & remoued his hoost vnto Bethsura, which was a wel kepte house of defence of the Jewes: but they were chased awaye, hurte and discomfited. And Judas sent vnto them that were in it, such thinges as were necessary. In the Jewes hoost also there was one Rhodocus, which tolde the enemies their secrettes: but they sought him out, and when they had gotten him, they put him in prison. After this dyd the kynges comon with them that were in Bethsura, toke truce with them, departed, and stroke a battayll with Judas, which ouercame him.

1. Mac. 11. a

But when he vnderstode, that Philippe (whom he had left to be ouerser of his busynesses at Antioche) began to rebell agaynst him, he was astonied in his mynde: so that he yelded himself to the Jewes, and made them an ooth, to do what so euer they thought right. Now when he was reconcyled with them, he offred, made moch of the temple, gaue greate gyftes vnto it, embraced Machabeus, makynge him captayne and gouernoure from Ptolomais vnto þ̄ Gerrenes.

Nevertheless when he came to Ptolomais, the people of the cite were not content with that bonde of frendshipe: for they were afrayed, that he wolde breake the covenannt. Then wente Lysias vp into the seate, and enfourmed the people, shewed the cause why, and pacified them. So he came agayne to Antioche. This is now the matter concernynge þ̄ kynges iourney, and his returne.

The xiiij. Chap. Fo. lxxxij.

The XIII. Chapter.

After thie yeares was Judas informed, how that Demetrius the sonne of Seleucus was come vp with a greate power and shippes, thorow the haue of Tripolis (to take certayne commodions places and countrees) agaynst Antiochus and his captayne Lysias. Now Alcimus (which had bene hye prest, and wilfully defyled himself, in the tyme of the myrringe) seyng, that by no meanes he coude be helped, ner haue eny more intrunce to the altare: he came to kyng Demetrius in the hundieth and one and fiftie yeare, presentinge vnto him a crowne of golde, a palme and an olyue tre: which (as men thought) belonged to the temple, and that daye he helde his tonge.

But when he had gotten oportunitie for his madnesse, Demetrius called him to counsell, and axed him, what thinges or counceils the Jewes leaned vnto? He answered: The Jewes that be called Assidei (whose captayne is Judas Machabeus) maynteyne warres, make insurreccions, and wyl not let the realme be in peace.

For I beyng depryued of my fathers honoure (I meane the hye presthode) am come hither partly because I was faithfull vnto the kyng, and partly because I sought the profit of the citesyns. And why? all oure people (thorow the wickednesse of them) are not a litle troubled. Wherfore I beseeke the (o kyng) conside all these thinges diligently, and then make some prouision for the londe and the people, acordinge to the kyndnesse that thou hast offred vnto them. For as longe as Judas hath the vpper hande, it is not possible that men can lyue in peace.

When he had spoken these wordes, other frendes also hauinge euell will at Judas, set the kyng Demetrius on fyre agaynst him. Which immediatly sent Nicanor (ruler of þ̄ elephantes) a captayne, in to Jewry: commaunding him, to take Judas himself alyue, but to slaye them that were with him, and to make Alcimus hye prest of the temple.

Then the Zeithen which fled out of Jewry from Judas, came to Nicanor by flockes, thynkyng the harme and decaye of the Jewes to be their welfare. Now whē the Jewes herde of Nicanors comynge, & the gatherynge together of þ̄ Zeithen: they sprinkled them selues w̄ earth, and besonghe him (which made them his people, and euer defended his owne porcion with euident tokens) that he wolde preserve them still. So at the commaundement of the capayne, they remoued from thence, and came to a towne called Dessasan. And Symon Judas brother fell in honde with Nicanor, but thorow the sodane commynge of the enemies, he was afrayed.

Nevertheless Nicanor hearinge the manlynes of them that were with Judas, and y bold stomackes that they had to fight for their naturall countre, durst not proue the matter with bloudsheddinge. Wherfore he sent Possidonius, Theodocius & Mathias before, to geue and to take peace. So when they had taken longe aduysment there vpon, and the capayne shewed it vnto the multitude: they were agreed in one mynde, to haue peace. And they appoynted a daye to syt vpon these matters quyetly amonge them selues, & stoles also were brought and set forth. Nevertheless Judas commaunded certaine men of armes to waite in conuenient places, lest there shulde sodenly aryse any euell thorow the enemies. And so they commoned reasonably together.

Nicanor, whyle he abode at Jerusalem, ordied himself not vnreasonably, but sent awaye the people that were gathered together. He loued Judas euer with his hert, and fauoured him. He prayed him also to take a wyfe, and to brynge forth children. So he married, lyued in rest, and they led a comon life. But Alcimus perceauynge the loue that was betwixte them, and how they were agreed together, came to Demetrius, and tolde him that Nicanor had taken straunge matters in honde, and ordeined Judas (an enemy of the realme) to be the kynges successoure. Then the kinge was sore displeased, and thorow the wicked accusations which Alcimus made of Nicanor, he was so prouoked, that he wrote vnto Nicanor, sayenge: that he was very angrie for the friendship and agreement, which he had made with Machabeus. Nevertheless he commaunded him in all the haist, that he shulde take Machabeus prisoner, and sende him to Antioche.

Which lettres when Nicanor had sente, he was at his wittes ende, and sore grieved, that he shulde breake the thinges, wherein they had agreed: specially, seynge Machabeus was the man, that neuer dyd him harme. But because he might not withston de the kyng, he sought oportunitie to fulfil his commaundement. Notwithstandynge when Machabeus sawe that Nicanor beganne to be churlish vnto him, and that he intreated him more roughly then he was wonte, he perceaued that soch vntyndnes came not of good, and therfore he gathered a few of his men, and withdrew himself fro Nicanor. Which when he knewe that Machabeus had manfully prevented him, he came in to the greate and most holy temple: and commaunded the prestes (which were doynge their vsuall offeringes) to deliuer him the man. And when they swaie that they coude not tell, where the man was who he sought, he stretched out his honde, and made an oath, sayenge: If ye wyll not deliuer me Judas captyue, I shall remoue this temple of God in to the playne felde, I shal breake downe the aulcer, and consecrate this temple vnto Bachus. After these wordes he departed.

Then the prestes lift vp their hondes toward heauen, and besought him that was euer the defender of their people, sayenge: Thou o LORD of all, which hast nede of nothinge, woldest that the temple of thy habitation shulde be amonge vs. Therfore now (o most holy LORD) kepe this house euer vndefyled, which lately was censed. Now was there accused vnto Nicanor, one Razis an Alderman of Jerusalem, a louer of the whole cite, and a man of good repute: which for the kynde hert that he bare vnto the people, was called a father of y Jewes. This man oft tymes (when the Jewes were mynded to kepe them selues vndefyled) defended and deliuered them, beyng contented fastly to spende his body and his life for his people.

So Nicanor wylling to declare the hate, that he bare to the Jewes, sent fyue hundred men to take him: for he thought, yf he gat him, he shulde brynge the Jewes in greate decaye. Now when the people beganne to rushe in at his house, to breake the doores, and to set fyre on it: he beyng now taken, wolde haue defended himself with his swerde: chosynge rather to dye manfully, then to yelde himselfe to those wicked doers: and because of his noble stocke, he had rather haue bene put to extreme cruelte.

Notwithstandynge what tyme as he myssed of his stroke for haist, and the multitude fell in violently betwixte the doores: he rane boldly to y wall, & cast himself downe manfully amonge the heape of them, which gaue soone place to his fall, so that he fell vpon his bely. Neuerthelesse whyle there was yet breath within him, he was kyndled in his mynde: and whyle his bloude gusheth out exceedingly (for he was very sore wounded) he ranne thorow the myddest of y^e people, and gat him to the toppe of a rocke. So when his bloude was now gone, he toke out his owne bowels with both his handes, and threw them vpon the people: callinge vpon the LORDE of life and spiete, to rewarde him this agayne, and so he dyed.

The XV. Chapter.

Now when Nicanor knewe that Judas was in the countre of Samaria, he thought with all his power to strike a felde with him vpon a Sabbath daye. Neuerthelesse the Jewes that were compelled to go with him, sayde: We do not so cruelly and vnkindly, but halowe y^e Sabbath daye, and worshipe him that seyth all thinges, for all this, yet sayed the vngacious personne: Is there a mightie one in heauen, that commaunded the Sabbath daye to be kepte? And when they sayde: yee the lyvinge God, the mightie LORDE in heauen commaunded the seventh daye to be kepte, he sayde: And I am mightie vpon earth, to commaunde them for to arme them selues, and to persourne the kynges busynesse. Notwithstandinge he might not haue his purpose.

Nicanor had denyed with greate pryde to overcome Judas, and to brynge awaye y^e victory. But Machabens had ever a fast confidence and a perfecte hope in God that he wolde helpe him, and exorted his people, not to be afrayed at the commynge of the heithen: but allwaye to remembre the helpe that had bene shewed vnto them from heauen, yee and to be sure now also, y^e Almightie God wolde geue them the victory. He spake vnto them out of the lawe and prophetes, puttinge them in remembraunce of the battayls, that they had stricken afore, & made them to be of a good corage.

So when their hartes were plucked vp, he shewed them also the disceatfulnesse of the heithen, and how they wolde kepe no conuauent neer ooth. Thus he weapened them not with the armour of shylde and speare, but with wholsome wordes and exortacions. He shewed them a dreame also, wherthorow he made them all glad, which was this: He thought that he sawe Onias (which had bene hys prest, a vertuous & leuyng man, sad, and of honest conuersacion, well spoken, and one that had bene exercised in goodlynes fro a childe) holdinge vp his handes toward heauen, and prayenge for his people. After this there appeared vnto him another man, which was aged, honorable and glorious. And Onias sayde: This is a louer of the brethren, and of the people of Israel. This is he that prayeth much for the people, and for all the holy cite: Jeremy the prophet of God. He thought also y^e Jeremy helde out his right hode, and gaue him (namely vnto Judas) a swearde of golde, sayenge: Take this holy swearde, a gifte from God, wherewith thou shalt smyte downe the enemies of the people of Israel.

And so they were wel comforted thorow the wordes of Judas, and toke corage vnto the, so that the yonge men were determed in their myndes to fight, & to hyde flysly at it. In so much that in the thinges which they toke in honde, their boldnesse shewed the same, because the holy cite and the temple were in parell: for the which they toke more care, then for their wyues, children, brethre and kynnsfolkes. Agayne, they that were in the cite, were most carefull for those which were to fight. Now when they were all in a hope that the iudgment of the matter was at hande, and the enemies drew nye, the hoost beyng set in aray, the Elephantes and horses every one standinge in his place: Machabens considered the commynge of the multitude, the ordinaunce of dyuerse weapens, the cruelnesse of the beestes, and hilde vp his handes toward heauen, callinge vpon the LORDE that doth wonders, which geueth not the victory after the multitude of weapens and power of the hoost (but to them that please him) accordinge to his owne will. Therefore in his prayer he sayde these wordes:

O LORDE, thou that diddest sende thine angell in the tyme of Ezechias kyng of Judas, and in the hoost of Sennacherib slewest an hundred and fyue and seure score thousande: sende now also thy good angell before vs (O LORDE of heuens) in the fearfulnessse and drede of thy mightie arme, that they which come agaynst thy holy people to blaspheme them, maye be afrayed. And so he made an ende of his wordes. Then Nicanor and they that were with him, drew nye with shawmes and songes: but Judas and his company with prayer and callinge vpon God.

Now when they left of, and were turning agayne with ioye, they vnderstode that Nicanor himself was slayne with the other. Then they gave a greate shoute and a crie, prayinge the almighty LORDE with a loude voyce. And Judas (which was ever ready to spende his body and life for his citsyns) commaunded to smyte of Nicanors heade, with his arme and honde, and to be brought to Jerusalem. When he came there, he called all the people, and the prestes at the aulter with those that were in the castell, and shewed them Nicanors heade, and his wicked honde, which he had presumptuously holden vp agaynst the temple of God. He caused the tonge also of that vngodly Nicanor to be cut in litle peces, and to be cast to the foules, and the cruell mans honde to

As for Nicanors heade, he hanged it vp vpon the hye castell, for an euident and playne token of the helpe of God. And so they agreed all together, to kepe that daye holy: namely the xij. daye of the moneth Adar, which in Syriā's language is called the nexte daye before Marдохens daye. Thus was

All the generacions from Abraham to Dauid are fourtene generacions: From Dauid vnto the captiuite of Babylon, are fourtene generacions. From the captiuite of Babylon vnto Chust, are also fourtene generacions.

The byrth of Chust was on thys wyse: When his mother Mary was married to Joseph before they came together, she was founde with chylde by & holy goost. But Joseph her husbände was a perfect man, and wolde not bunge her to shame, but was myn ded to put her awaie secretly. Neuertheles whyle he thus thought, beholde, the angell of the LORDE appered vnto him in a dreame, saynge: Joseph thou sonne of Dauid, feare not to take vnto the Mary thy wyse. For that which is coceaued in her, is of & holy goost. She shall brynge forth a sonne, and thou shalt call his name Jesus. For he shall saue his people from their synnes.

All this was done, & the thinge mighte, be fulfilled, which was spoken of the LORDE by the prophet, saynge: Beholde, a mayde shall be with chylde, and shall brynge forth a sonne, and they shall call his name Emanuel, which is by interpretation, God with vs.

The III. Chapter.

Then was Jesus ledd awaye of the spirite in to wildernes, to be tempted of the deuyl. And when he had fasted fourtye dayes and fourtye nightes, he was after ward an hungred. And the tēpter came to him and sayde: yf thou be the sonne of God, commaunde, that these stones be made bread. He answered & sayde: yt is wrytē: Man shall not lyue by bred onlye, but by euery worde that procedeth out of the mouth of God.

Then the deuyl toke hym vp into the holy cite, and set hym on a pynacle of the temple, and sayde vnto hym: yf thou be s sonne of God, cast thy sylf downe. For it is wrytē: he shall geue his angels charge ouer the, and with their handes they shal holde the vp, that thou dashe not thy fote agaynst a stone. And Jesus sayde vnto hym: it ys wrytē also: Thou shalt not tempte thy L O R D E God.

Agayne, the deuyl toke hym vp and led hym into an exceedynge hye mountayne, and shewed hym all the kyngdomes of the worlde, and all the glorie of them, and sayde vnto hym: all these wil I geue the, yf thou wilt fall downe and worship me. Then sayde Jesus vnto hym: Auoyde Sacā. For it ys wrytē: thou shalt worship the L O R D E thy God and hym onely shalt thou serue.

Then the deuyl left hym, and beholde, the angels came and ministred vnto hym.

When Jesus had herde that Jhon was taken, he departed into Galile and left Nazareth, and went and dwelt in Capernaum, which is a cite apon the see, in the coostes of zabulon and Neptalim, & the thinge might be fulfilled which was spoken by Esay the prophet, sayinge: The londe of zabulon and Neptalim, the waye of the see beyonde Jordan, and Galile of the Gentyls, the people which sat in darknes, sawe a greatelyght, & to them which sat in the region & shadowe of deeth, lyght is begōne to shyne.

And whan he wēt forth from thence, he sawe other two brethren, James the sonne of zebede, and Jhon his brother, in the ship with zebede their father, mendynge their nettes, and called them. And they without tarynge lefte & shyp and their father, and folowed hym.

And Jesus went aboute all Galile, teachyng in their synagoges, and preachyng the gospel of the kyngdome, and healed all maner of siknes, & all maner dyseases amonge the people. And his fame spred abroad through out all Siria. And they brought vnto hym all sick people, that were taken with diuers diseases and gripinges, and the & were possessed with deuils, & those which were lunatyke, and those that had the palsie: & he healed the. And ther folowed hym a greate nombre of people, from Galile, & from the ten cities, and from Jerusalem, and from the regions that lye beyonde Jordan.

The V. Chapter.

When he sawe the people, he went vp into a mountayne: and when he was set, his disciples came to hym, and he opened his mouth, and taught them, sayinge: Blessed are the poore in sperte: for theirs is the kyngdome of heuē. Blessed are they that mourne: for they shal be comforted. Blessed are the meke: for they shall inheret the erth. Blessed are they which hunger & thurst for rightewesnes: for they shal be filled. Blessed are the mercifull: for they shall obteyne mercy. Blessed are the pure in herte: for they shall se God. Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shalbe called the chyl dren of God. Let heede to youre almes, that ye geue it not in the syght of men, to the intent that ye wolde be sene of them: or els, ye get no rewarde of youre father which is in heauen. When soeuer therfore thou geuest thine almes, thou shalt not make a trompet to be blown before the, as the hypocrites do in the synagoges and in the stretes, for to be praysed of men. Verely I saye.

unto you: they haue their rewarde. But whē thou doest almes, let not thy lefte hande knowe, what thy righte hande doth; that thine almes maye be secrete: and thy father which seith in secrete, shall rewarde the openly.

And when thou prayest, thou shalt not be as y hypocrytes are. For they loue to stōde and praye in the synagoges, and in the comers of the stretes, to be sene of men. Verely I saie vnto you: they haue their rewarde. But when thou prayest, entre in to thy chamber, and shut thy doore to the, & praye to thy father which is in secrete: and thy father which seith in secrete, shall rewarde the openly.

And when ye praye, bable not moch, as y herthen do: for they thinke that they shal be herde, for their moch bablynges sake. Be not ye lyke them therfore. For youre father knoweth where of ye haue nede, before ye axe of him. After thys maner therfore shall ye praye:

O ure father which art in heauen, hallowed be thy name. Thy Kyngdome come. Thy wyll be fulfilled vpon earth as it is in heauen. Geue vs this daye oure dayly bred. And forgeue vs oure dettes, as we also forgeue oure detters. And lede vs not in to tēp tacion: but delyuer vs from euell. For thynne is the Kyngdome, and the power, and the gloiye for euer. Amen. For yf ye forgeue o ther men their trespasses, youre heavenly father shall also forgeue you. But and ye wyll not forgeue mē their trespasses, nemo, re shall youre father forgeue you youre trespasses.

Moreover when ye fast, be not sad as y hypocrytes are. For they disfigure their faces, that they myght be sene of men to fast. Verely I saie vnto you: they haue their rewarde. But thou, whē thou fastest, annoynte thynne heed, and wash thy face, that it appeare not vnto men, that thou fastest: but vnto thy father which is in secrete: and thy father which seyth in secrete, shal rewarde the openly.

Se that ye gather you not treasure vpon the earth, where rust and mothes corrupte, and where theues breake through and steale. of light: But and yf thynne eye be wycked, all thy body shalbe full of darckenes: Wherfore yf the light that is in the, be darckenes, how greates then shall that darckenes be?

No mā can serue two masters. For ether he shall hate the one and loue the other: or els he shall leane to the one, and despise the other: He can not serue God and mammon. Therfore I saie vnto you: be not ye carefull for your lyfe, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drinke: nor yet for youre body, what ye shal put on. As not the lyfe more worth thē meate, and the body more of value then ray mēt: Beholde the fenles of y ayer: for they sowe not, nether reepe, nor yet cary in to the barnes: and yet youre heauēly father sedeth thē. Are ye not moch better thē they?

Which of you (though he toke thought therfore) coulde put one cubit vnto his stature: why care ye then for rayment? Considre the lykes of the felde, how they growe. They laboure not, nether spynne. And yet for all that I saie vnto you, that euen Salo mon in all his royaltie was not arayed lyke vnto one of these. Wherfore yf God so cloth the grasse, which is to daye in the felde, and to morowe shalbe cast into the fornace: shal he not moch more do the same vnto you, o ye of lytle fayth?

Therfore take no thought, sayinge: what shall we eat, or what shall we drinke: or where with shall we be clothed? After all soch thynges do the heithen seke. For youre heauēly father knoweth, that ye haue nede of all these thynges. Seke ye fyrst the Kyngdome of heauen and the righte cōsnes therof, so shal all these thynges be ministered vnto you.

Care not then for the morow, for the morow shall care for it self: Euery daye hath ynough of his owne trauayll.

The VII. Chapter.

Nodge not, that ye be not iudged: For as ye iudge, so shal ye be iudged. And with what measure ye meete, with the same shall it be measured to you agayne. Why seist thou a moate in thy brothers eye, and perceauest not the beame y is yn thine awne eye? Or why saiest thou to y brother: holde, I wil plucke the moate out of thynne eye, and beholde, a beame is in thynne awne eye. haue holes, and the byrddes of the ayer haue nestes, but y sonne of mā hath not wheron to rest his heede. Another that was one of his disciples, sayde vnto hym: Syr, geue me leue fyrst, to go & burye my father. But Iesus sayde vnto him: folowe thou me, and let the deed burie their deed.

And he entred in to a shyppe, ⁊ his disciples folowed him. And beholde, there arose a greate tempest in the see, in so moch that the shippe was couered with waves, ⁊ he was a slepe. And his disciples came vnto him, and a wolte hym, sayinge: LORDE, saue vs, we perishe. And he sayde vnto them: why are ye fearfull, o ye of lytell faith? Then he arose, and rebuked the wyndes and the see, ⁊ there folowed a greate calme. And the men marueyled and sayde: what mā is this, that both wyndes and see obey hym?

And when he was come to y other syde, in to the countre of the Gergesites, there met him two poss. ssed of deuyls, which came out of the graues, and were out of measure feare, so that no man myght go by that waye. And beholde, they cryed out sayinge: Oh Iesu thou sonne of God, what haue we to do with thee: Art thou come hither to tommēt vs, before the tyme be come? And there was a good waye off from them a greate heerd of swyne fedinge. Then the deuyles besonghte him, sayinge: yf thou cast vs out, suffre vs to go oure waye into the heerd of swyne. And he sryde vnto them: go youre wayes. Then went they out, and departed in to the heerd of swyne. And beholde, y whoale heerd of swyne was caryed with violēce headlinge in to the see, and perished in the water. The the heerdmen fled and wente their wayes in to the cyte, and tolde euery thinge, ⁊ what had foruned vnto the possessed of the deuyls. And beholde, all the cyte came out and met Iesus. And when they sawe hym, they besought hym, for to departe out of their coostes.

The ix. Chapter.

of G. Nichol, Esq. v.

Then entred he into a shipp, and passed ouer and came in to his owne cite. And lo, they brough t vnto him a man sicke of y^e palsie, lyinge in his bed. And when Iesus sawe the faith of the, he sayde to the sicke of y^e palsie: my sonne, be of good cheare, thy synnes are forgiven the. And beholde, certeyne of the scribes sayde in themselves: this man blasphemeth. But when Iesus sawe their thoughtes, he sayde: wherefore thinke ye euill in youre hertes? Whether ys it easier to saye: thy synnes be forgiven y^e, or to saye: arise and walke? But that ye maye knowe, that the sonne of man hath power to forgue synnes in earth, the sayde he vnto the sicke of y^e palsy: arise, take vp thy bed, and go home. And he arose and wente home. When y^e people sawe it, they marueyled, & glorified God, which had geue such power vnto men.

And as Iesus passed forth from thence, he sawe a man syt a receyvinge of custome, named Mathew, ⁊ sayde vnto him: folowe me. And he arose, and folowed him. And it came to passe as he sat at meate in the house: beholde, many publicans and synners came and sat downe also with Iesus and hys disciples.

When the Pharisees sawe that, they sayde to hys disciples: why eateth youre master with publicans and synners? When Iesus herde that, he sayde vnto them: The whole nede not & phisica, but they that are sicke. Go and learne, what that meaneth: I haue pleasure in mercy, and not in offerynge. For I am not comen to call the righteous, but y synners to repentance,

Then came the disciples of Iohn to hym sayinge: why do we & Pharisees fast so oft: and thy disciples fast not? And Iesus sayde vnto the: Can the weddyng chylde moune as longe as the brdegrome is with them? The tyme will come, when the brdegrome shalbe taken from them, and the shall they fast. No man peceth an olde garment with a pece of newe clothe. For then taketh he awaye the pece agayne from the garment, & the rent ys made greater. Neither do men put new wyne in to olde vessels, for then the vessels breake, and the wyne runneth out, & the vessels peryshe. But they poure newe wyne in to newe vessels, and so are both saued together.

Whyle he thus spake vnto them, beholde
there came a certayne ruler, and worshipped him, sayinge: My daughter is euē now deceased, but come and lay y^e honde on her,

The XII. Chapter.

At the same tyme were Jesus thorow the come vpon the Sabbath, and his disciples were hongrie, and beganne to plucke of the eares of the come, and to eate. When the Pharises sawe that, they sayde vnto him: Beholde, thy disciples do that, which is not lausfull to do vpon the Sabbath. He sayde vnto them: hane ye not red what David did, whan he was hongrie, & they also the were with him? how he entred in to the house of God, & ate the shew breads which were not lausfull for him to eate, nether for the the were with him, but onely for the prestes? Or hane ye not red in the lawe how that the prestes in the temple breake the Sabbath, and yet are blamelesse? But I saye vnto you: the here is one greater then the temple. But yf ye wylt what this were (I haue pleasure in mercy, and not in offeringe) ye woldenot haue condemned innocentes: For the sonne of man is LORDE euen ouer the Sabbath.

And he departed thence, and wente in to their synagoge: and beholde, there was a mā which had his hāde dried vp. And they axed him, sayente: Is it lausfull to heale, vpon the Sabbath? because they might accuse him. But he sayde vnto the: Which of you is it, yf he had a shepe fallē in to a pytte vpon the Sabbath, that wolde not take him, and lift him out? And how moch is a man better then a shepe? Therfore it is lesfull to do good vpon the Sabbath. Then sayde he to the mā: Stretch forth thine hande. And he stretched it forth: and it was whole agayne like vnto the other.

Then wente the Pharises out, and helde a councell agaynst him, how they might destroye him. But whā Jesus knew therof, he departed thence, & moch people folowed him: and he healed them all, and charged them, the they shulde not make him knowne: that the thinge might be fulfyllled, which was spoken by Esay the prophet, which sayeth: Beholde, this is my seruaut, whom I haue chosē: and my beloued, in whom my soule delyteth: I wil put my spiete vpon hi, and he shal shewe iudgment vnto the heathē. He shal not stryue, ner crye, nether shal eny man heare his voyce in the stretes. A brosed rede shal he not breake, and flax that beginneth to burne shal he not quench, tyll he sende forth iudgment vnto victory. And in his name shal the heithen trust.

Then was there brought vnto him one possessed (of a deuill) the which was blynde and domne, and he healed him: in so moch the blynde and domne both spake and sawe. And all the people were amased, and sayde: Is not this the sonne of David? But whan the Pharises herde that, they sayde: he dryueth the deuyls out none other wyse, but thorow Beelzebub the chiefe of the deuyls. Neuertheles Jesus knew their thoughtes, and sayde vnto them: Euery kyngdome deuuyded within it self, shalbe desolate: and euery cite or house deuuyded in it self, maye not contynue. So yf one Sathan cast out another, the is heat variaunce within him self: how maye then his kyngdome endure? But yf I cast out deuils thorow Beelzebub, thorow whom do youre childre cast them out? Therfore shal they be youre iudges. But yf I cast out the deuyls by the spiete of God then is the kyngdome of God come vpon you. Or how cā a man entre in to a stronge mans house, and violently take awaye his goodes, excepte he first bynde the stronge mā, & the spoyle his house? he that is not wme, is agaynst me: & he the gathereth not wme, scattereth abroad. Therfore I saye vnto you: All synne and blasphemy shalbe forgiven vnto men, but the blasphemy agaynst the spiete shal not be forgiven vnto men: And whosoever speaketh a worde agaynst the sonne of man, it shalbe forgiven him. The XIII. Chapter.

The same daye wente Jesus out of y house, and sat by the see syde, & moch peopleresorted vnto him: so y he wēte in to a shyppe and satt him downe, and all the people stode vpo the shore. And he spake many thinges vnto thē in symilitudes, sayenge: Beholde, The sower wente forth to sowe: and as he sowed, some fell by the waye syde: Then came the foules, & ate it vp. Some fell vpon stony grounde, & anone it sprong vp, because it had no depth of earth: But whan the Sonne arose, it caught heate: and for so moch as it had no rote, it withied awaye. Some fell amonge the thornes, & the thornes grewe vp, and choked it. Some fell vpo good grounde, & gaue frute: some an hundred folde, some sixtie folde, some thirtie folde. Who so hath eares to heare, let hī heare.

And the disciples came vnto him, and sayde: Why speakest thou to thē by parables? He answered and sayde vnto thē: Vnto you it is geuen to knowe the mystery of the kingdome of heauen, but vnto them it is not geuen. For whoso hath vnto him shal be geue, and he shal haue abundaunce. But who so hath not, from him shal be taken awaye, eue that he hath. Therfore speake I vnto thē by parables, for with seynge eyes they se not, & with hearinge eares they heare not, for they vnderstonde it not. And in them is fulfilled y prophecie of Esay, which sayeth: We shal heare in dede, and shal not vnderstonde: and with seynge eyes shal ye se, and not perceaue. As for him that is sowne amonge y^e thornes, this is he: Whā one heareth the worde, & the carefulnes of this worlde, & the disceatfulnes of riches choke the worde, & so he becometh vnfrutefull. But he y^e is sowne in the good ground, is this: whan one heareth the worde, and vnderstonderth it, and bringeth forth frute: and some geneth an hūdreth folde, some sixtie folde, and some thirtie folde.

Marc. 4. c D Another parable put he forth vnto thē, & sayde: The kyngdome of heauē is like vnto a man, y^e sowed good sēde in his felde. But whyle mē slepte, there came an enemye, and sowed tares amonge y^e wheate, & wente his waye. Now whā the blade was sprōge vp & brought forth frute, thē y^e tares appeared also. Then came the seruaūtes to y^e housholder, & sayde vnto him: Syr, sowdest not thou good sēde in y^e felde? Frō whēce thē hath it tares? He sayde vnto thē: that hath the enemye done. Thē sayde y^e seruaūtes: wilethou then y^e we go & weede thē out? He sayde: No, lest whyle ye weede out y^e tares, ye p^ucke vp the wheate also wth thē. Let thē both growe together tyll the haruest, and in tyme of haruest I wil saye vnto the reapers: Gather y^e tares first, & bynde thē in sheeues to be brēt; but gather the wheate in to my barne.

Marc. 4. c Luc. 11. b Another parable put he forth vnto thē, and sayde: The kyngdome of heauen is like vnto a grane of mustardecēde, which a man toke, and sowed it in his felde. Which is the leest amonge all sēdes. But whan it is growne, it is the greatest amonge herbes, and is a tre: so that the byrdes vnder the heauen come and dwell in the biauiches of it.

Luc. 13. b g Another parable spake he vnto thē: The kyngdome of heauē is like vnto leuē, which a woman toke, and mytte it amonge thre peckes of meele, tyll all was leuended.

Marc. 4. d Psal. 77. a All soch thinges spake Iesus vnto y^e people by parables, & without parables spake he nothinge vnto thē: y^e the thinge might be fulfilled, which was spokē by y^e prophet, sayenge: I wil open my mouth in parables, and wil speake out the secretes from the begynnyng of the worlde.

Then sent Iesus the people awaye, and came home. And his disciples came vnto hī, and sayde: Declare vnto us y^e parable of y^e tares of y^e felde. Iesus answered, and sayde vnto them: He that soweth the good sēde, is the sonne of man: the felde is the worlde: y^e good sēde are the childre of the kyngdome: The tares are the children of wickednes: y^e enemye that soweth thē, is the deuell: y^e har uest is the ende of the worlde: y^e reapers are y^e angels. For like as y^e tares are weeded out, and brent in the fyre, euē so shal it go in y^e ende of this worlde. The sonne of man shal sende forth his angels, & they shal gather out of his kyngdome all thinges y^e offende, & thē y^e do iniquyte, & shal cast thē in to a fornace of fyre, there shalbe waylinge and gnashinge of teeth. Thē shal the righteous shyne as the Sonne, in the kyngdome of their father. Who so hath eares to heare, let him heare.

Agayne, the kyngdome of heauen is like vnto a treasure hyd in the felde, which a mā founde and hid it, and forioye therof he wōte & solde all y^e he had, and bought y^e felde.

Agayne, the kyngdome of heauen is like vnto a marchaūt, y^e sought good pearles: & whā he had founde a precions pearle, he wōte and solde all that he had, & bought it.

Agayne, y^e kyngdome of heauē is like vnto a nett cast in to y^e see, wherewith are takē all maner of fyshes: & whā it is ful, mē drawe it out vnto y^e shore, & syce & gather y^e good iⁿ to the vessels, but cast the bad awaye. So shal it be also in y^e ende of y^e worlde. The angels shal go out, & seuer the bad frō the righteous, & shal cast thē in to a fornace of fyre, there shalbe waylinge & gnashinge of teeth.

And Iesus sayde vnto them: Haue ye vnderstōde all these thinges? They sayde: Yee LORDE. Then sayde he vnto thē: Therfore euery scribe taught vnto y^e kyngdome of heauen, is like an housholder, which bryngeth out of his treasure thinges new and olde.

And it came to passe whā Iesus had ended these parables, he departed thence, and came into his owne cōtre, and taught thā in their synagoges: in so moch, that they were astonnyed and sayde: Whēce cometh soch wysdome & power vnto him? Is not this the carpēters sonne? Is not his mother called Mary? and his brethre James & Ioseph, and Symon and Jude? And are not all his sisters herewith us? Whence hath he thē all these thinges? And they were offended at him. But Iesus sayde vnto thē: A prophet is nowhere lesse sett by, thē at home & amonge his owne. And he dyd not many miracles there, because of their vnbeleue.

Do ye not yet perceauē? Remembre ye not

Marc. 11. c
Luc. 17. a
Then came Peter vnto him, & sayde, LORDE, how oft shal I forgive my brother, y trespaceth agaynst me? Seuen tymes? Iesus saide vnto hi: I saye not vnto y seuen tymes, but seuentie tymes seuen tymes. Therfore is y Kyngdome of heauē likened vnto a kynge which wolde reken w his seruantes. And whan he beganne to reckē, one was brought vnto him, which ought him ten thousande pōunde. Now whā he had nothinge to paye his lorde cōmaunded him to be solde, & his wife & his childre, & all y he had, & payment to be made. Then the seruant fell downe, & besought him, sayenge: Syr, haue paciēce w me, and I wil paye the all. Then had the lorde pytie on that seruant, & discharged him, and forgave him the dett.

Iaco. 2. b
And the same seruant wote out, & foude one of his felowes, which ought him an hundred penes, and layed hande vpon him, and toke him by the throte, and sayde: paye me that thou owest. The his felowe fell downe, and besought him, sayenge: haue paciēce w me, and I wil paye the all. Neuertheles, he wolde not, but wente and cast him in to prison, tyll he shulde paye the dett. Whan his felowes sawe what was done, they were very sory, and came and tolde their lorde all that had happened. Then his lorde called for him, and sayde vnto him: O thou wicked seruant, I forgave the all this dett, because thou praydest me: shuldest not thou then haue had compassiō also vpon thy felowe, euen as I had pytie vpon the? And his lorde was wroth, and deliuered him vnto the iaylers, tyll he payed all that he ought. So shal my heauenly father do also vnto you, yf ye euery one of you frō youre hertes, forgue not his brother his trespases.

Mat. 10. a
And it came to passe, whā Iesus had ended these sayenges, he gat him frō Galile, & came i to y coastes of Jewry beyonde Jordane, & moche people folowed him, and he healed them there.

Now are they not twayne then, but one flesh. Let not man therfore put a sunder, þ which God hath coupled together.

Then sayde they: Why dyd Moses then comaunde to geue a testimonyall of deuorment, z to put her awaye? He sayde vnto the: Moses (because of y hardnes of yō hertes) suffred you to put awaye youre wyues:

¶ Neuertheles fro the begynnynge it hath not bene so. But I saye vnto you: Whoso euer puttech awaye his wife (excepte it be for fornicacion) and marieth another, breakech wedlocke. And who so marieth her þ is deuorced, commyttech aduoutrye.

Then sayde his disciples vnto him: If y matter be so betwene mā and wife, the is it not good to mary. But he sayde vnto them: All mē can not cōprehende þ sayenge, save they to whō it is geue. For there be some gelded, which are so boue from their mothers wombe: and there be some gelded, which are gelded of men: z there be some gelded, which haue gelded the selues for the kyngdome of heauens sake. ¶ And beholde, one came vnto him, and sayde: Good master, what good shal I do, þ I maye haue the euerlastinge life? He sayde vnto him: Why callest thou me good? there is none good, but God onely. ¶ Neuertheles yf thou wilt entre into life, kepe þ * cōmaūdemētes. The sayde, he vnto him: Which? Then sayde the yonge mā vnto him: All these haue I kepte fro my youth vp: what lack I yet? ¶ Jesus sayde vnto his disciples: Verely I saie vnto you: it shalbe harde for a rich man to entre in to the kyngdome of heauē. And morouer I saye vnto you: It is easier for a Camell to go thorow the eye of a nedle, the for a rich man to entre in to the kyngdome of heauen. Whan his disciples herde that, they were exceedingly amased, and sayde: Who can the be saued? ¶ Neuertheles Jesus behelde them, and sayde vnto them: With men it is vnpossyble, but with God all thinges are possyble.

¶ Then answered Peter z sayde vnto him: Beholde, we haue forsakē all, and folowed the: What shal we haue therfore? Jesus sayde vnto the: Verely I saye vnto you: that when the sonne of man shal syt in the seate of his maiesty, ye which haue folowed me in the new byrth, shal syt also vpon twolue seates, and iudge þ twolue trybes of Israel. And who so euer forsaketh houses or brethiē, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or childien, or londes, for mynames sake, the same shal receaue an hundredfold, and inheret euerlastinge life. But many that be the first, shalbe the last: and the last shalbe the first.

The XX. Chapter.

¶ The kyngdome of heauen is like vnto a housholder, which wēt out early in the mornynge, to hyre labourers in to his vnyarde. And whā he had agreed with the labourers for a peny a daye, he sent the in to his vnyarde. And aboute þ thirde houre he wente out, and sawe other stondinge ydle in the market place, and sayde vnto them: Go ye also in to my vnyarde, z what so euer is right, I wil geue it you. And they wēt their waye. Agayne, he wēt out aboute the sirte and nyenth houre, and dyd likerwyse. And aboute the eleuenth houre he wēt out, and founde other stōdyng ydle, and sayde vnto them: Why stonde ye here all the daye ydle? They sayde vnto him: because no man hath hyred us. He saide vnto the: Go ye also in to my vnyarde, and loke what is right, ye shal haue it. ¶ Now whan euen was come, the lord of the vnyarde sayde vnto his steward: Call the labourers, and geue them their hyre, begynnynge from the last vnto þ first. Then they that were hyred aboute the eleuenth houre, came and receaued every man a peny. But whan the first came, they supposed that they shulde receaue more: and they also receaued every man a peny. And whan they had receaued it, they murmured agaynst the housholder, and sayde: These last haue wronghe but one houre, and thou hast made the equall vnto us, which haue borne the burthen and heate of the daye. He answered and sayde vnto one of them: frende, I do y no wronge: diddest not thou agree with me for a peny? Take that thine is, and go thy waye. I wil geue vnto this last also, like as vnto the. O: haue I not power, to do as me listeth with myne owne? Is thine eye euell, because I am good? So the last shal be the first, & the first the last. For many are called, but few are chosen.

And Jesus wente vp to Jerusalem, and toke the twelue disciples asyde in the waye, and sayde vnto them: Beholde, we go vp to Jerusalem, and the sonne of man shal be deliuered vnto the hye prestes and scribes: & they shal condemne him to death, and shal deliuer him vnto y heithen, to be mocked to be scourged, and to be crucified. And the thirde daye he shal ryse agayne.

Then came vnto him the mother of Zebedes childre with hir sonnes, fell down before him, and desyred a certayne thinge of hi. And he saide vnto her: What wilt thou? She sayde vnto him: Let these two sonnes of myne sitt in thy kyngdome: the one vpon thy right honde, & the other vpon thy lefte honde. But Jesus answered, and sayde: Ye wote not what ye aske. Maye ye drynke the cuppe, that I shal drynke? & to be baptised with the baptyme, that I shal be baptised withall? They sayde vnto him: Yee that we maye. And he sayde vnto them: My cuppe truly shal ye drynke, & with the baptyme y I shal be baptised withall, shal ye be baptised: Neuertheles to sitt vpon my right honde & on my lefte, is not myne to geue, but vnto the for whō it is prepared of my facher.

Whan the ten herde that, they disdayned at the two brethien. But Jesus called them vnto him, and sayde: Ye knowe that y prynces of the worlde haue domynacion of the people, and the greatest exercise power amonge the. It shal not be so amonge you. But who so euer wyl be greate amonge you, let him be youre mynister: & who so euer wyl be chiefe, let him be youre seruaunt: Euen as the sonne of man came, not to be serued, but to do seruyce, and to geue his life to a redempcion for many.

And when they departed from Jericho, moch people folowed him: and beholde, two blyndemen sat by the waye syde: And when they herde that Jesus passed by, they cried & sayde. O LORDE, thou sonne Dauid, haue mercy vpon vs. But y people rebuked the, that they shulde holde their peace. Neuer theles they cried the more, & sayde: O LORDE, thou sonne of Dauid, haue mercy vpon vs. And Jesus stode styll, and called them, and sayde: What wil ye, y I shal do vnto you? They sayde vnto him: LORDE, that oure eyes maye be opened. And Jesus had compassion vpon them, and touched their eyes: & immediatly their eyes receaued sight. And they folowed him.

The XXI. Chapter.

Whan they drew nye vnto Jerusalem, and were come to Bethphage vnto mount Olinere, Jesus sent two of his disciples, and sayde vnto them: Go in to the towne that lyeth before you, & anone ye shal fynde an Ass bounde, and hir foale with her: lowse them, and brynge the vnto me. And yf eny man saye ought vnto you, saye ye: the LORDE hath neede of the. And straight waye he wil let them go. But all this was done, that the thinge might be fulfilled, which was spoken by the prophet, sayenge: Tell the daughter of Sion: beholde, thy kyng cometh vnto y make, sittynge vpon an Ass and a foale of y Ass used to the yocke. The disciples wente, and dyd as Jesus commaunded them, and brought the Ass and the foale, & layed their clothes vpon them, and set him thereon. But many of the people spred their garmentes in the waye: other cut dorene braunches from the trees, and strawed them in the waye. As for the people that wente before and that came after, they cryed and sayde: Hosanna vnto the sonne of Dauid, Blessed be he that cometh in the name of the LORDE, Hosanna in the height.

And whan he was come into Jerusalem, all the cite was moued, and sayde: Who is this? And the people sayde: This is Jesus y prophet of Nazareth out of Galile. And Jesus wente in to the temple of God, and cast out all them that bought and solde in the temple, and overthrew the tables of the money chaungers, and the seates of them that solde boues, and sayde vnto them: It is wrytten: My house shal be called y house of prayer, but ye haue made it a denne of murthurers. The blynde also and y lame came vnto him in the temple, and he healed them.

But whan the hye prestes and the scribes sawe the wonders that he dyd, and the children crienge in the temple and sayenge: Hosanna vnto the sonne of Dauid, they disdayned, and sayde vnto him: Hearest thou

what these saye? Jesus sayde vnto them: See. haue ye neuer red: Out of the mouth of very babes and sucklings thou hast ordey- ned prayse: And he left them there, and wente out of the cite vnto Bethania, and there abode ouer night.

But in the mornynge as he returned in to the cite, he hūgred. And in the waye he sawe a fygge tre, and came vnto it, and founde nothynge thereon, but leaues onely, and sayde vnto it: Neuer frute growe on the frons hence forth. And immediatly the fygge tre withered awaye. And whan his disciples sawe that, they marueyled, and sayde. How is y^e fygge tre withered awaye so soone? Je- sus answered and sayde vnto them: Verely

I saye vnto you: If ye haue faith & doute not, ye shal not onely do this with the fygge tre, but yf ye shal saye vnto this mountay- ne: A voyde, and cast thy self in to the see, it shal be done. And what soeuer ye are in prayer, yf ye beleue, ye shal receaue it.

And when he was come in to the temple, the chiefe prestes and the elders of the peo- ple came vnto him (as he was teachinge) & sayde: By what auctorite doest thou these thinges? and who gaue thee this auctorite? Jesus answered and sayde vnto them: I wil aske a worde of you also: which yf ye tell me, I in like wyse wil tell you, by what auctori- te I do these thinges. The baptisme of Ihs, whēce was it: from heauē, or of men? Then thought they among them selues, and saide: If we saye it was from heauē, then shal he saye vnto us: Why dyd ye not then beleue him? But yf we saye it was of men, thē fea- re we the people: For every mā helde Ihon for a prophet. And they answered Jesus, & sayde: We can not tell. Then sayde he vnto them: Neither tell I you, by what auctorite I do these thinges. But what thinke ye? A certayne man had two sonnes, and came to the first, and sayde: Go thy waye my sonne, & worke to daye in my vynyarde. He answered and sayde: I wil not, but afterwarde he repented, and wente. He came also vnto the secōde, and sayde like wyse. And he answered and saide: I wil sye. And wēce not. Whether of them twayne dyd the wil of the father? They sayde vnto him: the first. Jesus sayde vnto thē: Verely I saye vnto you: The pub- licans and harlottes shal come in to the kyngdome of God before you. For Ihon came vnto you, and taught you y^e right waye and ye beleued him not: but the publicans & harlottes beleued hī. As for you, though ye sawe it, yet were ye not moued with repētaunce, that ye might afterwarde haue be- lieued him.

Heare another parable. There was a cer- tayne housholder which planted a vynyar- de, and hedged it rounde aboute, and dygged a wyne presse in it, and built a tower, and let it out vnto husbandmen, and wente in to a straunge countre. Now whā the tyme of the frute drew neare, he sent his seruantes to the husbandmen, to receaue the frutes of it. Then the husbandmen caught his seruantes: one they beat, another they kylled, the thirde they stoned. Agayne, he sent other ser- uantes, more then the first, and they dyd vn- to them in like maner. At the last he sent his owne sonne vnto them, and sayde: they wil stōde in awe of my sonne. But whē the hus- bandmē sawe the sonne, they sayde amonge thē selues: This is the heyre, come, let us kyl hym, and take his inheritaunce vnto oure sel- ues. And they caught him, and thrust him out of the vynyarde, & slew him. Now whē the lord of the vynyarde cometh, what wil he do wth those husbandmen? They say- de vnto him: He wil cruelly destroye those euell persones, & let out his vynyarde vnto other husbandmen, which shal deliuer him the frute at tymes conuenient.

Jesus sayde vnto thē: Dyd ye neuer rede in the scriptures: The same stone which the buylders refused, is become the heade stone in the corner? This was the LORDES doyn- ge, & it is maruelous in oure eyes. Therfore I saie vnto you: The kingdome of God shal be takē frō you, & shalbe geuē vnto the heithē, which shal brynge forth y^e frutes of it. And who so fallet h vps this stone, shalbe brokē in peces: & loke vps whom it fallet h, it shal grynde him to poulder. And when the hye prestes & pharises herde his parables, they perceaued, that he spake of them. And they wente about to take him, but they feared y^e people, because they helde hī for a prophet.

The XXII. Chapter.

And Jesus answered, and spake vnto thē agayne by parables, & sayde: The kingdome of heauen is like vnto a kyn- ge, which married his sonne. And sent forth his seruantes, to call the gētes vnto the marriage, & they wolde not come. Agayne, he sent forth other seruantes, and sayde: Tell the gētes: Beholde, I haue prepared my dynner, myne oxen and my fed catell are kylled, and all thinges are readye, come to the marriage. But they made light of it, and wente their wayes: one to his hus- bandrye, another to his marchaundise. As for the remnant, they took his servants, and intreated them shamefully, and slew them. When the King heard that, he was wroth, and sent forth his warriors, and destroyed those murderers, and set fire upon their city. Then sayde he unto his servants: The marriage indeed is prepared, but the guests were not worthy. So your waye out thereof into the hye wayes, and as many as ye fynde, byd them to the marriage. And the servants went out into the hye wayes, and gathered together as many as they coulde fynde, both good and bad, and the tables were all full. Then the King went in, to see the guests, and spied there a man that had not on a wedding garment, and sayde unto him: Friende, how camest thou in hither, and hast not on a wedding garment? And he was even speechlesse. Then sayde the King unto his servants: Take and bynde him hande and fote, and cast him into the utter darke: there shall be weyling and gnashing of teeth. For many be called, but few are chosen.

Then went the Pharisees, and took council, how they might tangle him in his wordes, and sent unto him their disciples with Herodes officers, and sayde: Master, we knowe that thou art true, and teachest the waye of God truly, and carest for no man; for thou regardest not the outward appearance of men. Tell us therefore, how thinkest thou? Is it lawfull to geve tribute unto the Emperoure, or not? Now when Jesus perceived their wickednes, he sayde: O ye hypocrites, why tempt ye me? Shew me the tribute money. And they took him a penny. And he sayde unto them: Whose is this ymage and superscription? They sayde unto him: The Emperours. Then sayde he unto them: Geve therefore unto the Emperour, that which is the Emperours; and geve unto God, that which is Gods. When they heard that, they marvelled, and left him, and went their waye.

The same daye there came unto him the Sadducees (which holde that there is no resurrection) and axed him, and sayde: Master, Moses sayde: If a man dye, havinge no children, his brother shall marry his wife, and raise up seed unto his brother. Now were there with us seven brethren. The first married a wife, and dyed: and for somoch as he had no seed, he left his wife unto his brother. Like wyse the seconde, and thirde unto the seventh. Last of all the woman dyed also. Now in the resurrection, whose wife shall she be of the seven? For they all had her. Jesus answered, and sayde unto them: Ye erre, and understo de not the scriptures, nor the power of God. In the resurrection they shall neither marry, nor be married, but are as the angels of God in heaven.

As touching the resurrection of the dead, have ye not read, what is spoken unto you of God, which sayeth: I am the God of Abraham, and I God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob? Yet is not God a God of the dead, but of the living. And when the people heard that, they were astonnyed at his doctrine.

When the Pharisees heard, that he had stopped the mouth of the Sadducees, they gathered them selves together. And one of them (a Scribe) tempted him, and sayde: Master, which is the chiefest commandment in the lawe? Jesus saide unto him: Thou shalt love the LORD thy God with all thy heart, with all thy soule, and with all thy mynde: this is the principall and greatest commandment. As for the seconde, it is like unto it: Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thy self. In these two commandmentes hang all the lawe and the prophetes.

Now when the Pharisees were gathered together, Jesus axed them, and sayde: What thinke ye of Christ? Whose sonne is he? They sayde unto him: Davids. He sayde unto them: How then doth David in spete, call him LORD, sayenge: The LORD sayde unto my LORD: Sit thou on my right hande, tyll I make thine enemies thy fote stole. If David now call him LORD, how is he then his sonne? And no man coulde answer him one worde, neither durst any man axe him any more questions, from that daye forth.

The XXIII. Chapter.

Then spake Jesus unto the people and unto his disciples, and sayde: The Scribes and Pharisees are set downe upon Moses seate. Therefore what soever they bid you observe, that observe and do, but after their workes shall ye not do, for they saye and do not. For they bynde heavy and intolerable burthens, and laye them upon mens shoulders: But they themselves wil not heave at them with one of their fingers. All their workes do they to be seen of men. They set abroad their phylacteries, and make large borders upon their garments, and love to sit uppermost at the table, and to have the chiefe seates in the synagoges, and love to be saluted in the market, and to be called of men Rabbi.

But ye shall not suffice your selves to be pasſe: and which ſhal be the token of thy comynge, and of the ende of the worlde. Jeſus answered and ſayde vnto them: Take hede, that no man diſceave you. For there ſhal many come in my name, and ſaye: I am Chriſt, and ſhal diſceave many.

Ye ſhal heare of warres, and of þe noyſe of warres: take hede, and be not ye troubled. All theſe thinges muſt firſt come to paſſe, but the ende is not yet. For one people ſhall ryſe vp agaynſt another, and one realme agaynſt another: and there ſhal be peſtilence, hunger, and earthquakes here & there. All theſe are the begynnynge of ſorowes.

Then ſhal they put you to trouble, & ſhal kylle you, and ye ſhal be hated of all people for my names ſake. There ſhal many be offended, and ſhal betraye one another, and ſhal hate one the other. And many falſe prophetes ſhal ariſe, and ſhal diſceave many: and becauſe iniquyte ſhal have the upper hande, the love of many ſhal abate. But whoſo endureth vnto the ende, þe ſame ſhal be ſaved. And this goſpell of the kyngdome ſhal be preached in all the worlde for a wytnes vnto all people, and then ſhal the ende come.

When ye therfore ſhal ſee the abhominacion of deſolacion (wherof it is ſpoken by Daniel the prophet) ſtonde in the holy place (who ſo readeth it, let him marke it well) the which be in Jeruſalem, flye vnto the mountaynes: and let him which is on the houſe toppe, not come downe to ſet eny thinge out of his houſe: and let him which is in the felde, not turne back to ſetch his clothes. But wo vnto them that are with childe, and to them that geue ſuck in thoſe dayes. But praye ye, that youre flight be not in wynter, ner on the Sabbath. For then ſhal there be greate trouble, ſuch as was not from the begynnynge of the worlde vnto this tyme, ner ſhal be. Yee and excepte thoſe daies ſhulde be ſhortened, there ſhulde no fleſh be ſaved: but for þe choſens ſake thoſe dayes ſhal be ſhortened.

Then yf eny man ſhal ſaye vnto you: lo, here is Chriſt, or there, beleue it not. For there ſhal ariſe falſe Chriſtes and falſe prophetes, and ſhal do greate tokens and wonders: In ſomoch, that (yf it were poſſible) the very choſen ſhulde be brought in to erreure. Beholde, I haue tolde you before. Wherefore yf they ſhal ſaye vnto you: Beholde, he is in the wildernes, go not ye forth: Beholde, he is in the chamber, beleue it not. For like as the lightenyng goeth out from the Eaſt, and ſhyneth vnto the weſt, ſo ſhal the com-

myng of the ſonne of man be. For whereſo ever a deed carcaſe is, there wyl the Eagles be gathered together.

Immediately after the trouble of the ſame tyme, ſhal the Sonne and Moone loſe their light, and the ſtarres ſhall fall from heauen, and the powers of heauen ſhal moue: and then ſhal appeare the token of the ſonne of man in heauen: and then ſhal all the kynred of the earth mourne, and they ſhal ſee the ſonne of man come in the cloudes of heauen with greate power and glory. And he ſhal ſende his angels with þe greate voyce of a trompe, & they ſhal gather together his choſen from the ſoure wyndes, from one ende of the heauen to the other.

Let me a ſimilitude of þe fygge tre. When his bough is yet tender, and his leaues ſpionge, ye knowe that Sommer is nye. So likewyſe ye, when ye ſee all theſe thinges, be ye ſure, that it is nye even at the doores. Verely I ſaye vnto you: This generacion ſhal not paſſe, tyll all theſe be fulfilled. Heauen and earth ſhal periſhe, but my wordes ſhal not periſhe. Wherefores of that daye & houre knoweth no man, no not the angels of heauen, but my father onely. (Even as it was in the tyme of Noe ſo ſhal the comynge of the ſonne of man be alſo. For as they were in the dayes before þe floude they ate, they dronke, they married, and were married, even vnto the daye þe Noe entred in to the ſhippe, and they regarded it not, tyll the floude came and toke them all awaye.) So ſhal alſo the comynge of the ſonne of man be. There ſhal two be in the felde: the one ſhal be receaved, and the other ſhal be reſuſed: Two ſhal be gryndinge at the Myll, the one ſhal be receaved, and the other ſhal be reſuſed: Two in the bed, the one ſhal be receaved, and the other reſuſed.)

Watch therfore, for ye knowe not what houre your LORD wil come. But be ſure of this, that yf the good man of the houſe knewe what houre the theſe wolde come, he wolde ſurely watch, and not ſuffre his houſe to be broken vp. Therefore be ye ready alſo, for in the houre that ye thynke not, ſhal the ſonne of man come. Who is now a faithfull and wyſe ſervant, whom his lord hath made ruler over his houſholde, that he maye geue them meate in due ſeaſon: Blessed is þe ſervant, whom his lord (when he cometh) ſhal fynde ſo doynge. Verely, I ſaye vnto you: he ſhal ſet him over all his goodes. But and yf the euell ſervant ſhal ſaye in his hert: Cuſh, it wil be longe or my lord come, and

The XXV. Chapter.

2 Then shal the Kyngdome of heauen be like vnto ten virgins, which toke their lāpes, and wente forth to mete the brydegome. But fyue of them were foolish, and fyue were wyse. The foolish toke their lāpes, neuertheless they toke none oyle with them. But the wyse toke oyle in their vessels with their lampes. Now whyle the brydegome taried, they slombied all and slepte. But at mydnight there was a crye made: Beholde, the brydegome cometh, go youre waye out for to mete him. Then all those virgins arose, and prepared their lampes, But the foolish sayde vnto the wyse: geue vs of youre oyle, for oure lāpes are gone out. Then answered the wyse, and sayde: Not so, lest there be not ynough for vs and you, but go rather vnto them that sell, and bye for youre selues. And whyle they wente to bye, the brydegome came: and they that were readye, wente in with him vnto the marriage, and the gate was shut vp. At y last came y other virgins also, and sayde: LORDE LORDE, opō vnto vs. But he answered, and sayde: Verely I saye vnto you: I knowe you not. Watch ye therfore, for ye knowe nether the daye ner yet the houre, whan y sonne of man shal come.

Like wyse as a certayne mā ready to take his iourney in to a straunge countre, called his seruantes, and delyuered his goodes vnto thē. And vnto one he gaue fyue talentes, to another two, and to another one: vnto euery man afeer his abyltye, and straight waye departed. Then he that had receaued the fyue talentes, wente and occupied with the same, and wanne other fyue talentes. Likewyse he y receaued two talentes, wāne other two also. But he that receaued y one wente and dygged a pyt in the earth, and hyd his lordes money. After a longe season the lord of those seruantes came, and rekened with them. Then came he that had receaued fyue talentes, and brought other fyue talentes, and sayde: Syr, thou delyuerdest vnto me fyue talentes: Beholde, with them haue I wonne fyue talētes mo. Then sayde his lord vnto hi: wel thou good z faithfull seruaunt, thou hast bene faithfull ouer litle, I wil set the ouer moch: entre thou in to the ioye of thy lord. Thē came he also that had receaued two talentes, and sayde: Syr, thou delyuerdest vnto me two talentes: Beholde, I haue wonne two other talētes with thē. His lord sayde vnto him: Wel thou good and faithfull seruaunt, thou hast bene faithfull ouer litle, I wil set the ouer moch: entre thou in to the ioye of thy lord.

Then he that had receaued the one talē, came and sayde: Syr, I knewe that thou art an hard man: thou reapest where thou hast not sowed, and gatherest where thou hast not strowed, and so I was afrayed, and wēte and hyd thy talent in the earth: lo, there thou hast thine owne. But his lord answered, and sayde vnto him: Thou euell and slouthfull seruaunt, knewest thou that I reape where I sowed not, and gather where I strawed not? Thou shuldest therfore haue had my money to the chaungers, and then at my commynge shulde I haue receaued myne owne with vantage. Therfore take the talent fro him, and geue it vnto him that hath ten talentes. For who so hath, to him shalbe geuen, and he shal haue abundance. But who so hath not, fro him shalbe take awaye even that he hath. And cast the vnprofitable seruaunt in to vter darknes: there shalbe waylinge and gnashinge of teth.

But whan the sonne of man shal come in his glory, and all holy angels with him, then shal he syt vpon the seate of his glory. And all people shalbe gathered before him: and he shal separate them one from another as a sheptherde deuydeth the shepe from y goates. And he shal set y shepe on his right honde, and the goates on the lefte. Then shal the Kyng saye vnto them that shalbe on his right honde: Come hither ye blessed of my father, inheret ye y Kyngdome, which is prepared for you from the begynnynge of the worlde. For I was hongrie, and ye gaue me meate: I was thirstie, and ye gaue me drynke: I was harbourlesse, and ye lodged me: I was naked, z ye clothed me: I was sicke, and ye vsited me: I was in prison, and ye came vnto me.

Then shal the righteous answer him, z saye: LORDE, whē sawe we the hōgrie, and fed the? Or thirstie, and gaue the drynke? When sawe we the harbourlesse, and lodged the? Or naked, and clothed y? Or whē sawe we y sicke or in prison, and came vnto the? And the Kyng shal answer and saye vnto

The XXVII. Chapter.

2 Upon the morow, all the hye prestes and elders of the people helde a counsell agaynst Iesus, that they might put him to death, and bounde him, and led him forth, and deliuered him vnto Pontius Pilate the debyte.

When Judas which betrayed him, sawe this that he was condemned vnto death, he repented him, and brought agayne the thirtie syluer pens to the hye prestes and the elders, and sayde: I haue done euell, in that I haue betrayed innocēt bloude. They sayde: What haue we to do with þ? Se thou therto. And he cast the syluer pens in the temple, and gat him awaye, and wente and hanged him self.

So the hye prestes toke the syluer pens, and sayde: It is not lafull to put them in to the Gods chest, for it is bloud money. Nevertheless they helde a counsell, and bought with thē a potters felde, for to burye straungers in. Wherfore the same felde is called the bloudfelde vnto this daye. Then was that fulfilled, which was spoken by Jeremy the prophet sayenge: And they toke thirtie syluer pens, the pryce of him that was solde, whom they bought of the children of Israell: and these they gaue for a potters felde, as the LORDE commaunded me.

3 As for Iesus, he stode before the debyte, and the debyte axed him, and sayde: Art thou the kynge of the Jewes? And Iesus sayde vnto him: Thou sayest it. And whā he was accused of the hye prestes and elders, he answered nothinge. Then sayde pylate vnto him: Hearest thou not, how sore they accuse the? And he answered him not one worde: in so much that the debyte marvelled exceedingly.

At that feast, the debyte was wote to deliuer a prisoner fre vnto the people, whom they wolde. And at the same tyme he had a notable prisoner called Barrabas. And whan they were gathered together, pylate sayde vnto them: Whether wil ye, that I geue lowse vnto you? Barrabas, or Iesus which is called Christ? For he knewe well that they had deliuered him of enuye. And whā he sat vpon the iudgmet seate, his wife sent vnto him, sayenge: Haue thou nothinge to do with that righteous man, for I haue suffered many thinges this daye in a dreame because of him.

But the hye prestes and the elders perswaded the people, that they shulde axe Barrabas, and destroye Iesus. Then answered the debyte, and sayde vnto thē: Whether of these two wil ye? I geue lowse vnto you? They sayde: Barrabas. Pylate sayde vnto them: What shal I do then with Iesus, which is called Christ? They sayde all: let him be crucified. The debyte saide: What euell hath he done thē? Nevertheless they cried yet more and sayde, let him be crucified. So whan pylate sawe, that he coude not helpe, but that there was a greater vproure, he toke water, and washed his handes before the people, and sayde: I am vngiltie of þ bloude of this righteous man. Se ye therto. Then answered all the people, and sayde: His bloude come vpon vs, and vpon oure children. Then gaue he Barrabas lowse vnto thē, but caused Iesus be scourged, and deliuered him to be crucified.

Then the debites souldiers toke Iesus, in to the comon hall, and gathered the whole multitude ouer him, and stryped him out of his clothes, and put a purple robe vpon him, and plated a crowne of thorne, and set it vpon his heade, and a rede in his hāde, and kneeled before him, and mocked him, and sayde: hay le kynge of the Jewes. And spytted vpon him, and toke y rede, and smote him vpon the heade. And whā they had mocked hī, they toke the robe of him ageyne, and put his owne clothes vpon him, and led him forth, y they might crucifie hī. And as they were goinge out, they founde a man of Cyren called Symon: him they compelled to beare his crosse. And when they came vnto the place called Golgatha (that is to saye by interpretaciō a place of deede mens sculles) they gaue him to drynke, veneger myrte & gall. And whan he had tasted therof, he wolde not drynke.

So whan they had crucified him, they parted his garmētes, and cast lottes therfore: that the thinge might be fulfilled, which was spoken by the prophet: They haue parted my garmētes amonge thē, and cast lottes vpon my vesture. And there they sat, and watched hī. And aboue ouer his heade, they put vp the cause of his death in wrytinge: namely: This is the kynge of the Jewes.

This is the begynnynge of the gospell of Jesus Christ the sonne of God, as it is wyrtte in the propheetes. Beholde, I sende my messaunger before thy face, which shal prepare thy waye before the. The voyce of a cryer is in the wyldernes: prepare the waye of the LORDE, make his pathes straight.

Jhon was in the wyldernes, and baptyfed, and preached the baptyeme of amendement, for the remyssion of synnes. And there wente out vnto him the whole londe of Jewry, and they of Jerusalem, and were all baptyfed of him in Jordan, and knowleged their synnes.

Jhon was clothed with Camels heer, and with a lethron gerdeil aboute his loynes, and ate locustes and wylde hony, and preached, and sayde: There cometh one after me, which is stronger then I: before whom I am not worthy to stoupe downe, and to lowse vp y lachet of his shyne. I baptyse you with water, but he shal baptyse you with the holy goost.

And it happened at the same tyme, that Jesus came out of Galile from Nazareth, and was baptyfed of Jhon in Jordan. And as soone as he was come out of the water, he sawe that the heauens opened, and the goost as a doue comynge downe vpon him. And there came a voyce from heauē: Thou art my deare sonne, in whom I delyte.

And immediatly the spiete droue him in to the wyldernes: and he was in the wyldernes fourtye dayes, and was tempted of Sa than, and was with the wylde beestes. And the angels mynistred vnto him.

But after that Jhon was taken, Jesus came in to Galile, and preached the gospell of the kyngdome of God, and sayde: the tyme is fulfylled, and the kyngdome of God is at hande: Amende youre selues, and beleue the gospell.

So as he walked by the see of Galile, he sawe Symon and Andrew his brother, casting their nettes in the see, for they were fyshers. And Jesus sayde vnto the: Solowe me, and I wil make you fyshers of mē. And immediatly they left their nettes, and followed him.

And when he was gone a lytle further from thence, he sawe James the sonne of Zebede, and Jhon his brother, as they were in the shyppe mendynge their nettes. And anone he called them. And they left their father Zebede in the shyppe with the hyred seruauntes, and followed him.

And they wente in to Capernaum, and immediatly vpon the Sabbathes, he entered in to the synagoge, and taught. And they were astonnyed at his doctryne: for he taught them as one hauynge power, and not as the Scribes.

And in their synagoge there was a man possessed with a foule spiete, which cried and layde: Oh what haue we to do with the, thou Jesus of Nazareth. Art thou come to destroye us? I knowe that thou art even y holy one of God. And Jesus reprocued him, and sayde: holde thy tonge, and departe out of him. And the foule spiete tare him, and cried with a loude voyce, and departed out of him. And they were all astonnyed, in so moch that they axed one another amonge the selues, z sayde: What is this? What newe lernynge is this? For he comaundeth the foule spietes with power, and they are obedient vnto him. And immediatly the fame of him was noysed rounde aboute in the coastes and borders of Galile.

And forth with they wente out of the synagoge, and came in to the house of Symon and Andrew, w James and Jhon. And Symons mother in lawe laye, z had the feuers, and anone they tolde him of her. And he came to her, and set her vp, and toke her by y hande, and the feuer left her immediatly. And she mynistred vnto them.

At euen whan the Sonne was gone downe, they brought vnto him all that were sick and possessed, and the whole cite was gathered together at the dore, and

These be they that are by the waye syde: where the worde is sowne, and as soone as they haue herde it, immediatly cometh Satā, and taketh awaye the worde that was sowne in their hertes. And no man coude bynde hym, no nor with cheynes: for he was of bounde with fetters z cheynes, and plucked the cheynes in sunder, and brake the fetters in peces, and no man coude tame him. And he was allwaye both daye and night vpon the mountaynes and in the graues crienge, and beatinge him self with stones. But whan he sawe Jesus a farre of, he ranne, and fell downe before him, and cried loude, and sayde: What haue I to do with thee O Jesus thou sonne of Ihesus God? I charge thee by God, that thou torment me not. Nevertheless he sayde vnto him: Go out of the man thou foule spiete. And he axed him: What is thy name? And he answered and sayde: My name is Legion, for there be many of vs. And he prayed him instantly, that he wolde not sende them awaye out of that countre.

And even there in the mountaynes there was a greate heerd of swyne fedynge, and all the deuyls praied him, and sayde: Let vs departe in to the swyne. And anon Jesus gaue them leue. Then the foule spietes wente out, and intred in to the swyne. And the heerd of swyne, ranne heedlinges in to y^e see with a storme. They were aboute a two thousande swyne, and were drowned in the see.

And the swyneherdes fled, and tolde it in the cite, and in the countre. And they wente out for to see what had happened, and came to Jesus, and sawe hym which was possessed and had had y^e legion, that he sat, and was clothed, and in his right mynde, and they were afraied. And they that had sene it, tolde them what had happened to the possessed, and of the swyne.

And they beganne to praye him, that he wolde departe out of their coastes. And whan he came in to the shyppe, the possessed prayed him, that he might be with him.

And he wente with him, and moch people followed him, and thronged him.

And there was a woman, which had had the bloudeysse twelue yeares, and had suffered moch of many phisicians, and spent all that she had, and was not helped, but rather in worse case. Whan she herde of Jesus, she came behynde amonge the people, and touched his garment. For she sayde: If I maye but touch his clothes, I shal be whole.

¶ And there came vnto him the pharisees, and certayne of the scribes, that were come from Ierusalem. And whan they sawe certayne of his disciples eate bried with comon (that is, with unwashen) handes, they complayned. For the pharisees & all the Jewes eate not, excepte they wash their handes oft tymes: obseruynge so the tradicions of the elders. And whan they come from the market, they eate not, excepte they washe. And many other thynges there be, which they haue taken vpon them to obserue, as the washinge of cuppes and cruses, and brasen vessels and tables. Mat. 15. a

Then the pharisees and scribes axed him: Why walke not thy disciples after the tradicions of the elders, but eate bried with unwashen handes? But he answered & sayde vnto them: Full well hath Esay prophesied of you hypocrites, as it is wyrtte: This people honoureth me w their lippes, but their hert is farre from me. But in vayne do they serue me, whyle they teach soch doctrynes as are nothinge but the commaundementes of men. Ye leaue the commaundement of God and kepe the tradicions of men, as the washinge of cruses and cuppes, & many soch thinges do ye. Esa. 29. c

And he saide vnto the: How goodly haue ye cast asyde the commaundement of God, to maneyne youre owne tradicions? For Moses sayde: Honoure father & mother. * Who so curseth father and mother, shal dye the death. But ye saye: A mā shal saye to father or mother: Corban, that is, The thinge y shulde helpe the withall, is geue vnto God. For from within out of the hert of man proceede euell thoughtes, aduoutrye, whordome, murther, theft, conceteousnes, wickednes, disceate, vncleannes, a wicked eye, blasphemy, pryde, foolishnes. For who so euer wyl save his life, shal lose it: and who so euer loseth his life for my sake and y gospels, yf same shal save it. What helpeth it a mā though he wāne the whole worlde, and yet toke harme in his soule? Or, what can a man geue, to redeme his soule withall? Who so euer is ashamed of me, and of my wordes amonge this aduouterous and synfull generacion, of him shal the sonne of man also be ashamed, whan he cometh in the glory of his father with the holy angels. And he sayde vnto them: Verely I saye vnto you: There stōde here some, which shal not taist of death, tyll they se the kyngdome of God come with power.

The IX. Chapter.

After sixe dayes Jesus toke vnto him Peter, James and Ihon, and brought them vp in to an hye mountayne out of the waye alone, and was trāssises, and they talked with Jesus. And Peter answered, and sayde vnto Jesus: Rabbi, here is good beyng for vs. Let vs make thre tabernacles: one for the, one for Moses, and one for Elias. For he knewe not what he sayde, and they were very fearfull. And there was a cloude, which ouershadowed the. And out of the cloude there came a voyce, and sayde: This is my deare sonne, ⁊ heare him. And immediatly they looked aboute them, and sawe noman more then Jesus onely with them.

But whan they wente downe from the mountayne, Jesus charged them, that they shulde tell no man what they had sene, tyll the sonne of man were rysen agayne from the deed.

And they kepte that sayenge by them, and axed one another: What is that rysinge agayne from the deed? And they axed him, and sayde: Why saye the scribes then, that Elias must first come? He answered and sayde vnto them: Elias shal come first in dede, and brynge all thinges to right agayne. The sonne of man also shal suffre many thinges, and be despyed, ⁊ as it is wrytten. But I saye vnto you: Elias is come, and they haue done vnto him what they wolde, acordinge as it is wrytten of him.

And he came to his disciples, and sawe moch people aboute them, and the scribes disputynge with them. And as soone as the people sawe, they were astonnyed, and ranne vnto him, and saluted him. And he axed the scribes: What dispute ye with them? And one of the people answered, and sayde: Master, I haue brought vnto the my sonne, which hath a domme sprete: and whan so euer he taketh him, he teareth him, and he someth, and gnasheth with the teth, and pyneth awaye, ⁊ I haue spoken to thy disciples that they shulde cast him out, and they coude not.

He answered him, and sayde: O thou vnfaithfull generacion, how longe shal I be with you? How longe shal I suffre you? Brynge hi hither to me. And they broughte him vnto him. And as soone as the sprete sawe him, he tare him, and fell vpon the earth, and weltered and fomed. And he axed his father: How longe is it, sens this happened vnto him? He sayde: O fa childe, and of tymes hath he cast him in to the fyre and water, to destroye him: but yf thou canst do enythinge, haue mercy vpon vs, and helpe vs. Jesus sayde vnto him: If thou couldest beleue: All thinges are possible vnto him that beleueth. And immediatly the father of the childe cried with teares, and sayde: LORDE I beleue: O helpe thou myne vnbelene.

Now whan Jesus sawe that the people ranne to, he rebuked the foule spirete, and sayde vnto him: Thou domine and deaf spirete, I charge the, departe out of him, and entre nomore into him from hence forth. And he cried, and rent him sore, and departed.

And he was as though he had bene deed, in so moch that many sayde: he is deed. But Jesus toke him by the hande, and set him vp. And he arose. And whan he came home, his disciples axed him secretly: Why coulde not we cast him out? And he sayde: This kynde can go out by no meanes, but by prayer and fastynge.

And they departed thence, and toke their iourney thorow Galile, and he wolde not that eny man shulde knowe of it. But he taught his disciples, and sayde vnto them: The sonne of man shalbe deliuered in to the handes of men, and they shal put him to death: and whan he is put to death, he shal ryse ageyne the thurde daye. But they vnderstode not that worde, and were afrayed to aske him.

And he came to Capernaum. And whan he was at home, he axed them: What disputed ye amonge youre selues by y waye? But they helde their tūges: For they had disputed by the waye amonge them selues, who shulde be y greatest. And he sat downe, and called the twolue, and sayde vnto them: If eny man wyl be the first, the same shal be the last of all, and the seruaunt of all. And he toke a childe, and set him in the myddest of them, and toke him in his armes, and sayde vnto them: Who so ever receaueth soch a childe in my name, receaueth me: and who so ever receaueth me, receaueth not me, but him that hath sent me.

Thon answered him, and sayde: Master, we sawe one dryue out deuils in thy name, but he foloweth not vs, and we forbad him because he foloweth vs not. But Jesus sayde: Forbyd him not: for there is no man that doth a myracle in my name, and can soone speake euell of me. For who so ever is not agaynst vs, the same is for vs. And who so ever geneth you a cuppe of water to drynke in my name, because ye belonge vnto Christ, verely I saye vnto you: he shal not lose his rewarde. And who so offendeth one of these litle ones that belene in me, it were better for him, that a mylstone were hāged aboute his neck, and he cast in to the see. If thy hāde offende the, cut him of. Better it is for the to entre in to life lame, the hauynge two hondes to go in to hell in to the everlastinge fyre, where their worme dyeth not, and their fyre goeth not out.

If thy foete offende the, cut him of. Better it is for the to entre in to life crepell, the hauynge two fete to be cast in to hell in the fyre everlastynge, where their worme dyeth not, and their fyre goeth not out. If thine eye offende the, cast him from the. Better it is for the to entre in to y kyngdome of God with one eye, then hauynge two eyes to be cast in to the fyre of hell: where their worme dyeth not, and their fyre goeth not out. For euery man must be salted w fyre, & enery offerynge shalbe seasoned w salt. The salt is good: but yf y salt be vnsauery, wherwith all shal it be salted: Hane salt in you, & peace amonge yd selues one with another.

The X. Chapter.

And he rose vp, and came from thence in to the places of Jewry beyonde Jordan. And the people wete agayne vnto him by heapes, and as his maner was he taught them agayne. And the Pharises came vnto him, and axed him, yf it were lawfull for a man to put awaye his wife, and tempted him with all. But he answered and sayde: What hath Moses comaunded you? They sayde: Moses suffred to wyte a testimoniall of deuorcement, and to put her awaye. Jesus answered, and sayde vnto them: Because of y hardnesse of yd hert dyd Moses wyte you this commaundement. But from the first creacion God made the man and woman. For this cause shal a man leaue his father & mother, and cleue vnto his wife, and they two shalbe one flesh. Now are they not twayne the, but one flesh. Let not man therfore put asunder that, which God hath coupled together.

And at home his disciples axed him agayne of y same. And he sayde vnto the: Who so ever putteth awaye his wife, & marieth another, breaketh wedlocke to her warde. And yf a womā forsake hir husbāde, & be married to another, she committeth aduoutrie.

thou shalt not kyll: thou shalt not steale:
thou shalt beare no false wytnesse: thou

them that trust in riches, to come into the kyngdome of God? It is easier for a Camell to go thorow the eye of a nedle, then for a rich man to entre in to y^e kyngdome of God.
Yet were they astonnyed y^e more, and sayde
amonge the selues: Who can the be saued?

Then sayde Peter vnto him: Beholde, we

There is no man that forsaketh house, or fe, or children, or londes for my sake and the gospels, that shal not receaue an hundredth

folde now in this tyme, houses, and brethren,
and sisters, and mothers and children, and

londes with persecucions, and in the worl-de to come euerlastinge life. But many that are the first, shal be the last: and the last the first.

They were in the waye goinge vp to Jerusalem, and Jesus wente before them. And they were astonnyed, and folowed him, and were a frayed. And Jesus toke the twolue agayne, and tolde them what shulde happē
vnto him. Beholde, we go vp to Jerusalem, and the sonne of man shalbe delyuered vn-
to the hye prestes and scribes, and they shal
condemne him to death, and delyuer him vnto the heythē. And they shal mocke hi, and scourge him, and spyt vpon him, and put him to death, and on the thirde daye shal he ryse agayne.

Then wēt vnto him James and Ihon
y^e sonnes of Zebede, and sayde: Master, We desyre, that what soeuer we are of the, thou wilt do it for vs. He sayde vnto the: What desyre ye that I shal do to you? They sayde vnto him: Graunte vs, that we maye syt
one at thy right hande, and one at thy left hande in thy glory. But Jesus sayde vnto
the: Ye wote not what ye are. Maye ye drynke the cuppe, y^e I shal drynke? and be baptysed with the baptyeme that I shal be baptysed withall? They sayde vnto him: Yee y^e we maye. Jesus sayde vnto them: The cup-pe that I drynke, shal ye drynke in dede: and be baptyed with the baptyeme that I shal be baptyed withall. Neuertheles to syt at my right hande and at my left, is not myne

prepared.

And whā the ten herbe that, they dys-sayned at James and Ihon. But Jesus called them, and sayde vnto them: Ye knowe that
the prynces of y^e worlde haue domynacion
of the people, and y^e mightie exercise auctorite amonge them. So shal it not be amonge
you: but who so euer wil be gregte amō-ge you, shal be youre mynister: and who so
wyl be cheffest amonge you, shalbe seruaunt of all. For the sonne of man also came not to be serued, but to do seruyce, and to geue his life to a redemption for many.

And they came vnto Jericho. And when he wente out of Jericho, and his disciples,
and moch people, there sat one blynde Bar-
thimeus the sonne of Thimeus by y^e waye, and begged. And whā he herde that it was Jesus of Nazareth, he beganne to crie and saye: Jesu thou sonne of Dauid haue mercy

more: Thou sonne of Dauid haue mercypō me. And Jesus stode styll, and bad call him. And they called the blynde, and sayde vnto him: Be of good conforce, aryse, he calleth the. And he cast awaye his garment from him, stode vp, and came to Jesus. And Jesus answered, & sayde vnto him: What wilt thou that I do vnto the? The blynde sayde vnto him: Master, that I might se. Jesus sayde vnto him: Go y waye, thy faith hath helped y. And immediatly he had his sight and folowed him in the waye.

The XI. Chapter.

21 QUEN whan they came nye Jerusalem to Bethphage and Bethanye vnto mount Oliuete, he sent two of his disciples, and sayde vnto them: Go in to the towne that lyeth before you, and as soone as ye come in, ye shal fynde a foale bounde, wher vpon no man hath syttē: lowse it, and brynge it hither. And yf eny man saye vnto you: wherfore do yethat? Then saye ye: The LORDE hath nede therof, and forth with he shal sende it hither. They wēt their waye and founde the foale tyed by y dore without at the partyng of the waye, and lowsed it. And certayne of those y stode there, axed them: What do ye, that ye lowse the foale? But they sayde vnto the, like as Jesus had commaunded them. And so they let them alone. And they brought the foale vnto Jesus, and layed their clothes thereon, and he sat thereon. But many spied their garmentes in the waye: some cut downe braunches fro the trees, and strowed the in the waye. And they that wente before, and that folowed after, cried, and sayde: Hosyanna, blessed be he, that commeth in the name of the LORDE: blessed be the kyngdome of oure father Dauid, which commeth in the name of the LORDE. Hosyanna in the heighe.

And the LORDE entred in to Jerusalem, and wente in to the temple, and looked vpon all. And at even he wente out vnto Bethany with the twolue: and on the morow whā they departed from Bethanye, he hūgred, and sarre a fygge tre asarre of, which had leaues. Then came he nye, (to se) yf he coude fynde eny thinge thereon. And whan he came to it, he founde nothinge but leaues (for the tyme of fygges was not yet) And Jesus answered, and sayde vnto it: Neuer mā eate frute of the for evermore. And his disciples herde it.

And he taught and sayde vnto them: Is it not wyrtten: My house shalbe called a house of prayer for all people? But ye haue made it a denie of murtherers.

And the scribes and hye prestes herde of it. And they sought how they might destroye him, but they were afrayed of him, for all the people marueled at his doctryne. And at even he wente out of the cite. And on the morow they passed by, and sawe the fygge tre, that it was wythred vnto the roote. And Peter thought thereon, and sayde vnto him: Master, beholde, the fygge tre y thou cursedest, is wythred awaye. Jesus answered, and sayde vnto them: Haue faith in God. Verely I saye vnto you: Who so euer saith vnto this mountayne: A voyde, and cast thy self into the see, and douterth not in his hert, but beleueth that the thinges shal come to passe which he saith, then loke what he sayeth, it shal come to passe. Therefore I saye vnto you: What so euer ye desyre in youre prayer, beleue that ye shal receaue it, and ye shal haue it. And whan ye stonde and praye, forgene yf ye haue ought ageynst eny man, that youre father also in heauen, maye forgene you youre trespasses.

And they came agayne vnto Jerusalem and whan he wente in the temple, there came vnto him the hye prestes and scribes and the elders, and sayde vnto him: By what auctoite dost thou these thinges? and who gaue the this auctoite to do soch?

But Jesus answered and sayde vnto the: I wil are you a worde also, answer me, and I wil tell you, by what auctoite I do these. The baptyme of Jhon, was it from heauen, or of men? Answer me.

And they thought in them selues: yf we saye, it was from heauen, then shal he saye: Why dyd ye not then beleue him? But yf we saye: It was of men, then feare we the people, for they all helde that Jhon was a true prophet. And they answered, and saide vnto him: We can not tell. And Jesus answered, and sayde vnto them: Neither tell I you, by what auctoite I do these thinges.

Whan they shal ryse agayne from the deed, they shal nether mary ner be married, but they are as the angels in heauen. LORD so moch as many haue taken in hande, to set forth y wordes of the actes that are come to passe amonge vs, like as they deliuered the vnto vs, which from the begynnyng saue them their selues, and were mynisters of the worde, I thought it good (after that I had diligently searched out all from the begynnyng) to wryte the same orderly vnto the (good Theophilus) that thou mightest knowe the certēte of y wordes, wherof thou art in fourmed.

The first Chapter.

In the tyme of Hero. the kyng of Ieruy, there was a prest named Zachary of the course of Abia: and his wife of the daughters of Aaron, & hir name Elizabeth. They were both righteous before God, and walked in all the commaundementes and statutes of the LORDE vnreproueably. And they had no childe, for Elizabeth was baren, and they were both well stricken in age.

And it came to passe as he executed the prestes office before God whan his course came (acordinge to the custome of the presthode) it fel to his lotte to burne incense. And he wente in to the temple of the LORDE, and the whole multitude of the people was without in prayer, whyle the incense was a burnynge. And the angell of the LOR

DE appeared vnto him, and stode on the right syde of the altare of incense. And when Zachary sawe him, he was abashed, and there came a feare vpon him.

But the angell sayde vnto him: Feare not Zachary, for thy prayer is herde. And thy wife Elizabeth shal beare the a sonne, whose name thou shalt call Jhon, and thou shalt haue ioye and gladnesse: and many shal reioyce at his byrth, for he shal be greete before the LORDE. Wyne and stronge drynke shal he not drynke. And he shalbe fylled wth the holy goost, even in his mothers wombe. And many of the children of Israel shal be turne vnto the LORDE their God. And he shal go before him in the sperte and power of Elias, to turne the hertes of thy fathers vnto the children, and the vnfaithfull vnto the wysdome of the righteous, to make the people ready for the LORDE.

And Zachary sayde vnto the Angel: Wherby shal I knowe this? For I am olde, and my wife well stricken in age. The angell answered, and sayde vnto him: I am Gabriel that stonde before God, and am sent to speake vnto the, and to shewe the these glad tydings. And beholde, thou shalt be domine, and not able to speake, vntyll the daye that this come to passe, because thou hast not beleued my wordes, which shalbe fulfilled in their season.

And the people wayted for Zachary, and marueyled, that he taried so longe in the temple. And whā he wote out, he coude not speake vnto them. And they perceaued, that he had sene a vision in the temple. And he beckened vnto them, and remayned speechlesse.

And it fortuneth whā the tyme of his office was out, he wente home in to his house. And after those dayes Elizabeth his wife conceaued, and byd hir self fyue monethes, and sayde: Thus hath the LORDE done vnto me in thy dayes, wherein he hath looked vpon me, to take awaye from me my rebuke amonge men.

And in the sixte moneth was the angell Gabriel sent from God in to a cite of Galilee, called Nazareth, vnto a virgin that was spoused vnto a man, whose name was Joseph, of the house of David, and the virgins name was Mary. And the angell came in vnto her, and sayde: Hail thou full of grace, the LORDE is with the: blessed art thou amonge women.

Whā she sawe him, she was abashed at his sayenge, and thought: What maner of salutation is this? And the angell sayde vnto her: Feare not Mary, for thou hast founde grace with God. Beholde, thou shalt conceaue in thy wombe, and beare a sonne: and shalt call his name Jesus: he shalbe greete, and shalbe called thy sonne of the highest. And the LORDE God shal geue him the seate of David his father, and he shal be kinge ouer thy house of Jacob for euer: and there shalbe no ende of his kyngdome. Then sayde Mary vnto the angell: How shal this be, seinge I knowe not a man? The angell answered, and sayde vnto her: The holy goost shal come vpon the, and the power of the highest shal ouersadowe the. Therefore that holy also which shalbe borne (of the) shalbe called the sonne of God. And beholde, thy cosen Elizabeth she also hath conceaued a sonne in hir olde age, and this is the sixte moneth of her, which is reported to be baren: for wth God is nothinge vnpossyble. And Mary sayde: Beholde, here am I the handmayde of the LORDE: be it vnto me, as thou hast sayde. And the angell departed fro her.

And Mary arose in those dayes, and wente in to the mountaynes with haist, in to a cite of Ieremy, and came in to the house of Zachary, and saluted Elizabeth. And it fortuneth as Elizabeth herde the salutation of Mary, the babe sprang in hir wombe. And Elizabeth was fylled with the holy goost, and cried loude, and sayde: Blessed art thou amonge women, and blessed is the frute of thy wombe. And how happeneth this to me, that thy mother of my LORDE cometh vnto me? Beholde, when I herde the voyce of thy salutation, the babe sprang in my wombe with ioye. And blessed art thou that hast beleued, for thy thynges shalbe perfourmed, which were tolde thy fro the LORDE. And Mary sayde:

My soule magnifieth the LORDE. And my sperte reioyseth in God my Sauoure. For he hath looked vpon the lowe degre of his hande mayde. Beholde, fro hence forth shal all generacions call me blessed.

For he that is mightie, hath done greates thynges vnto me, and holy is his name.

And his mercy endureth thorow out all generacions, vpon them that feare him.

He sheweth strength with his arme, and scateth them that are proude in the ymaginacion of their hert.

He putteth downe the mightie from the seate, and exalteth them of lowe degre.

He fylleth the hongrie with good thynges, and letteth the riche go emptye.

He remembreth mercy, and helpeth vp his seruau^t Israel.

And they sayde vnto her: There is none in yf kynne, yf is so called. And they made signes vnto his father, how he wolde haue him called. And heared for wytyng tables, wrote & sayde: His name is Jhon. And they marvelled all. And immediatly was his mouth and his toge opened, and he spake, & praised God. And there came a feare vpon all their neighbours. And all this acte was noysed abroad thorow out all the hill countre of Jewry: And all they yf herde therof, toke it to hert, and sayde: What maner of man wil this childe be? It fortunied at the same tyme, that there wete out a comaundement fro Augustus the Emperoure, that the whole wolde shulde be taxed. And this taxynge was the first that was executed, whan Syrenius was leftenaunt in Siria. And they wente all, enery one to his owne cite to be taxed. Then Joseph gat him vp also fro Galile, out of the cite of Nazareth, in to Jewry, to yf cite of Dauid, which is called Bethleem, (because he was of yf house and lynage of Dauid) that he might be taxed w Mary his spoused wife, which was w childe.

And beholde, yf angell of the LORDE stode by the, and yf bryghtnes of the LORDE shone rounde aboute them, and they were sore a frayd. And the angell sayde vnto them: Be not a frayd. Beholde, I brynge you tydiges of greate ioye, which shall happen vnto all people: for vnto you this daye is borne yf Samoure, cūe Christ yf LORDE, in the cite of Dauid. And take this for a token: Ye shal fynde the babe swadled, and layed in a maunger. And straight waye there was by the angell a multitude of heauenly hoestes, which praised God, and sayde: Glory be vnto God an hys, & peace vpon earth, and vnto men a good wyll.

And it fortunied whā the angels were gone from the in to heauē, the shepherdes sayde one to another: let vs go now euen vnto Bethleem, and se this thinge that is happened, which yf LORDE hath shewed vnto vs. And they came w haist, & founde both Mary and Joseph, & the babe layed in yf maunger. And whan they had sene it, they published abroad the sayenge, yf was tolde the of this childe. And all they that herde it, wondered at the wordes, which the shepherdes had tolde them. D And whā the dayes of their purificacion after the lawe of Moſes, were come, they brought him to Jeruſalē, that they might preſent him vnto the LORDE. (As it is wryt ten in the lawe of the LORDE: Every mā- childe that firſt openeth the Matrix, ſhalbe called holy vnto ꝑ LORDE) and that they might geue the offerynge, as it is wrytē in the lawe of the LORDE (namely) a payre of turtle doves, or two yonge pigeons.

And beholde, there was a man (at Jeruſalē) whose name was Symeon, and the ſame mā was iuſt, and feared God, and loꝝed for the conſolacion of Iſrael, and the holy gooſt was in him. And an anſwere was geuē him of the holy gooſt, that he ſhulde not ſe death, before he had ſene ꝑ LORDES Chriſt. And he came by inſpiracion into the tēple.

E And whan the elders brought the childe Jeſus into the temple, to do for him after ꝑ cuſtome of the lawe, then toke he him vp in his armes, and prayſed God, and ſayde:

And his elders wente to Jeruſalem every yeare at the feaſt of Eaſter. And whan he was twolue yeare olde, they wente vp to Je-

And it fortunēd after thre dayes, ꝑ they founde him in the temple, ſyttynge amonge the teachers, hearyng the, and oppoſynge them. And all they that herde him, wōdred at his vnderſtondyng and anſweres. And whan they ſawe him, they were aſtonnyed. And his mother ſayde vnto him: My ſonne, why haſt thou done this vnto vs? Behol- de, thy father and I haue ſought the ſore- wyng. And he ſayde vnto them: What is it, that ye haue ſought me? Wyſt ye not, ꝑ I muſt go aboute my fathers buſynes? And they vnderſtoode not the ſayenge ꝑ he ſpoke vnto them. And he wente downe with the, and came to Nazareth, and was obediēt vnto them. And his mother kepte all theſe wor- des in hir hert. And Jeſus increaſed in wyſ- dome, age and fauoure with God and men.

And he came in to all ꝑ coaſtes aboute Iordan, and preached the baptyme of re- pētaunce for the remyſſion of ſynnes. As it is wrytē in ꝑ boke of ꝑ ſayenges of Eſaye the prophet, which ſayeth: The voyce of a cryer in the wyldernes: prepare the waye of the LORDE, and make his pathes ſtraight. And he sayde vnto them: Doubtes ye wyl saye vnto me this prouerbe: Phisician, heale thyself. For how greates thinges haue we herde done at Capernaū? Do the same here also in thine owne countre. And whan he had lest of talkynge, he sayde vnto Symon: Launch out in to the depe z let slyppe yō nettes, to make a draught. And he charged him, y he shulde tell no mā, but go thy waye (sayde he) and shewe thyself vnto y prest, and offre for y clensynge, as Moyses cōmaunded, for a witnesse vnto thē. And it fortuneth vpon an after prynci

 the come felde, & his disciples plucked the eares of come, and ate, and rubbed the
 with their hādes. But certayne of the pha rises sayde vnto them: Wherfore do ye that,
 which is not lawfull to do vpon the Sab bath? And Jesus answered, and sayde vnto
 the: Haue ye not red what David dyd, whā he was hongrie, and they that were with him, how he wente in to the house of God,
 and toke the shewbied, and ate, and gaue
 also vnto them that were with him, which was lawfull for no man to eate, but for the prestes onely? And he sayde vnto them: The sonne of man is LORD euen ouer the Sab bath.

It came to passe vpo another Sabbath,
 that he wēte in to the synagoge, and taught
 and there was a man, whose right hande
 was wythied. But y serybes and pharises marked him, whether he wolde heale vpon
 the Sabbath, that they might fynde an oc casion agaynst him. Neuertheles he percea
 ued their thoughtes, and sayde vnto the mā
 with the wythied hande: Aryse, and steppe forth here. And he arose, and stepped forth.
 Then sayde Jesus vnto the: I wil axe you
 a question: What is it lawfull to do vpo the Sabbath? good, or euell? to saue life, or to destroye it? And he behelde the all rounde aboute, and sayde vnto them: Stretch out thine hande. And he dyd so. Then was his hande restored him to right, euen as whole as the other. But they were fylled full of madnes, and commoned together, what they wolde do to him.

And it fortuneth at the same tyme, that he wente out in to a mountayne to praye, and continued all night in prayer to God. And whā it was daye, he called his disciples, and chose twelue of them, whom he called also apostles. Symon, whom he named Peter,
 and Andrew his brother, James and Ihon, Phylippe and Bartylmew, Mathew and Thomas, James the sonne of Alphens, Sy mon called Zelotes, Judas the sonne of Ja mes, and Judas Iscarioth, which was the traytoure.

And he wente downe with them, and sto
 de vpon a playne in the felde, and the com pany of his disciples, and a greate multitu
 de of people, from all Jewry, and Ierusalē,
 and from Tyre and Sydon by the see coast,
 which were come to heare him, and to be healed of their diseases, and they that were vexed with foule spretes, were healed. And all the people sought to touch him, for there
 wente vertue frō him, and healed the all.

And he lift vp his eyes vpo his disciples,
 and sayde: Blessed are ye poore, for yours is the kyngdome of God. Blessed are ye that hunger here, for ye shalbe satysfied. Blessed are ye y wepe here, for ye shal laugh. Blessed are ye, whan men hate you, and put you out of their cōpanyes, and reuyle you, and cast out youre name as an euell thinge, for the sonne of mans sake. Reioyse ye then, and be glad: for beholde, youre rewarde is greate in the prophetes also.

But wo vnto you riche, for ye haue youre

 full, for ye shal hunger. Wo vnto you that laugh here, for ye shal wepe and wayle. Wo vnto you whan euery man prayseth you,
 Euen so dyd their fathers vnto the false pro

 And as ye wolde that men shulde do vnto

good doers, what thanke haue ye therfore? For synners also do even the same. And yf ye lende vnto them, of whō ye hope to receaue what thanke haue ye therfore? For synners also lende vnto synners, that they maye receaue as moch agayne. But rather loue ye yō enemies, do good, and lende, lokyng for nothynge therof agayne: so shal yō reward be greate, and ye shalbe the children of the hyest, for he is kynde, enen to the vnthankfull and to the euell.

Be ye therfore mercifull, as youre father also is mercifull. Judge not, and ye shal not be iudged. Condepnē not, and ye shal not be condempned. Forgeue, and ye shal be forgiven. Geue, and to you shalbe geuen. A good measure, pressed downe, shaken together, & rūnyng ouer, shal mē geue in to youre bosoms. For with what measure ye meete, with the same shal it be measured to you agayne.

And he sayde a similitude vnto thē: Can the blynde shewe the waye to yō blynde? Do they not both thē fall in to the dyche? The disciple is not aboue his master. But whoso euer is perfecte, y same shalbe as his master. But n hy seist thou a moore i thy brothers eye, and considere not the beame, that is in thine awne eye? Or how canst thou saye vnto thy brother: holde styll brother, I wil plucke y moate out of thyne eye, and thou thy self seist not y beame in thine awne eye? Thou ypocryte, fyrst cast the beame out of thine awne eye, and thē shalt thou se clearly to pull the moate out of thy brothers eye.

For it is no good tre, y bryngeth forth euell frute: and no euell tre y bryngeth forth good frute. Euery tre is knowne by his frute. For mē gather not fygges of thornes, ner grapes of lufhes. A good mā out of y good treasure of his hert, bryngeth forth y which is good: and an euell mā out of the euell treasure of his hert, bryngeth forth that which is euell. For of the abundaunce of the hert, the mouth speaketh.

But why call ye me LORDE LORDE, & do not that I saye vnto you? Who so euer cometh vnto me, and heareth my wordes and doth thē, I wil shewe yeu to whom he is lyke. He is lyke vnto a man which buylded an house, and digged depe, and layed y foundation vpon a rocke. Whan the waters came, the floudes bett vpon that house, and coude not moue it: for it was grounded vpon y rocke. But he that heareth and doth not, is lyke vnto a man that buylded his house vpon the earth without foundation, and the streames bett vpon it, and it fell immediatly, Whan he had ended his talkyng vnto the people, he wente in to Capernaum: and a captaynes seruaunt laye deed sicke, whom he loued. Whā he herde of Iesus, he sent the elders of the Jewes vnto him, and prayed him, that he wolde come, and make his seruaunt whole. But whā they came to Iesus, they besought him instantly, & sayde: He is worthy y thou shuldest shewe this for him, for he loueth oure people, & hath buylded vs y synagoge. And Iesus wente w them.

Now whan they were not farre from y house, y captaine sent frēdes vnto hī, sayenge vnto him: O LORD, trouble not thy self. I am not worthy, y thou shuldest enter vnder my rofe, and therfore I thought not my self worthy to come to y: but speake y worde, & my seruaunt shalbe whole. For I my self also am a mā, subiecte to the hygher aucterite, & haue seudyers vnder me. And I saye vnto one: Ge, & he geeth. And to another: Come, & he cometh. And to my seruaunt: Do this, & he doeth it. Whan Iesus herde y, he marueyled at hī, & turned him aboute, & sayde vnto y people y folowed hī: I saye vnto you: So greate faith haue I not founde, no not in Israel. Then sayde he vnto them all: If eny mā wil folowe me, let hi denie himself, & take vp his crosse daylie, & folowe me. * For who so ever wil saue his life, shal lose it. But who so loseth his life for my sake, shal saue it. For what auantage hath a man, though he wanne the whole worlde, and loseth himself, or runneth in dammage of himself? Who so is ashamed of me and of my sayenges, of him shall the sonne of mā also be ashamed, whan he cometh in his glory, and in the glory of his father, and of the holy angels. I saye vnto you of a treuth: there be some of them that stonde here, which shall not taste of death, tyll they se the kyngdome of God.

And as he prayed, the shappe of his countenance was chaunged of another fashyon, and his garment was whyte, and shyned: and beholde, two men talked with him, which were Moses and Elias, that appeared gloriously, and spake of his departynge, which he shulde fulfill at Jerusalem. As for Peter and them that were with him, they were full of slepe. But whan they awoke, they saw his glory, and the two men stondynge with him.

And it chaunced, whan they departed fro him, Peter sayde vnto Jesus: Master, here is good beyng for vs. Let vs make thre tabernacles: one for the, one for Moses, and one for Elias, and wylt thou what he sayde. But whyle he thus spake, there came a cloude, and ouershadowed them. And they were afrayed, whan the cloude covered them. And out of the cloude there came a voyce, which sayde: This is my deare sonne, * heare him. And whyle this voyce came to passe, they founde Jesus alone. And they kepte it close, and tolde no mā in those dayes eny of the thinges which they had sene.

And it chaunced on the nexte daye after, whan they came downe from the mount. moch people met him, and beholde, a man amonge the people cryed out, and sayde:

Master, I beseeke the, loke vpon my sonne, for he is my onely sonne: beholde, the spiete taketh him, and sodenly he crieth, and he teareth him, that he someth, and with payne departeth he from him, whan he hath rente him. And I besought thy disciples to cast him out, and they couldenot. Then answered Jesus, and sayde: Oh thou vnfaithfull and croked generacion, how longe shal I be with you, & suffre you? Brynge hither thy sonne. And whan he came to him, the deuell rente him and tare him. But Jesus rebuked the soule spiete, and healed the chylde, and delynered him vnto his father agayne. And they were all amased at the myghty power of God.

And whyle they wondred every one at all thinges which he dyd, he sayde vnto his disciples: Comprehende these sayenges in youre eares. For the sonne of man must be delynered in to the hādes of men. But they wylt not what that worde meened, and it was hyd from them, that they vnderstode it not. And they were afrayed to aske him of that worde. * There came a thought also amonge them, which of them shulde be the greatest. But whā Jesus sawe the thoughtes of their hert, he toke a childe, & set him harde by him, and sayde vnto them: Who-soeuer receaueth this childe in my name, receaueth me: and who so ever receaueth me, receaueth him that sent me. * But who so is leest amōge you all, y^e same shal be greate.

Then answered Iho, and sayde: Master, we sawe one dryue out deuils in thy name, and we forbad him, for he folowed the not with vs. And Jesus saide vnto him: For byd him not, for he that is not agaynst vs, is for vs.

And it fortuneth whan the tyme was fulfilled that he shulde be receaued vp from hence, he turned his face to go straight to Jerusalem, and before him he sent messengers, which wente their waye, and came in to a towne of the Samaritans, to prepare lodginge for him. Wo vnto you scribes, for ye haue receaued y^e keye of knowlege. Ye are not come in youre selues, and haue forbydden them that wolde haue bene in.

Mat. 23. b

When he spake thus vnto them, the scribes and pharises beganne to preasse fore vpon him, and to stoppe his mouth with many questions, and layed wayte for him, and sought to hunte out some thynge out of his mouth, that they might accuse him.

The XII. Chapter,

The gospel

of S. Luke. Ho. xxxij.

2 Here were gathered together an innumerable multitude of people, in so much that they trode one another: Then beganne he, and sayde first vnto his disciples: Bewarre of the leuen of the Pharises, which is ypocrisie. * But there is nothinge hyd, that shal not be discovered: neither secreete, that shal not be knowne. Therefore what soeuer ye haue spokē in darknesse, that same shal be herde in light: and that ye haue spoken into the eare in the chābers, shalbe preached vpon the house toppes.

But I saye vnto you my frendes: Be not afrayed of them that kyll the body, and after that haue nomore that they can do. But I wil shewe you, whom ye shal feare. Feare him, which after he hath kyled, hath power also to cast in to hell: Yee I saye vnto you: Feare him. Are not fyue sparowes bought for two sarchinges? Yet is not one of them forgotten before God. The very hayres of youre heade also are nombred eue ry one. Feare not therefore, for ye are better then many sparowes.

I saye vnto you: Who so euer knowlegeth me before men, him shal the sonne of mā also knowlege before the angels of God: But he that denyeth me before men, shal be denyed before the angels of God. And who so euer speaketh a worde agaynst the sonne of man, it shalbe forgiven him: But who so blasphemeth the holy goost, it shal not be forgiven him.

3 Whan they brynge you in to their synagoges, and to the rulers & officers, take ye no thought, how or what ye shal answeere, or what ye shal speake: for the holy goost shal teach you in the same houre, what ye ought to saye.

But one of the people sayde vnto him: Master, byd my brother deuyde the inheritaunce with me. Neuertheles he sayde vnto him: Man, who hath set me to be a iudge or heretage parter ouer you? And he sayde vnto them: Take hede, and bewarre of couetousnesse, for noman lyueth therof, that he hath abundaunce of goodes. And he tolde them a symilitude, and sayde: There was a riche man, whose felde had brought forth frutes plenteously, and he thought in himself, and sayde: What shal I do? I haue nothinge wher into gather my frutes. And he sayde: This wil I do, I wil breake downe my barnes, & buylde greater, and therin wil I gather all myne increace, & my goodes, & wil saye vnto my soule: Soule, thou hast much goodes layed vp in store for many yeares, take now thine ease, eate, danke, and be mery. But God sayde vnto him: Thou foole, this night shal they requyre thy soule from the, * and whose shal it be that thou hast prepared? Thus goeth it with him & gathereth treasure for himself, and is not riche in God.

But he sayde vnto his disciples: Therefore I saye vnto you: Take ye no thought for youre life, what ye shal eate: neither for youre body, what ye shal put on. The life is more then meate, and the body more then raimēt. Consydre the rauen, they nether sowe ner reape, they haue also nether storehouse ner barne, and yet God feedeth them. But how much better are ye then the foules?

Which of you (though he take thought therfore) coulde put one cubyte vnto his stature? Seinge then ye be not able to do that which is least, why take ye thought for the other? Considre the lilies vpon the felde, how they growe: they labour not, they spynne not. But I saye vnto you: that euen Salomon in all his royaltie was not clothed like one of these. Wherfore yf God so cloth the grasse, & is to daye in y felde, and tomorrow shalbe cast into the fornace, how much more shal he clothe you, o ye of litle faith? Are not ye therfore what ye shal eate, or what ye shal drynke, and clymme not vp an hye? The heithen in the worlde seeke after all soch thinges. But seeke ye the kyngdome of God, and all these shal be mynistred vnto you.

Feare not thou litle flocke, for it is youre fathers pleasure to geue you the kyngdome. Sell that ye haue, and geue almesse. Make you bagges, which ware not olde: enen a treasure that neuer fayleth in heauen, where no thefe cometh, and no moth corrupeth: for where youre treasure is, there wil youre hert be also.

Let youre loynes be gerbed aboute, and youre lightes burnynge, and be ye like vnto men that wayte for their lord, agaynst he returne from the mariage, that whan he cometh & knocketh, they maye straight waye open vnto him. Blessed are those seruantes, whom the LORDE (whan he cometh) shal fynde watynge. Verely I saye vnto you: * He shal gyde vp him self, and make them sit downe at the table, and shal go by them, and mynister vnto them. And yf he come in the seconde watch, and in the thirde watch, and fynde them so, blessed are those seruantes. But be sure of this, that yf the good man of the house knewe, what houre the thefe wolde come, he wolde surely watch, and not suffre his house to be broken vp. Therefore be ye ready also, for at an houre whan ye thynke not, shal the sonne of man come.

Mat. 25. a

But Peter sayde vnto him: LORDE, tel- lest thou this synnitude vnto vs, or to all men also? The LORDE sayde: How greete a thinge is a faithfull and wyse steward, whom his lorde setteth ouer his housholde, to geue the their dewtye in due season? Bles- sed is that seruaunt, whom his lorde (whan he cometh) shal fynde so doynge. Verely I saye vnto you: he shal set him ouer all his goodes. But yf the same seruaunt shal saye in his hert: Tush, it wil be longe or my lorde come, and shal begynne to synke yf seruan- tes and maydens, yee z to eate and drynke, z to be dionke: the same seruautes lorde shal come in a daye whan he lokech not for him, and in an houre that he is not aware of, z shal hew him in peces, and geue him his re- ward with the vnbeleuers.

The seruaunt that knewe his lordes wil and prepared not himself, nether dyd acor- dinge to his will, shal be beaten with many strypes: But he that knewe it not, and yet dyd thinges worthy of strypes, shal be bea- ten with few strypes. For like vnto whom moch is geuen, of him shal moch be sought: and like to whom moch is comycted, of him shal moch be requyred.

I am come to kyndle fyre vpo earth, and what wolde I rather, the that it were kynd- led already. Notwithstodinge I must first be baptised with a baptyne, and how am I payned tyll it be ended? Thynke ye, that I am come to brynge peace vpon earth? I tell you nay, but rather debate. For from hence forth there shal be at varyaunce in one house: thre agaynst two, and two agaynst thre. The father shal be deuyded agaynst the sonne, and the sonne agaynst the father: the mother agaynst the doughter, z the doughter agaynst the mother: the mother in lawe agaynst hir doughter in lawe, and yf doughter in lawe agaynst hir mother in lawe.

And he sayde vnto the people: Whan ye se a cloude ryse out of y west, straight waye ye saye: there cometh a shower, and so it is: and whan ye se the southwynde blowe, ye saye: It wil be hote, and it cometh so to passe. O ye ypocrytes, ye can discerne the fa- shion of the skye and of the earth: Why can ye not discerne this tyme also? Yee and why ingde ye not of youre selues, what is right?

The XIII. Chapter.

Here were present at the same season A certayne, that shewed him of y Galileans, whose bloude Pilate had mē- gled with their awne sacrifice. And Jesus answered, and sayde vnto them: Suppose ye, that these Galileans were greater synners then all the other Galileans, because they suffred soch punysshment? I tell you naye, but excepte ye amēde youre selues, ye shal all perishe likewyse. Or thinke ye that y eigh- teen (vpon whom the tower in Siloe fell and felle them) were guiltie aboue all men that dwell at Jerusalem? I tell you naye: but excepte ye amēde youre selues, ye shal all perishe likewyse.

Aa. 5. c

And he tolde them this synnitude: A cer- tayne mā had a sygge tre, which was plan- ted in his vynyarde, z he came and sought frute thereon, and founde none. Then sayde he vnto the wynegardener: Beholde, This thre yere longe haue I come euery yere, and sought frute vpon this sygge tre, and fynde none: cut it downe, why hyndreth it the greunde? But he answered, and sayde: Syr, let it alone yet this yere, tyll I dygge roude aboute it and donge it, yf it wyl bryn- ge forth frute: Yf no, then cut it downe af- terwarde.

And he taught in a synagoge vpon the Sabbath: and beholde, there was a womā, which had a sprete of infirmyte eightene yeres, and was croked, and coulde not well loke vp. Whan Jesus sawe her, he called her to him, and sayde vnto her: Woman, be deli- uered from thy disease. And he layed his han- des vpo her, and immediatly she was made straight, and praysed God. Then answered the ruler of the synagoge, and toke indigna- cion (because Jesus healed vpo y Sabbath) and sayde vnto the people: There are fyve dayes, wherin men ought to worke, in them come and be healed, and not on the Sab- bath.

Then the LORDE answered him, and say- de: Thou ypocryte, both not euery one of you lowse his oxe or asse fro the crybbe vpo Sabbath, and leade him to the water: But shulde not this (which is Abrahams doughter) whom Sathan hath bounde now eigh- tene yeres, be lowsed from this bonde vpo

And the thirde sayde: I haue married a wife, therfore can I not come. And the seruaunt came, and brought his lorde worde agayne therof.

Then was the good man of the house displeased, and sayde vnto his seruaunt: Go out quicfly in to the stretes and quarters of y cite, and brynge in hither the poore and crepell, and lame and blynde. And the seruaunt sayde: lorde, it is done as thou hast comaunded, and there is yet more room. And the lorde sayde vnto the seruaunt: Go out into the hye wayes, and to the hedges, and compell them to come in, that my house maye be fylled. But I saye vnto you: that none of these men which were bydden, shal tasyt of my supper.

D There wente moch people with him, and he turned him aboute and sayde vnto them: If eny man come vnto me, and hate not his father, mother, wife, childre, brethre, sisters, yee and his owne self, also, he can not be my disciple. And he sayde: A certayne man had two sennes, and the yonger of them sayde vnto the father: Father, geue me the porcion of y goodes, that belongeth vnto me. And he deu yded the good vnto them. And not longe thereafter, gathered the yonger sonne all together, z toke his iourney in to a farre countre, and there waisted he his goodes with ryorous luyng. Now whan he had spent all that he had, there was a greate verch thorow cut all the same lōde. And they beganne to be mery.

But the elder sonne was in the felde. And when he came, and drew nye to the house, he herde y^e mynstrelsy and daunsynge, and called one of the seruantes vnto him, and asked what it was. He sayde vnto him: Thy brother is come, and thy father hath slayne a fed calfe, because he hath receaued him safe and sounde. Then was he angrie, and wolde not go in. Then wente his father out, and prayed him. But he answered, and sayde vnto his father: Lo, thus many yeares haue I done the seruyce, nether haue I yet broken thy commaundement, and thou gauest me neuer one kydd, y^e I might make mery with my frendes. But now that this thy sonne is come, which deuoured his goodes with harlottes, thou hast slayne a fed calfe. But he sayde vnto him: My sonne, thou art allwaye with me, and all that is myne, is thine: thou shuldest be mery and glad, for this y^e brother was deed, and is alyue agayne: he was lost, and is founde agayne.

The XVI. Chapter.

And he sayde also vnto his disciples: There was a certayne riche man, which had a stewarde, that was accused vnto him, that he had waisted his goodes. And he called him, and sayde vnto him: How is it, that I heare this of the? geue a comptes of y^e stewardshipe, for thou mayest be no longer stewarde. The stewarde sayde within himself: What shal I do? My lord will take awaye the stewardshipe fro me. I can not bygge, and to begg I am ashamed. I wote what I wil do, that when I am put out of the stewardshipe, they maye receaue me in to their houses.

And he called vnto hi all his lordes debtors, and sayde vnto the first: How moch owest thou vnto my lord? He sayde: an hundred tennes of oyle. And he sayde: Take y^e byll, sit downe quykely, and wryte fiftie. Then sayde he vnto another: How moch owest thou? He sayde: an hundred quarters of wheate. He that is faithfull in the least, is faithfull also in moch: and he that is vnrighteous in the least, is vnrighteous also in moch. If ye then haue not bene faithfull in the vnrighteous Mammon, who wyll beleue you in that which is true? And yf ye haue not bene faithfull in anothers mans busynesse, who wil geue you that which is youre owne?

No seruant can serue two masters: for Mat. 6. 24 either he shal hate the one, and loue y^e other: or els he shal leane to the one, and despise the other. Ye can not serue God and Mammon.

All these thinges herde the Pharises, which were couetous, and they mocked hi. And he sayde vnto them: Ye are they that iustifie y^e selues before men, but God knoweth youre hertes. For y^e which is hye amonge men, is an abhominacion before God.

But easier is it, for heauen and earth to perishe, then one tittle of y^e lawe to fall. Yet came the dogges, and licked his sores. But it fortuned, that the poore man dyed, and was carried of the angels in to Abrahams bosome. The riche man dyed also, and was buried.

Now when he was in the hell, he lift vp his eyes in the payne, and sawe Abraham a farre of, and Lazarus in his bosome: and he cried, and sayde: Father Abraham, haue mercy vpon me, and sende Lazarus, that he maye dyppe the tynge of his synger in water, and coole my tonge, for I am tormeted in this flāme. Then sayde he: I pray the then father,

maye warne them, lest they also come in to this place of toment. Abraham sayde vnto him: They haue Moses and the prophetes,
let them heare them. But he sayde: Nay fa-trowe not. So likewise ye, whā ye haue done all that is cōmaunded you, saye: We are unprofitable seruautes, we haue done that we were bounde to do.

And it fortuneth, whan he toke his iour-
ney towarde Jerusalem, he wente thorow the myddest of Samaria and Galile. And as he came into a towne, there met him ten leporous men, which stode as farre of, and lift vp their voyce, and sayde: Jesu master, haue mercy vpon vs. And whan he sawe them, he sayde vnto the: Go, and shewe youre selues vnto y prestes. And it came to passe, as they wente, they were censed. And one of them

whā he sawe that he was censed, he turned backe agayne, and praysed God with loude
voyce, and fell downe on his face at his fete,
and gaue him thanks. And the same was a Samaritane. Jesus answered and saide: Are there not ten censed? But where are those nynne? There were els none founde, that turned agayne, and gaue God the prayse, saue
onely this straūger. And he sayde vnto him:
Aryse, go thy waye, thy faith hath made y whole.

But whan he was demaunded of y pha-
rises: Whan cometh the kyngdome of God?
He answered them, and sayde: The kyngdome of God cometh not with outwarde appearauce, nether shal it be sayde: lo, here or there is it. For beholde, y kyngdome of God is inwarde in you.

And he sayde to the disciples: The tyme
shal come, whā ye shal desyre to se one daye of the sonne of man, and shal not se it. And they shal saye vnto you: Se here, Se there.
Go not ye, nether folowe, for as the lighte-nyngge shyneth aboue from the heauen, and lighteth ouer all that is vnder the heanē, so shal the sonne of mā be in his daye. But first must he suffre many thinges, and be refused of this generacion.

And as it came to passe in the tyme of Lot, so shal it come to passe also in y dayes
of the sonne of man. They ate, they dranke, they married, and were married, enen vnto y
daye that Lot wente in to the Arke, and y
floude came, and destroyed them all.

Likewise also as it came to passe in the tyme of Lot, they ate, they dranke, they bought, they solde, they planted, they buyl-
ded. But enen the same daye that Lot wen-te out of Sodom, it rayned fyre and brym-
stone from heanē, and destroyed them all.
After this maner also shal it go, in the daye
whan the sonne of man shal appeare.

In that daye, who so is vpo the rose, and his stuffe in y house, let him not come dow-ne to fetch it: Likewise he that is in the felde, let him not turne backe, for it that is be-

it: and who so euer shal lose it, shal saue it.

and sayde vnto him: Where LORDE? He say-

The XVIII. Chapter.

2 1. Tell. 5. c S He tolde them a symilitude, signifige, y men ought allwayes to praye, z not to leaue of, z sayde: There was a iudge in a cite, which feared not God, and stode in awe of no man. And in the same cite
there was a wedowe, which came vnto him,
and sayde: deliuer me fro myne aduersary.
And he wolde not a greate whyle. But afterwarde he thought within hi self: Though
I feare not God, z stonde in awe of no man,
yet seynge this weddowe is so importune
vpon me, I wil deliuer her, lest she come at the last, and rayle vpon me.

Then sayde the LORDE: Heare what y vnrightheous iudge sayeth. But shall not God also deliuer his chosen, that crye vnto
hi daye and night, though he differre the?
I saye vnto you: He shal deliuer them, and that shortly. Neuertheles, when the sonne of man cometh, suppose ye, that he shal syn-
de faich vpon earth?

3 And vnto certayne which trusted in the
scelus, that they were perfecte, and despyed
other, he spake this symilitude: There wente
vp two men in to the tēple, to praye: the one
a pharise, the other a publican. The pharise stode, and prayed by himself after this maner: I thanke the God, that I am not as other men, robbers, vnrightheous, aduoucers, or as this publican. I fast twyse in the weke, I geue the riches of all that I haue.
And the publican stode as farre of, and wol-
de not lift vp his eyes to heauen, but smote
vpon his brest, and sayde: God be thou mercyfull vnto me sinner. I tell you: This man wente downe in to his house iustified more the the other. For who so euer exalteth himself, shalbe brought lowe: and he that hum-bleth himself, shalbe exalted.

4 They brought yonge children also vnto him, that he shulde touch them. But when the disciples sawe that, they rebuked them.
Neuertheles Jesus called them vnto him,
and sayde: Suffre childre to come vnto me,
and forbyd the not, for of soch is y Kyngdome of God. Verely I saye vnto you: Whoso euer receaueth not y Kyngdome of God as a childe, shal not enter therin.

5 And a certayne ruler axed him, and sayde:

Good master, what must I do, that I maye
enheret euerlastinge life? But Jesus sayde vnto him: Why callest thou me good? There is no man good, but God onely. Thou knowest the comāndementes: Thou shalt not breake wedlocke: Thou shalt not kyll:
Thou shalt not steale: Thou shalt not beare false wytnesse: Honour thy father and y mother. But he sayde: All these haue I kepe-te from my yough vp. Whā Jesus herde that, he sayde vnto him: Yet lackest thou one thin-
ge, sell all that thou hast, and geue it vnto y poore, and thou shalt haue a treasure in heauen, and come z folowe me. Whan he herde that, he was sory, for he was very riche.

Whan Jesus sawe that he was sory, he sayde: How hardly shal the riche come in to the Kyngdome of God? It is easyer for a Camell to go thorow the eye of a nedle, the for a rich man to entre in to the Kyngdome of God. Then sayde they y herde that: Who can then be saued? But he sayde: loke what is vnpossible with mē, is possible with God.

Then sayde Peter: Beholde, we haue forsaaken all, and folowed the. He sayde vnto the:
Verely I saye vnto you: There is no mē y
forsaaketh house, or elders, or brethren, or wife, or children for the Kyngdome of Gods sake, which shal not receaue moch more in this tyme, and euerlastinge life in the worl-
de to come.

He toke vnto him the twolue, and sayde
vnto them: Beholde, we go vp to Ierusalē,
and it shal all be fulfilled, that is wycten by the prophetes of the sonne of man. For he shal be deliuered vnto y theythen, and shal-be mocked, and despytfully intreated, and spitted vpon: and when they haue scourged
him, they shal put him to deatch, and vpon
the thirde daye shal he aryse agayne. * And
they vnderstode nothinge of these thinges.
And this sayenge was hyd from them, and they perceaued not the thinges that were spoken.

And it came to passe, when he came nye
vnto Iericho, there sat one blynde by the waye, and begged. And when he herde the people passe by, he axed what it was. Then sayde they vnto him, that Jesus of Nazareth passed by. And he cryed, and sayde: Jesus thou sonne of Dauid, haue mercy vpon me.
But the people that wente before, rebuked
him, that he shulde holde his tūge. Neuer-theles he cried moch more: Thou sonne of Dauid haue mercy vpon me. Jesus stode styl, z comānded hi to be brought vnto hi. And 21 And he entred in, and wente thorow Jericho: & beholde, there was a man named Zacheus, which was a ruler of the publicans, and was riche, and desyred to se Jesus what he shulde be, and he coude not for the people, for he was lowe of stature. And he ranne before, and clymmed vp in to a wyldc fygge tre, that he might se him: for he shulde come by waye. And whan Jesus came to the same place, he looked vp, and sawe him, and sayde vnto him: Zache, come downe hastily, for todaye must I turne in to thy house. And he came downe hastily, and receaued him with ioye. Whan they sawe that, they murmured all, and sayde, by he was gone in, to a synner.

Act. 16. 8

But Zacheus stode forth, and sayde vnto the LORDE: Beholde LORDE, the half of my goodes geue I to the poore: and yf I haue defrauded eny man, I restore him foure folde. Jesus sayde vnto him: This daye is health happened vnto this house, for so moch as he also is Abrahams sonne. For the sonne of man is come, to seeke and to saue that which was lost.

Mat. 15. c

Now whyle they herked, he tolde a syn- militude also, because he was nye vnto Jeru- salem, and because they thought, that the Kyngdome of God shulde appeare immedi- atly. And he sayde: A certayne noble man wete in to a farre countre, to receaue hys Kyng- dome, and then to come agayne. This man called ten of his seruauntes, and deliuered them ten pounde, and sayde vnto them: Oc- cupye, tyll I come agayne. Then came the first and sayde: Syr, thy pounde hath won- ne ten pounde. And he sayde vnto him: Well thou good seruaunt, for so moch as thou hast bene faithfull in the least, thou shalt haue auncoure ouer ten cities. The seconde came also, and sayde: Syr, thy pounde hath won-ne fyue pounde. And to him he sayde: And thou shalt be ouer fyue cities. And yf thirde came, and sayde: Lo syr, here is thy pounde, which I haue kepte in a napkyn. I was afrayed of thee, for thou art an harde man, thou takest vp by thou hast not layed downe, and reapest that thou hast not sowne. He sayde vnto him: Of thine awne mouth in- dge I the thou enell seruaunt. Anewest thou thou that I am an harde man, takynge vp that I laydenot downe, and reapyng that I dyd not sowe? Wherefore then hast thou not deliuered my money to the exchaunge banker? And at my comynge might I haue requyred myne awne with vantage?

Mat 21. c Marc. 11. d Ald it fortunēd one of those dayes,
whan he taught the people in the tē
ple, and preached the Gospel, the hye pries and scribes came to him with the elders, and spake vnto him, and sayde: Tell

they be perswaded, that Jhon is a prophet.
And they answered, that they coude not tell, whence it was. And Jesus sayde vnto them: Neither tell I you, by what auctoure
I do these thinges.

Mat 21. d Marc. 12. a And he beganne to tell the people this sy militude: A certayne man planted a vynyar
de, and let it out vnto husbādmen, and wen
te himself in to a straunge countre for a grea te season. And whan his tyme was come, he sent a seruaūt to the husbādmen, that they might geue him of the frute of the vynyar
de. But the husbāndmen bet him, and sent him awaye emptye. And agayne he sent yet another seruaūt: but they bet him also, and intreated him shamefully, z sent him awaye
emptye. And besydes this, he sent the thirde
but they wounded him also, and thrust him
out. Then sayde the lord of the vynyarde:

What shal I do? I wil sende my deare son ne, peraduenture they wil stonde in awe of him, whan they se him.

But whan the husbānde men sawe the
sonne, they thought in the selues, and sayde:
This is the heyre, come, let vs kyll him, y
the inheritaunce maye be oures. And they thrust him out of y vynyarde, and slew him.
What shal now the lord of the vynyarde
do vnto them? He shal come, and destroye
those husbāndmen, and let out his vynyar de vnto other. Whan they herde that, they sayde: God forbyd.

But he behelde the, and sayde: What is this then that is wyrtten: The same stone which the buylders refused, is become the head corner stone? Who so euer falleth vpon
this stone, shalbe broken in sunder: but vpo
whō so euer he falleth, he shal grynde him to powder. And the hye pries and scribes wente aboute to laye handes vpon him the same houre, and they feared the people: for they perceaued, that he had spokē this symi
litude agaynst them.

And they watched hi, z sent forth spyes,
which shulde fayne the selues perfecte, that they might take him in his wordes, to deli
uer him vnto the power and auctoure of y debite. And they axed him, z sayde: Master,
we knowe that thou sayest z teachest right,
and regardest the outwarde appareance of
no man, but teachest the waye of God truly.
Is it lawfull, that we geue tribute vnto the Emperoure, or not? But he perceaued their craftynes, and sayde vnto them: Why tēpte ye me? Shewe me the peny. Whose ymage and superscripcion hath it? They answered, and sayde: The Emperours. Then sayde he vnto them: Geue the vnto the Emperoure,
that which is the Emperours: z vnto God,
that which is Gods. And they coude not re
proue his worde before the people, and mar
ueyled at his answere, and helde their peace.

Then came vnto him certayne of the Sa
duces (which holte that there is no resurrec tion) and axed him, and sayde: Master. Mo ses wrote vnto vs, yf eny mans brother dye
hauynge a wife, and dyeth without childre,
then shal his brother take his wife, and ray se vp sēde vnto his brother. Now were the

died without children also: and the thirde

resurreccion, whose wife shal she be of them

For seven had her to wife. And Jesus answered and saide vnto them: The childre of this worlde marry, & are married, but they y^e shal be woorthy to enioye that worlde and the resurrection from the deede, shal nether marry ner be married, for they can dye nomore. For they are like vnto the angels, and are the children of God, in so moch as they are children of the resurrection.

E But that the deede ryse agayne, hath Moses also signified besydes the bush, when he called the LORD, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. But God is not a God of the deede but of the lyuynge, for they lyue all vnto him. Then answered certayne of the scribes, and sayde: Master, thou haist sayde well. And from that tyme forth they durst aske him no more questions.

But he sayde vnto them: How saye they that Christ is Dauides sonne? And Dauid himself sayeth in the booke of the psalmes: The LORD sayde vnto my LORD: Sit thou on my right honde, tyll I make thine enemies thy fote stole. Dauid calleth him LORD, how is he then his sonne?

Now whyle all the people gaue audience, he sayde vnto his disciples: Bewarre of the scribes, which wyl go in longe garmettes, and loue to be saluted vpon the market, and desyre to sit byest in the synagoges, and at the table. They deuoure widowes houses and that vnder a couloure of longe prayenge: These shal receaue the greater damnacion.

The XXI. Chapter.

And he looked vp, and behelde y^e riche, how they put in their offerynges in to the Gods chest. He sawe also a poore widowe, which put in two mytes, and he sayde: Verely I saye vnto you: This poore widowe hath put in more then they all: For these all haue of their excessse put in vnto the offerynge of God, but she of hir pouerte hath put in all hir lyuynge that she had.

And whā some spake of the temple, that it was garnished with goodly stones and Jewels, he saide: The time shal come, when of all this that yese, there shal not be left one stone vpon another, which shal not be broken downe. They asked him, and sayde: Master, whā shal these be? and what shal be the token, when these shal come to passe?

He sayde: Take hede, that ye be not deceaued: For many shal come in my name, and saye, I am he, & the tyme is come hard by. Solowe them not.

But when ye heare of warres and insur-

reccions, be not ye afrayed, for soch must come to passe, but the ende is not yet there so soone. Then sayde he vnto them: One people shal ryse agaynst another, and one realme ageynst another, & shal be greete earthquakes here and there, pestilence, and berth, and fearfull thinges. And great tokens shal there be fro heauē. But before all these, they shal laye handes vpon you, and persecute you, and deliuer you vp in to their synagoges and presons, and brynge you before kynnes & prynces for my names sake. But this shal happen vnto you for a wytnesse. Be at a poynt therfore in youre hertes, that ye take no thought, how ye shal answer: for I wil geue you mouth & wysdome, agaynst the which all youre aduersaries shal not be able to speake ner to resist. But ye shal be deliuered vpon euē of youre elders, bretheren, kynsfolkes and frendes, and some of you shal they put vnto death, and ye shal be hated of every man for my names sake, and yet shal not one hayre of youre heade perishe. Holde fast youre soules with patience.

But when ye shal se Jerusalem besegged with an hoost, then vnderstonde, that the desolacion of it is nye. Then let them which be in Jewry, flye vnto the mountaynes: and let soch as be in the myddest thereof, departe out: and let soch as be in the countrees, not come therin. For these are the dayes of vengeance, that every thinge which is wyrtten, maye be fulfilled. But roo vnto them that are with child, and to them that geue sucke in those dayes: for there shal be greete trouble vpon earth, and wrath ouer this people, and they shal scull chorow the edge of the swerde, and be led captyue amonge all nacions. And Jerusalem shal be troden downe of the heithen, vntyll the tyme of the heithen be fulfilled.

And there shal be tokens in the Sonne and Moone, and starres, and vpon earth the people shal be in soch perplexite, that they shal not tell which waye to turne them selues. And the see and the waters shal roare, and men shal pyn awaye for feare, and for lokynge after the thinges which shal come vpo earth. For euē the very powers of heauen shal moue.

And then shal they se the sonne of man comynge in the cloude with power and greete glory. But when these thinges begynne to come to passe, the loke vp, and lift vpp youre heades, for youre redemption draweth nye.

Then came y daye of swete bred, wherin the Easter lambe must be offered. And he sent Peter and Jhon, and sayde: Go youre waye, prepare vs the Easter lambe, that we maye eate. But they sayde vnto him: Where wilt thou, that we prepare it? He saide vnto them: Beholde, whā ye come into y cite, there shal mete you a man, bearinge a picher of water, folowe him in to the house y he entrech in, and saye vnto the good man of the house: The master sendeth y worde: Where is y ghesthouse, wherin I maye eate the Easter labe with my disciples? And he shal shewe you a greate parlour pained. They wente their waye, and founde as he had sayde vnto them, and made ready the Easter lambe.

And whan the houre came, he sat him downe, and the twelue Apostles wih him,

For I saye vnto you: that hence forth I wil eate nomore therof, tyll it be fulfilled in the kyngdome of God. And he toke the cuppe, gaue thankes, and sayde: Take this and deuyde it amonge you. But ye shal not be so: But the greatest amonge you, shalbe as the yongest, and the chesest, as a seruaunt. For which is the greatest? he that syttech at the table, or he that seruet? Is not he that syttech at the table? But I am amonge you as a mynister. As for you, ye are they, that haue bydde th me in my temptacions. vp, likewise also the scrpye. But he that hath not, let him sell his coate, & bye a swerde. For I saye vnto you: It must yet be fulfilled on me, that is wyrtten: He was counted amonge the euell doers. For loke what is wyrtten of me, it hath an ende. But they sayde: LORDE, Beholde, here are two swerdes. He sayde vnto the: It is ynough.

And he wente out (as he was wonte) vnto mount Oliuete. But his disciples folowed him vnto the same place. And whan he came thither, he sayde vnto the: Praye, that ye fall not in to tēptacion. And he gat him from them aboute a stones cast, and kneled downe, prayed, & sayde: Father, yf thou wilt, take awaye this cuppe from me: Neuerthelesse, not my wyll, but thyne be fulfilled. And there appeared vnto him an angell frō heauen, and comforted him. And it came so, that he wrestled with death, and prayed the longer. And his sweate was like droppes of bloude, runnyng downe to the grounde. And he rose vp frō prayer, and came to his disciples, and founde them slepyng for heynesse, and sayde vnto them: What, slepe ye? rylē vp and praye, that ye fall not into tentacion.

But whyle he yet spake, beholde, the multitude, and one of the twolue called Judas wente before them, and he came nye vnto Jesus, to kysse him. But Jesus sayde vnto him: Judas, betrayest thou the sonne of man with a kysse? Whan they that were aboute him, sawe what wolde folowe, they sayde vnto him: LORDE, shal we smyte with the swerde? And one of the stroke a seruaūt of y^e hye prestes, & smote of his eare. But Jesus answered, and sayde: Suffre the thus farre forth. And he touched his eare, & healed him.

But Jesus sayde vnto the prestes and rulers of the temple, and to the Elders that were come vnto him: Ye are come forth as it were to a murtherer with swerdes, & with staves. I was daylie with you in the temple, and ye layed no handes vpon me. But this is youre houre, and the power of darknesse. Neuerthelesse they toke him, and led him, and brought him into the hye prestes house. As for Peter, he folowed hī a farre of.

Then kyndled they a fyre in the myddest of the palace, and sat them downe together. And Peter sat him downe amonge them. Then a damfelle sawe him syttinge by the light, and behelde him well, and sayde vnto him: This same was also with him. But he denyed him, and sayde: Woman, I knowe him not. And after a litle whyle, another sawe him, and sayde: Thou art one of them also. But Peter sayde: Man, I am not.

And aboute the space of an houre after, another affirmed, & sayde: Verely this was with him also, for he is a Galilean. But Peter saide: Nā, I wote not what thou sayest. And immediatly whyle he yet spake, y^e cock crowe. And the LORDE turned him aboute and looked vpo Peter. And Peter remembered the wordes of y^e LORDE, how he sayde vnto him: Before the cock crowe, thou shalt denye me thrise. And Peter wente out, and wepte bitterly.

The men that helde Jesus, mocked him, and stroke him, blyndfolded him, and smote him on the face, and axed him, and sayde: Prophecie, who is it that smote the? And many other blasphemies sayde they vnto hī.

And whan it was daye, there gathered together the Elders of the people, the hye prestes and scribes, and led him vp before, their counsell, and sayde: Art thou Chust? Tell vs. But he sayde vnto them: If I tell you, ye wyl not beleue: But yf I axe you, ye wyl not answere me, nether wyl ye let me go. From this tyme forth shal the sonne of man syt at the right hāde of the power of God. Then sayde they all: Art thou then y^e sonne of God? He sayde vnto them: Ye saye it, for I am. They sayde: What nede we anye farther wytnesse? We oure selues haue herde it of his awne mouth.

But Pilate axed him, and sayde: Art thou the kynge of the Jewes? He answered him, and sayde: Thou sayest it. Pilate sayde vnto y^e hye prestes and to the people: I fynde no cause in this man. But they were the more fearce, and sayde: He hath moued the people, in that he hath taught here & there in all the londe of Jewry, and hath begunne at Galile vnto this place.

Whan Pilate herde mencion of Galile, he axed whether he were of Galile. And whan he perceaued that he was vnder y^e rodes iurisdiccioⁿ, he sent him to Herode, which was also at Jerusale in those dayes. Up vpon one of the Sabbathes very early in the mornynge, they came vnto the Sepulcre, and brought yf spices which they had prepared, and certayne women with the. Nevertheless they founde the stone rolled awaye from the sepulcre, and wente in, and founde not the body of yf LORDE Iesu. And it happened as they were amased therat, beholde, there stode by them two men in shynynge garmentes. And they were afrayed, and cast downe their faces to the earth. Then sayde they vnto the: What seke ye the lynynge amōge the deed? He is not here. He is risen vp. Remembre, how yf he tolde you whā he was yet in Galile, and sayde: The sonne of man must be deliuered in to the hādes of synners, and be crucified, and the thirde daye rise agayne.

And they remēbried his wordes, and wente from the sepulcre, and tolde all this vnto the eleuen, and to all the other. It was Mary Magdalene, and Johanna, and Mary James, and the other with them, that tolde this vnto the Apostles. And they wordes semed vnto them, as though they had bene but fables, and they beleued them not. But Peter arose, and ranne to the sepulcre, and stonped in, and sawe the linnen clothes layed by them selues, and departed. And he wondred within himself at that which had happened.

B And beholde, two of them wente that same daye, to a towne (which was thre score furlōges from Jerusalem) whose name was called Emmaus. And they talked together of all these thinges yf had happened. And it chanced as they were thus talkynge and reasonynge together, Iesus himself dreue nye, and wente with them. But their eyes were holden, that they shulde not knowe hī. And he sayde vnto them: What maner of comunicacions are these that ye haue one to another as ye walke, and are sad? Then answered the one, whose name was Cleophas, and sayde vnto him: Art thou onely a stranger at Iernsalem, not knowynge what is come to passe there in these dayes? And he sayde vnto the: What? They sayde vnto him: That of Iesus of Nazareth, & which was a prophet, mightie in dede and woide, before God and all yf people, how oure hye priestes and rulers deliuered him to the condemnation of death, and crucified him. But we hoped that he shulde haue deliuered Israel. And besydes all this, todaye is the thirde daye that this was done. & Yee & certayne women also of oure company which were early at the Sepulcre, and founde not his body, came and tolde, that they had sene a visiō of angels, which sayde he was alyue. And certayne of them that were with vs, wente vnto the sepulcre, and founde it euen so as yf women sayde, but hī founde they not.

C And he sayde vnto the: O ye fooles and slowe of hert to beleue all that the prophetes haue spokē? Ought not Christ to haue suffred these thinges, and to entre in to his glory? And he beganne at Moyses and at all the prophetes, and expounded vnto them all the scriptures, that were spoken of him. And they dreue nye vnto the towne, which they wēte vnto, and he made as though he wolde haue gone farther. And they compelled him, and sayde: Abide with vs, for it draweth towardes night, and the daye is farre passed. And he wente in to tary with the. And it came to passe whan he sat at the table with the, he toke the bred, gaue thankes, brake it, and gaue it them. Then were their eyes opened, and they knewe him. And he vanyshed out of their sight. And they sayde, betwene the selues: Dyd not oure hert burne with in vs, whan he talked with vs by the waye, whyle he opened the scriptures vnto vs? And they rose vp the same honre, turned agayne to Jerusalem, and founde yf eleuē gathered together, and them that were with them, which sayde: The LORDE is risen of a trueth, and hath appeared vnto Symon. And they tolde the what had happened by yf waye, and how they knewe him in breakynge of the bred.

D But whyle they were talkynge therof, Iesus himself stode in the myddes amonge the, and sayde: Peace be with you. But they were abashed and afrayed, supposynge that they had sene a spiete. And he saide vnto the: Why are ye abashed? & wherfore riset here soch thoughtes in yō hertes? Beholde my hādes & my fete, it is euen I my self. Handle me, and se, for a spiete hath not flesh and bones, as ye se me haue. And whan he had thus spokē, he shewed the his hōdes and his fete. But whyle they yet beleued not for ioye

In the begynnyng
was the worde, and
the worde was with God, and God was y worde. The same was in the begynnyng w
God. All thinges we re made by the same,

and without the same was made nothinge
that was made. In him was the life, and the life was the light of men: and the light
shyneth in the darknesse, and the darknesse comprehended it not.

There was sent from God a man, whose name was Ihon. The same came for a wit-nesse, to beare wytnesse of y light, that tho-row him they all might beleue. He was not that light, but that he might beare witnesse of y light. That was the true light, which lighteth all men, that come in to this worl-
de. He was in the worlde, z the worlde was made by him, and y worlde knewe him not.
He came in to his awne, and his awne re-ceaved him not. But as many as receaved him, to them gave he power to be the children of God: even soch as beleue in his name.
Which are not borne of bloude, ner of the
wyl of the flesh, ner of the wyl of man, but
of God.

And the worde became flesh, and dwelt
amonge vs: and we sawe his glory, a glory
as of the onely begotte sonne of the fater,
full of grace and trueth.

is in the bosome of the fater, he hath declared the same vnto vs.

And this is the recorde of Ihon, whan
the Jewes sent prestes and Leuites fro Jerusalem, to aye him: Who art thou? And he confessed and denyed not. And he confessed, and sayde: I am not Chust. And they aied him: What the? Art thou Elias? He sayde:
I am not. Art thou the prophet? And he answered: No. Then sayde they vnto him:
What art thou the, y we maye geue answe-re vnto the that sent vs? What sayest thou of y self? He sayde: I am y voyce of a cryer
in the wyldernesse. Make straight y waye of the LORDE. As y prophet Esay sayde:

And they that were sent, were of y pha-
rises. And they aied him, z sayde vnto him:
Why baptysyst thou then, yf thou be not Chust, ner Elias, ner a prophet? Ihon answered them, and sayde: I baptysse with water, but there is one come in amonge you,
whom ye knowe not. It is he that cometh
after me, which was before me: whose shue-lacet I am not worthy to vnloose. This was done at Bethabara beyonde Iordane,
where Ihon dyd baptysse.

The nexte daye after, Ihon sawe Iesus
commynge vnto him, and sayde: Beholde
the labe of God, which taketh awaye the synne of the worlde. This is he, of whom I sayde vnto you: After me cometh a man,
which was before me. For he was or ever I,
and I knewe him not: but that he shulde be declared in Israel, therfore am I come to baptysse with water.

And Ihon bare recorde, z sayde: I sawe
the spiete descende from heauen like vnto a dove, and abode vpon him, z I knewe him not. But he that sent me to baptysse with water, y same sayde vnto me: Vpon whom thou shalt se the spiete descende and tary
styll on him, the same is he, that baptyseth with the holy goost. And I sawe it, and bare recorde, that this is the sonne of God.

The nexte daye after, Ihon stode agayne,
and two of his disciples. And whā he sawe Iesus walkynge, he sayde: Beholde the labe
of God. And two of his disciples herde him speake, and folowed Iesus. And Iesus turned him aboute, and sawe them folowin-ge, and sayde vnto the: What seke ye? They sayde vnto him: Rabbi, (which is to saye by him the same daye. It was aboute the tenth houre.

One of the two, which herde Ihon speake, and folowed Iesus, was Andrew the brother of Symon Peter: the same founde first his brother Symon, and sayde vnto him: We haue founde Messias (which is by interpretation, & Anoynted) and brought him to Iesus. Whan Iesus behelde him, he sayde: Thou art Symon the sonne of Jonas, & thou shalt be called Cephas, which is by interpretation, a stone.

The nexte daye after, wolde Iesus go agayne in to Galile, and founde Philippe, and sayde vnto him: Followe me. Philippe was of Bethsaida the cite of Andrew and Peter. Philippe founde Nathanael, and sayde vnto him: We haue founde him, of whom Moyses in the lawe, and the prophetes haue wrytten, even Iesus the sonne of Joseph of Nazareth. And Nathanael sayde vnto him: What good can come out of Nazareth? Philippe sayde vnto him: Come, and se.

Iesus sawe Nathanael comynge to him, and sayde of him: Beholde, a righte Israelite, in whom is no gyle. Nathanael sayde vnto him: From whence knowest thou me? Iesus answered, and sayde vnto him: Before the Philippe called the, whan thou wast vnder the fygge tre, I sawe the. Nathanael answered, and sayde vnto him: Rabbi, thou art the sonne of God, thou art the kynge of Israel. Iesus answered, & sayde vnto him: Because I sayde vnto the, that I sawe the vnder the fygge tre, thou belest: thou shalt se yet greater thinges then these. And he sayde vnto him: Verely verely I saye vnto you: fro this tyme forth shal ye se the heauen open, and the angels of God goinge vp & downe ouer the sonne of man.

The II. Chapter.

And vpon the thirde daye there was a marriage at Cana in Galile, and the mother of Iesus was there. Iesus also and his disciples was called vnto the marriage. And whan the wyne fayled, the mother of Iesus saide vnto him: They haue no wyne. Iesus sayde vnto her: Woman, what haue I to do with the? Myne houre is not yet come. His mother sayde vnto the mynisters: Whatsoeuer he sayeth vnto you, do it. There were set there sixe water pottes of stone, after the maner of the purifieng of the Jewes, every one cōteyninge two or thre measures.

Iesus sayde vnto the: Fyll the water pottes with water. And they fylled the vnto the brimme. And he sayde vnto the: Drawe out now, & brynge vnto the Master of the feast. And they bare it. Whan the master of the feast had tasted the wyne which had bene water, and knewe not whence it came (but the mynisters that drew the water, knewe it) the Master of the feast called the brydegrome, and sayde vnto him: Every man at the first geth the good wyne: & whan they are drunken, then that which is worse. But thou hast kepte backe the good wyne vntyll now.

This is the first token that Iesus dyd at Cana in Galile, and shewed his glory, and his disciples beleued on him. Afterwarde wente he downe to Capernaum, he, his mother, his brethren, and his disciples, and taried not longe there.

And the Jewes Easter was at hande. And Iesus wote vnto Jerusalem, and founde syttinge in the temple, those that solde oxen, shepe, and doves, and chaungers of money. And he made a scourge of small cordes, and drewe them all out of the temple with the shepe and oxen, and poured out the chaungers money, and ouerthrew the tables, and sayde vnto them that solde the doves: Hauethese thinges hence, and make not my fathers house an house of marchaundyse. His disciples remembred it, that is wrytten: The zeale of thine house hath euen eaten me.

Then answered the Jewes, and sayde vnto him: What token shewest thou vnto vs, that thou mayest do these thinges? Iesus answered & sayde vnto the: Breake downe this temple, and in thre dayes wil I set it vp agayne. Then sayde the Jewes: Sixe and fourtye yere was this temple abuyldinge, and wilt thou set it vp in thre dayes? But he spake of the temple of his body. For whan he was risen agayne from the deed, his disciples remembred that he thus sayde, and they beleued the scripture, and the wordes which Iesus spake.

Whan he was at Jerusalem at Easter in the feast, many beleued on his name, whan they sawe the tokens that he dyd. But Iesus comytted not himself vnto the, for he knewe the all, & neded not the eny man shulde testifie of man, for he knewe well what was in man.

The III. Chapter.

There was a man of the Pharisees, named Nicodemus a ruler amonge the Jewes. The same came vnto Iesus by night, & sayde vnto him: Master, we knowe the thou art come a teacher fro God: for no man can do these tokens that thou doest, excepte God be with him. Iesus answered, and sayde vnto him: Verely verely I saye vnto the:

that sayeth vnto the, geue me drynke, thou woldest axe of him, and he wolde geue the, the water of life. The woman sayde vnto him: Syr, thou hast nothinge to drawe withall, and the well is depe, from whence hast thou then that water of life? Art thou greater then oure father Jacob, which gaue vs this well? And he himself dranketherof, and his children, and his catell. Jesus answered, and sayde vnto her: Who so ener drynkech of this water, shal thyrst agayne: But whosoener shal drynke of the water that I shal geue him, shal neuer be more a thyrst: but the water that I shal geue him, shal be in him a well of water, which spryngeth vp in to euerlastinge life.

The woman sayde vnto him: Syr, geue me that same water, that I thyrst not, nether nede to come hither to drawe. Jesus sayde vnto her: Go, call they husbände, and come hither. The woman answered, and sayde vnto him: I haue no husbände.

Jesus sayde vnto her: Thou hast sayde well, I haue no husbände: for thou hast had fyue husbändes, and he whom thou hast now, is not thine husbände: there saydest thou right. The woman sayde vnto him: Syr, I se, that thou art a prophet. Oure fathers worshipped vpon this mountayne, and ye saye, that as Jerusalem is the place, where men ought to worshippe. Jesus sayde vnto her: Woman, beleue me, the tyme commeth, that ye shal nether vpon this mountayne ner at Jerusalem worshippe the father. We wote not what ye worshippe, but we knowe what we worshippe, for Saluacion commeth of the Iewes. But the tyme commeth, and is now already, that the true worshippers shal worshippe the father in spirite and in the trueth: for the father wil haue soch so to worshippe him. God is a spirete, and they that worshippe him, must worshippe in spirete and in the trueth.

The woman sayde vnto him: I wote that Messias shal come, which is called Christ. Whan he commeth, he shal tell vs all thinges. Jesus sayde vnto her: I that speake vnto the, am he. And in the meane season came his disciples, and they marueyled that he talked with the woman. Yet sayde no man: What axest thou, or what talkest thou with her? Then the woman let hir pot stonde, and wente in to the cite, and sayde vnto the people: Come, se a man, which hath tolde me all that ener I dyd, Is not he Christ?

Then wente they out of the cite, and came vnto him: In the meane whyle his disciples prayed him, and sayde: Master, eate. But he sayde vnto them: I haue meate to ente, that ye knowe not of. Then sayde the disciples amonge them selues: Hath eny man brought him meate? Jesus sayde vnto the: My meate is this, that I do the wyll of him that sent me, and to fymish his worke. Saye not ye youre selues: There are yet foure monethes, and then commeth the haruest: Beholde, I saye vnto you: lift vp youre eyes, and loke vpon the felde, for it is whyte allready vnto the haruest.

And he that reapeth, receaueth rewarde, and gathereth frute to euerlastinge life, that both he that soweth and he that reapeth, maye reioyse together. For herin is the prouerbe true: One soweth, another reapeth. I haue sent you to reape that, wher on ye bestowed no labour. Other haue laboured, and ye are come in to their laboures.

Many Samaritans of the same cite beleued on him, for the sayenge of the woman, which testified: He hath tolde me all that ener I dyd. Now whan the Samaritans came to him, they besought him, that he wolde tary with them. And he abode there two dayes, and many mo beleued because of his worde, and sayde vnto the woman: We beleue now hence forth, not because of thy sayenge, we haue herde him oureselues, and knowe, that this of a trueth is Christ the Sauoure of the worlde.

After two dayes he departed thence, and wente in to Galile. For Jesus himself testified, that a prophet is nothinge set by at home. Now whan he came in to Galile, the Galileas receaued him, which had sene all that he dyd at Jerusalem in the feast: for they also were come thither in the feast. And Jesus came agayne vnto Cana in Galile, where he turned the water vnto wyne.

And there was a certayne ruler, whose sonne laye sicke at Capernaum. This herde that Jesus came out of Jewry in to Galile, and wente vnto him, and besought him, that he wolde come downe, and helpe his sonne, for he laye deede sicke. And Jesus sayde vnto him: Excepte ye se tokens and wonders, ye beleue not. The ruler sayde vnto him: Come downe Syr, or ener my childe dye. Jesus sayde vnto him: Go thy waye, thy sonne lyueth. And he belened with his whole house. This is now the seconde token that Jesus dyd, when he came from Jewry in to Galile.

The V. Chapter.

Afterwarde, there was a feast of the Jewes, and Jesus wente vnto Ierusalem. There is at Jerusalem by the slaughter house a pole, which in hebreue is called Bethesda, and hath fyue porches, wherein laye many sicke, blynde, lame, wycked, which wayted, when the water shulde moue. For the angell wente downe at his tyme in to the pole, and stered the water. Who so ener now wente downe first, after that the water was stered, if same was made whole, what soeuer disoese he had. And there was a man, which had lyen sicke eight and thirtie yeares. When Jesus sawe him lye, and knewe that he had lyen so longe, he saide vnto him: Wilt thou be made whole? The sicke answered him: Sir, I haue no man, when the water is moued, to put me in to the pole. And when I come, another steppeth downe in before me.

Jesus sayde vnto him: Arise, take vp thy bed, and go thy waye. And immediatly the man was made whole, and toke vp his bed and wente his waye. But vpon the same daye it was the Sabbath. Then sayde the Jewes vnto him that was made whole: To daye is the Sabbath, it is not lawfull for the to cary the bed. He answered them: He that made me whole, sayde vnto me: Take vp thy bed, and go thy waye. Then axed they him: What man is that, which sayde vnto the: Take vp thy bed, and go thy waye? But he that was healed, wist not who he was: for Jesus had gottē himself awaye, because there was much peple.

Afterwarde founde Jesus him in the temple, and sayde vnto him: Beholde, thou art made whole, synne no more, lest a worse thinge happen vnto the. The mā departed, and tolde the Jewes, that it was Jesus, which had made him whole. Therefore dyd the Jewes persecute Jesus, and sought to slaye him, because he had done this vpon the Sabbath.

But Jesus answered them: My father worketh hither to, and I worke also. Therfore sought the Jewes the more to slaye him: because he brake not onely the Sabbath, but saide also, that God was his father, and made him self equall with God. The answered Jesus, and sayde vnto them: Verely verely I saye vnto you: The sonne can do nothinge of himself, but that he seyth the father do. For what soeuer he doeth, that doeth the sonne also. The father loueth the sonne, and sheweth him all that he doeth, and wyll shewe him yet greater workes, so that ye shal marueyle. For as the father rayseth vp the deed, and maketh them lyue, euē so the sonne also maketh lyuynge whom he wyll. For the father iudgeth no man, but hath geuen all iudgment vnto the sonne, that they all mighte honoure the sonne, even as they honoure the father. Whoso honoureth not the sonne, the same honoureth not the father, which hath sent him.

Verely verely I saye vnto you: Who so heareth my worde, and beleueth him that sent me, hath euerlastynge life, and cometh not in to damnacion, but is passed thoro from death vnto life.

Verely verely I saye vnto you: The honoure cometh, and is now already, the deed shal heare the voyce of the sonne of God: and they that heare it, shal lyue. For as the father hath life in him self, so likewise hath he geuen vnto the sonne, to haue life in him self: and hath geuen him power also to execute iudgment because he is the sonne of mā. Maruaile not ye at this: for the houre cometh, in which all that are in the graves, shal heare his voyce, and shal go forth, they that haue done good, vnto the resurrection of life: but they that haue done euell, vnto the resurrection of damnacion.

I can do nothinge of my self. As I heare, so I iudge: and my iudgment is iust. For I seeke not myne owne wyll, but the wyll of the father which hath sent me. If I beare wytnesse of my self, my wytnesse is not true. There is another that beareth wytnesse of me, and I am sure, that the wytnesse which he beareth of me, is true.

He sent vnto Iohn, and he bare wytnesse of the truth. As for me, I take no recorde of mā, but these thinges I saye, that ye might be saued. He was a burnynge and shynynge light, but ye wolde haue reioysed a litle why he in his light. Neuertheles I haue a greater wytnesse then the wytnesse of Iohn. For the workes which the father hath geuen me to syn: sh, the same workes which I do, beare wytnesse of me, that the father hath

After this wente Iesus ouer the see vnto the cite Tiberias in Galilee. And moch people folowed him, because they sawe the tokens that he dyd vpon thē which were diseased. But Iesus wēt vp in to a mountayne, and there he sat with his disciples. And Easter y^e feast of the Ierues was nye. Then Iesus lift vp his eyes, and sawe y^e there came moch people vnto him, and he sayde vnto philippe: Whence shal we bye bred, y^e these maye eate? But this he sayde to proue him, for he himself knewe, what he wolde do.

philippe answered him: Two hundred peny worth of bred is not ynough amonge thē, y^e every onemaye take a litle. Thē sayde vnto hī one of his disciples, Andrew y^e brother of Symō Peter: There is a lad here, y^e hath fyue barlye loaves, and two fishes, but what is that amōge so many? Iesus sayde: Make the people syt downe. There was moch grasse in the place. Then they sat thē downe, aboute a fyue thousande men. Iesus toke the loaves, thanked, and gaue them to the disciples: the disciples (gaue) to them that were set downe. Likewyse also of the fishes as moch as they wolde.

Whan they were fylled, he sayde vnto his disciples: Gather vp the broken meate that remayneth, that nothinge be lost. Thē they gathered, and fylled twolue baskettes with the brokē meate, that remayned of the fyue barlye loaves, vnto them which had eaten. Now whan the men sawe the tokens y^e Iesus dyd, they saide: This is of a truely the prophet, y^e shulde come into the worlde. Whan Iesus now perceaued that they wolde come, and take him vp, to make him kynge, he gat him awaye agayne in to a mountayne himself alone.

At euen wente his disciples downe to y^e see, and entred in to the shippe, and came to the other syde of y^e see vnto Capernaū. And it was darcke already. And Iesus was not come to thē. And y^e see arose thorow a grea- te wynde. Now whan they had rowed vps a fyue and twētie or thirtie furlonges, they sawe Iesus goinge vpon the see, and came nye to the shippe. And they were afrayed. But he sayde vnto them: It is I, be not afrayed. Then wolde they haue receaued him in to y^e shippe. And immediatly y^e shippe was at the londe whither they wente.

The nexte daye after, the people which stode on the other syde of the see, sawe that there was none other shippethere saue that one, wherinto his disciples were entred: and that Iesus wēt not in with his disciples in to the shippe, but y^e his disciples were gone awaie alone. Howbeit there came other shippes from Tiberias, nye vnto y^e place where they had eatē the bred, after y^e the LORDE had geuen thankes. Now whan the people sawe that Iesus was not there, neither his disciples, they toke shippe also, and came to Capernaum, and sought Iesus.

And whan they founde him on the other syde of the see, they sayde vnto him: Master, whan camest thou hither? Iesus answered thē, & sayde: Verely verely I saye vnto you: Ye seke me not because ye sawe y^e tokens, but because ye ate of the loaves, and were fylled. Laboure not for the meate which perissheth but y^e endureth vnto euerlastinge life, which the sonne of mā shal geue you: for him hath God the father sealed.

Thē sayde they vnto him: What shal we do, that we maye worke y^e workes of God? Iesus answered, and sayde vnto thē: This is the worke of God, that ye beleue on him, whom he hath sent. Then sayde they vnto him: What token doest thou thē, that we maye se and beleue y^e? What workest thou? Our fathers ate māna in the wyldernes, as it is wyttē: He gaue thē bred frō heauen to eate. Then sayde Iesus vnto thē: Verely verely I saye vnto you: Moses gaue you not bred from heauē, but my father geneth you the true bred from heauen: for this is that bred of God, which commeth from heauen.

Jesus wente vnto mount Oliuete, and early in the mornynge came he agayne in to the temple, and all the people came vnto him. And he sat downe, and taught them. And 3 scribes and pharises brought vnto him a woman taken in aduoutrye, and set her there openly, and sayde vnto him: Master, this woman was taken in aduoutrye, euē as the dede was adouynge. Moses in the lawe commaunded vs to stone such. What sayest thou? This they sayde, to tempte him, that they might haue wherof to accuse him. But Iesus stouped downe, and wrote with his fynger vpon the grounde. Now whyle they contynued arynge him, he lift him self vp, and sayde vnto them: He that is amonge you without synne, let him cast the first stone at her. And he stouped downe agayne, and wrote vpon the grounde. But whan they herde that, they wente out, one after another: the eldest first, and left Iesus alone, and the woman stoupinge before him. Iesus lift himself vp, and whan he sawe noman but the woman, he sayde vnto her: Woman, where are thine accusers? hath noman condemned the? She sayde: LORDE, no man. Iesus sayde: Neither do I cōdemne the, Go thy waye, and synne no more.

Then spake Iesus agayne vnto them, and sayde: I am the light of the worlde. He that foloweth me, shal not walke in darknesse, but shal haue the light of life. Then sayde the pharises vnto him: Thou bearest recorde of thy self, thy recorde is not true.

Iesus answered, and sayde vnto them: Though I beare recorde of my self, yet my recorde is true: for I knowe whence I came, and whither I go: but ye can not tell whence I come, and whither I go. Ye iudge after the flesh, I iudge no man: but yf I iudge, my iudgment is true: for I am not alone, but I and the father that hath sent me. It is wrytten also in youre lawe, * that the testimony of two men is true. I am one that beare wytnesse of my self: And the father that sent me, beareth wytnes of me also. Then sayde they vnto him: Where is thy father? Iesus answered: Ye neither knowe me ner yet my father. Yf ye knewe me, ye shulde knowe my father also. These wordes spake Iesus vpon the Godschest, as he taught in the tēple. And noman toke him, for his houre was not yet come.

Then sayde Iesus agayne vnto them: I go my waye, and ye shal see me, and Therefore haue I sayde vnto you, that ye shal dye in youre synnes. * For yf ye beleue not that I am he, ye shal dye in youre synnes.

Then sayde they vnto him: Who art thou then? And Iesus sayde vnto the: Euē the very same thinge that I saye vnto you. I haue many thinges to saye and to iudge of you. But he that sent me, is true: and loke what I haue herde of him, that speake I before the worlde, howbeit they vnderstode not, that he spake of the father.

Then sayde Iesus vnto them: Whan ye haue lift vp an hye the sonne of man, then shal ye knowe that I am he, and that I do nothunge of my self: but as my father hath taught me, even so I speake. They answered, and sayde vnto him: Thou art altogether borne in synne, and teachest thou vs? And they thrust him out.

Jesus herde, & they had thrust him out, and whā he had founde him, he sayde vnto him: Beleuest thou on the sonne of God? He answered, and sayde: LORD E, who is it, & I might beleue on him? Jesus sayde vnto him: Thou hast sene him, and he it is, that talketh with the. He sayde: LORD E, I beleue. And he worshipped him.

And Jesus sayde: I am come to iudgmēt into this worlde, that they which se not, might se: and that they which se, might be made blynde. And some of the pharises & were with him, herde this, and sayde vnto him: Are we then blynde also? Jesus sayde vnto the: * Yf ye were blynde, ye shulde haue no synne. But now that ye saye, we se, therfore youre sonne remaineth.

Ioh. 8. d
* Pro. 27. c

A Verely verely I saye vnto you: He & entrech not in at the dore in to the shepefolde, but clymmeth vp some other waye, the same is a thefe & a murtherer. But he that goeth in at the dore, is the shepherde of the shepe: to him yf porter openeth, and the shepe heare his voyce, and he calleth his awne shepe by name, and ledeth them out. And whan he hath sent forth his awne shepe, he goeth before them, and the shepe folowe him: for they knowe his voyce.

As for a straunger, they folowe him not, but flye from him: for they knowe not the voyce of straungers. This prouerbe spake Jesus vnto them, but they vnderstode not what it was, that he sayde vnto them.

Then sayde Jesus vnto them agayne: Verely verely I saye vnto you: * I am the dore of the shepe. All they that are come be fore me, are theues and murchures. But yf shepe harkened not vnto them. I am the dore. If eny man entre in by me, he shal be saued, and shal go in and out, and fynde pasture. A thefe cometh not, but for to steale, kyll, and destroye. I am come, & they might haue life, and haue it more abundantly.

Ioh. 14. a

I am a good shepherde. A good shepherde geueth his life for the shepe. But an hyred seruaunt, which is not the shepherde, nether the shepe are his awne, seyth yf wolfe comynge, and leaueth yf shepe, and flyeth. And the wolfe catcheth & scattereth yf shepe. But the hyred seruaunt flyeth, because he is an hyred seruaunt, and careth not for the shepe. I am a good shepherde, & knowe myne, and am knowne of myne. Euē as my father knoweth me, and I knowe yf father. And. I geue my life for my shepe. And I haue yet other shepe, which are not of this folde, and those same must I brynge also, and they shal heare my voyce, and there shalbe one flocke and one shepherde.

Ioh. 3. a
There laye one sicke, named Lazarus of Bethania, in that towne of Mary and hir sister Martha. It was that Mary which anoynted the LORD with oylment, and dried his fete with hir heer, whose brother Lazarus laye sicke. The sent his sisters vnto hi, and sayde: LORD, behold, he whom thou louest lyeth sicke. Whan Ihesus herde that, he sayde: This sicknesse is not vnto death, but for the prayse of God, for the sonne of God maye be praysed there thorow. Jesus loued Martha and hir sister, and Lazarus. Now whan he herde that he was sicke, he abode two dayes in that place where he was.

Afterwarde sayde he vnto his disciples: Let vs go agayne into Jewry. His disciples sayde vnto him: Master, lately wolde the Jewes haue stoned the, and wilt thou go thither agayne? Jesus answered: Are there not twelue houres in this daye? he that walketh in the daye, stumbleth not, for he seeth the light of this worlde. But he that walketh in the night, stumbleth: for there is no light in him.

Mat. 9. c

This he spake, and afterwarde sayde he vnto the: Lazarus is slepyng, but I go to wake him out of slepe. The sayde his disciples: LORD, yf he slepe, he shal do well ynough. Howbeit Ihesus spake of his death, but they thought that he had spoke of that slepe.

Iy slepe. The sayde Ihesus vnto the planely: Lazarus is deed, and I am glad for your sakes, for I was not there, that ye maye beleue. Nevertheless let vs go vnto hi. The sayde Thomas (which is called Didimus) vnto the disciples: Let vs go also, for we maye dye with hi.

The came Ihesus, and founde that he had lyen in that graue foure dayes already. Bethanye was nye vnto Ierusalem, aboute fiftene furlonges. And many of the Jewes were come to Martha and Mary, to comforte the over their brother. Now whan Martha herde that Ihesus came, she wente to mete him. But Mary satt styl at home.

The sayde Martha vnto Ihesus: LORD, yf thou haddest bene here, my brother had not bene deed. But neuertheles I knowe also, what soeuer thou wilst of God, that God wyl geue it the. Ihesus sayde vnto her: Thy brother shal ryse agayne. Martha sayde vnto hi: I knowe, that he shal ryse agayne in the resurreccion at that last daye. Ihesus saide vnto her: I am the resurreccion and the life. he that beleueth on me, shal lyue, though he were deed already: and whosoener lyueth and beleueth on me, shal neuer dye. Beleuest thou this? She saide vnto him: Yee LORD, I beleue, that thou art Christ the sonne of God, which shulde come in to the worlde. And whan she had sayde this, she wente hir waye, and called Mary hir sister secretly, and saide: The maister is come, and calleth for the. She whan she herde that, rose vp quykly, and came vnto him: For Ihesus was not yet come in to that towne, but was yet in the place, where Martha met him. The Jewes that were with her in the house and comforted her, whan they sawe Mary, that she rose up haistely, and wente out, they folowed her, and saide: She goeth to the graue, to wepe there.

Now whan Mary came where Ihesus was, and sawe him, she fell downe at his fete, and sayde vnto hi: LORD, yf thou haddest bene here, my brother had not bene deed. Whan Ihesus sawe her wepe, and the Jewes wepinge also that came with her, he groined in the spere, and was sorry in himself, and sayde: Where haue ye layed him? They sayde: LORD, come, and se it. And Ihesus wepte. Then sayde the Jewes: Beholde how he loued him. But some of the sayde: Coude not he, which opened the eyes of the blynde, haue made also, that this man shulde not haue dyed? But Ihesus groined agayne in himself, and came to the graue. It was a caue, and a stone layed on it. Ihesus saide: Take awaye the stone. Martha the sister of him that was deed, saide vnto hi: LORD, he stynketh already, for he hath bene deed foure dayes.

The gospel

of S. Iohn.

Jesus sayde vnto her: Sayde I not vnto the, that yf thou dyddest beleue, thou shuldest see the glory of God?

E Then toke they awaye the stone, where the deed laye. Jesus lift vp his eyes, and sayde: Father, I thanke y, that thou hast herde me. Howbeit I knowe, that thou hearest me allwaye: but because of y people that stonde by, I sayde it, that they maye beleue, that thou hast sent me.

Whan he had sayde this, he cryed loude: Lazarus come forth. And y deed came forth bounde hande & foote wth graue clothes, & his face bounde wth a napkyn. Jesus sayde vnto the: Lowse him, & let him go. Many now of y Jewes which nere come vnto Mary, and sawe what Jesus dyd, beleued on him. But some of the wente their waye vnto the pharises, and tolde the what Jesus had done.

P Then the hye prestes, and the pharises gathered a councell, and sayde: What do we? This man doth many tokens. If we let him go thus, all maner wyl beleue in him: the shal the Romaynes come, and take awaye oure londe and people. But one of them, named Caiphas, which was hye prest that same yere, sayde vnto them: We knowe nothinge nether confidie ye eny thinge at all. It is better for us that one man dye for the people, then that all the people shulde perishe.

S This spake he not of himself, but for so moch as he was hye prest of the same yere, he prophecied. For Jesus was for to dye for the people, and not for the people onely, but that he shulde gather together the children of God, which were scatered abroad: From that daye forth they toke coucell, how they might put him to death. Jesus walked no more openly amonge the Jewes, but wente from thence in to a countre by the wyldernes, to a cite called Ephraim, & there had he his beyng with his disciples.

I The Jewes Easter was nye at hande. And there wente vp many to Ierusalem out of that countre before y Easter, to purifie them selues. Then stode they vp, and aied after Jesus, and spake amonge them selues in the temple: What thynke ye, that he cometh not to y feast? The hye prestes & pharises had geuen a commaundement, that yf eny man knewe where he were, he shulde shewe it, that they might take him.

The XII. Chapter.

S Ire dayes before Easter came Jesus vnto Bethanye, where Lazarus was, which was deed, whom Jesus rayied vp from the deed. There they made him a supper, and Martha serued. But Lazarus was one of them, that sat at the table with him. Then toke Mary a pounce of oyntment of pure and costly Nardus, and anoynted Jesus fete, & dryed his fete with hir heer. The house was full of the sauoure of the oyntment. Then sayde one of his disciples, Judas Iscarioth Symons sonne, which afterwarde betrayed him: Why was not this oyntment solde for thre hundred pens, and geuen to the poore? (This sayde he not that he cared for the poore, but because he was a thefe, and had the bagge, and bare that which was geue.) Then sayde Jesus: Let her alone, this hath she kepte agaynst the daye of my buryenge. For the poore haue ye allwaye with you, but me haue ye not allwaye.

Then moch people of the Jewes had knowlege, that he was there, and they came not for Jesus sake onely, but also y they might se Lazarus, whom he had rayied from the deed. But y hye prestes were aduysed to put Lazarus to death also: because y for his sake many of the Jewes were awaye and beleued on Jesus.

Vpon the nexte daye moch people which were come vnto the feast, whan they herde that Jesus came towarde Ierusalem, they toke braunches of palme trees, and were out to meete him, and cryed: Hosanna, Blessed be he, that in the name of the LORDE cometh kynge of Israel. Jesus gat a yonge asse, and rode thereon, As it is wyrted: Sea re not thou daughter of Sion, beholde, thy kynge cometh rydinge vpon an Asses foale. Neuertheles his disciples understode not these thinges at the first, but whan Jesus was glorified, then remembred they that soch thinges were wyrted of him, and that they had done soch thinges vnto him.

The people that was with him whan he called Lazarus out of y graue and rayied him from the deed, commended the acte. Therefore the people met him, because they herde, that he had done soch a miracle. But the pharises sayde amonge them selues: We se, that we preuaile nothinge, beholde, all y wolde runneth after him.

There were certayne Grekes (amonge the that were come vp to Ierusalem to worshipe at the feast) the same came vnto Philippe, which was of Bethsaida out of Galile, & prayed him, and sayde: Syr, we wolde fayne se Jesus. Philippe came, & tolde Andrew. And agayne, Philippe and Andrew tolde Jesus. Jesus answered the, and sayde: The

These thinges spake Jesus, and departed awaye, and hyd himself from them. Or to whom is the arme of the LORDE opened? Therfore coulde they not beleue, for Esay saide a gayne: He hath blynded their eyes, and hardened their hert, that they shulde not se with the eyes, ner vnderstonde with the hert, & shulde be converted, and he shulde heale them. And he that heareth my wordes and beleueth not, I iudge him not, for I am not come to iudge the worlde, but to saue the worlde. He that refuseth me, and receaueth not my wordes, hath one already that iudgeth him. * The worde that I haue spoken, that shal iudge him at the last daye, for I haue not spoken of my self: but the father that sent me, hath geuen me a commaundement, what I shulde do and saye. And I knowe that his commaundement is life euerlastinge. Therfore loke what I speake, that speake I eue so, as the father hath sayde vnto me.

The XIII. Chapter.
Before the feast of Easter whan Jesus knewethat his tyme was come, that he shulde departe out of this worlde vnto y father, as he loued his which were in the worlde, euen so loued he them vnto the ende. And after supper, whan the deuill had already put into y hert of Judas Iscarioth Symons sonne, to betraye him, Jesus knowinge that the father had geuen all thinges in to his handes, & that he was come from God, and wente vnto God, he rose from supper, and layed asyde his upper garmentes, and toke a towell, and gyide it aboute him. Then came he vnto Symon Peter, and y same sayde vnto him: LORDE, shalt thou washe my fete? Jesus answered and sayde vnto him: What I do, thou knowest not now, but thou shalt knowe it herafter. The sayde Peter vnto him: Thou shalt neuer wash my fete. Jesus answered him: If I wash y not, thou shalt haue no parte with me. Symon Peter sayde vnto him: LORDE, not the fete onely, but the handes also and the heade.

Jesus sayde vnto him: He that is washed, needeth not, saue to washe y fete, but is cleane euery whytt. And ye are cleane: but not all. For he knewe his betrayer, therfore sayde he: ye are not all cleane.

The gospel

of S. Iohn.

Now whan he had washen their fete, and taken his clothes, he sat him downe agayne, and sayde vnto the: Wote ye what I haue done vnto you? Ye call me master and LORDE, and ye saye right therin, for so I am. If I then youre LORDE and master haue washen youre fete, ye ought also to wash one anothers fete. I haue geue you an ensample, that ye shulde do as I haue done vnto you. Verely verely I saye vnto you: the seruant is not greater then his lord: neither is the Apostell greater then he that sent him. If ye knowe these thinges, blessed are ye if ye do them. I speake not of you all, I knowe whom I haue chosen, but that the scripture might be fulfilled: He that eateth my bread, hath lift up his heele against me. I tell it you now, before it come, that whan it is come to passe, ye maye beleue, that I am he.

Verely verely I saye vnto you: He that receaueth whome I sende, receaueth me: and he that receaueth me, receaueth him that sent me. Whan Iesus had thus sayde, he was heuy in spere, and testified, and sayde: Verely verely I saye vnto you: One amonge you shal betraye me. Then the disciples looked one vpon another, and were in doute, of whom he spake. But there was one amonge his disciples, that leaned at the table on Iesus bosome, whome Iesus loued: to him beckened Symon Peter, that he shulde aske, who it was, of whom he spake. For the same leaned vpon Iesus brest, and sayde vnto him: LORDE, who is it? Iesus answered: It is he, vnto whom I dypped the soppe and gaue it. And he dypped in the soppe, and gaue it vnto Judas Iscariot Symons sonne. And after that soppe the deuill entred in to him.

Then sayde Iesus vnto him: That thou doest, do quickly. But that same wyse no man at the table, for what intent he sayde it vnto him. Some thought (for so moch as Judas had the bagge) that Iesus had sayde vnto him: Wyte that is necessary for vs agaynst the feast: Or that he shulde geue some thinge vnto the poore. Whan he had receaued the soppe, he wente out immediatly, and it was night.

Whan he was gone forth, Iesus sayde: Now is the sonne of man glorified, and God is glorified in him. If God be glorified in him, the shal god glouifie him also in hiself, and straight waye shal he glouifie him. Deare childe, I am yet a litle while with you. Ye shal see me, and (as I sayde vnto y Jewes) whither I go, thither can ye not come. And now I saye vnto you, A new commaundment geue I you, that ye loue together as I haue loued you, and euen so ye loue one another. By this shal euery man knowe that ye are my disciples, if ye haue loue one to another. Symon Peter sayde vnto him: LORDE, whither goest thou? Iesus answered him: Whither I go, thou canst not folowe me now, but thou shalt folowe me hereafter. Peter sayde vnto him: LORDE, why canst thou not folowe me now? I wil geue my life for thy sake. Iesus answered him: Wilt thou geue thy life for my sake? Verely verely I saye vnto thee: The cocke shal not crowe, tyll thou haue denyed me thryse.

The XIII. Chapter.

And he sayde vnto his disciples: Let not youre hert be afrayed. If ye beleue on God, the beleue also on me. In my fathers house are many dwellinges. If it were not so, I wolde haue tolde you: I go to prepare the place for you. And though I go to prepare the place for you, yet wil I come agayne, and receaue you vnto myself, and ye maye be where I am. And whither I go, ye knowe, and the waye knowe ye also.

Thomas sayde vnto him: LORDE, we knowe not whither thou goest, and how can we knowe the waye? Iesus sayde vnto him: I am the waye, and the trueth, and the life. No man cometh to the father but by me. If ye knewe me, ye knewe my father also. And fro hence forth ye knowe him, and haue sene him. Philippe sayde vnto him: LORDE, shewe vs the father, and it sufficeth vs. Iesus sayde vnto him: Thus longe am I with you, and hast thou not knowne me? Philippe, he that seyth me, seyth the father. And how sayest thou then: Shewe vs the father? Beleuest thou not that I am in the father, and that the father is in me? The wordes that I speake vnto you, those speake not I of myself: but the father that dwelleth in me, he doeth the workes. Beleue me, that I am in the father, and that the father is in me: Or els, beleue me at the leest for the workes sake.

Verely verely I saye vnto you: He that beleueth on me, shal do the workes that I do, and shal do greater then these: for I go to the father. And what soeuer ye are in my name, that wil I do, that the father maye be praysed in the sonne. If ye are any thinge in my name, I wil do it.

If ye loue me, kepe my commaundmentes. And I wil praye the father, and he shal geue you another comforter, that he maye byde with you for euer: euen the spere of trueth,

But that the woulde maye knowe that I loue y^e father. And as the father hath cōmaunded me, so do I. Aryse, let vs go hence.

The XV. Chapter.

I Am a true v^yne, and my father is an husbunde man. Euery braunch that bringeth not forth frute in me, shal he cut of: and euery one that bringeth forth frute, shal he pource, y^e it maye bringe forth more frute. Now are ye cleane, because of the worde, that I haue spokē vnto you. Wyde ye in me, and I in you. Like as y^e braunch can not bringe forth frute of it self excepte it byde in the v^yne, Euen so nether ye also, excepte ye abyde in me.

I am the v^yne, ye are the braunches. He that abydeh in me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth moch frute: for without me can ye do nothinge. He that abydeh not in me, is cast out as a v^yne braunch, and it wythereth, and men gather it vp, and cast it in to the fyre, and it burneth. * If ye abyde in me, and my wordes abyde in you, ye shal be what ye wyl, & it shal be done vnto you. Herin is my father praysed, that ye bringe forth moch frute, and become my disciples. Like as my father hath loued me, enē so haue I loued you. Cōtynue ye iⁿ my loue. * If ye kepe my cōmaundementes, ye shal cōtynue in my loue: like as I haue kepte my fathers cōmaundementes, and cōtynue in his loue.

These thinges haue I spoken vnto you, that my ioye might remayne in you, and y^e youre ioye might be perfecte. This is my cōmaundement, that ye loue together, as I haue loued you. No man hath greater loue, then to set his life for his frende. * Ye are my frendes, yf ye do that I commaunde you. Hence forth call I you not seruautes, for a seruaunt knoweth not what his lorde doeth. But I haue sayde that ye are frendes: for all that I haue herde of my father, haue I shewed vnto you. Ye haue not chosen me, but I haue chosen you, and ordeyned you, that ye go, and bringe forth frute, and that youre frute contynue, that what soeuer ye are the father in my name, he shulde geue it you.

This I commaunde you, that ye loue one another. If the woulde hate you, then knowe, that it hath hated me before you. If ye were of the woulde, the woulde wolde loue his awne. Howbeit because ye are not of the woulde, but I haue chosen you from the woulde, therefore the woulde hateth you. Remember my worde, that I sayde vnto you: The seruaunt is not greater then his lorde. If they haue persecuted me, they shal persecute you also: If they haue kepte my worde, they shal kepe yours also.

But all this shal they do vnto you for my names sake, because they knowe not him y^e sent me. If I had not come & spokē vnto thē, thē shulde they haue no synne. But now haue they nothinge to cloake their synne withall. He y^e hateth me, hateth my father also. If I had not done amōgethē the workes which no other mā dyd, they shulde haue no synne. But now haue they sent it, and yet haue they hated both me & my father. Nevertheless that the sayenge might be ful

And these things haue I sayde vnto you, that ye shulde not be offended. They shal excommunicate you. The tyme cometh, that who soeuer putteth you to death, shal thynke that he doth seruyce vnto God. Ioh. 1. 19. c I haue glorified y^e vpo^s earth, & finished y^e worke, y^e thou gauest me to do. And now glorifye me thou father by thine awne self, with y^e glory which I had ouer the worlde was. I haue declared thy name vnto y^e men, whom thou gauest me from the worlde. They were thine, and thou gauest them vnto me, and they haue kepte thy worde.

B Now knowe they, that all chinges what soeuer thou hast geuen me, are of the. For y^e wordes which thou gauest me, haue I geue vnto them, and they haue receaved them, & knowne of a trueth, that I am come forth from the, and haue belened, that thou hast sent me. I praye for them, and praye not for the * worlde, but for them whom thou hast geuen me, for they are thine. And all that is myne, is thine: and what thine is, that is myne. And I am glorified in them. And now am I no more in the worlde, and they are in y^e worlde, and I come to the. Holy father, kepe in thy name, those whom thou hast geue me, that they maye be one, like as we are. Whyle I was with the in the worlde, I kepe hem in thy name. Those y^e thou gauest me, haue I kepe, and none of them is lost, but that lost childe, that the * scripture might be fulfilled. But now come I vnto the, and this I speake in the worlde, that they maye haue my ioye perfecte in them. I haue geuen them thy worde, * and the worlde hateth the: for they are not of the worlde, euen as I also am not of the worlde. I praye not that thou shuldest take them out of the worlde, * but that thou kepe the fro euell. They are not of the worlde, as I also am not of the worlde.

C Sanctifye them in thy trueth. Thy worde is the trueth. Like as thou hast sent me in to the worlde, so haue I sent them in to the worlde: and for their sakes I sanctifye my self, that they also maye be sanctified in the trueth.

Cal. d Neuertheles I praye not for them onely, but also for those, which thorow their worde shal beleue on me, that they all maye be one, like as thou father art in me, and I in y^e, that they also maye be * one in vs: that the worlde maye beleue, that thou hast sent me. The XVIII. Chapter.

Whan Jesus had thus spokē, he wēt forth with his disciples ouer the broke Cedron, where there was a gardē, in to the which Jesus entred and his disciples. But Judas y^e betrayed hī, knewe the place also. For Jesus resorted thither of tynes wth his disciples. Now whan Judas had takē vnto him the cōpany, & mynisters of the hye prestes and pharisees, he camethi ther with creshettes, wth lanternes, and with weapens. Jesus now knowinge all y^e shulde come vpon him, wēt forth, and sayde vnto the: Whom seeke ye. They answered him: Jesus of Nazareth. Jesus sayde vnto them: I am he. Judas also which betrayed him, stode with the. Now whan Jesus sayde vnto the: I am he, they wēt backwardes, and fell to the grounde. Then arode he the agayne: Whom seeke ye. They sayde: Jesus of Nazareth. Jesus answered: I haue tolde you, that I am he. If ye seeke me, then let these go their waye. That the worde might be fulfilled, which he sayde: Of them whō thou gauest me, haue I not lost one. Then had Symon Peter a swerde, and drew it out, and smote the hye prestes sernant, and cut of his right eare. And y^e sernantes name was Malchus.

B Then sayde Jesus vnto Peter: Put vp thy swerde in to the sheeth. Shal I not drynke of y^e cuppe, which my father hath geue me. Then the company and the captayne & the officers of the Jewes toke Jesus, and bounde him, & led him awaye first vnto Annas, that was fatherlawe vnto Caiphas, which was hye prest y^e same yeaere. It was Caiphas, which gaue coucell vnto y^e Jewes that it were good, that one man shulde dye for the people.

As for Symon Peter, he and another disciple folowed Jesus. The same disciple was knowne vnto the hye prest, and wēt in with Jesus in to the hye prestes palace. But Peter stode without at the dore. Then y^e other disciple which was knowne vnto the hye priest, wente out, and spake to the damsell & kepte the dore, and brought in Peter. Then the damsell that kepte the dore, sayde vnto Peter: Art not thou also one of this mans disciples? He sayde: I am not.

C The seruantes & officers stode, and had made a fyre of coles (for it was colde) & warmed the selues. Peter also stode with them, and warmed h.m self. The hye priest axed Jesus of his disciples, and of his doctryne. Ioh 7. b Jesus answered him: I haue spoken openly before the worlde, I haue euer taught in the synagoge and in the tēple, whither all the Jewes resorted, & in secretes haue I spokē no thinge. Why axest thou me? Are the & haue herde, what I haue spoken vnto the: beholde, they can tell what I haue sayde. Mat 26. g Mar. 14. g Luc. 22. d Symō Peter stode and warmed him self. The & sayde they vnto him: Art not thou one of his disciples? He denyed, and sayde: I am not. A seruante of the hye priestes, a kynsmā of his, whose eare Peter had smytten of, sayde vnto him: Dyd not I se the in the garde with him?

D Then Peter denyed agayne. And immediately the cock crew. Then led they Jesus from Caiphas in to the comen hall. And it was early in the mornynge. And they themselves wete not in to the comō hall, lest they shulde be defyled, but & they might eate & Pascall lambe. Then wente Pilate out vnto the, and sayde: What accusation brynge ye agaynst this man? They answered, and sayde vnto him: If he were not an euell doer, we had not delyuered him vnto the. Then sayde Pilate vnto the: Take ye him, and iudge him after yō lawe. Then sayde y Jewes vnto him: It is not lausfull for vs to put eny mā to death. That y worde of Jesus might be fulfilled, which he spake, whan he signified, what death he shulde dye. Ioh. 11. d Mat 27. a Mar. 15. a Luc 23. a

Then entred Pilate in to the comon hall agayne, and called Jesus, & sayde vnto him: Art thou the Kyng of the Jewes? Jesus answered: Sayest thou that of thy self, or haue other tolde it the of me?

E Pilate answered: Am I a Jewe? Thy people and the hye priestes haue delynered the vnto me. What hast thou done? Jesus answered: My Kyngdome is not of this worlde. If my Kyngdome were of this worlde, my mynisters wolde fight therfore, & I shulde not be delynered vnto the Jewes. But Ioh. 6. b now is my Kyngdome not from hence. The & sayde Pilate vnto hī: Art thou a Kyng the? Jesus answered: Thou sayest it, for I am a Kyng. For this cause was I borne, and came in to the worlde, that I shulde testifie the trneth. Who so cuer is of the trneth, heareth my voyce. Pilate sayde vnto hī: What is the trneth? And whan he had sayde that he wete out agayne to the Jewes, and sayde vnto them: I fynde no gyltynesse in him: Mat 27. c Mar. 15. b Luc. 23. b Mat 27. b Mar. 15. a Luc. 23. a But ye haue a custome, that I shulde geue one vnto you lowse at Easter. The XIX. Chapter.

Then Pilate toke Jesus, and scourged him. And the soudyers platted a crowne of thornes, and set it vpon his heade, and put a purple garment vpon him, and sayde: Hail Kyng of the Jewes. And they smote him on the face. Then wente Pilate forth agayne, and sayde vnto the: Beholde, I brynge him forth vnto you, & ye may knowe, & I fynde no faulte in hī. So Jesus wente out, & ware a crowne of thorne and a purple robe. And he sayde vnto them: Beholde, the man. Whan the hye priestes & the mynisters sawe him, they cryed, & sayde: Crucifye, crucifye. Pilate saide vnto the: Take ye him, and crucifye him, for I fynde no gyltynesse in him. The Jewes answered him: We haue a lawe, & after our lawe he cughte to dye, because he made him self the sonne of God. Whan Pilate herde that worde, he was the more afrayed, and wente agayne in to the comen hall, and sayde vnto Jesus: Whence art thou? But Jesus gaue him no answer. The & sayde Pilate vnto him: Speakest thou not vnto me? Knowest thou not, & I haue power to crucifye y, & haue power to lowse y? Jesus answered: Thou shuldest haue no power vpo me, yf it were not geue the from above. Therefore he that delynered me vnto y, hath the more synne. From that tyme forth Pilate sought meanes to lowse him. But the Jewes cryed, & sayde: If thou let him go, thou art not the Emperours frēde. seate, in the place which is called the Panement, but in the Hebrue, Gabbatha. It was the daye of preparinge of the Easter aboute the sixte houre. And he sayde vnto the Jewes: Beholde y^e kynge. But they cryed: Awaye wth him, awaye wth him, crucifie him. Pilate saide vnto the: Shal I crucifie y^e kynge? The hye prestes answered: We haue no kynge but y^e Emper^r. The belyue red he him vnto them, to be crucified.

They toke Jesus, and led him awaye. And he bare his crosse, and wente out to the place called y^e place of deed men skulles, which in Hebrue is named Golgatha, wher they crucified him, and two other with him, on either syde one, but Jesus in the myddes. Pilate wrote a superscripcion, and set vpon the crosse. And there was wrytten: Jesus of Nazareth, kynge of the Jewes. This superscripcion red many of the Jewes. For y^e place where Jesus was crucified, was nye vnto the cite. And it was wrytten in Hebrue, Greeke & Latyn. Then sayde the hye prestes of the Jewes vnto Pilate: Wryte not kynge of the Jewes, but y^e he sayde, I am kynge of the Jewes. Pilate answered: What I haue wrytten, that haue I wrytten.

The souldyers, whan they had crucified Jesus, toke his garmentes, and made foure partes, to every souldyer one parte, and the cote also. As for the cote, it was vnsewed fr^o above, wrought thorow and thorow. Then sayde they on to another: Let vs not deuyde it, but cast lottes for it, who shal haue it, that the scripture might be fulfilled, which sayeth: They haue parted my garmentes amonge them, and on my cote haue they cast lottes. This dyd the souldyers in dede.

There stode by the crosse of Jesus, his mother, and his mothers sister Mary, the wife of Cleophas, and Mary Magdalene. Now whan Jesus sawe his mother, and the disciple stondynge by, wh^o he loved, he sayde vnto his mother: Woman, beholde, that is thy sonne. Then sayde he to the disciple: beholde, that is thy mother. And from that houre the disciple toke her vnto him.

After that whan Jesus knewe that all was perfourmed, that the scripture might be fulfilled, he sayde: I am a thyrst. There stode a vessell full of vyneger. They fylled a sponge with vyneger and woude it aboute with ysope, and helde it to his mouth. Now whan Jesus had receaved the vyneger, he sayde: It is fynished, and bowed his heade, and gaue vp the goost.

The Jewes then, for so moch as it was the daye of preparinge, that y^e bodies shulde not remaine vpon the crosse on the Sabbath, (for y^e same Sabbath daye was greater) besought Pilate, that their legges might be broken, and that they might be taken downe. Then came the souldyers, and brake the legges of the first, and of the other that was crucified with him. But whan they came to Jesus, and sawe that he was deed already, they brake not his legges, but one of the souldyers opened his syde with a speare. And immediatly there wente out bloude and water.

And he that sawe it, bare recorde, and his recorde is true. And he knoweth that he sayeth true, that ye might beleue also. For this is done, y^e the scripture might be fulfilled: Ye shal not breake a bone of him. And agayne, another scripture sayeth: They shal se him, whom they haue pearshed.

After that, Ioseph of Arimathia, which was a disciple of Jesus (but secretly for feare of the Jewes) besought Pilate, y^e he might take downe the body of Jesus. And Pilate gaue him lycence. There came also Nicodemus, (which afore came vnto Jesus by night) & brought of Myrr^e & Aloes mingled together, aboute an halfdredre pounde weight.

The toke they the body of Jesus, & woude it with linnen clothes, and with the spyces, as the maner of the Jewes is to burye. And by y^e place where Jesus was crucified, there was a gard^e, and in the garden a new sepulchre, where in was neuer man layed: there layed they Jesus, because of the preparinge daye of y^e Jewes, for the sepulchre was nye at hande.

The XX. Chapter.

Upon one daye of the Sabbath, came Mary Magdalene early (wh^e it was yet darcke) vnto the sepulchre, & sawe that the stone was tak^e from the sepulchre. Then ranne she, & came to Symon Peter, and to y^e other disciple, whom Jesus loved, and sayde vnto them: They haue tak^e awaye the LORDE out of the sepulchre, & we can not tell wher they haue layed him. The wete Peter forth and the other disciple, and came to the sepulchre. They rane both together, and that other disciple out rane Peter, and came first to the sepulchre, and loke in, and sawe the linnen clothes layed. But he wete not in. The came Symon Peter after him, and wente in to the sepulchre, & sawe the linn^e clothes lye, and the napkyn that was bounde aboute Jesus heade, not layed with the linnen clothes, but wrapped together in a place by it self. The wete i also y other disciple, which came first to y sepulcre, z he sarre

z beleued: for as yet they knewe not y scriptures, y it behoued hi to ryse agayne fro y deed. The wete y disciples agayne together.

23 As for Mary, she stode before y sepulcre
z wepte without. Now as she wepte she loked in to the sepulcre, and sawe two angels
in whyre garmentes syttinge, y one at the heade, z the other at y fete, where they had layed the body of Jesus. And they sayde vnto her: Woman, why wepest thou? She saide
vnto the: They haue taken awaye my LOR-
DE, z I wore not where they haue layed hi.
And whan she had sayde y, she turned her self backe, z sawe Jesus stondinge, z knewe not y it was Jesus. Jesus sayde vnto her:
Woman, why wepest thou? Whom seekest thou? She thought y it had bene y gardener, z sayde vnto him: Syr, yf thou hast borne him hence: then tell me wherethou hast layed him? and I wil fetch hi. Jesus sayde vnto her: Mary. Then turned she her aboute, z sayde vnto him: Rabboni, y is to saye:
Master. Jesus sayde vnto her: Touche me not, for I am not yet ascended vnto my father. But go thou y waye vnto my brethre
z saye vnto the: I ascende vp vnto my father and yo father: to my God, z yo God. Mary Magdalene came, z tolde y disciples: I haue sene the LORDE, z soch thinges hath he spoken vnto me.

C The same Sabbath at euē whā y disciples were gathered together, and the doores were shut for feare of y Iewes, came Jesus, and stode i y myddes, z sayde vnto the: Peace be w you. And whā he had so sayde, he shewed
the his hādes z his syde. The were y disciples glad, y they sawe y LORDE. The sayde
Jesus vnto the agayne: Peace be with you.
Like as my father sent me, enē so sende I you.
And whan he had sayde y, he brethed vpo
the, and sayde vnto the: Receaue the holy goost. Whose synnes soeuer ye remytte, they are remytted vnto the: and whose synnes so
euer ye retayne, they are retayned.

But Thomas one of the twelue, which is called Didimus, was not w the whā Jesus came. The sayde the other disciples vnto him: We haue sene the LORDE. But he sayde vnto the: Excepte I se in his handes
the prynte of the nailes, and put my hāde in to his syde, I wil not beleue.

D And after eight dayes agayne were his disciples with in, z Thomas w the. The came Jesus (whā y doores were shut) z stode in the myddes, z sayde: Peace be w you. After

y sayde he vnto Thomas: Reach hither y
fynger, and se my handes, and reach hither
y hāde, z put it i to my syde, z be not faithlesse, but beleue. Thomas answered, z sayde vnto him: My LORDE, and my God. Jesus sayde vnto him: Thomas, because thou hast
sene me, thou hast beleued. Blessed are they,
that se not, and yet beleue.

Many other tokes dyd Jesus before his disciples, which are not wyrtē in this boke.
But these are wyrtē, y ye shulde beleue, y
Jesus is Christ the sonne of God, z that ye thorow beleue might haue life in his name.

The XXI. Chapter.

After that shewed Jesus himself agay
ne at the see of Tiberias But on this wyl shewed he himself. There were together Symō Peter, z Thomas which is called Didimus, z Nathanael of Cana a cite of Galile, z the sonnes of Zebede, z two other of his disciples. Symon Peter sayde vnto the: I go a fyshinge. They sayde vnto hi: We also wil go w the. They wete out, z entred into a shippe straight waye. And y same night toke they nothinge. But whā it was now morow, Jesus stode on the shore,
but his disciples knewe not y it was Jesus.
Jesus sayde vnto the: Childre, haue ye eny thinge to eate? They answered hi: No. He sayde vnto the: Cast out the nett on y right syde of the shippe, z ye shal fynde. The they cast out, z coulde no more drawe it for y multitude of fishes. The sayde y disciple w hō
Jesus loued, vnto Peter: It is the LORDE.

Whan Simon Peter herde that it was the LORDE, he gyde his mantell aboute
him (for he was naked) and sprang in to y
see. But other disciples came by shippe (for they were not farre fro londe, but as it were two hundred cubytes) and they drew the net with the fishes. Now whan they were come to londe, they sawe coles layed, and fysh theron, and bried. Jesus sayde vnto the:
Drynge hither of the fyshes, that ye haue caten now. Symon Peter stepped forth, and drew the nett to the londe, full of greate
fyshes, an hundred and thre and fystie.
And for all there were so many, yet was not the net broken.

Jesus sayde vnto them: Come, and dyne.
But none of the disciples durst aye him:
Who art thou? For they knewe, that it was the LORDE. Then came Jesus, and toke y bried, and gaue it the: and the fysh like wy-
se. This is now the thirde tyme that Jesus appeared vnto his disciples, after that he was ryse agayne from the deed.

The gospell

Now whā they had dyncd, Jesus sayde vnto Symon Peter: Symō Johāna, louest thou me more then these do? he sayde vnto him: Yee LORDE, thou knowest & I loue the. He sayde vnto him: Sede my lābes. He sayde vnto him agayne the seconde tyme: Symō Johāna, louest thou me? he sayde vnto him: Yee LORDE, thou knowest, & I loue y. He sayde vnto him: Sede my shepe. He saide vnto him y thirde tyme: Symon Johāna, louest thou me? Peter was sory, because he sayde vnto him, louest thou me? And he sayde vnto him: LORDE, thou knowest all thinges, thou knowest, that I loue y. Jesus sayde vnto him: Sede my shepe.

Verely verely I saye vnto the: Whan thou wast yōge, thou gerdest thyselfe, and walkedst whither thou woldest. But whā thou art olde, thou shalt stretch forth thy handes, and another shal gyde the, and lede the whither then woldest not. But this he sayde, to signifye with what death he shulde glorifye God.

Whan he had spoken this, he sayde vnto him: Folowe me. Peter turned him aboute, and sawe the disciple folowinge, whom Jesus loued, (• which also leane d vpo his brest at the supper, and sayde: LORDE, who is it that betrayeth the): Whā Peter sawe him, he sayde vnto Jesus: LORDE, but what shal he do? Jesus sayde vnto him: If I wil that he tary tyll I come, what is that to the? Folowe thou me. Then wente there out a sayenge amongethe brethien: This disciple dyeth not. And Jesus sayde not vnto him: He dyeth not, but: If I wil that he tary tyll I come, what is that to the? This is the same disciple, which testifieth of these thinges, and wrote these thinges, and we knowe that his testimony is true.

There are many other thinges also that Jesus dyd, which, yf they shulde be wyrtē enery one, I suppose the woulde shulde not cōtayne the booke, that were to be wyrtē.

of The Apostles.

The Actes of the Apostles.

The first Chapter.

The first treatise (beare Theophilus) haue I made of all that Jesus began to do and to teache, vntyll y daye that he was taken vp, after that he (thorow the holy goost) had geuen commaundementes to the Apostles, whom he had chosen: to whos also he shewed himself alyue after his passion, by many tokes, and appeared vnto them foureye dayes longe, and spake vnto them of the kyngdome of God.

And whan he had gathered them together, he commaunded them that they shulde not departe from Jerusalem, but to wayte for the promyse of the father, wherof (sayde he) ye haue herde of me: For I hon baptysed with water, but ye shalbe baptysed w y holy goost, & that within this few dayes.

Now whan they were come together, they asked him, and sayde: LORDE, shalst thou at this tyme set vp the kyngdome of Israel agayne? But he sayde vnto them: It belongeth not vnto you to knowe the tymes or seasons, which the father hath kepte in his owne power, but ye shal receaue the power of y holy goost, which shal come vpon you, and ye shalbe my witnesses at Jerusalem, and in all Jewrye and Samaria, and vnto the ende of the earth.

And whan he had spoken these thinges, whyle they behelde, he was taken vp, and a cloude receaued him from their sight. And whyle they looked after him, as he wente in to heauen, beholde, there stode by them two men in whyte garmentes, which also sayde:

They wondred all and marueyled, and sayde amonge them selues: Beholde, are not all these which speake, of Galile? How heare we the euery one his awne tunge, wherein we were borne? Parthians and Medes, and Elamites, and we that dwell in Mesopotamia, and in Jewry and Capadocia, Pontus, and Asia, Phugia and Paphlunia, Egippte, and in the partes of Lybia by Cyren, and straungers of Rome, Jewes and * Proselytes, Cretes and Arabians: we heare them speake with oure awne tungen the greates workes of God.

Ro. 10. b the Moone in to bloude, before that greate and notable daye of the LORDE come. And it shall come to passe, Who so euer shall call vpon the name of the LORDE, shall be saved.

C Remen of Israel, heare these wordes: Jesus of Nazareth, & man approued of God amonge you with miracles, and wonders and tokens, which God dyd by him in the myddes amonge you, as ye y^e selues knowe also, & him (after that he was deliuered by the determinate counsell and foreknowledge of God) haue ye taken by the handes of vnrightheous persones, and crucified him, & slayne him, whō God hath raysted vp, and lowsed the sorowes of death, for so much as it was vnpossyble that he shulde be holden of it. For Dauid speaketh of him: Afore hande haue I set the LORDE all wayes before me, for he is on my right hōde, that I shulde not be moued. Therfore dyd my hert reioyse, and my tunge was glad: For my flesh also shall rest in hope. For thou shalt not leaue my soule in hell, nether shalt thou suffer & holy to se corrupcion. Thou hast shewed me the wayes of life, thou shalt make me full of ioye with thy countenaunce.

1. Reg. 2. b Remen and brethien, let me frely speake vnto you of the Patriarke Dauid: For he is deed and buried, and his sepulchre is with vs vnto this daye. Wherefore now seinge & he was a prophet, and knewe that God had promised him with an ooth, that the frute of his loynes shulde sit on his seate, he sawe it before, and spake of the resurrection of Christ: for his soule was not left in hell, nether hath his flesh sene corrupcion. This Jesus hath God raysted vp, wherof we all are witnesses.

Philipp. 2. a Seynge now that he by the right hande of God is exalted, and hath receaued of y^e father y^e promyse of the holy goost, he hath shewed forth this, that ye se and heare. For Dauid is not ascended in to heaven, but he sayde: The LORDE sayde vnto my LORDE: Sit thou on my righte hande, vntyll I make thine enemies y^e foote stole. So therfore let all the house of Israel knowe for a suertye, & God hath made this same Jesus (whom ye haue crucified) LORDE and Christ.

Zach. 12. c Whan they herde this, their hert pricked them, and they sayde vnto Peter and to the other Apostles: Remen and brethien, What shall we do? Peter sayde vnto them: Amēde youre selues, and let every one of you be baptysed in the name of Jesus Christ, for there myssien of synnes, and ye shall receaue the gifte of the holy goost. For this & promyse was made vnto you and youre children, and to all that are farre of, whō so euer the LORDE oure God shall call. And wth many other wordes bare he witnesse, and exorted them, and sayde: Saue youre selues from this vntowarde generacion. They that gladly receaued his preachinge, were baptysed, & the same daye there were added vnto them aboute thre thousande soules.

They contynued in the Apostles doctryne, and in the felashippe, and in brea kyng of bred, and in prayer. And feare came vpon euery soule, and many wonders and tokens were done by y^e Apostles. But all they that beleeued, were together, and had all thinges common. They solde their goodes and possessions, and parted them out amonge all, accordinge as euery mā had neede. And they contynued daylie with one acorde in the temple, and brake bred in euery house: they toke their meate with ioye & synglenesse of hert, praysinge God, and had fauoure with all y^e people. And the LORDE added to the congregacion daylie sōch as shulde be saued.

The III. Chapter.

Peter and Jhon wente vp together in to the temple aboute the nyenth houre to praye. And there was a certayne man halt from his mothers wombe, whom they brought and layed daylie at the gate of the temple, which is called, the Bery full, that he might receaue almesse of them that wete in to the temple. Now whan he sawe Peter and Jhon, that they wolde in to the temple, he desyred to receaue an almesse. Peter behelde him with Jhon, and sayde: Loke on vs. And he gaue hede vnto them, hopynge to receaue some thinge of them. Howbeit Peter saide: Syluer and golde haue I none: but sōch as I haue geue I the. & In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth ryse vp & walke. And he toke him by the righte hande and lifte him vp. Immediately his legges & ancle bones were made strōge, and he sprang, stode and walked, and entred with them in to the temple, walkynge, and leaping and praysinge God.

And all the people sawe him walke and prayse God. And they knewe him, & it was he, which sat for almesse at the beryfull gate of the temple. And they were fylled with wondryng, and were astonnyed at that, which had happened vnto hī. But as this halt which was healed helde him to Peter and Jhon, all the people ranne vnto them in to the porche, which is called Salomōs, and rōndred.

Whan Peter sawe that, he answered vnto the people: Ye men of Israel, why mar-
naye ye at this, or why loke ye so at vs, as though we by oure awne power or deseruynge, had made this man to walke: The God
of Abraham and of Isaac, and of Jacob, y
God of oure fathers hath glorified his chil-
de Jesus, * whom ye deliuered and denyed
in the ptesence of Pilate, whan he had indged him to be lowied. But ye denyed the holy and iust, and desyied the murtherer to be geuen you, but ye slerre the prynce of life,
whom God hath raysted from the deed, of the which we are witnesses. And thorow y faich in his name, hath he confirmed his name vpon this man, whom ye se and knowe:
and faich thorow him, hath genē this man
this health before youre eyes.

Now deare brethre, I knowe that ye haue done it * thorow ignorance, as dyd also your rulers. But God, which by the mouth of all his prophetes had shewed before, y
his Christ shulde suffre, hath so fulf lled it.
Do penance now therfore and turne you,
that youre synnes maye be done a waye, whan the tyme of refreshinge shal come before the ptesence of the LORDE, and whan
he shal sende him, which now before is preached vnto you, euen Jesus Christ: which must receaue heauen vntyll the tyme that all thinges, which God hath spoken by the mouth of his holy prophetes sence y woul-
de beganne, be restored agayne.

For Moyses sayde vnto y fathers: A prophet shal the LORDE youre God raye vp vnto you, euen from amonge youre brethren,
like vnto me: him shal ye heare, in all that he shal saye vnto you. And it shal come to passe, what soule soeuer shal not heare the same prophet, shal be destroyed from amonge
the people. And all the prophetes from Samuel and thence forth as many as haue spoken, haue likewise tolde of these dayes.

Ye are the children of the prophetes and of the couenaunt, which God made vnto o fathers, whan he sayde vnto Abrahā: Tho-row y sede shal all y naciōs of y earth be blessed. * First vnto you hath God raysted vp his childe Jesus, z sent hī vnto you, to blesse you
y euery one shulde turne frō his wickednesse.

The III. Chapter.

As they spake to y people, there came vnto thē the prestes and the rulers of the tēple, and the Saducees,
whō it greued y they taught the people, z
preached in Jesu y resurreccion frō the deed
and they layed handes vpon them, and put

thē in holde tyll the morow: for it was now euentyde. Howbeit many of thē which her-de the worde, beleued, and the nombre of y
men was aboute fyue thousande.

And it chanced on y morow, that their rulers and Elders and scribes (as Annas y
hye prest and Caiphas, and Jhon z Alexander, and as many as were of the hye prestes kynred) gathered them selues together at Jernsalem, and set them before them, and axed them: By what auctoute, Or in what name haue ye done this?

Peter full of the holy goost, sayde vnto
them: Ye rulers of the people, and ye Elders
of Israel, If we this daye be examyned con-
cernynge this good dede vpon the sicke mā,
by what meanes he is made whole, be it
knowne then vnto you and to all the people of Israel, * that in y name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom ye crucified, whō God hath raysted vp from the deed, stōdeth this man here before you whole. This is the stone refused of you buylders, which is become the heade corner stone, nether is there salua-cion in eny other: * Ner yet also is there genē vnto mē eny other name, wherin we must be saued.

They sawe the boldnesse of Peter z Jhon
and marueyled, for they were sure y they were vnlearned men and laye people. And they knewe thē also, that they were th Jesu. As for the man y was made whole, they sawe
hī stōdinge by thē, z coulde not saye agaynst
it. Then cōmaunded they thē to stōde asyde
out of y councell, z cōmened amonge thē sel-ues, z saide: * What shal we do to these mē? *
for a manyfest token is done by them, and is openly knowne vnto thē that dwell at Jerusalem, and we can not denye it. But that it breake out no farther amonge the people, let vs threate them earnestly, that hence forth
they speake of this name vnto noman.

And they called them, and cōmaunded
thē, that in eny wyse they shulde not speake
ner teache in the name of Jesu. But Peter z Jhon answered, and sayde vnto thē: Judge
ye youre selues, whether it be right before God, that we shulde be more obedient vnto you, then vnto God. We can not chose, but speake that we haue sene z herde. But they threatened them, and let them go, and foun-
de nothinge how to punyshe them because of y people: for they all praysed God because of that, * which was done. For the man,
vpon whom this token of health was done,
was aboute fourtye yeare olde.

And whan they were let go, they came to

they herde that, they lifte vp their voyce wth
one acorde vnto God, and sayde: LORDE,
thou that art the God which made heauen
and earth, and the see, and all that therein is thou that by the mouth of Dauid thy ser-and y^e people ymagin vayne thinges? The kynge of the earth stonde vp, and the prygaynst y^e LORDE, and agaynst his. Chust.

Of a trueth agaynst thy holy childe Iesus,

ſtedfaſt boldneſſe to ſpeake thy worde: and ſtretch out thine hande, that healinge and tokēſ and wonders maye be done by the na-

D And whā they had prayed, the place moued where they were gathered together, z
they were all fylled with y^e holy goost, z ſpa-ke the worde of God boldly. The multitude of them that beleued, were of one hert and of one ſoule. Alſo none of them ſayde of his goodes, that they were his awne, but had all thinges cōmen. And with greate power gaue the Apoſtles witneſſe of the reſurreccion of the LORDE Ieſu, and greate grace
was with them all. Neither was there eny amonge them that lacked. For as many as were poſſeſſers of landes or houſes, ſolde thē
and brought y^e money of the goodes that were ſolde, and layed it at the Apoſtles fete.
And diſtribucion was made vnto every mā,
acordinge as he had nede.

Joſes which was alſo called of y^e Apoſtles, Barnabas (that is to ſaye, the ſonne of conſolacion) a Leuite, of the countre of Cy-pers, had lande, and ſolde it, z brought the money, and layed it at the Apoſtles fete.

The V. Chapter.

At a certayne man named Ananias
with Saphira his wife, ſolde his poſſeſſion, and kepte awaye parte of the money (his wife knowinge of it) and broughte one parte, z layed it at the Apoſtles fete. But Peter ſayde: Ananias, Wherfore hath Sathan' fylled thine hert, that thou ſhuldeſt lye vnto the holy goost, and withdrawe awaye parte of the money of the lyeuclod? Mighteſt thou not haue kepte

it, whan thou haddeſt it? And whan it was ſolde, the money was alſo in thy power:
Why haſt thou then concealed this thinge
in thine hert? Thou haſt not lyed vnto mē, but vnto God. Whan Ananias herde theſe wordes, he fell downe, z gane vp the goost.
And there came a greate feare vpon all thē
that herde of this. The yonge men roſe vp,
and put him aſyde, and caried him out, and buried him.

And it fortunēd as it were aboute y^e ſpace of thre houres after, his wiſe came in, and knewe not what was done. But Peter anſwered vnto her. Tell me, ſolde ye the lande for ſomoch? She ſayde: Yee, for ſo moch. Peter ſayde vnto her: Why haue ye agreed together, to tempte the ſpīte of the LORDE?
Beholde, the fete of thē which haue buried
thy huſbande, are at the doore, z ſhal carye
the out. And immediatly ſhe fell downe at his fete, and gaue vp the goost. Then came in the yonge men, and founde her deed, and caried her out, and buried her by hir huſbā-
de. And there came a greate feare ouer the whole congregacion, and ouer all thē that herde it.

Many tokēſ and wonders were done
amonge the people by the hādes of the Apoſtles (and they were all together with one acorde in Salomons porche: but of other

But the hye prieſt roſe vp, and all they y^e
were with him, which is the ſecte of the Sa-
duces, and were full of indignacion, z layed handes on the Apoſtles, and put them in

DE by night opened the priſon doores, and brought thē out, and ſayde: Go youre waye
and ſteppe vp, and ſpeake in the temple to the people all the wordes of this liſe. Whan
they herde that, they entred in to the temple
early in the mornynge: and taught.

But the hye prieſt came, and they y^e were
with him, and called the counsell together,

sent to the prison to fet them. The mynisters came and founde them not in the prison, came agayne, and tolde, and sayde: The prison founde we shut with all diligence, and the keepers stondinge without before the dores: but whā we had opened, we founde no man therein. Whan the hye priest, and the rulers of the temple and the other hye prestes herde these wordes, they doutted of them, wher vnto this wolde growe.

D Then came there one, which tolde them: Beholde, the men that ye put in prison, are in the temple, stondinge and teachinge the people. Then wete þ rulers with their mynisters, and fetchd them without violence: Mat. 21. c * for they feared the people, lest they shulde haue bene stoned. And whan they had brought them, they sethē before the counsell. And the hye priest axed them, and sayde: Act. 4. b Dyd not we * comaunde you strately, that ye shulde not teache in this name. And behold, ye haue fylled Jerusalem with youre doctryne, and ye intende to brynge this mans bloude vpon vs. Mat. 27. c

But Peter and the Apostles answered, and sayde: We ought more to obeye God then men. The God of oure fathers hath raysed vp Jesus, whō ye slewe, and hanged on tre. Him hath the righte hande of God exalted, to be a prynce and Sauoure, to geue repentance and forgiveness of synnes vnto Israel. And we are his recordes of these wordes, and the holy goost, whō God hath geuen vnto thē that obeye him. Whā they herde that, it wente thorow the hertes of them, and they thoughte to slaye them.

Act. 22. a E Then stode there vp in þ counsell a pharise, named Gamaliel, a scribe, had in greate reputacion before all þ people, and bad put the Apostles asyde a litle, and sayde vnto them: Ye men of Israel, take hede to youre selues, what ye do as touchinge these men. Before these dayes rose vp one Theudas, boostinge himself. (And there cleued vnto him a nobre of mē, aboute a foure hundreth) which was slayne, and all they þ enclyned vnto him, were scatred abroad, and brought to naught. After this stode vp Judas of Galile in þ dayes of tribute, and drew awaye moch people after him, ⁊ he also perished, ⁊ all they that enclyned vnto him, are scatred abroad. And now I saye vnto you: refrayne yō selues frō these men, and let thē go. * Mal. 1. a Mat. 23. b If this counsell or worke be of mē, it wil come to naught: but yf it be of God, ye are not able to destroye it, lest ye be founde to be the men, that wil stryue agaynst God. they agreed vnto him, and called the Apostles, and bet them, and commaunded them, that they shulde speake nothinge in the name of Jesu, and let them go.

But they departed from the presence of the counsell, reioysinge, that they were worthy to suffre rebuke for his names sake. And daylie in the temple and in every house they ceassed not, to teache and to preache the Gospell of Jesus Christ. Mat. 23. a

The VI. Chapter.

In those dayes whan the nombre of the disciples increased, there arose a grudge amonge the Grekes agaynst the Hebrewes, because their wyddowes were not looked vpon in the daylie handbreachinge. Then the twolue called the multitude of the disciples together, and sayde: It is not mete that we shulde leaue the worde of God, and to serue at the tables. Wherfore brethren, loke out amonge you sent men, * that are of honeste reporte, and full of the holy goost and wysdome, whom we maye appoynte to this nedefull busynes. But we wil geue oure selues vnto prayer, and to the mynistracion of the worde of God. And the sayenge pleased the whole multitude. And they chose Steven, a man full of fayth and of the holy goost, and Philippe, and Procorus, and Nicanor, and Timon, and Parmenas, and Nicolas the proselite of Antioche. * These they set before y Apostles, and they prayed, and layd their handes vpon them. And the worde of God increased, and the nombre of the disciples multiplied greatly at Jerusalem. And there were many prestes also obedient vnto the fayth. 1. Tim. 3. b

Steven full of faith and power, dyd wonders and greate tokens amonge the people. Then arose there certayne of the synagoge, which is called (the synagoge) of y Libertynes, ⁊ of the Cyrenites, and of the Alexandrines, and of thē þ were of Celicia and Asia, ⁊ disputed with Steuē, * and they coulde not Luc. 21. b resiste the wysdome and the spiete, out of the which he spake. And they moued the people, and the Elders and the scribes, and came vpon him, ⁊ caught him, and brought him before the counsell, and set false witnesses there, which sayde: This man ceaseth not to speake blasphemous wordes agaynst this holy place and the lawe. For we herde him saye: Jesus of Nazareth shall destroye this place, and chaunge the ordinances which Moses gave us. And all they that sat in the council, looked upon him and saw his face as the face of an angel.

The VII. Chapter.

When sayde the hye prest: Is it enē so? He sayde: Deare brethren and fathers, hearken to, The God of glorye appeared vnto o^r father Abraham, whyle he was yet in Mesopotamia, before he dwelt in Haran, and sayde vnto him: Get y^e out of thy countre, and fro thy kynred, and come in to a lande which I wil shewe y^e. The wente he out of the lande of the Caldees, and dwelt in Haran. And from thence, when his father was deed, he brought him ouer in to this lande (where ye dwell now) and gaue him no inheritaunce therein, no nor y^e bredth of a fore: and promysed him, that he wolde geue it him to p^ossesse, and to his seede after him, when as yet he had no childe.

But thus sayde God vnto him: Thy seede shalbe a straunger in a straunge lande, and they shal make bonde men of them, and intreate the euell foure hundred yearres: and y^e people whom they shal serue, wil I iudge, sayde God. And after that shal they go forth, and serue me in this place. And he gaue him the conenaunt of circūcision. And he begat Isaac, and circūcised him the eight daye. And Isaac begat Jacob, and Jacob begat the twelue Patriarkes.

And the Patriarkes had indignacion at Joseph, and solde hi in to Egypte. And God was with him, and deliuered him out of all his troubles, and gaue him fauoure and wysdome in the sight of Pharaos kynge of Egypte, which made him pryncce ouer Egypte and ouer all his house.

But there came a verth ouer all the lande of Egypte and Canaan, and a greate trouble, and oure fathers founde no sustenaunce. But Jacob herde that there was come in Egypte, and sent oure fathers out the first tyme. And at the seconde tyme was Joseph knowne of his brethien, and Josephs kynred was made knowne vnto Pharaos. But Joseph sent out, and caused his father and all his kynred to be broughte, enē the seoure and systene soules. And Jacob wente downe in to Egypte, and dyed, both he and oure fathers, and were brought ouer vnto Sichem, and layed in the sepulchre, that Abraham boughte for money of the children of Hemor at Sichem.

Now ha the tyme of the promes due nye (which God had sworne vnto Abraham) the people grewe and multiplied in Egypte, tyll there rose another kynge, which knewe not of Joseph. The same dealte suttely wth oure kynred, and intreated oure fathers euell and made them to cast out the yonge children, that they shulde not remayne alyne.

At the same tyme was Moses borne, and was a proper childe before God, and was noursed thre monethes in his fathers house. But when he was cast out, Pharaos daughter toke him vp, and noursed him vp for hir awne sonne. And Moses was learned in all maner wysdome of the Egyptians, and was mightie in dedes and wordes.

But when he was fourtye yeare olde, he came in to his mynde to v^{is}it his brethien the children of Israel. And when he sawe one of them suffre wronge, he helped him, and deliuered him, that had the harme done vnto him, and slewe the Egyptian. But he thought that his brethien shulde haue vnderstode, how that God by his hande shulde saue the, howbeit they vnderstode it not.

And on the nexte daye he shewed himself vnto them as they stroue together, and wolde haue set them at one agayne, and sayde: Syrs, ye are brethien, why hurte ye one another? But he that dyd his neighbour wronge, thrust him awaye, and sayde: Who made the a ruler and iudge ouer vs? Wilt thou slaye me also, as thou slewest the Egyptian yesterdayer? But Moses fled at that sayenge, and was a straunger in the lande of Madian, where he begat two sonnes.

And after fourtye yeares, the angell of y^e LORDE appeared vnto him vpon mount Sina, in a flamme of fyre in a bushe. Whan Moses sawe it, he wondred at the sighte. But as he drew nye to beholde, y^e voyce of y^e LORDE came vnto him: I am the God of thy fathers, the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. Howbeit Moses trembled, and durst not beholde. But y^e LORDE sayde vnto hi: Put of thy shues from thy fete, for y^e place where thou stondest, is an holy grounde. I haue well seene the trouble of my people in Egypte, and haue herde their groynge, and am come downe to deliuer them. And now come, I wil sende the in to Egypte.

This Moses, whom they refused, and sayde: Who made y^e a ruler and iudge ouer vs? him had God sent to be a ruler and deliuerer by the hande of the angell, that appeared vnto him in the bushe. The same broughte them out, and dyd wonders and tokens in Egypte, and in the reed see, and in y^e wyldernesse fourtye yeares. This is that Moses,

This is he, that was in the congregacion in the wyldernesse with the angell, which talked with him, vpo mount Sina, and with oure fathers. This man receaued the worde of life to geue vnto vs, vnto whom oure fathers woulde not be obediēt, but thrust him fro the, and in their hertes turned backe agayne into Egypte, and sayde vnto Aaron: Make vs goddes to go before vs, for we can not tell what is become of this Moses, & broughte vs out of the lande of Egypte. And they made a calfe at the same tyme, and offred sacrifice vnto the ymage, and reioysed in the workes of their awne handes.

of the Apostles.

When the Apostles which were at Jerusalem, herde, that Samaria had receaved the worde of God, they sent vnto the Peter and Iohn. Which, whā they were come, prayed for the, & they might receaue the holy goost. For as yet he was come vpon none of them but they were baptysed onely in the name of Christ Iesu. * Then layed they their handes on them, and they receaued the holy goost.

But when Simon sawe, that by the layenge on of the Apostles handes the holy goost was geuen, he offered the money, and sayde: Geue me also this power, that, on whomsoever I put the handes, he maye receaue the holy goost. Hon. be it Peter sayde vnto him: Perishe thou with thy money, * because thou thinkest that the gifte of God maye be bought with money. Thou shalt haue nether parte ner felashipe in this worde, for the hert is not righte before God. Repente therfore of this thy wickednesse, and praye vnto God, yf happily the thought of thy hert maye be forgiven. For I see, & thou art full of bytter gall, and wrapped in vnrighteousnesse.

Then answered Simon, & sayde: * Praye ye vnto the LORDE for me, & none of these thinges wherof ye haue spoken, come vpon me. And they, whā they had testified and spoken the worde of the LORDE, turned agayne to Jerusalem, and preached the Gospell in many townes of the Samaritanes.

But the angell of the LORDE spake vnto Philippe, and sayde: Arise, & go towards the South, vnto the waye that goeth downe from Jerusalem vnto Gaza, which is deserte. And he rose, and wente on. And beholde, a man of the Morians lode (a chamberlayne and of auctourite with Candace y quene of the londe of the Morians) which had the rule of all hir treasures, & came to Jerusalem to worshipec. And returned heme agayne, and satte vpon his charet, and red the prophet Esay.

The spiete sayde vnto Philippe: Go neare, and ioyn thy selfe to yonder charet. Then ranne Philippe vnto him, and herde him rede the prophet Esay, and sayde: Understandest thou what thou readeest? He sayde: How can I, excepte some man enfourme me?

Act. 11. b

And he desyred Philippe, that he wolde come vp, and syt with him. The tenoure of the scripture which he red, was this: * He was led as a shepe to be slayne, and as a lambe voycellesse before his shearer, so opened he not his mouth. In his humblenesse is his iudgment exalted. Who shal declare his generacion? for his life is taken awaye from the earth. Then answered the chamberlayne vnto Philippe, and sayde: I praye the, of whom speakech the prophet this? of himselfe, or of some other man?

Philippe opened his mouth, and beganne at this scripture, and preached him the Gospell of Iesus. And as they wete on their waye, they came to a water. And the chamberlayne sayde: Beholde, here is water, what hyndereth me to be baptysed? Philippe sayde: If thou beleue from thy whole herte, thou mayest. He answered, and sayde: I beleue, that Iesus Christ is the sonne of God. And he commaunded to holde still the charet, and they wente downe in to the water, both Philippe and the chamberlayne. And he baptysed him. But when they were come vp out of the water, the spiete of the LORDE toke Philippe awaye. And the Chamberlayne sawe him nomore. But he wente on his waye reioysinge. As for Philippe, he was founde at Asdod, and walked aboute, and preached the Gospell vnto all the cities, tyll he came to Cesarea.

The 11. Chapter.

Saul was yet breathing out threatenynge and slaughter agaynst the disciples of the LORDE. And wente vnto the hye preste, and desyred of him letters to Damascon vnto the synagoges, that yf he fonde any of this waye (whether they were men or women) he mighte brynge the bounde vnto Jerusalem. And as he was goinge on his iourney, it fortuned, that he came nye vnto Damascon, and sodenly there shyned rounde aboute hi a light fro heauen, and he fell to the earth, and herde a voyce, which sayde vnto him: Saul Saul * why persecutest thou me? He sayde: LORDE, who art thou? The LORDE sayde: I am Iesus, whō thou persecutest. It shalbe harde for y to lycke agaynst the prycke. And he both tremblinge and astonnyed, sayde: LORDE * what wilt thou that I shal do? The LORDE sayde vnto him: Arise, and go into the cite, there shal it be tolde the what thou shalt do.

Nevertheless they toke him by the honde, & broughte him to Damascon: and he was thre dayes without sighte, and nether ate ner dranke. At Damascon there was a disciple named Ananias, and vnto him sayde the LORDE in a vision: Ananias of the Apostles. Bo. lvi.

And he sayde: beholde, here am LORDE. The LORDE sayde vnto him: Arise, and go into the strete which is called straight, and are in the house of Juda after one called Saul of Tharsis: for beholde, he prayeth, & hath sene in a vision a mā named Ananias cōmyng vnto him, & layenge the hāde vpon him, that he might receaue his sighte.

Ananias answered: LORDE, I haue herde by many of this man, how moch euell he hath done to thy sayntes at Ierusalē. And here hath he auctorite of the hye prestes, to bynde alle those that call vpon thy name. The LORDE sayde vnto him: Go thy waye, for this man is a chosen vessell vnto me, that he maye beare my name before the heythen, and before kynges, and before the children of Israel. I wil shewe him, how greate thinges he must suffre for my names sake.

And Ananias wente his waye, and came into the house, and layed the handes vpon him, and sayde: Brother Saul, the LORDE which appeared vnto y in the waye as thou camest, hath sene me, that thou mightest receaue thy sighte, and be fylled with the holy goost. And immediatly there fell from his eyes as it had bene scales, and he receaued his sighte, and rose, and was baptysed, and toke meate, and was comforted.

Then was Saul a certayne dayes with the disciples that were at Damascon. And straight waye he preached Chust in the synagoges, how that he was y sonne of God. But all they that herde him, were amased, and sayde: Is not this he, which at Ierusalem spoyled all those that called on his name? and came hither to the intent that he shulde brynge them bounde vnto the hye prestes? But Saul increased in strength, & cōfounded y Jewes which dwelt at Damascon, and affirmed y this was very Christ.

And after many dayes the Jewes helde a counsell together to kyll him. But it was tolde Saul, that they layed wayte for him. And they wayted at y gates daye & night, that they might kyll him. Then the disciples toke him by nighte, & put him thorow the wall, and let him downe in a baslett.

But whan Saul came to Ierusalem, he assayed to ioynе himselfe to y disciples. And they were all afrayed of him, and belened not, y he was a disciple. Neuertheles Barnabas toke him, and broughte him to the Apostles, and tolde them how he had sene the LORDE in the waye, and how he spake to him, & how he had done boldly at Damascon in the name of Iesu. And he was with them, and wente out and in at Ierusalē, and quyte him selfe boldly in y name of y LORDE Iesu. He spake also, and disputed with y Grekes. But they were aboute to slaye him. Whan the brethien knewe y, they broughte him to Cesarea, and sent him forth to Tharsis. So the congregacions had rest thorow out all Jewry, and Galile, and Samaria, & were edified, and walked in the feare of the LORDE, and were fylled with the comforte of the holy goost.

It chaunced that as Peter walked thorow all quarters, he came also vnto y sayntes which dwelt at Lydda. There founde he a man named Eneas, which had lyen vpon his bedd eight yeaeres sicke of y palsye. And Peter sayde vnto him: Eneas, Iesus Chust make the whole, arise, and make thy bedd for y self. And he arose immediatly. And all they that dwelt at Lydda and at Saron, sawe him, and turned vnto the LORDE.

At Joppa there was a certayne woman that was a disciple, named Tabitha, which by interpretacion is called Dorcas: y same was full of good workes and almesse dedes, which she dyd. But it chaunced at the same tyme, that she was sicke, and dyed. Then washed they her, and layed her in a chāber. But for so moch as Lydda was nye vnto Joppa, and the disciples herde that Peter was there, they sent two men vnto him, and desyred him, y he wolde take it for no grese to come vnto them.

Peter rose, and came with them. And whā he was come, they broughte him in to the chamber, and all the wyddowes stode rounde aboute him, wepyng, and shewed him the cotes and garnētes, which Dorcas made whyle she was with them. And whā Peter had put them all forth, he kneeled downe, made his prayer, and turned him vnto the body, and sayde: Tabitha, rise vp. And she opened hir eyes: and whan she sawe Peter she sat hir downe agayne. But he gaue her the hande, and lifte her vp, and called the sayntes and the wedowes, and shewed her there alyne. And it was knowne thorow out all Joppa, & many belened on y LORDE. And it fortunēd, y he taried a lōge season at Joppa by one Simō, which was a tanner.

The X. Chapter.

There was a man at Cesarea, named Cornelius (a capteyne of y cōpany, which is called y Italianyshe) a deuoute man, & one that feared God w all his house, & gaue moch almesse to y people, and prayed God allwaye. The same sawe in a

of the Apostles.

vision openly (aboute the nyenth houre of the daye) an angell of God entringe in to him, and sayenge vnto him: Cornelius. He looked vpon him, and was afrayed, and sayde: LORDE, what is it? He sayde vnto him: Thy prayers & thine almeses are come vp in to remembraunce before God. And now send men vnto Joppa, & call for Simo, whose syname is Peter, which is at lodginge with one Symon a tanner, whose house lyeth by y^e see syde: he shal tell y^e, what thou oughtest to do. And whā the angell which spake to Cornelius, was departed, he called two of his household seruantes, & a deuoute souldyer, of thē that wayted vpon him: and tolde them all, and sent thē to Joppa.

On the nexte daye after whan these were goinge on their iourney, and came nye vnto the cite, Peter wente vp in to a chamber to praye aboute the sixte houre. And whan he was hōgrie, he wolde haue eatē. But whyle they made ready for him, he fell in to a trance, and sawe heauē open, and a vessell cōmyng downe vnto him, as it had bene a greate lynnē clothe, knytt at the foure corners, and was let downe to y^e earth, wherein were all maner of foure footed bestes of the earth, & wyld beestes, and wormes, and foules of the ayre. And there came a voyce vnto him: Arise Peter, slaye, & eate. But Peter sayde: Wh no, LORDE, for I neuer ate eny comen or vncleane thinge. And the voyce spake vnto him agayne y^e secōde tyme: What God hath cleysed, y^e make not thou vncleane. This was done thryse. And y^e vessell was receaued vp agayne in to heauen.

But whyle Peter was combred in him selfe, what maner of vision this shulde be which he had sene, beholde, the men y^e were sent from Cornelius, enquired after Simōs house, and stode before the dore, and called, and axed whether Simon (whose syname was Peter) were lodged there. Whyle Peter was musinge of the vision, the sprete sayde vnto him: beholde, the men seke the. Arise therefore, and get the downe, & go with thē, and doute not, for I haue sent them.

Then wente Peter downe to the men, y^e were sent vnto him from Cornelius, and sayde: lo, I am he whom ye seke: what is y^e cause, wherefore ye are come? They sayde: Cornelius the capytayne, a iust man and one that feareth God, and of good reporte amōge all the people of the Jewes, was warned by an holy angell, to sende for the in to his house, and to heare wordes of the. Then called he them in, and lodged them.

The nexte daye after wente Peter forth with them, and certayne brethren of Joppa bare him company. And y^e daye folowinge came they to Cesarea. Cornelius wayted for thē, and had called together his kynnsfolkes and speciall frendes. And as it chawced y^e Peter came in, Cornelius mett him, and fell downe at his fete, & worshipped him. But Peter toke him vp, and sayde: Stande vp, I am a man also. And as he talked wth him, he wente in, and founde many that were come together, and he sayde vnto them: Ye knowe, that it is not lausfull for a man beynge a Jewe to ioyne him selfe or to come to a straunger. But God hath shewed me, y^e I shulde call no mā cōmen or vncleane. Therefore haue I not doubted to come, as soone as I was sent for. I are you therfore, for what intent haue ye sent for me?

Cornelius sayde: It is now foure dayes ago, then fasted I, and at the nyenth houre I prayed in my house, and beholde, there stode a mā before me in a bryghte clothinge, and sayde: Cornelius, y^e prayer is herde, and thine almeses dedes are had in remembraunce in the sighte of God. Sende therefore to Joppa, and call for one Simon (whose syname is Peter) which is at lodginge in y^e house of Simon y^e tanner, by the see syde: y^e same whā he cometh, shal speake vnto y^e. Then sent I vnto the immediatly, and thou hast done well, that thou art come. Now are we all here presente before God, to heare all thinges that are commaunded the of God.

Peter opened his mouth, & sayde: Now perceauē I of a truerth, that God hath no respecte of personures, but in all people he y^e feareth him, and worketh righteousnes, is accepted vnto him. We knowe of y^e preachinge that God sent vnto the children of Israhel, preachinge thorow Iesus Christ (which is LORDE ouer all) which preachinge was published thorow out all Jewry, and begāne in Galile after y^e baptyeme that I hon preached, how God anoynted the same Iesus of Nazareth with the holy goost and wth power, which wente aboute, & dyd good, and healed all those that were oppressed of the deuell, for God was with him. And we are witnesses of all that he dyd in the londe of the Jewes, & at Jerusalem. Whom they slewe, and hanged on tre.

Whan God rayfed vp on the thirde daye, and caused him be openly shewed, not to all the people, but to y^e chosen witnesses of God even vnto vs, which ate & dronke with him, after he was risen vp from the deed. And

Of him beare all the prophetes wytnesse, that thorow his name all they y beleue in him, shal receaue remission of synnes. Whyle Peter was yet speakynge these wordes, the holy goost fell vpo all the that herkened vnto the worde. And the faithfull of the circūcision which came with Peter, were astonnyed, because that the giste of y holy goost was shed out also vpon the heythen. For they herde that they spake with tanges, and magnified God. The answered Peter: Maye eny man forbydde water, that these shulde not be baptysed, which haue receaued the holy goost as well as we? And he commaunded them to be baptysed in the name of the LORDE. The prayed they him, that he wolde tary there certayne dayes.

The XL Chapter.

21 The Apostles and the brethien that were in Jewrye, herde saye, that the heythen also had receaued the worde of God. And whan Peter was come vp to Jerusalem, they that were of the circūcision, chode with him, and sayde: Thou wentest into men that are vncircumcysed, and hast eaten with them. But Peter beganne, and expounded the thinge in order vnto the and sayde: I was in y cite of Joppa prayenge, and in a traunce I sawe a vision, a vessell commynge downe, as it had bene a greate linnen clothe with foure corners, and let downe from heauen, and came vnto me. In to the which I loked, and considered, and sawe foure forced beestes of the earth, and wylde beestes, and wormes, and foules of the ayre. And I herde a voyce, which sayde vnto me: Rysē Peter, slaye, z eate. But I sayde: Oh no, LORDE, for there neuer entred eny comen or vncleane thinge in to my mouth. Neuertheles the voyce answered me agayne from heauen: What God hath clenysed, that call not thou vncleane. This was done thre tymes, and all was taken vp agayne in to heauen.

Act. 10. c And beholde, immediatly stode there thre men before the dore of the house that I was in, sent from Cesarea vnto me. But the sprete sayde vnto me, that I shulde go with the and doute nothinge. These sixe brethie also came with me, and we entred in to the mā's house.

22 And he shewed vs, how he had sene an angell stondinge in his house, which sayde vnto him: Sende men to Joppa, and call for Simon (whose synname is Peter) he shal tell y wordes, wherby thou and all thy house shal be saved. But whan I beganne to speake, the holy goost fell vpo them, like as vpon vs at y begynnynge. Then thoughte I vpon the worde of the LORDE, how he sayde: I hon baptysed with water, but ye shalbe baptysed with y holy goost. For as moch then as God hath geuen them like gistes, as vnto vs, which beleue on the LORDE Jesus Christ, who was I, that I shulde be able to withstode God? Whan they herde this, they helde their peace, and praysed God, and sayde: Then hath God also to the heythen graunted repentance vnto life.

They that were scatred abroad thorow y tronble y rose aboute Steuen, walked on euerysyde vntyll phenices, and Cipers, and Antioche, and spake the worde vnto noman but onely vnto y Jewes. Neuertheles some of the were men of Cipers and Cyren, which came to Antioche, and spake also vnto the Grekes, z preached the Gospell of the LORDE Jesu. And y hande of the LORDE was with the. And a greate nombie beleued, and turned vnto the LORDE.

This tydinges of them came to y eares of the cōgregacion at Jerusalem. And they sent Barnabas, that he shulde go vnto Antioche. Which whan he was come thither, z sawe the grace of God, he was glad, and exorted them all, that with purpose of hert they wolde contynue in the LORDE. For he was a good man, full of the holy goost and faith. And there was a greate multitude of people added vnto the LORDE. But Barnabas departed vnto Tharsus, to seke Saul. And whā he had founde hī, he brought hī to Antioche. It chanced, that a whole yere they were there cōuersaunte together in the cōgregaciō, z taughte moch people, so that the disciples at Antioche were first called Christen.

In those dayes came there prophetes fro Jerusalem vnto Antioche. And one of them (whose name was y Agabus) stode vp, and declared by the sprete a greate verth, that shulde come ouer the whole compasse of the earth: which came to passe vnder the Emperoure Claudius. But the disciples cōcluded (euery one acordinge to his abylice) to sende an handreachinge vnto y brethien that were in Jewry: which thinge they alio dyd, and sent it by the handes of Barnabas and Saul.

The Actes

of the Apostles.

2 Mat. 4. c. In the sametyme layed kynge Herode handes vpon certayne of the congregacion, to vexe them. As for James the brother of Ihon, him he slew with the siverde. And whan he sawe that it pleased the Jewes, he proceeded farther to take Peter also. But it was Easter. Now whan he had taken him, he put him in prison, and deliuered him vnto foure quaternions of soudyers, to kepe him: and thought after Easter to bringe him forth to the people. And Peter was kepte in the prison. But prayer was made without ceasinge of the congregacion, vnto God for him. And whan Herode wolde haue broughte him out vnto the people, in the same nighte slepte Peter betwene two soudiers, bounde with two cheynes. And the keepers before the doore kepte the prison.

3 And beholde, the angell of the LORDE was there presente, and a lighte shyned in the habitation, and he smote Peter on the syde, and waked him vp, and sayde: Arise vp quicfly. And the cheynes fell off from his hondes. And the angell sayde vnto him: Gydethe, and put on thy shues. And he dyd so. And he sayde vnto him: Cast thy mantle aboute the, and folowe me. And he wente out, and folowed him, and wist not, that it was truely that was done by an angell, but thoughte he had sene a vision. Neuertheles they wente thorow the first and seconde watch, and came to the yron gate, that ledeyth vnto the cite, which opened to the by his awne accorde. And they wente out, and passed thorow one strete, and immediatly the angell departed from him.

C And whan Peter was come to himself, he sayde: Now I knowe of a truely, that y LORDE hath sent his angell, and deliuered me out of the honde of Herode, and from all the waytinge for of the people of the Jewes. And as he considered the thinge, he came to the house of Mary the mother of one Ihon, (which after his synname was called Marke) where many were gathered together, and prayed. As Peter knocked at the entry doore, there came forth a damsell to herken, named Rhoda. And whan she knewe Peters voyce, she opened not the entrye for gladnes, but cane in, and tolde, that Peter stode before the entrye. But they sayde vnto her: Thou art mad. Neuertheles she abode by it, that it was so. They sayde: it is his angell. But Peter continued knockinge. Whan they opened the doore, they sawe him, and were astonnyed. But he beckened vnto them with the hande, to holde their peace, and tolde them, how the LORDE had broughte him out of the prison. And he sayde: Shewe this vnto James, and to the brethren. And he departed, and wete in to another place.

Whan it was daye, there was not a litle a doo amonge the soudyers, what was become of Peter. Whan Herode had called for him, and founde him not, he caused the keepers to be examyned, and commaunded the to be caried awaye, and he wente downe fro Jewry vnto Cesarea, and there abode. But he was displeased with the of Tyre and Sidon. Neuertheles they came vnto him with one accorde, and made intercession to Blastus the kynges chamberlayne, and besyied peace, because their countre was nourished by the kynges londe. But vpon a daye appointed, Herode put on a kyngly apparell, sat him downe vpon the iudgment seate, and made an oracion vnto them. As for the people, they cried therto: This is a voyce of God, and not of a man. Immediatly the angell of the LORDE smote him, because he gaue not God the honoure: And he was eaten vp of wormes, and gaue vp the goost. But the worde of God grewe, and multiplied. As for Barnabas and Saul, they came agayne to Jerusalem, and deliuered the handreachinge, and toke with them Ihon, whose synname was Marke.

The XIII. Chapter.

1 Here were at Antioche in the congregacion, prophetes and teachers, as Barnabas, and Simon called Nigger, and Lucius of Cyren, and Manahen Herodes the Tetrachas norfelowe, and Saul. As they serued y LORDE, and fasted, the holy goost sayde: Separate me out Barnabas and Saul for the worke, where vnto I haue called them. Then fasted they and prayed, and layed the handes on them, and let them go. And they beyng sent of the holy goost, came vnto Seleucia, from thence they sayled vnto Cypers. And whan they were come in to the cite Salamin, they shewed the worde of God in the synagoges of y Jewes. And they had Ihon to their mynister.

And whan they had gone thorow out the yle vnto the cyte of Paphos, they founde a certayne Sorcerer and false prophete, a Jewe (whose name was Barjesu) which was with Sergius Paulus the ruler of the countre, a man of vnderstandinge. The same called Barnabas and Saul vnto him, and besyred to heare y worde of God. Then the * Sorcerer Elimas (for so was his name by interpretacion) withstode the, and soughte to turne awaye the ruler fro the faith. But Saul which is also called Paul, beyng full of the holy goost, loked vpon him, and sayde:

Thou childe of the denell, full of all subtil-
tie and all disceatfulnesse, and enemye of all righteousnes, thou ceassest not to peruer-te the straight wayes of y LORDE. And now beholde, the hãde of the LORDE commeth vpon the, and thou shalt be blynde, and not se the Sonne for a season, And immediatly
there fell on him a myst and darknesse, and he wente aboute, and soughte them that shulde lede him by the hande. Whan the ruler sawe what was done, he beleued, and wõ
died at the doctryne of the LORDE.

Whan Paul and they that were with him, were departed by shippe fro Paphos,
they came to Perga in the londe of Pamphilia. * But Jhon departed from them,
and wente agayne to Jerusalem. Neuertheles they wandred thorow from Perga, and came to Antioche in the londe of Pisidia,
and wẽte in to the synagoge vpon the Sabbath daye, and sat downe. But after the lecture of the lawe and of the prophetes, the rulers of the synagoge sent vnto them, say-
enge: Good brethrin, yf ye haue eny sermon to exorte the people, saye on. Then stode Paul vp, and * beckened with the hande (that they shulde holde their peace) and sayde:

Men of Israel, and yet that feare God,
herkẽ to: The God of this people chose oure fathers, and exalted the people, whan they were strangers in the lode of Egipte, and with a mightie arme broughte he them out of it. And by the space of fortye yea-res suffred he their maners in the wyldernes-
se, and destroyed seven nacions in the lande of Canaan, and parted their londe amonge them by lott. After that gaue he them iudges by the space of foure hundred and fiftye yea-res, vnto the prophet Samuel. And after that they besyred a kynge, and God gaue vnto them Saul the sonne of Cis, a man of the trybe of Ben Jamin, fortye yea-res longe. And whan he had put him downe, he set vp Dauid to be heir kynge, of whom he reported, sayenge: * I haue founde Dauid the sonne of Jesse, a man after my hert, he shal
fulfyll all my wyll.

Of this mans sede hath God (* acordinge to the promesse) broughte forth vnto the people of Israel, y Sauoure Jesus: whan

Jhon had first preached before his comynge
the baptyne of repentance vnto Israel.
But whan Jhon had fulfyllled his course,
he sayde: I am not he, that ye take me for.
But beholde, there commeth one after me,
whose shues of his fete I am not worthy to lowse. Ye men and brethren, ye children of the generacion of Abraham, and they that feare God amonge you, * vnto you is y worde of this saluacion sent. For the inhabiters of Jerusalem, and their rulers, for somuch as they knewe him not, ner yet the voyces of the prophetes (which are red eu-ery Sabbath) haue fulfyllled them in condemnyng him. And though they founde
no cause of death in him, yet desyred they Pilate to kyll him. And whan they had fulfyl-led all that was wyrtten of him, they toke
him downe from the tre, and layed him in a sepulchre. But on y thirde daye God ray-sed him vp from the deed, and he appeared many dayes vnto the, that wente vp with him from Galile vnto Jerusalem, which * are his witnesses vnto the people.

And we also declare vnto you y promises,
which was made vnto oure fathers, how
that God hath fulfyllled the same vnto vs
their children, in y he ray-sed vp Jesus agayne. As it is wyrtten in the seconde psalme:
Thou art my sonne, this daye haue I begotten the. But that he hath ray-sed him vp fro the deed, now nomore to returne to corrup-
cion, he sayde on this wyse: The grace promised to Dauid, wyl I faithfully kepe vnto
you. Therfore sayeth he also in another place: Thou shalt not suffre thy holy cose corruption. For Dauid, whan he in his tyme had serued the wyll of God, * he fell a slepe,
and was layed by his fathers, & sawe corruption. But he whõ God ray-sed vp agayne, sawe no corruption.

Be it knowne vnto you therfore ye men
and brethren, y thorow this man is preached
vnto you y forgeuenesse of synnes, and fro
all y thinges, wherby ye mighte not be iusti-fied in the lawe of Moyses. But whosoeuer beleueth on this man, is iustified. Bewarre therfore, that it come not vpon you, which is spoken in the prophetes: Beholde ye despy-sers, and wonder at it, and perishe, for I do a worke in youre tyme, which ye shal not beleue, yf eny man tell it you.

Whan the Jewes were gone out of the synagoge, the heythen besoughte them, y
they wolde speake y worde vnto them be-twene the Sabbath dayes. And whã the cogregacion of the synagoge was broken vp,

En y^e Sabbath folowinge, came almost the whole cite together, to heare the worde of God. But whan the Jewes sawe the people, they were full of indignacion, and spake agaynst that which was spoken of Paul, speakinge agaynst it, z blasphemynge. But Paul and Barnabas waxed bolde, and sayde: It behoued first the worde of God to be spoken vnto you: but now that yethrist is frō you, and counte youre selues vnworthy of cuerlastinge life, lo, we turne to the Gentyles. For so hath the LORDE comaunded vs: I haue set the to be a lighte vnto y^e Gentyles, y^e thou be y^e Saluacion vnto the ende of the earth. Whan the Gentyles herde that, they were glad, and praysed the worde of the LORDE, and beleued, euē as many as were ordeyned to cuerlastinge life. And the worde of y^e LORDE was spred abroad thorow out all the region. Howbeit the Jewes moued the deuoute and honorable women, and the chesemen of the cite, and raysed vp a persecucion agaynst Paul and Barnabas and expelled them out of their coastes. But they shoke of the dust of their fete agaynst them, and came to Iconium. And the disciples were fylled with ioye and with the holy goost.

At fortunē at Iconium, that they wēre both together in to the synagoge of the Jewes, and spake so, that a greate multitude of the Jewes z of the Grekes beleued. But whan there rose vp an insurreccion of the chēthē and of y^e Jewes, and of their rulers, to put them to shame, and to stone thē, they perceaued it, and fled vnto lystra and Derba cities of y^e countre of Licaonia, and vnto y^e region that lyeth rounde aboute, and therethey preached the Gospell.

But Jupiters prest which dwelle before their cite, broughte oren and garlandes before the gate, and wolde haue done sacrifice with the people.

Whan y^e Apostles Barnabas and Paul herde that, they rent their clothes, and ranne in amonge the people, cryenge and sayenge: Remē, Why do yethis? Gal. 3. a And there came certayne frō Jewry, and taughte the brethren: * Excepte ye be circumcysed after the maner of Moses, ye can not be saved. And they were brought on their waye by y^e cōgregacion, & wente thorow Phenices and Samaria, and declared the cōuersacion of the heythē, and brought greate ioye vnto all the brethren. Whan they came to Jerusalem, they were receaued of y^e cōgregacion, & of the Apostles, and of the Elders, & they tolde how greate thinges God had done with thē. Then rose there vp certayne of the secte of y^e Pharisees (which beleued) and sayde: They must be circumcysed and cōmaunded, to kepe the lawe of Moses. But the Apostles and Elders came together, to reason vpon this matter.

On the daye of the Sabbathes wete we

And a deuoute woman (named Lydia) a

And she * constrained vs.

there met vs a damsel, which had a spiete of

But whā hir master and maistresse sawe
that the hope of their vauntage was gone,

trouble oure cyte, z are Jewes, and preachy

And whan it was daye, the officers of the cite sent mynisters, and sayde: Let those men go. And the keeper of the prison tolde this sayenge vnto Paul: The officers haue sent hither, that ye shulde be loose. Now therefore get you hēce, and go in peace. But Paul sayde vnto them: They haue beaten vs openly vncōdemned (where as we are yet Rōmaynes) and haue cast vs in prison, and shulde they now thrust vs out priuely? Not so, but let them comethem selues, and brynge vs out. The mynisters tolde these wordes vnto the officers. But whan they founde them not, they dras Jason, and certayne brechren vnto the rulers of the cite, and cryed: These that trouble all the worlde, are come hither also, whom Jason hath receaued priuely. And these all do contrary to the decrees of the Emperoure, sayenge, that there is another kyng, one Jesus. They troubled the people, and the rulers of the cite, that herde this. D Paul stode on the myddes of the comon place, and sayde: Ye me of Athens, I se that in all thinges ye are so superstitious. I haue gone thorow, & sene youre gods seruyce, and founde an altare, where vpo was wrytten: To the vnknowne God. Now shewe I vnto you y same, whom ye worshippinge ignorauntly. God which made y woulde, and all that therin is, for so moch as he is LORDE of heauen and earth, * dwelleth not in temples made of handes, nether is he worshipped with mens handes, as though he had neede of eny man, seynge he himselfe geth liffe and breth vnto all men euery where: and hath made of one blode all the generacion of men to dwell vpo all the face of y earth: and hath assigned borders appoynted before, how longe and farre they shulde dwell, that they shulde seke the LORDE, yf they mighte fele and fynde him.

E And truly he is not farre from euery one of vs. For in him we lyue, moue, and haue oure beyng, as certayne of youre awne Poes also haue sayde: We are his generacion. For as moch then as we are the generacion of God, we oughte not to thinke that the Godheade is like vnto golde or syluer, or ymagery worke of the crafte or ymaginacion of man. And truly God hath ouersene tperyme of ignoraunce: * But now he commaundeth all men euery where to repent, because he hath appoynted a daye, in the which he wyl iudge the copasse of the worlde, with righteousnesse, by that one man in whos he hath appoynted it: and offred faith vnto all men, after that he had raysed him vp from the deed.

Whan they herde of the resurreccion of the deed, some mocked. But some sayde: We wyl heare the agayne of this matter. So Paul departed from amonge them. Howbeit certayne men claue vnto him, and beleued: amonge whom was Dionisius, one of the counsell: and a woman named Damaris, and other with them.

Whan Syllas and Timotheus were come fro Macedonia, Paul was constrained by the spiere to testifie vnto y Iewes, that Jesus was very Chist. But whā they sayde cōtrary and blasphemed, * he shoke his rayment, and sayde vnto them: Your bloude be vpon youre awne heade. From hence forth I go blamelesse vnto the Gentyles. And he departed thence, and came in to the house of a man named Justus, which feared God, and his house was nexte vnto the synagoge. Howbeit Crispus the cheseruler of the synagoge, beleued on y LORDE with all his housholde. And many of the Corinthians that gaue audience, beleued, and were baptysed.

The LORDE spake vnto Paul by a vision in y night: Be not afrayed, but speake, and holde not thy peace, for I am with the: and no man shal invade the that shal hurte the, for I hane moch people in this cite. He continued there a yere and sixe monethes, and taught them the worde of God.

But whan Gallio was ruler of the countre of Achaia, the Iewes made insurreccion w one accorde agaynst Paul, & broughed him before the iudgment seate, and sayde: This felowe counceleth men to worshipec God cōtrary to the lawe. Whan Paul was aboute to open his mouth, Gallio sayde vnto y Iewes: If it were a matter of wronge or an euell dede (O ye Iewes) reason wolde that I shulde heare you: but yf it be a questiō of wordes, and of names, and of y lawe amonge you, loke ye to it youre selues, I thinke not to be iudge there oer. And he droue them from the iudgment seate. Then all the Grekes toke Sosthenes the ruler of the Synagoge, and smote him before the iudgment seate. And Gallio cared for none of thothinges.

Paul after y he had taried a good whyle, toke his leue of the brethren, and sayled in to Syria, Puscilla & Aquila bearinge him company. And he shoke his heade at Cenchrea (for he had a * uowe) & came downe to Ephesus, & leste them there. But he himselfe wete in to the synagoge, and reasoned with the Iewes. And he cōsented not, but bad them farwelc, and sayde: I must nedes in eny wyse kepe this feast that commeth, at Jerusalem: but * yf God wyl, I wil retorne agayne vnto you.

The same beganne to speake boldly in the synagoge. Whan Aquila and Puscilla herde him, they toke him vnto the, and expounded the waye of God vnto him more perfectly. But whan he wolde go in to Achaia, the brechren wrote, and exorted the disciples to receaue him. And whan he was come thither, he helped them moch which beleued thorow grace. They sayde vnto hi: We haue not herde, whether there be an holy goost. He sayde vnto them: Where with then were ye baptysed? They sayde: With the baptyme of Ihon. Paul sayde: Ihon baptysed with the baptyme of repentance, and spake vnto y people, that they shulde beleue on him, which shulde come after him, that is, on Iesus, that the same is Chust. Whan they herde that, they were baptysed in the name of the LORDE Iesu. And whan Paul layed the hādes on the, the holy goost came vpon them, and they spake with tongues, and prophesied. wroughte no small miracles by the handes of Paul, so that from his body there were broughte napkyne or partlettes vnto the sicke, and the diseases departed from them, and the euell spiretes wente out of them.

But certayne of the vagabounde Jewes which were contruers, undertoke to name y name of the LORDE Iesus, ouer those that had euell spiretes, and sayde: We charge you by Iesus whom Paul preacheth. They were seven sonnes of one Sceua a Jewe the hye priest, which dyd so. The euell spirete answered, and sayde: Iesus I knowe, and Paul I knowe, but who are ye? And the mā in who the euell spirete was, ranne vpon them, and ouercame them, and cast them vnder him, so that they fled out of the same house naked and wounded. This was knowne vnto all the Jewes and Greekes which dwelt at Ephesus, and there fell a feare vpon them all. And y name of the LORDE Iesus was magnified. Many of the also that beleued, came and cōfessed, and shewed their workes. But many of them that had vsed curious craftes, broughte the booke together, and burnt them openly: and they counted the pryce of them, and founde it of money fiftie thousande pens. So mightely grewe y worde of the LORDE, and preuailed.

Whan this was done, Paul purposed in spirete to take his iourney thorow Macedonia and Achaia, and to go to Ierusalē, and sayde: After that I haue bene there, I must se Rome also. And he sent into Macedonia two that mynistred vnto him, Timotheus and Erastus. But he himselfe remayned in Asia for a season. At the same tyme thererose no litle doo aboute that waye. For a certayne man named Demetrius a goldsynth, which made syluer shrynes for Diana, and broughte them of the crafte no small vantage. Them he gathered together, and the felloweworkmē of the same occupacion, and sayde: Syrs, ye knowe that by this crafte we haue vantage, and yese and heare, that not onely at Ephesus, but almost also thorow out all Asia, this Paul turneth awaye moch people with his persuadyng, and sayeth: They be not goddes that are made with hondes. Howbeit it shal not onely bryng our occupacion to this poynte to be set at naught, but also the temple of greate Diana shal from hence forth be despyed, and hir maiesty also shalbe destroyed, who neuertheles all Asia and the woulde worshipperth.

with, cried out, and sayde: Greate is Diana of the Ephesians. And all þe cite was on a roore, and they rushed in with one assent in to the open place, and toke Gaius and Aristarchus of Macedonia, Pauls company ons. Whan Paul wolde haue gone in amonge the people, the disciples suffred him not. Certayne also of þe chiefe of Asia which were Pauls good frendes, sent vnto him, and desired him, that he shulde not preasse in to the open place. Some cried one thinge, some another. And the congregacion was out of quyetie, and the more parte knewe not wherfore they were come together. Some of the people bide forth Alexander, whan y Jewes thrust him forward. Alexander beckened with the hande, and wolde haue geuen the people an answer. But whan they knewe that he was a Jewe, there arose a shoute of all, and cried the space of two houres: Greate is Diana of the Ephesians.

E Whan the towne Clarke had styllled the people, he sayde: Remen of Ephesus, what man is it which knoweth not, that the cite of þe Ephesians is a worshipper of the greate goddesse Diana, and of the heavenly ymage? Seinge now that this can not be sayde agaynst, ye ought to be contente, and to do nothinge without aduysment. Ye haue broughte hither thes men, which are nether churchrobbers ner blasphemers off youre goddesse.

But yff Demetrius and they that are craftesmen with him, haue ought to saye vnto eny man, the lawe is open, and there are rulers, let them accuse one another. But yf ye wil go aboute eny other thinge, it maye be determyned in a lausfull congregacion. For we stonde in ioperdy to be accused of this dayes vproute: and yet is there no man guyley, of whom we mighte geue a rekenyng of this vproute. And whan he had sayde this, he let the congregacion departe.

The XX. Chapter.

Now whan the vproute was ceassed, Paul called the disciples vnto him, and toke his leue of them, and departed to go in to Macedonia. And whan he had gone thorow those partes, and exhorted them with many wordes, he came in to Grecklonde, and there abode thre monethes. But whan the Jewes layed wayte for him, as he was aboute to sayle in to Syria, he purposed to turne agayne thorow Macedonia. There accompanied him in to Asia, Se-

These wente before, and taried for vs at Troada: but we sayled after the Easter dayes from Philippos, vnto þe fyfth daye, and came to them vnto Troada, and taried there seven dayes.

Act. 21. d
2. Tim. 4. c

Upon one of the Sabbathes, whan the disciples came together to breake bred, Paul preached vnto them, wyllinge to departe on the morow, and continued the preachinge vnto mydnight. And there were many lightes in the chamber, where they were gathered together. There sat a yonge man named Eutychos, in a wyndow, and fell in to a depe slepe (whyle Paul was speakinge) and was overcome with slepe, and fell downe from the thirde losse, and was taken vp deed. But Paul wente downe, and fell on him, and embraced him, and sayde: Make no thinge a doo, for his soule is in hē. Then wente he vp, and brake the bred, and ate, and talked much with thē, tyll the daye brake, and so departed. As for the yōgeman, they broughte him alyue, and were not a litle comforted.

But we wente afore in to the shippe, and sayled towarde Asson, wyllinge there to receaue Paul. For so had he appoynted, and wolde himselfe go on fote. Whan he was come to vs vnto Asson, we toke him in, and came to Mitylenea, and sayled from thence, and came on the nexte daye ouer agaynst Chios, and on the daye folowinge we aryued at Samos, and taried at Tragilion, and on the nexte daye came we to Miletion: for Paul had determed to sayle ouer by Ephesus, that he neede not to spende the tyme in Asia: for he haisted to be at Jerusalem vpo the Whitsundaye, yf it were possible for him.

But from Miletion he sent vnto Ephesus, and called for the Elders of the congregacion. Whan they were come to him, he sayde vnto them: Ye knowe sence the first daye that I came in to Asia, after what maner I haue bene with you at all tyme, and scrued þe LORD with all humblenesse of mynde, and with many teares and tentacions, which happened vnto me by y layenges of wayte of the Jewes, how þe I haue kepte backe nothinge y was profitable, but that I haue shewed you, and taughte you openly, and prinatly from house to house. God, and saich towarde oure LORDE Ie-

And now beholde, I go bounde in y^e spie-te vnto Ierusalē, not knowinge what shal
happen there vnto me, but y^e the holy goost witnesseth in euery cite, and sayeth, that bondes and troubles abyde me there. But I regard none of them, nether counte I my life dearer then my selfe, that I maye fulfyll
my course with ioye, and the office y^e I haue receaued of the LORDE Iesu, to testifye
the Gospell of the grace of God.

And now beholde, I knowe that ye shal
se my face nomore, all ye, thowow whom I haue gone, and preached the Kyngdome of God. Wherfore I take you to recorde this daye, that I am pure from the bloude of all men: For I haue kepte nothinge backe, but
haue shewed you all the counsell off God.
Take hede therfore vnto youre selues, and to all the flocke, amonge the which the holy goost hath set you to be Bishoppes, to fede
the congregacion of God, which he hath purchaced thowow his owne bloude. For this I knowe, that after my departinge
there shal enter in amonge you greuous wolues, which shal not spare the flocke. See eue-ry one from amonge youre owne selues shal men-
aryse, speakyng peruerse doctryne, to drawe

remembre, that by the space of thre yeares
I ceased not to warne every one off you
both nighte and daye with teares.

And now brethren I commende you vnto God, and to y^e worde of his grace, which is mightie to edifye you, and to geue you the enheritaunce amōge all them that are sanctified. I haue not desyred syluer, golde or ray-ment off eny of you. For ye youre selues knowe, that these handes haue mynistrēd vnto my necessities, and them that were
with me. I haue shewed you all thinges,
how that so labouringe ye oughte to recea-ue the weake, and to remembre the worde of the LORDE, how that he sayde: It is more blessed to geue, then to receaue.

And whan he had sayde this, he kneled downe, and prayed with them all. But there was moch wepyng amonge them all,
and they fell aboute Pauls necke, and kysed
him, and were sory, most of all because of the worde which he had sayde, that they shul-de se his face nomore. And they accompanied him vnto the shippe.

The XXI. Chapter.

of the Apostles. No. lxxij.

Now whan it fortunēd that we had launched forth and were departed
from them, we came with a straighe
course vnto Coon, and on the daye folowin-ge vnto the Rhodes, and from thence vnto Patara. And whan we founde a shippe ready to sayle vnto Phenices, we wente aboarde and set forth. But whā we came within the sighte of Cypers, we leste it on the leste han-
de, and sayled vnto Syria, and came vnto
Tyre: for there the shippe shulde laye forth
the ware. And whan we had founde disciples, we taried there seuen dayes. And they tolde Paul thowow the spiete, that he shulde
not go vp to Ierusalem. And it fortunēd whā we had fulfilled those dayes, we departed, and wente oure wayes, and they all broughte vs on oure waye with wyues and chylde, tyll we were come out of y^e cite, and we kneled downe vps the shore, and prayed.
And whan we had taken oure leue one off
another, we toke shippe, but they turned agayne vnto theirs. As for vs we ended the course from Tyre, and came to Ptolomaida, and saluted the brethien, and abode with them one daye.

On the nexte daye we y^e were with Paul,
departed, and came vnto Cesarea, & entred
into the house of Philippe the Euangelist (which was one of the seuen) and abode with him. The same had foure daughters, which were virgins, and prophesied. And as we taried there mo dayes, there came downe
from Ieremy a prophet, named Agabus.
Whā he was come vnto vs, he toke Pauls
gerdell, and bounde his hādes and fete, and sayde: Thus sayeth y^e holy goost: The man whose gerdell this is, shal the Iewes bynde
thus at Ierusalem, and shal deliuer him in to the handes of the heythē. Whan we her-he this, both we and they that were of the same place, besoughte him, that he wolde
not go vp to Ierusalem. Then answered Paul and sayde: What do ye, wepyng, and breakyng my hert? For I am redye not onely to be bounde, but also to dye at Jerusalem for y^e name of the LORDE Iesu. But whā he wolde not be perswaded, we ceased,
and sayde: The will of the LORDE be fulfyl-led. And after those dayes we were ready, & wente vp to Ierusalem: There came with vs also certayne of the disciples off Cesarea,
and broughte with them one of Cypers, named Mnason, an olde disciple, with whom we shulde lodge. Now whā we came to Jerusalem, the brethien receaued vs gladly.
But on the nexte daye Paul wente in with us vnto James, and all the Elders came together. And whan he had saluted them, he tolde by order, what God had done among the Heythen by his mynistracion.

E Whan they herde that, they playsted the L O R D E, and sayde vnto him: Brother, thou seyst how many thousande Jewes there are which beleue, and are all zelous ouer yf lawe. But they are enfourmed agaynst the, that thou teachest all the Jewes which are amonge the Heythē, to forsake Moses, and sayest that they oughte not to circumcise their children, ner to walke after the same custome. What is it therfore? The multitude must nedes come together, for they shal heare that thou art come. Do this therfore that we saye vnto the: We haue foure men, which haue a vowe on them, take them vnto yf, and purifise thyselc with them, and do the cost on them, that they maye shawe their heades: and they shal knowe, that it is nothinge, wherof they are enfourmed agaynst the, but that thou also walkest and kepest the lawe. For as touchinge them that beleue amonge the Heythen, we haue wrytten, and concluded, that they shulde obserue no such, but onely to kepe them selues from the offeringes of Idols, from bloude, from strangled, and from whordome. Then Paul toke the men vnto him, and was purifised with them on the nexte daye, and entred in to the temple, declaringe that he fulfilled the dayes of purificacion, tyll there was an offeringe offred for euery one of them.

But whan the seven dayes were almost fulfilled, the Jewes of Asia sawe him in the temple, and moued all the people, layed handes vpon him, and cryed: Remen of Israel, helpe, this is the man, that teacheth all men euery where agaynst oure people, the lawe, and this place. He hath broughte Grekes also in to the temple, and hath defyled this holy place. For they had sene Trophimus the Ephesian with him in the cite, him they thoughte yf Paul had broughte in to the temple. And all the cite was moued, and the people ranne together. And they toke Paul, and drewe him out off the temple, and forth with the doores were shut to.

But whan they wete aboute to kyl him, tydinges came to the chiefe captayne of the company, that all Jerusalem was moued. Which immediatly toke souldyers and captaynes vnto him, and ranne in amonge them. Whan they sawe the captayne and the souldyers, they leste smytinge of Paul.

of the Apostles.

Whan the captayne came nye, he toke him, and commaunded him to be bounde with two cheynes, and ased what he was, and what he had done. One cried this, another that amonge the people. But whan he coulde not knowe the certente because of the rumoure, he commaunded him to be caried in to the castell. And whā he came to the stepes, it fortunied that he was borne of yf souldyers because of the violence of the people. For the multitude off the people folowed after, and cryed: Awaye with him. Whan Paul was now to be caried in to the castell, he sayde vnto yf captayne: Maye I speake vnto the? He sayde: Canst thou speake? Are not thou the Egipcian, which before these dayes maydest an vproure, z leddest out in to the wyldernesse foure thousande preuy murtherers? Paul sayde: I am a man which am a Jewe off Tharsis, a cite syn of a famous cite in Celicia: I beseeke the, suffre me to speake vnto the people. Whan he had geuen him lycence, Paul stode on the stepes, and beckened with the hande vnto the people. Now whan there was made a greatesylence, he spake vnto them in Hebraue, and sayde:

The XXII. Chapter.

Men, brethien, and fathers, heare myne answer which I make vnto you. Whan they herde that he spake vnto them in the Hebraue, they kepte the more sylence. And he sayde: I am a man which am a Jewe, borne at Tharsis in Celicia, and broughte vp in this cite at the fete off Gamaliel, enfourmed diligently in the lawe of the fathers, and was feruent mynded to God warde, as ye all are also this daye, and I persecuted this waye vnto the death. I bounde them and deliuered them vnto prison, both men and women, as yf hye prest also doth beare me wytnesse, and all yf Elders: of whom I receaued letters vnto the brethien, and wente towarde Damascon, that I mighte bringe them which were there, bounde to Jerusalem, to be punyshed.

But it fortunied as I made my iourney, and came nye vnto Damascon, aboute noone, sodenly there shone a greatesylence aboute me from heaven, and I fell to the earth, and herde a voyce which sayde vnto me: Saul Saul, why persecutest thou me? I answered: Who art thou L O R D E? And he sayde vnto me: I am Jesus of Nazareth whom thou persecutest. As for them that were with me, they sawe y^e lighte and were afrayed, but they herde not the voyce of him that spake with me. I sayde: LORDE, what shal I do? The LORDE sayde vnto me: Arise, and go in to Damascon, there shal it be tolde y^e of all that is appoynted the to do. But whan I sawe nothinge for the bryghtnesse of the lighte, I was led by the hande of them that were with me, and came to Damascon.

B There was one Ananias, a deuoute man after the lawe, which had a good reporte of all the Jewes that dwelt there, the same came, and stept vnto me, and sayde: Brother Saul, loke vp. And I loked vp vpon him the same houre. He sayde: The God of oure fathers hath ordeyned the before, that thou shuldest knowe his wyll, and se the thinge y^e is rightfull, and heare the voyce out of his mouth: for thou shalt be his wytnesse vnto all men, of tho thinges which thou hast sene and herde. And now why tariest thou? Arise, and be baptyse, and washe awaye thy synnes, and * call vpon the name of the LORDE.

But it fortuneth, that whan I was come agayne to Ierusalē, and prayed in the temple, I was in a traunce, and sawe him. Then sayde he vnto me: Make haist, * and get the soone out of Ierusalem, for they wyl not receaue the witnesse that thou bearest of me. And I sayde: LORDE, they the selues knowe that I put in prison and bett in every synagoge them that beleued on the. * And whā the bloude of Steuē chy witnesse was shed, I stode by aljō, z consented vnto his death, and kepte the clothes of them that slewe him. And he sayde vnto me: Go thy waye, for * I wil sende the farre amonge the heythen.

C They gaue him audience vnto this worde, and lifte vp their voyce, z sayde: Awaye with soch a felowe from the earth, for it is not reason that he shulde lyue. But as they cried, and cast of their clothes, z threue dust in to the ayre, the caprayne bad brynge him in to the castell, and commaunded him to be beaten with rodde and to be examyned, that he mighte knowe, for what cause they cried so vpon him. And whan he bounde him with thonges, Paul sayde vnto the vndercapayne that stode by: Is it lawfull for you to scourge a man that is a Romaine, and vncolde him, and sayde: What wilt thou do? This man is a Romaine. Then came y^e vpper caprayne, and sayde vnto him: Tell me, art thou a Romaine? He sayde: Yee. And the vpper caprayne answered: With a greate summe optayned I this freedom. But Paul sayde: As for me, I am a Romaine borne. The straight waye departed from him, they that shulde haue examyned him. And y^e chese caprayne was afrayed, whan he knewe that he was a Romaine, and because he had bounde him. On the nexte daye wolde he knowe the certentye wherfore he was accused of the Jewes, and he lowsed him from the bondes, and commaunded the hye prestes and all their counsell to come together, and broughte Paul forth, and set him amonge them.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

B And behelde the counsell, and sayde: A Remen and brethren, * I haue lyued with all good conscience before God vnto this daye: But the hye prest Ananias commaunded them that stode aboute him, to smyte hi on the mouth. Then sayde Paul vnto him: God shal synce the thou paynted wall. Syttest thou and indgest me after the lawe, and commaundest me to be syncten contrary to y^e lawe? And they that stode aboute hi, sayde: Kenylest thou Gods hye prest? And Paul sayde: Brethre, I wyl not that he was the hye prest. For it is wyttē: * The ruler of chy people shalt thou not curse.

But whan Paul knewe that the one parte was Saduces, and the other parte Pharises, he cried out in y^e counsell: Remen and brethren, I am a Pharise, and the sonne of a Pharise. * Of hope and resurreccion of the deed am I iudged. And whan he had so sayde, there arose a diffencion betwene y^e Pharises and the Saduces, and the multitude was deuyded: * for the Saduces saye that there is no resurreccion, nether angell, ner spiete: but the Pharises graūte both. And there was made a greate crye. And y^e Scribes of the Pharyses secte, stode vp, and strove, and sayde: We fynde no euell in this mā. But yfa spiete or an angell haue spokē vnto him, let vs not stryue agaynst God.

But whan the discension was greate, y^e vpper caprayne feared, that Paul shulde haue bene plucked a sonder of them, and commaunded the sondyers to go downe, and to take him from them, and to brynge him in to the castell. But in the night folowinge, the LORDE stode by him, and sayde: Be of good cheare Paul, for as thou hast testified of me at Ierusalem * so must thou testifie at Rome also.

The Actes

Now when it was daye, certayne of the Jewes gathered them selues together, and made a vowe nether to eate ner drynke, tyll they had kylled Paul. They were mo then fortye, which had made this conspyracion. These came to the hye prestes and Elders, and sayde: We haue bounde oure selues wth a vowe, that we wil eate nothinge, tyll we haue slayne Paul. Now therfore geue ye knowlege to the vpper captayne and to the counsell, that he maye brynge him forth vnto you tomorrow, as though ye wolde heare him yet better: As for vs, we are ready to kyll him, or euer he come nye you.

C But when Pauls sisters some herde of their layenge awayte, he came, and entred in to the castell, and tolde Paul. So Paul called vnto him one of y^e vnder captaynes, and sayde: Brynge this yonge man to the vpper captayne, for he hath somwhat to saye to him. He toke him, and broughte him to the vpper captayne, and sayde: Paul the prisoner called me vnto him, and prayed me to brynge to the this yonge man, which hath somwhat to saye vnto the. Then the hye captayne toke him by the hande, and wente a yde with him out of the waye, and axed him: What is it, that thou hast to saye vnto me? He sayde: The Jewes are agreed together, to desyre the, to let Paul be broughte forth tomorrow before the counsell, as though they wolde yet heare him better. But folowe not thou their myndes, for there laye wayte for him mo then fortye men off them, which haue bounde them selues with a vowe, nether to eate ner drynke, tyll they haue slayne Paul: and euen now are they redye, and loke for thy promes.

Then the vpper captayne let the yonge man departe, and charged him to tell no man, that he had shewed him this. And he called vnto him two vndercaptaynes, and sayde: Make redye two hundrieth souldyers, that they maye go to Cesarea, and thre score and ten horsmen, and two hundrieth speare men at the thirde houre of the night, and delyuer the beastes, that they maye set Paul thereon, and brynge him safe vnto Felix the debyte, and he wrote a letter in this maner:

Act 21.d C Claudius Lysias, vnto the most mightie Debyte Felix, gretynge. * The Jewes had taken this man, and wolde haue slayne him, then came I with souldyers, and rescued him, and perceaued that he is a Romaine. And when I wolde haue knowne the cause, wherfore they accused hi, I brought te him in to their counsell: then perceaued I, that he was accused aboute questions of their lawe. But there was no accusacion worthy of death or of bondes. And when it was shewed me, that certayne Jewes layed wayte for him, I sent him straight waye vnto the, and commaunded the accusers also, that loke what they had agaynst him, they shulde tell the same before the. Fare well.

The souldyers (as it was commaunded them) toke Paul, and broughte him to Antipatras. But on the nexte daye, they leste y^e hoisemen to go with him, and turned agayne to the castell. When these came to Cesarea, they delyuered the letter vnto the Debyte, & presented Paul before him also. When the Debyte had red the letter, he axed off what countre he was. And when he vnderstode that he was of Celicia, he sayde: I wil heare the, when thine accusers are come also. And he commaunded him to be kepte in Herodes iudgment house.

Deut 17.8

The XXIII. Chapter.

After fyue dayes the hye prest Ananias came downe with the Elders, and wth the Oratour Tertullus, which appeared before the Debyte agaynst Paul. When Paul was called forth, Tertullus began to accuse him, and sayde: Seynge that we lyue in greute peace by the meanes of y^e, and that many good thinges are done for this people the: ow thy prouydence (most mightie Felix) that alowe we ener and in all places with all thankes. Not withstandinge y^e I be none recedious vnto the, I praye the, that of thy curtesy thou woldst heare vs a few wordes.

We haue founde this man a pestilent fellowe, and a sterer vp of sedicion amonge all the Jewes thorow out all the worlde, and a manteyner of the secte of the Nazarettes, and hath taken in hande also to suspende the temple, whom we toke, and wolde haue iudged him acordinge to oure lawe. But Lysias the hye captayne came vpo vs, and with greute violence delyuered him out of our handes, and commaunded his accusers to come vnto the: of whom (yf thou wilt enquire) thou mayest haue knowlege of all these thinges, wherof we accuse him. The Jewes likewise affirmed and sayde, that it was enen so.

Act 21. c

But after many yeares I came and broughte allmeſſe vnto my people, and offe- ringes: wherupon they founde me puri- fied in the temple without eny maner of ri- moure or vnquyetneſſe. Howbeit there were certayne Jewes out of Aſia, which ſhulde be here preſente before the, and accuſe me, yf they had oughte agaynſt me: or els lett theſe ſame here ſaye, yf they haue founde eny vnrightheouſnes in me, whyle I ſtonde here before y councell: excepte it be for this one worde, that I cried ſtoundinge amonge them: Of the reſurreccion off the deed am I iudged of you this daye.

Act. 21. a

¶ When Felix herde this, he dyffered the (for he knewe very well of that waye) and ſayde: When Lyſias the vpper captayne cometh downe, I wil knowe y vttemoſt of youre matter. But he commaunded the vndercaptayne to kepe Paul, and to let him haue reſt, and that he ſhulde forbydde none of his acquaintance to myniſter vnto him, or to come vnto him.

and 28. b

But after certayne dayes came Felix w his wife Drufilla, which was a Jeweſſe, and called for Paul, and herde him of the faith in Chriſt. Howbeit when Paul ſpake off rightheouſneſſe, and off chaſtite and off the iudgment to come, Felix trembled, and an- ſwered: Go thy waye for this tyme. When I haue a conuenient tyme, I wil ſende for the. He hoped alſo, that money ſhulde haue bene geuen him of Paul, therefore called he oft for him, and commened with him. But after two yeares came Pontius Feſtus in to Felix rowme. Yet Felix wyllinge to ſhewe

The XXV. Chapter.

¶ Now when Feſtus was come in to the countre, ouer theſe dayes he wente up from Ceſarea to Jeruſalem. Then appeared the hye preſtes and the che- fe of the Jewes before him agaynſt Paul, and intreated him, and deſyred fauoure agaynſt him, that he wolde ſende for him to Jeruſalem, and layed wayte for him, that they might ſlaye him by the waye. Then answered Feſtus, that Paul ſhulde be kep- te at Ceſarea, but that he himſelfe wolde ſhortly go thither agayne. Let them ther- fore (ſayde he) which are able amonge you, come downe with vs to accuſe the man, yf there be ought in him.

When he had taried amonge them more then ten dayes, he wente downe to Ceſarea. And on the nexte daye he ſat downe on the iudgment ſeate, and commaunded Paul to be brought. When he was come, y Jewes which were come downe from Jeruſalem, ſtoode rounde aboute him, and broughte vp many and greuous quarels agaynſt Paul, which they coulde not proue, whyle he an- ſwered for himſelfe: I haue nether offen- ded ought agaynſt the lawe of the Jewes, ner agaynſt the temple, ner agaynſt the Em- peroure.

But Feſtus wyllinge to ſhewe the Jewes a pleaſure, answered Paul, and ſayde: Wilt thou go vp to Jeruſalem, and there be iud- ged off theſe thinges before me? But Paul ſayde: I ſtonde at the Emperours iudgmeēt ſeate, where I ought to be iudged: to the Jewes haue I done no harme, as thou alſo knoweſt very well. If I haue hurte eny man, or committed eny thinge worthy off death, I reſuſe not to dye. But yf there are no ſuch thinges as they accuſe me off, then maye no man deliuer me vnto them. I ap- peale vnto the Emperoure. Then ſpake Feſ- tus with the Councell, and answered: Thou haſt appealed vnto the Emperoure, to the Emperoure ſhalt thou go.

After certayne dayes came Kyng Agrip- pa and Bernice to Ceſarea to welcome Feſ- tus. And when they had taried there many dayes, Feſtus rehearſed Pauls cauſe vnto the Kyng, and ſayde: There is a man left bounde of Felix, for whoſe cauſe the hye preſ- tes and Elders of the Jewes appeared be- fore me when I was at Jeruſalem, and de- ſyred a ſentence agaynſt him. Vnto whom I answered: It is not the maner off the Romaines to deliuer eny man that he ſhul

he perishe, before that he which is accused, haue his accusers presente, and receaue libertie to answer for him selfe to the accusation. Whā they were come hither together, I made no delaye, but sat the nexte daye in iudgment, and commaunded the man to be broughte forth. Of whom, whan the accusers stode vp, they broughte no accusation of soch thinges as I supposed: But had certayne questions agaynst him of their awne supersticions, and of one Iesus deed, whom Paul affirmed to be alyue. Howbeit because I vnderstode not the question, I asked hī, whether he wolde go to Ierusalē, and there be iudged of these matters. But whā Paul had appealed, that he might be kepte vnto the knowlege of the Emperoure, I commaunded him to be kepte, tyll I mighte sende him to the Emperoure.

D Agrippa sayde vnto Festus: I wolde sayne heare the man also. He sayde: Tomorrow shalt thou heare him. And on the nexte daye came Agrippa & Bernice with greates pompe, and wēte in to the comon hall with the captyues & chiefe mē of the cite. And at Festus commaundement, Paul was broughte forth. And Festus sayde: Kyng Agrippa, and all ye men which are here with vs, ye se this man, aboute whome all the multitude of the Jewes haue entreated me, both at Ierusalē and here also, and cried, that he oughe not to lyue eny lenger. But whan I perceaued that he had done nothinge worthy off death, and that he himselfe also had appealed vnto the Emperoure, I determyned to sende him, of whō I haue no certayne thinge to wryte vnto my lorde. Therefore haue I caused hī to be broughte forth before you, specially before the (O Kyng Agrippa) that after examinacion had, I might haue somwhat to wryte. For me thynke it an vnreasonable thinge to sende a prisoner, and not to shewe the causes which are layed agaynst him.

The XXVI Chapter.

A Agrippa sayde vnto Paul: Thou hast leue to speake for thy selfe. Thē Paul stretched forth the hande, and answered for himselfe: I thinke my selfe happye (O Kyng Agrippa) because I shal answeere this daye before the, of all the thinges wherof I am accused of the Jewes: specially for so moch as thou art experte in all customes and questions, which are amonge the Jewes. Wherefore I beseeche the, to heare me patiently.

My lyuynge truly from youth vp (how it was led from the begynnyng amonge this people at Ierusalē) knowe all the Jewes which knewe me afore at the first, yf they wolde testifie, for after the most strayte secte of oure Jewyshe lawe, I lyued a Pharise. And now stonde I, and am iudged because of the hope of the * promes, that was made of God vnto oure fathers, vnto the which (promes) oure twelue trybes hope to come, seruyng God instātly daye and nighte. For the which hopes sake (O Kyng Agrippa) I am accused of the Jewes. Wherefore is this iudged amonge you not to be beleued, that God rayseth vp the deed?

I also verely thoughte by my selfe, that I oughte to do many contrary thinges cleane agaynst the name off Iesus off Nazareth, * which I dyd at Ierusalem, whan I shut vp many sayntes in prison, wherupon I receaued auctoute of y^e hye prestes. And whā they shulde be put to death, I broughte the sentence. And thorow all the synagoges I punyshted them ofte, and compelled the to blaspheme, and was exceding eniue upon them, and persecuted them euen vnto straunge citie. Aboute which thinges as I wente to warde Damascon with auctoute and lycence of the hye prestes, euen at myddaye (O Kyng) I sawe in the waye, that a lighte from heauē (clearer then the brightnesse of the Sonne) shyned rounde aboute me, and them that iourneyed with me.

But whan we were all fallen downe to the earth, I herdea voyce speake vnto me, and saye in hebreue: Saul Saul, why persecutest thou me? It shalbe harde for the to kycke agaynst the prycke. But I sayde: LORDE, who art thou? He sayde: I am Iesus, whom thou persecutest. But ryse vp, and stonde vpon thy fete, for therfore haue I appeared vnto the, that I mighte ordeyne the to be a mynister and witnesse of it that thou hast sene, and that I wyll yet cause to appeare vnto the. And I wil deliuer the from the people, and from the heythen, amonge whō I wil now sende the, to opē their eyes, that they maye turne from the darknesse vnto the * lighte, and from the power of y^e deuill vnto God, that they maye receaue forgiveness of synnes, and the enheritaunce with them that are sanctified by faith in me.

Wherefore (O Kyng Agrippa) I was not faichlesse vnto y^e heauēly vision, but shewed it first vnto them at Damascon, and at Ierusalē, and in all the coastes of Jewry, and to the heythen, that they shulde * do penance, and turne vnto God, and to do the righte workes of permanence. For this cause the Jewes toke me in the temple, and wente aboute to kylle me. But thorow the helpe of God lent vnto me, I stonde vnto this daye, and testifie both vnto small and greates, and saye no other thinge, the that y prophetes haue sayde (that it shulde come to passe) and Moses, that Christ shulde suffre, and be the first of the resurrection from the dead, and shew light vnto the people, and to the heythen.

Whan he thus answered for himselfe, Festus sayde with a loude voyce: Paul, thou art besydes thy selfe, moch lernynge makech y madd. But Paul sayde: I am not madd (most deare Festus) but speake the wordes of truerth and sobernesse: for y kynge knoweth this well, vnto whom I speake frely. For I thinke that none off these thinges is hyd from him: for this was not done in a corner. Beleuest thou the prophetes, O kynge Agrippa? I knowe that thou beleuest. Agrippa sayde vnto Paul: Thou persuadest me in a parte to become a Chysten. Paul sayde: I wolde to God, that (not onely in a parte but altogether,) I mighte persuaide not the onely, but all them that heare me this daye, to be soch I am, these bondes excepte. And whan he had spoken this, the kynge rose vp, and the Debyre, and Bernice, and they that sat with them, and wente asyde, and talked together, and sayde: This man hath done no thinge that is worthy of death or of bondes. But Agrippa sayde vnto Festus: This man mighte haue bene lowsed, yf he had not appealed vnto the Emperoure.

The XXVII. Chapter.

Whan it was concluded that we shulde sayle in to Italy, they deliuered Paul and certayne other prisioners to the vndercaptayne named Julius, of the Emperours souldyers. And whan we were entered in to a shippe of Adramitium, to sayle by Asia, we lowsed from Ionde. And there was with vs one Aristarchus out of Macedonia off Thessalonica, and on the nexte daye we came vnto Sidon. And Julius increased Paul curteously, and gaue him liberty to go to his frendes, and to refresh himselfe. And from thence launched we, and sayled harde by Cypers (because the wyndes were agaynst vs) and sayled ouer the see of Celicia and Pamphilia, and came to Myra in Lycia.

And there the vndercaptayne founde a shippe of Alexandria, ready to sayle in to Ita-

of the Apostles. Fo. lxx.

ly, and put vs therin. And whan we had sayled slowly, and in many dayes were scarcely come ouer agaynst Gnydon (for the wynde with stode vs) we sayled by Candy nye vnto the cite off Salmo, and came scarcely beyonde it. Then came we to a place, which is called Goodhauen, nye where vnto was the cite Lasea. Now whan mochtyme was spent, and saylinge was now ioperdous, because that they also had fasted ouerlonge, Paul exhorted them, and sayde vnto them: Syrs, I se that this saylinge wyl be with hurte and moch dammage, not onely of the ladyng and of the shippe, but also of our lyues.

Nevertheless y vndercaptayne beleued the gouernoure of the shippe and y master, more then it that was spoken of Paul. And for somoch as the hauē was not comodious to wynter in, the more parte off them toke counsell to departe thence, yf by eny meanes they might come to Phenices to wynter there, which is an haven of Candy, towarde the Southwest and Northwest wynde. Whan the South wynde blewe, they supposinge to haue had their purpose, lowsed vnto Asson, and sayled past all Candy.

But not longe after, there rose agaynst their purpose a flawe of wynde, which is called the Northeast. And whan the shippe was caught, and coulde not resist y wynde, we let her go, and drane with the webder. But we came to an Ile named Claudia, where we coulde scarce get a bore. Which they toke vp, and used helpe, and bounde it vnder harde to the shippe, fearinge lest they shulde haue fallen in to the Syrtes, and let downe the vessell, and so were caried. And whan we had bydden a greates tēpest, on the nexte daye they made an out-castinge. And on the thirde daye with oure awne handes we cast out the tacklyng of the shippe. But whā neither Sonn nor starres appeared in many dayes, and no small tempest laye vpon vs, all the hope of oure liue was taken awaye.

And after longe abstinence, Paul stode forth in the myddes of the, and sayde: Syrs, ye shulde haue hearkened vnto me, and not to haue lowsed from Candy, and not to haue broughte vs this harme and losse. And now I exhorte you to be of good cheare, for there shal none of oure lyues perishe, but the shippe onely.

For this night stode by me the angell off God (whose I am, & whō I serue) & saide: Feare not Paul, thou must be broughte before the Emperoure. And lo, God hath geuen vnto the all the that sayle with the. Wherefore syrs be of good cheare: for I beleue God, yf it shal come so to passe, as it was tolde me. Howbeit we must be cast in to a certayne ylonde.

But whan the fourteenth night came, as we were caried in Adria aboute mydnight, yf shipmen demed that there appeared some countre vnto them, and they cast out the leade, and founde it twetye feddoms: and whā they were gone a litle farther, they cast out the leade agayne, and founde systene feddoms.

D Then fearinge lest they shulde sail on some rocke, they cast foure anchors out of the sterne, and wysshed for the daye. Whan the shipmen were aboute to flye out of the shippe, and let downe the bote in to the see, (vnder a coloure as though they wolde cast anchors out of the fore shippe) Paul sayde to yf vndercaptayne and to the soudyers: Except these hyde in the shippe, ye can not be saued. Then the soudyers cut of the rope from the bote, and let it fall. And whan it beganne to be daye, Paul exhorted them all to take meate, and sayde: To daye is the fourtene daye that ye haue taried and contynued fasting, and haue receaued nothinge: Wherefore I praye you to take meate, for youre healtch: for there shal not one heer fall from the heade of eny of you. And whan he had thus spoken, he toke bread, and gaue thanks to God before them all, and brake it, and begane to eate. Then were they all of good cheare, and toke meate also. We were all together in the shippe two hundred thre score and systene soules. And whan they had eaten ynough, they lightened the shippe, and cast out the wheate in to the see.

E Whan it was daye, they knewe not the londe. But they spyed an hauen with a banke, in to which they were mynded (yf it were possible) to thrust in the shippe. And whan they had takē vp the anchors, they commytred them selues to the see, and lowsed the rudder bandes, and hoysed vp the mayne sayle to the wynde, and due towarde londe. And whan we chaunced on a place which had the see on both the sydes, the shippe dasyed vpon it. And the fore parte abode fast vnmoued, but the hynder parte brake thorow the violence of the waves.

The soudyers counsell was to kyll yf prisoners, lest eny of them whan he had swymmed out, shulde flye awaye. But the vndercaptayne wyllinge to saue Paul, kyped them from their purpose, and commaunded that they which coulde swymme, shulde cast them selues first in to the see, and escape vnto londe: and the other, some on bordes, some on broken peces of the shippe. And so it came to passe, that all the soules came safe vnto londe.

The XXVIII Chapter.

And whā we were escaped, we knewe that the Ile was called Melite. As for the people, they shewed vs no litle kyndnesse: for they kyndled a fyre, and receaued vs all because of the rayne that was come vpo vs, and because of the colde. Whan Paul had gathered a bondell of stickes, and layed them on the fyre, there came a vyper out of the heate, and leape on Pauls hande. Whan the people sawe the beest hange on his hande, they sayde amonge them selues: This man must nedes be a murtherer, who vengeaunce suffreth not to lyue, though he haue escaped the see. But he shoke of yf beest in to the fyre, and felt no harme. Howbeit they wayted, whā he shulde haue swollen, or fallen downe deed sodenly. But whan they had loked a greate whyle, and sawe yf there happened no harme vnto him, they chaunged their myndes, and sayde that he was a God. Luc. 10. 6

In the same quarters the chiefe man of the Ile whose name was Publius had a lordshipe: the same receaued vs, and lodged vs thre dayes curteously. It fortunēd whā Publius father laye sicke of the feuers and of a blondy fluxe, Paul wente in vnto him, and prayed, and layed the handes on him, and healed him.

Whan this was done, other also which had diseases in the Ile, came, and were healed. And they dyd vs greate honoure. And whan we departed, they laded vs with thinges necessary.

A fter thre monethes we sayled in a shippe of Alexandria, which had wyntred in the Ile, and had a badge of Castor and Pollux. And whan we came to Syracuse, we taried there thre dayes. And whan we had sayled aboute, we came to Rhegium: and after one daye whan the south wynde blew, we came to Puteolus, where we founde brethre and were desyred of them to tarye there sene dayes, and so came we to Rome. And from thence whan the brethren herde of vs, they came forth to mete vs to Apisforum and to the Thre tauerns. Whan Paul sawe them, he thāked God, and wared bolde. But whā we came to Rome, the vndercaptayne dely nered the prisoners to þ̄ chese captayne. As for Paul, he had leue to byde alone with one souldyer that kepte him.

C After thre dayes it fortuneth, þ̄ Paul called þ̄ chese of þ̄ Jewes together. And whā they were come, he sayde vnto thē: Ye mē & biethrē. I haue cōmytted nothinge agaynst þ̄ people, ner agaynst þ̄ lawes of þ̄ fathers, yet was I bounde, delyuered out of Ierusalē in to ȳ Romaynes hādes: which whā they had examyned me, wolde haue let me go, for so moch as there was no cause of death ī me. But whā þ̄ Jewes spake ȳ cōtrary, I was cōstrayned to appeale vnto þ̄ Emperō: not as though I had ought to accuse my people of. For this cause haue I called you, enē to se you, & to speake w̄ you: because ȳ • for þ̄ hope of Israel, I am bounde w̄ this cheyne. They sayde vnto hī: We haue nether receaued letter out of Jewry cōcernynge the, nether came there eny of the biethrē, ȳ shewed or spake eny harme of ȳ. But we wyl heare of ȳ, what thou thinkest: for we haue herde of this secte, that euery where • it is spoken agaynst. And whā they had appoynted hī a daye, there came many vnto hī in to his lodgynge: vnto whō he expounded þ̄ kyngdome of God & preached vnto thē of Iesu, out of þ̄ lawe and out of the prophetes, enē frō mounyng vntyll the euē. And some beleued ȳ thinge ȳ he sayde, but some beleued not.

But whā they agreed not amōge thē selues, they departed, whā Paul had spokē one worde: Full well hath the holy goost spokē by þ̄ prophet Esay vnto þ̄ fathers, & sayde: Go vnto this people, and saye: With eares ye shal heare, & not understōde: & with eyes shal yese, & not perceaue. For ȳ hert of this people is waxed grosse, & they heare hardly w̄ their eares: & their eyes haue they closed, ȳ they shulde not oncesē w̄ their eyes, & heare w̄ their eares, & understōde ī their hertes, and be cōuerted, ȳ I mighte heale thē. Be it knowne therfore vnto you, ȳ this saluaciō of God is sent vnto ȳ heythē, and they shal heare it. And whā he sayde þ̄, ȳ Jewes departed, & had a greatedisputacion amōge thē selues. But Paul abode two whole yea- res in his owne hyred dwellinge, & receaued all thē ȳ came in vnto hī, preachinge þ̄ kyngdome of God, and teachinge those thinges which concernethe LORDE Iesus with all boldnesse, vnforbydden.

Act. 13. 2

Paul the seruante of Jesus Chust, called to be an Apostle, & put aparte to preach the Gospell of God (which he promysed afore by his prophetes in y^e holy scriptures) off his sonne, which was begotten of y^e seide of Dauid after the flesh: and mightely declared to be the sonne of God after the spiete which sanctifieth, sence the tyme that he rose agayne from the deed, namely, Jesus Chust oure LORDE, by whom we haue receaued grace and Apostelshipp amonge all theythen, to set vp the obedience of faith vnder his name, of whom ye are a parte also, which are called of Jesus Chust.

To all you that be at Rome, beloued of God, and sayntes by callinge. Grace be to you and peace fro God oure father, and the LORDE Jesus Chust.

First, I thanke my God thorow Jesus Chust for you all, that youre faith is spoken of thorow out all the worlde. For God is my witnesse, (whom I serue in my spiete in the Gospell of his sonne) that without ceassynge I make mencion of you & beseking all wayes in my prayers, that I mighte once haue a prosperous iourney (by the will off God) to come vnto you. For I longe to se you, that I mighte bestowe vpon you some spirituall gifte to strenghten you (that is) that I mighte be comforted with you, thorow y^e faith & myne, which we haue together.

But I wolde ye shulde knowe (brethren) how that I haue often tymes purposed to come vnto you (but haue bene let hither to the Romaynes.

so) that I mighte do some good amonge you, like as amonge other Gentyles. I am better both to the Grekes, and to the vngrekes, to the wyse and to the vnyse. Wherefore (as moch as i me is) I am ready to preach the Gospell vnto you at Rome also.

For I am not ashamed of the Gospell of Chust: for it is the power of God, which saueith all that beleue thereon, the Jewe first & also the Greke: for in it y^e righteousnes that is of value before God, is opened, which cometh out of faith i to faith. As it is wyttē: The iust shall lyue by his faith. For y^e wrath of God is declared from heauen vpon all vngodlynes and vnrightheousnes of men, which withholde the trueth of God in vnrightheousnes: because that it, which maye be knowne of God, is manifest with the. For God hath shewed it vnto the, that the inuisible thinges of God (that is, his euerlastinge power and Godheade) mighte be sene & whyle they are considered by the workes from the creation of the worlde: so that they are without excuse, in as moch as they knewe, that there is a God, and haue not praysed him as God ner thanked him, but became wayne in their ymaginacions, and their foolish hert was blynded. Whan they counted them selues wyse, they became fooles: and turned y^e glory of the incorruptible God in to y^e synnitude of y^e ymage of a corruptible man, & of byrdes, & of foure footed, & of ceping beestes. Wherefore God likewise gaue them vp vnto their hertes lustes in to vncleannes, to defyle their awne bodies in them selues, which turned the trueth of God vnto a lye, & worshipped and serued the creature more then the maker, which is blessed for euer. Amen.

Therefore God gaue the vp vnto shamefull lustes. For their women chaunged the naturall vse in to the vnnaturall: likewise y^e men also leste the naturall vse of the woman, and brent in their lustes one on another, and man with man wrought fylthines, and receaued in them selues the rewarde of their erreure, as it was acordinge. And as they regarded not to knowe God, euen so God gaue the vp in to a lewde mynde, to do those thinges which were not comly, beyng full of all vnrightheousnes, whordome, wickednes, couetousnes, maliciousnes, full of enny, murther, strife, disceate, euell condicioned whisperers, backbyters, despysers of God, doers of wronge, proude, boosters, bryngers vp of euell thinges, disobedient to their El ders, without vnderstondinge, couenunt breakers, vnlouynge, stubborne, vnumercifull:

which men, though they knowe the righteousnes of God (that they which do soch, are worthy of death) yet not onely do the same, but also have pleasure in those that do the.

The II. Chapter.

Therfore canst thou not excuse thy selfe (O mā) who soever thou be that iudgest: for + loke wherin thou iudgest another, thou condemnest thy selfe, in so much as thou that iudgest, doest even the same. For we are sure that the iudgment of God is (acordinge to the truethe) over them that do soch. But thinkest thou this O thou man, that iudgest them which do soch thinges, and doest even the very same thy selfe, that thou shalt escape y iudgment of God? O: despysest thou the riches of his goodnesse, patience, and longe sufferinge? Knowest thou not, that y louynge kyndnesse of God leadech the to repentaunce?

But thou after thine harde and impenitent hert, heapest vnto thy selfe a treasure of wrath, agaynst the daye of wrath and of the openynge of the righteous iudgment of God, which shal rewarde every man acordinge to his dedes: namely, prayse & honoure, and vncorruption, vnto them that with patience in doinge good, seeke everlastinge life: But vnto them that are contentious + & not obedient vnto the truethe, but obeye vnrighteousnes, shal come indignacion and wrath, trouble and anguysh vpo all the soules of mē that do euell, of the Jewe first and also of the Greke: But vnto all thē that do good (shal come) prayse and honoure, and peace, vnto the Jewe first, and also to the Greke.

For there is no respecte of personnes before God: Who so ever haue synned without lawe, shal perish also without lawe: and who so ever haue synned in the lawe, shalbe iudged by the lawe. + For before God, they are not righteous, which heare y lawe: but they that do the lawe, shalbe iustified. For yf the Gentyles which haue noe the lawe, do of nature the thinges conteyned in the lawe, then they hanynge not the lawe, are a lawe vnto them selues, in that they shewe, that the worke of y lawe is wrytē in their hertes: n hyle their conscience beareth witness vnto thē, and also the thoughtes which accuse or excuse them amonge them selues, in the daye whan God shal iudge the secretes of men by Jesus Chust, acordinge to my Gospell.

But take hede, + thou art called a Jewe, and trustest in the lawe, & makest thy boost to the Romaynes. Jo. lxxij.

of God, and knowest his will: & for so much as thou art enformed out of y lawe, thou prouest what is best to do, and presumest to be a leader of the blynde: a lighte of them y are in darcknes: an enformer of y vnwyse: a teacher of y symple: which hast the ensample of know lege & of the truethe in the lawe.

Now teachest thou other, and teachest not thy selfe. Thou preachest that a man shulde not steale, and thou stealst. Thou sayest, that a man shulde not breake wedlocke, and thou breakest wedlocke. Thou abhorrest ymages, and robbest God of his honoure. Thou makest thy boost of the lawe, and thorow breakynge of the lawe thou dishonorest God. For thorow you is the name of God euell spoken of amonge the Gentyles, + as it is wrytten.

The circūcision verely avayleth, yf thou kepe the lawe: but yf thou breake the lawe, then is thy circūcision become vncircūcision. Therfore yf the vncircūcision kepe the righte thinges conteyned in the lawe, shal not his vncircūcision be counted for circūcision? And so it that of nature is vncircūcision, and fulfilleth the lawe shal iudge the, which vnder the letter and circūcision trasgresseth the lawe. For he is not a Jew which is a Jewe outwarde: neither is that circūcision which is done outwardly in y flesh: But he is a Jewe, which is hydd within. And + the circūcision of y hert is the circūcision, which is done in the spire and not in the letter: Whose prayse is not of men, but of God.

The III. Chapter.

What furtheraunce then haue the Jewes? O: what a vantagech circūcision? Surely very much. First + vnto them was commytted what God spake. But where as some of them dyd not beleue theron, what then? shulde they vnbeleue make the promes of God of none effecte? God forbyd. Let it rather be thus, that God is true, + and all mē lyers. As it is wrytten: That thou mayest be iustified in thy sayenges, and shuldest overcome, whā thou art iudged.

But yf it be so, that oure vnrighteousnes prayseth y righteousness of God, what shal we saye? Is God then vnrighteous, that he is angrie therfore? (I speake thus after the maner off men) God forbyd, how mighte God thē iudge y woulde? For yf the truethe of God be thorow my lye the more excellent vnto his prayse, why shulde I thē be iudged yet as a synner? & not rather to do thus (as we are euell spoken of, and as some reporte, that we shulde saye) Let vs do euell, & good maye come therof. Whose dānaciō is inste.

What saye we then? Are we better then they? No, in no wyse: for we haue proued afore, & both the Jewes and Grekes are all vnder synne. As it is wyrtē: There is none righteous, no not one. There is none & vnderstonde, there is none that seeketh after God. They are all gone out of the waye, they are altogether become vnprofitable: there is none that doeth good, no not one. Their throte is an open sepulchre, with their tungen they haue disceaued, the poyson off Aspes is vnder their lippes. Their mouth is full of cursynge and bytternesse. Their feete are swifte to shed bloude. Destruction & wrechidnes are in their wayes, and & waye of peace haue they not knowne. There is no feare of God before their eyes.

But we knowe, &, what seuer the lawe sayeth, it sayeth it vnto them which are vnder the lawe, & every mouth maye be stop ped, & & all the world maye be deter vnto God, because & by & dedes of the lawe no flesh maye be iustified in his sight. For by the lawe cometh but the knowlege of synne. But now without addinge to of & lawe is the righteousness which awayleth before God, declared, havyng witness of & lawe and the prophetes: but I speake of & righteousness before God, which cometh by the faith on Iesus Christ, vnto all, and vpo all them that beleue.

For here is no difference. For they are all synners, and wāter the prayse that God shulde haue of thē, but without deseruyng are they made righteous enē by his grace, thorow the redempcion that is done by Christ Iesu, whom God hath set forth for a Mercycate thorow faith in his bloude, to shewe the righteousness which awayleth before him, in that he forgeueth the synnes, which were done before vnder the sufferance of God, which he suffered, that at this tyme he might shewe & righteousness which awayleth before him: & he onely might be righteous, & the righteous maker of him which is of the faith on Iesus.

Wher is now then thy reioysinge? It is excluded. By what lawe? By the lawe of workes? Nay, but by the lawe of faith. We holde therfore that a man is iustified by faith, without the workes of the lawe. Or is God the God of the Jewes onely? Is he not also the God of the Heythen? Yes verely the God of the Heythen also, for so moch

to the Romaynes.

as he is the God onely that iustifieth the circumcision which is of faith, and the vncircumcision thorow faith. Destroya we then the lawe thorow faith? God forbyd. But we mantayne the lawe.

The fourth Chapter.

What shal we saye thē, that Abraham & father as pertayninge to y flesh dyd synde? This we saye: If Abraham were made righteous thorow workes, then hath he wherin to reioyse, but not before God. But what sayeth & scripture? Abraham belened God, & & was counted vnto him for righteousness. Vnto hi & goeth aboute & workes, is the rewarde not reckened of fauoure, but of dutye: Howbeit vnto him, & goeth not aboute with workes, but beleueth on him & iustifieth the vngodly, is his faith counted for righteousness. Euen as David sayeth also, that blessednes is onely that mans, vnto whō God counteth righteousness without addinge to of workes, where he sayeth: Blessed are they, whose vnrigh teousnesses are forgeuen, and whose synnes are conered. Blessed is the man, vnto whom the LORD imputeth no synne.

Now this blessednes, goeth it ouer the circumcision, or ouer the vncircumcision? We must nedes graunte, & Abraham's faith was coured vnto hi for righteousness. How was it thē reckened vnto him? In the circumcision, or in the vncircumcision? Doubles & not in the circumcision, but in the vncircumcision. As for the tokē of circumcision he receaued it for a scale off the righteousness off faith, which he had yet in y vncircumcision, & he shulde be a father of all thē & belene, beinge in y vncircumcision, & it might be coured vnto thē also for righteousness: & that he might be a father of circumcision, not onely of thē that are of & circumcision, but of them also that walke in the foesteppes of the faith, which was in the vncircumcision of oure father Abraham.

For the promes (that he shulde be & hey re of the worlde) was not made vnto Abraham or to his seide thorow the lawe, but thorow the righteousness of faith. For yf they which are of the lawe be heyres, thē is faith wayne, and the promes of none effecte, for so moch as the lawe causeth but wrath. For where the lawe is not, there is also no transgression. Therfore was the promes made thorow faith, that it myght come off fauoure, wherby the promesse myghte be made sure vnto all the seide: not onely vnto him which is off the lawe, but also vnto him that is of the faith of Abraham, which is the father of vs all. As it is wrytten: * I haue made the a father of many heythē before God, whom thou hast beleued: which quykēneth the deed, and calleth it which is not, that it maye be.

D And he beleued vpo hope, where nothinge was to hope, that he shoulde be a father of many heythen. Aordinge as it was sayd vnto him: * Euen so shal thy sede be. And he was not faynte in faith, nether cōfided his awne body, which was deed already, whyle he was almost an hundredth yere olde, nether the deed wombe of Sara. For he doubted not in the promes of God thorow vnbeleue, but was strōge in faith, and gaue God the prayse: & was sure, that loke what God promysed, he is able to make it good. And therefore was it rekened vnto him for righteousnes. * But this is not wrytē onely for his sake, & it was counted vnto him, but also for oure sakes: vnto whō it shalbe counted, yf we beleue on him, that raysed vp oure LORDE Jesus from the deed. Which * was geuen for oure synnes, and raysed vp for oure righteousnes sake.

The V. Chapter.

21 Because therefore that we are iustified by faith, we haue peace with God thorow oure LORDE Jesus Chust, by whō also we haue an inraunce in faith vnto this grace, wherein we stonde, & * reioyse in the hope of & glorie for to come, which God shal geue. Not onely &, but we reioyse also i troubles, for so moch as we knowe, & * trouble bryngeth paciēce, paciēce bryngeth experiēce, experiēce bryngeth hope: As for hope, is letteth vs not come to cōfusion, because the loue of God is shed abroad in oure hertes, by the holy goost which is geuen vnto vs. For whan we were yet weake aordinge to the tyme, Christ dyed for vs vngodly. Now dyeth there scace eny man for the righteous sake: Peradventure for a good man durst one dye. * Therefore doth God set forth his loue toward vs, in & Christ dyed for vs, whan we were yet synners: Moch more then shal we be saved from wrath by him seyng we are now made righteous thorow his bloude.

22 For yf we were reconcyled vnto God by y death of his sōne, whā we were yet enemies: moch more shal we be saved by him, now & we are reconcyled. Not onely that, but we reioyse also in God thorow oure LORDE Jesus Christ, by whom we haue now receaued the attonement.

Wherefore * as by one man synned entred in to the worlde, and death by y meanes off synne: euen so went death also ouer all men, in so moch as they all haue synned. For synne was in y worlde vnto the lawe: but where no lawe is, there is not synne regarded. Neuertheles death reigned from Adam vnto Moses, euen ouer them also that synned not with like trangression as dyd Adam, which is y ymage of him & was to come.

But it is not with the gifte as with the synne: for yf thorow the synne of one many be deed, yet moch more plenteously came the grace and gifte of God vpon many * by the fauoure that belonged vnto one man Jesus Chust.

And the gifte is not onely ouer one synne, as death camethorow one synne of one that synned. For the iudgment came of one synne vnto condempnacion, but the gifte to iustifye from many synnes. For yf by y synne of one, death raigned by the meanes of one, moch more shal they which receaue the abundaunce of grace and of the gifte vnto righteousnes, raigne in life by y meanes of one Jesus Chust. Likewyse thē as by the synne of one, condempnacion came on all men, euen so also by the righteousnes of one, came the iustificiēge off life vpon all men. For as by the disobedience of one, many became synners, euen so by the obedience of one shal many be made righteous.

But the lawe in the meane tyme entred, that synne shoulde increace. * Neuertheles where abundaunce of synne was, there was yet more plenteousnes of grace: that, like as synne had reigned vnto death, enē so mighte grace reigne also thorow righteousness to everlastinge life by the meanes of Jesus Chust.

The VI. Chapter.

1 What shal we saye then? Shal we 2 contynue in synne, that there maye be abundaunce of grace? God for byd. How shal we lyue in synne, & are freed from it? * Knowe ye not, that all we which are baptysed into Jesu Chust, are baptysed in to his death? Therefore are we buried w him by baptye in to death, that, like as Chust was raysed vp from the deed by the glory of the father, * euen so we also shoulde walke in a new life. For yf we be grafted w him vnto like death, then shal we be like the resurreccion also: For so moch as we knowe, that oure olde man is crucified with him, that the synfull body mighte ceasse, that

Likewise ye also, counte youre selues to be euen deed concernynge synne, and to lyue vnto God thorow Jesus Christ oure L O R D E. Let not synne reigne therfore in youre mortall bodye, that ye shulde obeye vnto the lustes of it. Neither geue ye ouer youre membres vnto synne to be wapens of vnrightheousnes, but geue ouer youre selues vnto God, as they that off deed are become lyuynge, and youre membres vnto God to be wapens off rightheousnes. For synne shal not haue power ouer you, in so moch as ye are not vnder the lawe, but vnder grace.

Ioh. 8. c
1. Pet. 2. d How then? Shal we synne, because we are not vnder y lawe, but vnder grace? God forbid. * Knowe ye not, that loke vnto whō ye geue ouer youre selues as seruauntes to obeye, his seruauntes ye are to whom ye obey, whether it be of synne vnto death, or of obediēce vnto rightheousnes? But God be thanked, that though ye haue bene the seruauntes of synne, ye are now yet obedient of herte to the ensample off the doctryne, wher vnto ye are commytted. For now that ye are made fre from synne, ye are become the seruauntes of rightheousnes.

C I wil speake grossly, because of the weakness of youre flesh. Like as ye haue geuen ouer youre membres to the seruyce of vncleanness, from one wickednesse to another: Eue so now also geue ouer youre membres to the seruyce of rightheousnes, that they maye be holy. For whan ye were the seruauntes of synne, ye were lowse from rightheousnes. What frute had ye at that tyme in those thinges, wherof ye are now ashamed? For the ende of soch thinges is death. But now that ye be fre from synne, and are become the seruauntes of God, ye haue youre frute that ye shulde be holy: but the ende is euerlastinge life. * For death is the rewarde of synne, but the gifte of God is euerlastinge life.

The VII. Chapter.

21 Rowe ye not brethien (for I speake vnto them that knowe the lawe) how that y lawe hath power vpon

a man as longe as he lyueth? For the woman y is in subieccion to the man, is bounde vnto the lawe whyle the man lyueth: but yf the man dye, then is she lowsed from the lawe that concerneth the man. * Xf she be now with another man, whyle the man lyueth, she shal be called a wedlocke breaker. But yf the man be deed, then is she fre from the lawe, so that she is no wedlocke breaker, yf she be with another man.

Euen so my brethien, ye also are deed vnto the lawe by the body of Christ, that ye shulde be with another (namely w him which is raysted vp from the deed) that we shulde brynge forth frute vnto God. For whan we were in the flesh, the synfull lustes (which were stered vp by the lawe) were mightie in oure membres to brynge forth frute vnto death. But now are we lowsed from the lawe, and deed vnto it, that helde vs captiue, so that we shulde serue in a new conuersacion of the spiete, and not in the olde conuersacion of the letter.

What shal we saye then? Is the lawe synne? God forbid: Neuertheles I knewe not synne, but by y lawe. For I had knowe nothinge of lust, yf the lawe had not sayde: * Thou shalt not lust. But then toke synne occasion at the commaundement, and stered vp in me all maner of lust. For without the lawe synne was deed. As for me, I lyued some tyme without lawe. Howbeit whan the commaundement came, synne reuyued, but I was deed. And the very same commaundement that was geuen me vnto life, was founde to be vnto me on occasion of death. For synne toke occasion at the commaundement, and disceined me, and slewe me by the same commaundement. * The lawe in dede is holy, and the commaundement holy, iust and good. Is that then which is good, become death vnto me? God forbid. But synne, that it mighte appeare how y it is synne, hath wroughte me death thorow good: that synne mighte be out of measure synfull by the commaundement. For we knowe, that the lawe is spirituall, but I am carnall, * solde vnder synne: because I knowe not what I do. For I do not y I will, but what I hate, y do I. Xf I do now that which I wil not, the graunte I, that the lawe is good.

So then it is not I that do it, but synne that dwelleth in me: for I knowe that in me (y is, in my * flesh) there dwelleth no good thinge. To wyl is present w me, but to performe y which is good, I fynde not. For y good that I wyl, do I not: but the euill which I wil not, that do I. If I do now that I wil not, then is it not I that do it, but synne that dwelleth in me.

Thus synde I now by the lawe, & when I wyl do good, euill is present with me. For I delite in the lawe of God after the inward man: but I see another lawe in my members, which stryuet agaynst & lawe of my mynde, and takech me prisoner in & lawe of synne, which is in my members. O wretched man that I am, who shal deliuer me from the body of this death? I thanke God thorow Iesus Christ oure LORD. So then the mynde I serue & lawe of God, but with the flesh the lawe of synne.

Then is there now no damnacion vnto the that are in Christ Iesu, which walke not after the flesh, but after & spirete. For & lawe of & spirete (& bryngeth life in Christ Iesu) hath made me free fro the lawe of synne & death. For what impossible was vnto & lawe (in as moch as it was weake because of the flesh) & persourmed God, & sent his sonne in & similitude of synfull flesh, & by synne dāned synne in & flesh: that the righteousnes requyred of the lawe, might be fulfylled in vs, which walke not after the flesh, but after the spirete. For they that are fleshly, are fleshly mynded: but they that are goostly, are goostly mynded. To be fleshly mynded, is death: but to be goostly mynded, is life and peace. For to be fleshly mynded is enemyte agaynst God, & sych it is not subdued vnto & lawe of God, for it can not also. As for the that are fleshlye, they can not please God. Howbeit ye are not fleshly, but goostly, yf so be that the spirete of God dwell in you. But who so hath not the spirete of Christ, the same is not his. Neuertheles yf Christ be in you, then is the body deed because of synne. But the spirete is life for righteousnes sake.

23

Wherefore yf the spirete of him, that ray- sed vp Iesus from the deed, dwell in you, then shal even he also that ray- sed vp Christ from the deed, quydē youre mortal bodies, because & his spirete dwelleth in you. Therefore brethre we are now debtors, not to the flesh, to lyue after the flesh: for yf ye lyue after & fleshe, ye must dye: but yf ye mortyfy the dedes of the body thorow the spirete, ye shal lyue. For who so ever are led by the spirete of God, are Gods childre: for ye have not receaved the spirete of bondage to feare eny to the Romaynes. Ho. liix.

more, but ye have receaved & spirete of adop- cion, wherby we crye: Abba, deare father. The same spirete certifieth oure spirete, that we are the childre of God. If we be childre, then are we heyres also, namely the heyres of God, and heyres annexed with Christ, yf so be that we suffer together, that we maye be also glorified together.

For I suppose, that the afflictions off this tyme, are not worthy of & glorye, which shalbe shewed vpon vs. For the seruent lo- ginge of & creature lokech for the appearin- ge of the children of God, because the crea- ture is subdued vnto vanyte agaynst his will, but for his wyl that hath subdued her vpon hope. For the creature also shal be free from the bondage of corrupcion, vnto the glorious libertye of the childre of God. For we knowe, that every creature gro- neth, and travayleth with vs in payne vnto the same tyme.

Not they only, but we oure selues also, which have the first frutes of the spirete, gro- ne within in oure selues for the childshippe, and loke for & deliuerance of oure bodye. For we are saued in dede, howbeit in hope: but & hope that is sene, is no hope: for how can a man hope for that which he seeth? But yf we hope for that which we se not, the do we thorow pacience abyde for it.

Likewise the spirete also helpeth oure weaknesse: for we knowe not what we shul- de desyre as we oughte: neuertheles & spirete it selfe maketh intercession mightely for vs with vnoutspeakable gronynge. How- beit he & searcheth the hert, knoweth what the mynde of the spirete is: for he maketh in- tercession for the sayntes acordinge to the pleasure of God. But sure we are, that all thinges serue for the best vnto them that lo- ue of God, which are called of purpose. For those whom he knewe before, hath he ordey- ned also before, & they shulde be like fashio- ned vnto & shappe of his sonne, & he mighte be the first begottē amōge many brethre. As for those whom he hath ordeyned befo- re, them hath he called also: and whom he hath called, the hath he also made righte- ous: and whom he hath made righteous, them hath he glorified also.

What shal we saye then vnto these thin- ges? If God be on oure syde, who can be agaynst vs. Which spared not his owne sonne, but hath geuen him for vs all: how shal he not with him geue vs all thinges also? Who wyl laye any thinge to & charge of Gods chosen? Here is God that maketh

Neuerthelesse in all these chinges we ouercome farre, for his sake that loued vs. For iure I am, that nether death ner life, nether angell, ner rule, nether power, nether thinges present, nether thinges to come, nether heych, ner loweth, nether any other creature shalbe able to separate vs from the loue of God, which is in Christ Jesu oure L O R D E.

The IX. Chapter.

21 Saye the trueth in Christ, and lye not (wherof my conscience beareth me witnesse in the holy goost) that I haue greate heuynesse & concynwall sorowe in my hert. * I haue wysshed my selfe to be cursed from Christ for my brethrien, that are my kynsmen after the flesh, which are off Israel: * vnto whom pertaineth the childshipp, and the glory, and the coneuantes and lawe, and the seruyce of God, and the promyses: whose are also the fathers, off whom (after the flesh) cometh Christ, * which is God ouerall, blessed for euer, Amen. But I speake not these chinges, as though the worde of God were of none effecte: for they are not all Israelites, which are of Israel: * nether are they all children, because they are the sede of Abrahams: but in Isaac shal the sede be called vnto the, that is, They which are children after the flesh, are not the children of God, but the children of the promys are counted for the sede. For this is a worde of the promys, where he sayeth: Aboute this tyme wyl I come, and Sara shal haue a sonne.

23 Howbeit it is not so with this onely, but also: han Rebecca was with childe by one (namely by one father Isaac) or euer the childre were borne, & had done nether good ner bad (that the purpose of God might stode accordinge to the election, not by the deseruyng of workes, but by the grace of the caller) it was sayde thus vnto her: The greater shal serue the lesse. As it is wrytten: * Jacob haue I loued, but Esau haue I hated.

What shal we saye then? Is God then vnrighteous? God forbid. For he sayeth vnto Moses: I shewe mercy, to whom I shewe mercy: and haue compassion, on whom I haue compassion. So lyeth it not then in eny mans wyl or runnyng, but in the mercy of God. For the scripture sayeth vnto Pharaos: For this cause haue I stered the vp, euen to shewe my power on the, that my name might be declared in all lodes. Thus hath he mercy on whom he wyl: and whom he wyl, he hardeneth.

Thou wilt saye then vnto me: Why blameth he vs yet? For who can resiste his will? O thou man, who art thou, that disputest with God? Sayeth the worke to his workman: Why hast thou made me on this fashion? Hath not the potter power, out of one lempe of claye to make one vessell vnto honoure, and another vnto dishonoure? Therefore when God wolde shewe wrath, and to make his power knowne, he brought forth with greate patience the vessels off wrath, which are ordyned to damnacion: that he might declare the riches off his glorye on y vessels of mercy, which he hath prepared vnto glorye, whom he hath called (namely vs) not onely of the Jewes, but also of the Gentyles. As he sayeth also by Osee: I wil call that my people, which is not my people: and my beloved, which is not y beloved. And it shal come to passe in y place, where it was sayde vnto them: Ye are not my people, there shal they be called the children of the lyuynge God. But I say crieth ouer Israel: * Though the nombre of the children of Israel be as the sonde of the see, yet shal there but a remnaunt be saued. For there is the worde, that synneth and shorteneth in righteousness: for a shorte worde shal God make vpon earth. And as I say sayde before: Excepte the L O R D E of Sabaoth had lefte vs sede, we shulde haue bene as Sodom, and like vnto Gomorra.

What shal we saye then? This wil we saye: The heythen which folowed not righteousness, haue overtaken righteousness: but I speake of the righteousness that cometh of faith. Agayne, Israel folowed the lawe of righteousness, and attayned not vnto the lawe of righteousness. Why so? Euen because they soughte it not out of faith, but as it were out of the deseruyng of workes. For they haue stombled at the stomblinge stone. As it is wrytten: Beholde, I laye in Sion a stone to stoble at, and a rocke to be offended at: and who so euer belueth on him, shal not be confounded.

The X. Chapter.

A Kethien, my hertes besyre, & prayer vnto God for Israel is, that they might be saved. For I beare them recorde, that they are zelous for Gods cause, but not wth vnderstandinge. For they knowe not the righteousnes which anayleth before God, and go aboute to maneyne their awne righteousnes: and thus they are not subdued vnto the righteousnes, that is off value before God. For Christ is the ende of the lawe, vnto righteousnes for every one y^e beleueth. Moses wryteth of y^e righteousnes which cometh of the lawe, that the man which doth y^e same, shal lyue therein. But y^e righteousnes which cometh of faith, speaketh on this wyse: Saye not in thine hert: Who wil go vp in to heauen: (that is nothinge els then to fetch Christ downe) Or who wil go downe in to y^e depe: (that is nothinge els the to fetch vp Christ from the deed.) But what sayeth the scripture: The worde is nye the, euen in thy mouth and in thine hert. This is y^e worde of faith y^e we preach.

B For yf thou knowlegest Jesus with thy mouth, that he is the LORDE, and beleuest in thine hert, that God hath raysted him vp from the deed, thou shalt be saved. For yf a man beleue from the hert, he shal be made righteous: and yf a man knowlege with the mouth, he shal be saved. For the scripture sayeth: Who so euer beleueth on him, shal not be confounded.

Here is no difference, nether of the Jewe ner of the Gentyle. For one is LORDE of all, which is riche vnto all y^e call vpoⁿ him. For who so euer shal call vpon the name of the LORDE, shal be saved. But how shal they call vpoⁿ him, on wh^o they beleue not? How shal they beleue on him, of wh^o they haue not herde? How shal they heare without a preacher? But how shal they preach, excepte they be sent? As it is wrytte: How beutyfull are the fete of th^e y^e preach peace, y^e brynge good tidinges. But they are not all obedient vnto the Gospell. For Esaye sayeth: LORDE, who beleueth oure preachinge? So th^e faith cometh by hearynge, but hearin ge cometh by the worde of God.

But I saye: Haue they not herde? No doubt their sounde wete out in to all londes, and their wordes in to the endes of the world. But I saye: Hath not Israel knowne? First, Moses sayeth: I wil prouoke you to enuye, by them that are not my people: & by a foolish nacion wil I anger you. Esaye after him is bolde, and sayeth: I am founde of them, that sought me not: & haue appeared vnto them, that axed not after me. But vnto Israel he sayeth: All the daye longe haue I stretched forth my handes vnto a people y^e beleueth not, but speaketh agaynst me.

The XI. Chapter.

Saye then: Hath God thrust out his people? God forbid: for I also am an Israelite, of the seide of Abraham out of the trybe of Ben Iamin. God hath not thrust out his people, whom he knewe before. Or wote ye not what the scripture sayeth of Elias, how he maketh intercession vnto God agaynst Israel, and sayeth: LORDE, they haue slaynethy prophetes, & dydged downe thine altares, and I am lefte ouer onely, and they seeke my life? But what sayeth the answer of God vnto him? I haue reserued vnto me seuenthoulande men, which haue not bowed their knee before Baal. Eue so goeth it now at this tyme also wth this remnant after y^e eleccion of grace. If it be done of grace, th^e is it not of deseruynge: els were grace no grace. But yf it be of deseruynge, then is grace nothinge: els were deseruynge no deseruynge.

What th^e? Israel hath not optayned y^e which he soughte, but the eleccion hath optayned it. As for y^e other, they are blynded. As it is wrytten: God hath geuen them the spiete of vnquyetnesse, eyes that they shulde not se, and eares that they shulde not heare, en^e vnto this daye. And David sayeth: Let their table be made a snare to take th^e with all, & an occasion to fall, & a rewarde vnto th^e. Let their eyes be blynded that they se not, and euer bore downe their backes.

I saye then: Haue they therfore stumblid, y^e they shulde cleane fall to naughte? God forbid: but th^eoro^r their fall is saluacion happened vnto y^e heythen, that he mighte prouoke them to be zelous after them. For yf their fall be the riches of the world, and the mynishinge of th^e the riches of the heythen: how moch more shulde it be so, yf their fulnesse were there? I speake vnto you heythen: for in as moch as I am y^e Apostle of the heythen, I wil prayse myne office, yf I mighte prouoke them vnto zele, which are my fleshe, and saue some of them. For yf the losse of them by the recedynge of the world, what were that els, then as yf life were taken of the deed? If the begynnynge be holy, then is all y^e dowe holy: and yf the rote be holy, then are the brannches holy also.

But though some of y^e brannches now be broke, and thou, wh^o thou wast a wylde olyuetre, art grafted in amonge them, and made partaker of the rote and sappe of the * olyue tre, boost not thy selfe agaynst the braunches. If thou boost thy selfe agaynst them, then bearest not thou the rote, but the rote beareth the. Thou wilt saye then: the braunches are broke of, that I mighte be grafted in. Thou sayest well. They are broken of because off their vnbeleue, but thou stondest thorow beleue. Be not thou hye mynded, but feare, seynge God hath not spared the naturall braunches, lest he also spare not the.

Beholde therfore the kyndnesse and rigorousnes off God: on them which fell, rigorousnes: but towarde the, kyndnes, yf thou contynue in the kyndnesse. Els shalt thou be hewe of: * and they, yf they hyde not styll in vnbeleue, shal be grafted in agayne. For God is of power to grafte the in agayne. For yf thou be cut out of the naturall wilde olyue tre, and grafted (contrary to nature) in the good olyue tre, how moch more shal they that are naturall, be grafted in their awne olyue tre agayne?

I wolde not that this secrete shulde be hyd from you brethre (lest ye shulde be wyse in youre awne cōsaytes) that partly byndnesse is happened vnto Israel, * so longe tyll the fulnesse of the heythen be come in, and so all Israel shalbe saved. As it is wrytten: There shal come out of Sion he that both belynet, and shal turne away vngodlynes from Jacob. And this is my couenaunt with them, whā I shal take awaye their synnes. As concernynge the Gospell, I holde them as enemies for youre sakes: but as touchinge the eleccion, I loue them for the fathers sakes.

For verely the giftes & callynge of God are such, that it can not repent him of them. For likewise as ye also in tyme passed haue not beleued, but now haue opcrayned mercy thorow their vnbeleue: Euen so now haue they not beleued on the mercy which his happened vnto you, that they also maye opcrayne mercy. For God hath closed vp all vnder vnbeleue, that he mighte haue mercy on all.

O the depenesse of the riches, both of the wysdome and knowlege of God? How incomprehensible are his iudgements, and his wayes vnsearchable? For who hath knowne the mynde of the LORDE? Or who hath bene his counsell geuer? Or who hath geue him ought afore hande, that he mighte be recompenced agayne? For of him, and thorow him, and in him are all thinges. To him be prayse for euer, Amen.

Beseeke you brethre by the mercynesse of God, that ye geue ouer youre bodys for a * sacrifice, & is quyte holy, and acceptable vnto God, which is yd reasonable seruyng off God. And fashion not youre selues like vnto this worlde, but be chaunged thorow the reneruynge off yd mynde, & ye maye proue, what chynge that good, & acceptable, & perfecte wil of God is. For I saye thorow the grace & is geue me, vnto enery man amonge you: * that no man esteeme off him selfe more, then it becometh him to esteeme: but that he discretly iudge of himselfe, acordinge as God hath dealte vnto enery man the measure of faith. For like as we haue many membres in one body, but all the membres haue not one maner of operation: Euen so we beynge many are one body in Christ. But amonge oure selues every one is the membre of another, and haue diuers giftes, acordinge to the grace that is geuen vnto vs. * If eny man haue the gifte of prophecience, let it be acordinge to the faith.

* Let him that hath an office, wayte vpon the office: let him that teacheth, take hede to the doctryne: Let him that exhorteth, geue attendaunce to the exhortacion. If eny mā geueth, let hi geue with synghleness. Let him that ruleth, be diligent. * If eny man shewe mercy, let him do it with chearfulnesse. Let lone be without dissimulation. Hate that which is euell: Cleue vnto that which is good. Be kynde one to another with brotherly loue. In geuyng honoure go one before another. * Be not slouthfull in the busynesse that ye haue in hande. Be seruent in the spiete. Applye youre selues vnto the tyme. Reioyse in hope, be pacient in trouble. Continue in prayer. Distribute vnto the necessities of the sayntes. * Be glad to harbarow. Blesse the that persecute you. Blesse, & curse not. Be merry with them that are merry and wepe with them that wepe.

Be of one mynde amonge youre selues. Be not proude in youre awne cōsaytes, but make youre selues equalle to them of * lowe sorte. Be not wyse in youre awne opinions. * Recompe vnto no man euell for euell. Provyde honestie afore hāde towarde every mā. If it be possible (as moch as in you is) haue peace with all men.

Dearly beloved, auenge not youre selues, but geue rowme vnto the wrath off God. For it is wryttē: Vengeance is myne, and I wil rewarde, sayeth * LORDE. Therfore

The XIII. Chapter.

2 Let every soule submytte him selfe to the auctorite off the hyer powers. * For there is no power but of God. The powers that be, are ordeyned of God: so that who so euer resisteth the power, resisteth the ordinaunce of God. And they that resiste, shal receaue to them selues dānacion. For rulers are not to be feared for good woordes, but for euell. If thou wilt be without feare off the power, do well then, and thou shalt haue prayse of the same: for he is the minister off God for thy wealch. But yf thou do euell, then feare, for he beareth not the swerde for naughte. For he is the mynister of God, a eater of vengeance, to punyshe him that doth euell. Wherefore ye must nedes obeye, not onely for punyshment, but also because of conscience. For this cause must ye geue tribute also. For they are Gods mynisters, which māteyne & same defence.

3 Geue to every man therfore his due: tribute, to whom tribute belongeth: custome, to whom custome is due: feare, to whom feare belongeth: honoure, to whom honoure pertayneth. Owe nothinge to any man, but to loue one another. For he that loueth another, hath fulfylled the lawe. For where it is sayde: (Thou shalt not breake wedlocke: thou shalt not kylle: thou shalt not steale: thou shalt not beare false witnessse: thou shalt not lust) and yf there be any other commaundement, it is comprehēded in this worde: Thou shalt loue thy neighbour as thy selfe. Loue doth his neighbour no euell. Therefore is lone & fulfyllinge of the lawe.

4 And for so moch as we know this, namely the tyme * that the houre is now for vs to ryse from slepe (for now is oure saluacion nearer, then whan we be leued: the nighte is past, but the daye is come nye.) Let vs therefore cast awaye y^e woordes of darknesse, and put on the armour of lighte. Let vs walke honestly as in the daye, * not in excessse off eatinge and in dronkenesse, not in chamburyng and wantonnesse, not in stryfe and enuenge: but put ye on the LORDE Iesus Christ, * and make not prouysion for y^e flesh, to fulfill the lustes of it.

The XIII. Chapter.

21 Im that is weake in the faith, receaue vnto you, and trouble not the con-

sciences. One beleueth that he maye eat all thinge: but he that is weake, eateth herbes. Let not him that eateth, despyse him that eateth not: and let not him which eateth not, iudge him that eateth: for God hath receaued him. * Who are thou, that iudgest another mans seruaut? He stonderth or falleth vnto his LORDE: mee he maye well stōde, for God is able to make hī stōde. Some man puttech differēce betwene daye & daye, but another man counteth all dayes alyke. * Let every man be sure of his meanyng. He that puttech difference in the daye, doth it vnto the LORDE: & he that puttech no differēce in the daye, doth it vnto y^e LORDE also. He y^e eateth, eateth vnto the LORDE, for he geueth God thākes: and he that eateth not, eateth not vnto y^e LORDE, and geueth God thākes. For none of vs lyueth to him selfe, and none dyeth to him selfe. If we lyue, we lyue vnto the LORDE: If we dye, we dye vnto the LORDE. Therefore, whether we lyue or dye, we are the LORDES.

3 Forther to dyed Christ, and rose agayne, and reuyued, that he mighte be * LORDE both of deede and quydē. But why iudgest thou y^e brother? Or thou other, why despysest thou y^e brother? We shal all be brought before y^e iudgmēt seate of Christ. For it is wyttē: As truly as I lyue, (sayeth the LORDE) all knees shal bowe vnto me, & all tēges shal knowlege vnto God. Thus shal euery one of vs geue accomptes for himselfe vnto God. Let vs not therfore iudge one another enymore. But iudge this rather, y^e nomā put a stōmblinge blocke or an occasion to fall in his brothers waye. * I knowe, & am full certified in y^e LORDE Iesu, y^e there is nothinge comen of it selfe: but vnto him y^e iudgeth it to be comen, to him is it comen. But yf y^e brother be greued ouer y^e meate, the walkest thou not now after charite. Destroye not wth thy meate, him, for whom Christ dyed,

4 Se therfore that youre treasure be not euell spokē of. For the kyngdome of God is not meate and drynke, but righteousnes, & peace, and ioye in the holy goost. He that in these thinges serueth Christ, pleaseth God, & is comended of mē. Let vs therefore folowe those thinges which make for peace, & thinges wherewith one maye edifye another. Destroye not y^e worke of God for any meates sake. All thinges truly are cleane, but it is euell for y^e mā, which eateth wth hurte of his cōscience. * It is moch better y^e thou eate no flesh, and drynke no wyne, nor any thinge, wherby

The summe of this Epistle.

Chap. II. It is not eloquence and glorious paynted wordes of wordly wysdome, that can edifie and conuertere soules vnto Christ: but the playne wordes of the scripture, for they make mencion of him and his crosse.

Chap. III. Paul rebuketh the sectes and autho- res therof Christ is the foundaciō of his church. No man ought to reioyce in men, but in God.

Chap. IIII. The preachers are but ministers. Judgment belongeth only vnto God.

Chap. V. After what maner Paul curseth the man, that had committed fornicacion with his mother in lawe.

Paul, called to be an Apostle of Jesus Christ thorow y will of God, and brother. Gosthenes, vnto the congregacion off God which is at Councum, to them that are sanctified in Christ Jesus, sayntes by callinge, with all them that call vpon the name of oure LORDE Jesus Christ, in every place both off theirs and oures. Grace be with you and peace from God oure father, and from the LORDE Jesus Christ.

I thake my God allwayes on youre behalfe, for the fauoure of God which is geue you in Jesus Christ, that in all poyntes ye are made ryche by him, in euery woide, and in all maner of knowlege (eue as y preachinge of Christ is confirmed in you) so that ye wante nothinge in eny giste, and wayte but for the appearinge of oure LORDE Jesus Christ: which shal strength you also vnto y ende, that ye maye be blamelesse in the daye of oure LORDE Jesus Christ. For God is faithfull, by whō ye are called vnto the fellowshippe of his sonne Jesus Christ oure LORDE.

But I beseeke you brethre thorow the name of oure LORDE Jesus Christ, that ye all speake one thinge, and let there be no discension amonge you, but that ye be perfecte in one meanyng. For it is shewed me (my brethien) of you, by them which are of y housholde of Cloes, that there is stryfe amonge you. I speake of that, which euery one of you sayeth: I holde of Paul. Another, I holde of Apollo. The thirde, I holde of Cephas. The fourth, I holde off Christ. Is Christ then deuyded in partes? Was Paul crucified for you? Or were ye baptysed in y name of Paul? I thanke God that I haue baptised none of you, but Crispus and Gaius: lest eny shulde saye, y I in myne awne name had baptised. I baptysed also y housholde of Stephana. Farthermore knowe I not, whether I baptysed eny other. For Christ sent me not to baptysse, but to preach the Gospell, not with wysdome of wordes, lest y crosse of Christ shulde haue bene made of none effecte.

For the worde of y cresse is foolishnesse to thē that perishe: but vnto vs which are saned, it is the power of God. For it is wrytten: I wyl destroye the wysdome of the wyse, & wil cast away the vnderstandinge of y prynces. Where are the wyse? Where a. e. y scribes? where are y disputers of this worlde? hath not God made the wysdome of this worlde foolishnesse? For in so moch as the worlde by the wysdome therof knewe not God in his wysdome, it pleased God thorow foolish preachinge to saue them y belene. For the Jewes requyre tokens, and the Grekes are after wysdome. But we preach Christ the crucified: to the Jewes an occasion off fallinge, and vnto the Grekes foolishnes. But vnto them that are called (both Jewes and Grekes) we preach Christ the power of God and the wysdome off God.

amonge you that I knewe any thinge, save onely Iesus Christ, even the sam that was crucified. And I was amonge you in weaknes, and in feare, and in much tremblinge:

1. Tim. 1. a * and my worde and my preachinge was not with entysinge wordes of mans wysdome, but in shewing of the spire and of power: that youre faith shulde not stonde in the wysdome of men, but in the power of God.

That we speake of, is wysdome amonge the þ are perfecte: not y wysdome of this worlde, nether of the rulers of this worlde which go to naught: but we speake of the wysdome of God, which is in secreete and lyeth hyd: which God ordeyned before the worlde unto oure glorie: * which none of y rulers of this worlde knewe. For yf they had knowne it, they had not crucified the LORD of glorie, but as it is wyrtten: * The eye hath not sene, and the eare hath not herde, nether hath it entred in to the hert of man that God hath prepared for them that loue him.

But God hath opened it unto vs by his spire. * For the spire searcheth out all thinges, y^e even the depeneses of the Godhead. For what mā knoweth what is in man, save the spire of mā which is in him? Euen so no man knoweth what is in God, save y spire of God. As for vs, we have not receaied the spire of this worlde, but the spire which cometh of God, so that we cā knowe what is geue vs of God: which we also speake, not with connyng wordes of mā's wysdome, but with the cōnyng wordes of the holy goost, and iudge spirituall matters spiritually. Howbeit the naturall man perceaueth nothinge of y spires of God. It is foolishnes unto him, and he can not perceau it: for it must be spiritually discerned. * But he that is spirituall, discusseth all thinges, and he is iudged of no man. * For who hath knowne y mynde of the LORD? Or who shal enforme him? But we haue the mynde of Christ.

The III. Chapter.

2 Wid I biethren, coulde not speake vnto you as vnto spirituall, but as vnto carnall, euen as vnto babes in Christ.

Heb. 5. a * I gaue you mylke to drynke, and not meate, for ye mighte not then awaye withall, ne ther maye ye yet euen now, in so much as ye are yet fleshye. For * seynge there is enuyenge, stryfe, and discencion amonge you, are ye not fleshy, & walke after y maner of men? For whan one sayeth: I holde of Paul: another, I holde of Apollo, are ye not the flesh-

lye? What is Paul? What is Apollo? Eue mynisters are they, by whom ye are cometo the beleue, and the same, acordinge as the LORD hath geuen vnto every man. I haue planted, Apollo hath watred, * but God hath geuen the increace. So then nether is he that planteth, any thinge, nether he that watreth, but God which geueth the increace. As for him that planteth, and he that watreth, y one is as the other: but yet shal every one receaue his rewarde acordinge to his labour. For we are Gods labourers, ye are Gods husbandry, ye are Gods buyldinge.

Acordinge to the grace of God which is geuen vnto me, as a wyse buylder haue I layed the foundacion, but another buyldeth thereon. Yet let every man take hede how he buyldeth thereon. * For other foundacion can no man laye, then that which is layed, the which is Iesus Christ. But yf eny man buylde vpon this foundacion, golde, syluer, precious stones, tymbre, haye, stobbe, every mā's worke shal be shewed. * For the daye of the LORD shal declare it, which shal be shewed with fyre: and the fyre shal trye every mā's worke what it is. If eny mans worke that he hath buyldeth thereon, abyde, he shal receaue a rewarde: If eny mans worke burne, he shal suffre losse: but he shal be saved himselfe, neuertheles as thorow fyre.

* Knowe ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the spire of God dwelleth in you? If eny man defyle the temple of God, him shal God destroye. For the temple of God is holy, which ye are. Let no mā disceue himselfe. If eny man thinke himselfe wyse amonge you, let him become a foole in this worlde, that he maye be wyse. For the wysdome off this worlde is foolishnes with God. For it is wyrtten: * He compasseth the wyse in their craftynesse. And agayne: * The LORD knoweth the thoughtes of the wyse, that they are vayne. Therfore let no man reioyse in men. For all is yowes, whether it be Paul or Apollo, whether it be Cephas or the worlde, whether it be life or death, whether it be presente or for to come. All is yowes, but ye are Chastes, and Christ is Gods.

The III. Chapter.

Let every man this wyse esteeme vs, euen for the mynisters of Christ, and stewardes of the secretes of God. Now is there no more requyred of the stewardes, then, that they be founde * faithfull. It is but a small thinge vnto me, that I shulde be iudged of you, or of mans daye, nerher iudge I myne awne selfe. I knowe noughte by my selfe, * yet am I not therby iustified. It is the LORDE that iudgeth me. Therfore iudge ye nothinge before I tyme, untill the LORDE come, which shal brynge it to lighte that is hyd in darknesse, and open the counsels of I herces, and the shal every one haue prayse of God.

not that we shal iudge the angels: how much more thinges that pertaineto the temporall life: Therefore yf ye have iudgmentes of temporall matters, take them that are despyed in the congregacion, and set them to be iudges. This I saye to youre shame. Is there utterly no wyse man amonge you? What not one at all, that can iudge betwene brother & brother: but one brother goeth to lawe with another, and that before the vnbeleuers?

B Now therefore is there utterly a fault amonge you, that ye go to lawe one with another. Why rather suffre ye not wronge? Why suffre ye not youre selues rather to be defrauded: but ye youre selues do wronge and defraude, and that euen the brethre. Knowe ye not that yf vnrighteous shal not inheret the kyngdome of God? Benot disceaued. Neither whoremongers, ner worshippers off ymages, ner breakers off wedlocke, ner weaklinges, nether abusers of them selues with mankynde, ner theues, nether the couetous, ner drōkardes, ner cursed speakers, ner extortioners shal inheret the kyngdome of God. And soch haue some of you bene, but ye are washed, ye are sanctified, ye are made righteous by the name of the LORDE Jesus, and by the sperte of oure God.

C I maye do all thinges, but all thinges are not profitable. I maye do all thinges, but I wil be broughte vnder no mā's power. Meates are ordeyned for yf bely, & the bely for meates. But God shal destroye both it and them. The body belongeth not vnto whordome, but vnto the LORDE, and the LORDE vnto the body. God hath raysed vp the LORDE, and shal rayse vs vp also by his power. Knowe ye not that youre bodies are the membres of Chust? Shal I now take the membres of Chust, and make them the membres of an harlot? God forbid. Or do ye not knowe, that he which cleueth vnto an harlot, is one body? For they shal be two (+ sayeth he) in one fleshe. But he that cleueth vnto the LORDE, is one sperte.

Gle whordome. All synnes yf a man both, are without the body. But he that commyttech whordome, synneth agaynst his awne body. Or knowe ye not that youre body is the temple of the holy goost? Whom ye haue of God, and are not youre awne? For ye are dearly boughte. Praise ye God therefore in yf body & in yf sperte, which are Gods.

The VII. Chapter.

AS concernynge the thinges wherof ye wrote vnto me, I answere: It is good for a man not to touche a woman. Nevertheless to avoyde whordome, let every man haue his awne wife, and let every woman haue hir awne husbände. Let the mā geue vnto the wife due beneuolence: like wyse also the wife vnto yf man. The wife hath not power ouer hir awne body, but the husbände: & likewise the man hath not power ouer his awne body, but the wife. Withdrawen not yf selues one frō another, excepte it be with the consent of both for a tyme, that ye maye geue youre selues vnto fastinge and prayer, and thē come together agayne, lest Sathan tempte you for yf incontynēcie. But this I saye of fauoure, and not of commaundemēt. Howbeit I wolde rather yf all mē were as I am. Nevertheless every one hath his proper gifte of God: one thus, another so. To them verely yf are vnmarried and to wedowes I saye: It is good for thē that they abyde also as I do. But yf they cannot absteyne, let them mary. For it is better to mary, then to burne.

But vnto them that are married, commaunde not I, but the LORDE, that the wife separate not her selfe from the husbände: but yf she separate her selfe, yf she remayne vnmarried, or be reconcyled to hir husbände: and let not the husbände put awaye his wife from him.

As for the other, vnto thē saye I, not yf LORDE: If eny brother haue an vnbeleuynge wife, and she is content to dwell with him, let him not put hir awaye. And yf a woman haue an vnbeleuynge husbände, and he is content to dwell with her, let her not put him awaye. For the vnbeleuynge husbände is sanctified by the wife, and the vnbeleuynge wife is sanctified by the husbände: or els were youre children vncleane, but now are they holy. But yf the vnbeleuynge departe, let him departe. A brother or a sister is not bounde in such cases, but God hath called vs in peace. For what knowest thou O woman, whether thou shalt saue yf mā? Or what knowest thou O man, whether thou shalt saue the woman? But euen as God hath distributed vnto every one and as the LORDE hath called every man, so let him walke: and so orden I in all congregacions.

If eny man be called beyng circumcysed let him take no heythenshippe vpon him. If eny man be called in the heythenshippe, let him not be circumcysed. Circumcision is nothynge, and vncircumcision is nothynge, but the keepynge of the commaundementes of God. Let every one abyde in the callinge

Rom. 14. e

The IX. Chapter.

A M I not an Apostle? Am I not fre? * Haue I not sene Jesus Christ oure LORDE? Are not ye my worke in the LORDE? If I be not an Apostle vnto other, yet am I youre Apostle: for the seale of my ne Apostolshippe are ye in the LORDE. My ne answere vnto them that axe me, is this: Haue we not power to eate and drynke? Ha ue we not power also to leade aboute a sister to wife, as well as other Apostles, and as the brethien of the LORDE, and * Cephas?

Or haue onely I and Barnabas not power this to do? Who goeth a warfare at any tyme vpon his awne wages? Who planteth a vynyarde, and eateth not of the frute ther of? Who fedeth a flocke, and eateth not of the mylke of the flocke?

Saye I these thinges after the maner of men? Sayeth not the lawe the same also?

For it is wrytten in the lawe of Moses: Thou shalt not mow the mouth of the oxe that treadeth out the come. Doth God take thought for the oxen? Or sayeth he it not altogether for oure sakes? For no doute it is wrytten for oure sakes. For he that eareth, shulde eare vpon hope: and he that sows, shulde trow vpon hope, & he mighte be partaker of his hope. If we haue sowne vnto you spiritual thinges, is it a greate thinge yf we reape yd bodely thinges? But yf other be partakers of this power on you, wherfore are not we rather? Neuertheles we haue not vsed this power, but suffice all thinges, lest we shulde hynder the Gospell of Christ. Knowe ye not that they which labour in the temple, haue their lyuynge of y temple: and they that wayte at the altare, enioye the altare? Euen thus also hath y LORD ordeyned, that they which preach the Gospell, shulde lyue of y Gospell. But I haue vsed none of these thinges.

Either wryte I therof, that it shulde be done so vnto me: for I had rather dye, than that any man shulde brynge my reioysinge to naughte. For in that I preach the Gospell, I neade not booste my selfe, for I must nedes do it. And vnto me, yff I preach not the Gospell. If I do it with a good wyll, I shall haue my rewarde: but yff I do it agaynst my wyll, yet is the office commytte vnto me. Wherfore shall I be rewarded? (Namely therfore) that I preach the Gospell, and do the same frely for naughte, that I abuse not my libertye in y Gospell. For though I am fre from all men, yet haue I made my selfe euery mans seruaunt, & I mighte wyne y moo. Vnto the Jewes I am become as a Jewe, to wyne y Jewes. To them that are vnder the lawe, I am become as though I were vnder the lawe, to wyne them which are vnder the lawe.

Act. 16. a

Vnto them that are without lawe, I am become as though I were without lawe (where as yet I am not without the lawe of God, but am in y lawe of Christ) to wyne them that are without lawe. To the weak, am I become as weak, to wyne the weak. I am become of all fashions vnto euery man, to saue some at y leest. But this I do for the Gospels sake, that I mighte be partaker therof.

Knowe ye not, that they which runne in a course, runne all, yet but one receaueth the rewarde? Runne ye so, that ye maye optayne. Euery one that proueth masterye, absteyneth from all thinges, and they do it, that they maye optayne a corruptible crowne, but we to optayne an vncorruptible crowne. I therfore so runne, not as at an vncertaine thinge: So fighte I, not as one that beatech y aye: but I tame my body, and brynge it into subieccion, lest when I preach vnto other: I my selfe be a cast awaye.

The X. Chapter.

Rethien, I wolde not that ye shulde be ignorant of this, & that oure fathers were all vnder the cloude, & and all passed thorow the see, & were all baptised vnder Moses in the cloude and in the see, & and dyd all eate of one spirituall meate, and & dyd all drynke of one spirituall drynke: but they dronke of the spirituall & rocke that folowed them, which rocke was Christ. Neuertheles in many of them had God no delite, & for they were synnynge downe in the wyldernes.

Christ: The bread that we breake, is it not y^e partakinge of y^e body of Christ? For we many, are one bread & one body, in as moch as we all are partakers of one bread.

C Beholde Israel after the fleshe. They y^e eate the sacrifices, are they not partakers of the altare? What shal I now saye then? Shal I saye that the Idoll is eny thinge? Or that it which is offred vnto the Idoll is eny thinge? Nay. But this I saye, that loke what the heythen offre, that offre they vnto deuels, and not vnto God. Now wolde I not that ye shulde be in the fellowshipe of deuels. Ye can not drynke of the cuppe of the LORDE and of the cuppe of the deuels. Ye can not be partakers of the LORDES table, and of the table of deuels. Or wyl we prouoke the LORDE? I maye do all thinges, but all thinges are not profitable. I maye do all thinges, but all thinges edifye not. Let noman seeke his awne profit, but let every man seeke anothers welch.

What soeuer is solde in the fleshmarket, that eate, and are no question for conscience sake. For the earth is the LORDES, and all y^e therin is. Ifeny of the y^e belene not, byd you to a feast, and yf ye be disposed to go, what soeuer is set before you, that eate, as in geno question for conscience sake.

D But yfeny man saye vnto you: This is offred vnto Idols, the eate not of it, for his sake that shewed it, and for hurtinge of conscience. (The earth is the LORDES and all that therin is.) Neuertheles I speake of conscience, not thine, but of y^e other. For why shulde my liberty be iudged of another mans conscience? For yf I take my parte wth thankesgeuyng, why am I euell spoken of, for y^e thinge wherfore I geue thankes?

* Therefore whether ye eate or drynke, or what soeuer ye do, do all to y^e prayse of God. Be not ye an occasion of fallinge, nether to the Jewes, ner to the Gentyles, ner to the congregacion of God, eny as I also please all men in all thinges, not seekinge myne awne profit, but the profit of many, that they might be saued. Solowe ye me, as I do Christ.

The XI. Chapter.

A Commende you biethren, that ye remembre me in all poyntes, and kepe the ordinaunces, eny as I deliuered them vnto you. But I certifye you, that Christ is the heade of every man. As for y^e man, he is the heade of y^e woman, but God is Christes heade. Every man that prayeth or prophecieth, and hath eny thinge on his heade, shameth his heade. But enery woman that prayeth or prophecieth with vncouered heade, dishonesteth hir heade. For it is eny a lyke moch as yf she were shaven. If the womā be not couered, let hir heer also be cut of. But yf it be vncomely for a woman to haue hir heer cut of or to be shaven, then let hir couer hir heade. Neuertheles the man oughte not to couer his heade, for so moch as he is the ymage and glory of God: but the womā is the glory of the man. For the man is not of the woman, but the woman of the man. Nether was the man created for the womans sake, but the womā for the mans sake.

Therefore ought the woman to haue a power vpon hir heade, for the angels sakes. Neuertheles nether is the man without y^e woman, nether the woman without the mā in the LORDE. For as the woman is of the man, enen so cometh the man also by the woman, but all of God. Judge ye by y^e selues, whether it be comly, y^e a womā praye before God bare headed? Or doth not nature teach you, y^e it is a shame for a man yf he weere lōge heer, & a prayse to y^e womā, yf she weere lōge heer? For hir heer is geue heer to couer her withall. But yf there be eny man amonge you that hath lust to stryue, let him knowe, that we haue no soch custeme, nether the congregacions of God. But this must I warne you of: I commende it not, that ye come together not after a better maner but after a worse. First, whan ye come together in the congregacion, I heare, that there are discensions amonge you, and I partly beleue it. For theremust be sectes amonge you, that they which are perfecte amonge you, mighte be knowne.

Now whan ye come together, the LORDES supper can not be kepte. For whan it shulde be kepte, every mā taketh his awne supper afore. And one is hōgrie, another is dionk. Haue ye not houses to eate and drynke in? Or despyse ye y^e cōgregacion of God, and shame them that haue not? What shal I saye vnto you? Shal I prayse you? in this prayse I you not. That which I deliuered vnto you, receaued I of the LORDE. For the LORDE Iesus the same nighte in the which he was betrayed, toke the bread, & gaue thankes, and brake it, and sayde: Take ye, & eate ye, this is my body, which is broken for you. This do in the remembraunce of me. After the same maner also he toke y^e cuppe whan supper was done, and sayde: This cuppe is the new Testament in my blonde, this do (as oft as ye drynke it) in the remembrance of me. For as oft as ye shall eat of this bread, & drynke of this cuppe, ye shall shewe the LORDES death, vntill he come.

D Wherfore who soeuer shall eat off this bread, and drynke off this cuppe of the LORD vnworthely, shall be guiltye of the body and blonde of the LORD. * But let a man examen himselfe, and so let him eat of this bread, and drynke of this cuppe. For he that eateth and drynketh vnworthely, eateth & drynketh his awne damnacion, because he maketh no difference of the LORDES body. Therfore are there so many weak and sicke amonge you, and many slepe. * For yf we iudged oureselues, we shulde not be iudged. But whan we are iudged, we are chastened of y LORD, that we shulde not be dāned with the * worlde. Wherfore my brethien, whan ye come together to eate, tary one for another. But yf eny man hunger, let him eate at home, that ye come not together vnto cō dempnacion. As for other thinges, I wil see them in order whan I come.

The XII. Chapter.

I S concerninge spirituall giftes (brethien) I wolde not that ye were ignorant. Ye knowethat ye were theyche and wente youre wayes vnto dōme Idols, eue as ye were led. Wherfore I declare vnto you, * that no man speakyng the spire of God, defyeth Iesus. And no man can saye that Iesus is the LORD, but by the holy goost.

There are dyuerse giftes, yet but one spire: and there are dyuerse offices, yet but one LORD: and there are dyuerse operations * yet is there but one God, which worketh all in all. The giftes of the spire are geuen vnto every man to profite the cōgregation. To one is geuen thorow the spire the veteraunce of wisdom: to another is geuen the veteraunce of knowlege accordinge to the same spire: to another, faith in the same spire: to another, the giftes of healinge in the same spire: to another, power to do miracles: to another, prophecieng: to another, * indgment to discern spires: to another, dyuerse tunges: to another, the interpretacion of tunges. These all doth y same onely spire worke, and distributeth vnto every man, accordinge as he will.

For as the body is one, and hath yet many members, neuertheles all the members of the body though they be many, are yet but one body: euen so Christ also. For we are all baptysed in one spire to be one body, whether we be Jewes or Gentyles, whether we be bonde or fre, and haue all * drynke of one spire. For the body also is not one membre, but many. * If the fore saye: I am not y hand, therfore am I not a membre of the body, is he therfore not a membre of y body? And yf the care saye: I am not the eye, therfore am I not a membre of the body, is he therfore not a membre of the body? * If all the body were an eye, & here were then the hearinge? * If all were hearinge, & here then the sinellinge? But now hath God set the membres, eury one seuerally in the body, as it hath pleased him. Neuertheles yf all the membres were one membre, where were then the body? But now are the membres many, yet is the body but one.

The eye can not saye vnto the hande: I haue no nede of the: or agayne the heade vnto the fete, I haue no nede of you: but rather a greate deale the membres of the body which seme to be most feble, are most necessary: and vpon those membres of the body which we thinke least honest, put we most honestie on: and oure vncomly partes haue most beuty on. For oure honest membres neade it not. But God hath so measured y body, and geuen most honoure vnto that membre which had nede, that there shulde be no stryfe in the body, but that the membres shulde indifferently care one for another. And yf one membre suffre, all the membres suffre with him: and yf one membre be had in honoure, all the membres are glad with him also. But ye are the body of Christ, and membres, every one of another.

And God hath ordeyned in the congregation, first the * Apostles, secōdly prophetes, thirldy * teachers, then doers of miracles, after that the giftes of healinge, helpers, gouerners, dyuerse tunges. Are they all Apostles? Are they all prophetes? Are they all teachers? Are they all doers of miracles? Haue they all the giftes of healinge? Speake they all with tunges? Can they all interpret? But couer ye the best giftes. And yet shewe I you a more excellent waye.

The XIII. Chapter.

Though I spake with the tunges of men and angels, and yet had not loue, I were euen as soundinge brasie, or as a tynklinge Cymball. * And though I could prophesy, & vnderstode all secretes, and all knowlege, and had all faith, so * that

The first Epistle

I coulde moue mountaynes out of their places, and yet had not loue, I were nothinge. And though I bestowed all my goodes to fede & poore, and though I gaue my body euen that I burned, and yet haue not loue, it profiteth me nothinge.

Phil. 2. b Loue is pacient & curteous, loue envyeth not, loue doth not frowardly, is not puffed vp, dealeth not dishonestly, seeketh not hir awne, is not prouoked vnto anger, thynteth not euell, reioyseth not ouer iniquyte, but reioyseth in the tructh, beareth all thinges, beleeueth all thinges, hopeth all thinges, suffereth all thinges.

B Though prophecienges fayle, or tinges ceasse, or knowlege perishe, yet loue falleth neuer awaye. For oure knowlege is vnperfecte, and oure prophecienge is vnperfecte. But whā that which is perfecte, cometh, then shal the vnperfecte be done awaye. Whan I was a childe, I spake as a childe, I vnderstode as a childe, I ymaged as a childe. But as soone as I was a man, I put awaye childshines. Now we se thorow a glasse in a darke speakyng, but thē shal we se face to face. Now I knowe vnperfectly: but thē shal I knowe euē as I am knowne. Now abydeth faith, hope, loue, these thre: but the greatest of these is loue.

The XIII. Chapter.

2 L Aboure for loue. Couet spirituall giftes, but specially that ye maye prophecy. For he & speaketh with tinges, speaketh not vnto men, but vnto God: for no man heareth him. Howbeit in & spie he speaketh misteries. But he that prophecieth, speaketh vnto men to edifienge, & to exhortacion, and to cōforte. He that speaketh with tinges, edifieth himselfe: but he that prophecieth, edifieth the cōgregacion. I wolde that ye all spake with tinges, but rather that ye prophecied. For greater is he that prophecieth, then he that speaketh w tinges: excepte he also expounde it, that the congregacion maye haue edifienge. But now brethren yf I come vnto you, and speake with tinges, what shal I profet you, excepte I speake vnto you ether by reuelacion or by knowlege, or by prophecienge, or by doctryne?

B Likewise is it also in & thinges that geue sounde, and yet lyue not: whether it be a pype or an harpe, excepte they geue distyncte sounde from them, how shal it be knowne what is pyped or harped? And yf the troyse geue an vncertayne sounde, who wil prepare him selfe to the battayll? Euen so yel-

to the Corinthians.

ke wyse, whan ye speake with tinges, excepte ye speake playne wordes, how shal it be knowne what is spokē? for ye shal but speake in & ayre. So many kyndes of voyces are in the worlde, and none of them is without significacion. If I knowe not now what & voyce meaneth, I shalbe an aleaunt vnto him that speaketh: & he that speaketh, shalbe an aleaunt vnto me. Euen so ye (for so moch as ye couet spirituall giftes) seeke & ye maye haue plentye to the edifienge of the congregacion. Wherfore let him that speaketh w tinges, praye, that he maye interprete also. If I praye with tinges, my spieete prayeth, but my vnderstōdinge bryngeth no man frute. How shal it be then? Namely thus: I wil praye with & spieete, and wil praye with the vnderstōdinge also: I wil synge psalmes in the spieete, and wil synge psalmes with & vnderstōdinge also.

But whan thou geuest thankes with & spieete, how shal he that occupieth the rowme of the vnlearned, saye Amē at thy geuyng of thankes, seynge he knoweth not what thou sayest? Thou geuest well thankes, but the other is not edified. I thanke my God, that I speake with tinges more then ye all. Yet had I leuer in the cōgregacion to speake fyue wordes with my vnderstōdinge & I maye enfourme other also, rather then ten thousande wordes with tinges. Brethren be not childien in vnderstōdinge, howbeit as concerninge malicioussnes be childien, but in vnderstōdinge be perfecte. In the lawe it is wrytten: With other tinges and with other lippes wil I speake vnto this people, and yet shal they not so heare me, sayeth the LORDE. Therfore are tinges for a token, not to thē that beleue, but to them that beleue not. Contrary wyse, prophecienge, not to them that beleue not, but to them which beleue.

D If the whole cōgregacion now came together into one place, & spake all with tinges, and there came in they that are vnlearned, or they which beleue not, shulde they not saye, that ye were out of youre wyttes? But yff all prophecied, and there came in one & belueth not, or one vnlearned, he shulde be rebuked of them all, and iudged of all, and so shulde the secreete of his hert be opened, and so shulde he fall downe vpon his face, worshippinge God, and knowleginge, that of a tructh God is in you. How is it then brethren? Whan ye come together, euery one hath a psalme, hath doctryne, hath a tunge, hath a reuelacion, hath an interpretacion.

For God is not a God of discension, * but of peace, like as in all congregacions off the sayntes. * Let youre wyues kepe silence in the congregacion, for it shal not be permytted vnto the to speake, but to be vnder obedience, * as yf I haue sayed also. But yf they wyl lerne eny thinge, let them as their huiſbādes at home. For it becommeth not wemen to speake in the congregacion. Or spounge the worde of God from amonge you? Or is it come vnto you onely? If any man thynke him selfe to be a prophet, or spirituall, let him knowe what I wryte vnto you, for they are the commaundementes of the L O R D E. The XV. Chapter.

Declare vnto you brethren, the Gospel that I haue preached vnto you (which ye haue also accepted, and in the which ye stōde, by the which also ye are saved) after what maner I preached it vnto you, yf ye haue kepte it, excepte ye haue beleued in vayne. For first of all I deliuered vnto you that which I also receaued, how that Christ dyed for oure synnes accordinge to the scriptures, and that he was buried, and that he rose agayne yf thirde daye accordinge to the scriptures, and that he was sene of Cephas, then of the twelue: after that was he sene of mo then fyue hundred brethren at once, whereof there are yet many alyue, but some are fallen a slepe. Afterwarde was he sene of James, then of all the Apostles. Last of all was he sene of me also, as of one borne out of due tyme. * For I am yf leest of the Apostles, which am not worthy to be called an Apostle, * because I persecu-ted the congregacion of God. But by the grace of God I am that I am. And his grace in me hath not bene vayne, but I haue laboured more then they all: howbeit not I but the grace of God which is w me. Now whether it be I or they, thus haue we preached, and thus haue ye beleued.

But yf Christ be preached, that he is risen from the deed, how saye then some amonge you, that there is no resurreccion of the deed? If there be no resurreccion of the deed, then is Christ not risen. If Christ be not risen, then is oure preaching in vayne, and youre faith is also in vayne: yee and we are founde false witnesses of God, because we haue testified agaynst God, that he hath rayſed vp Christ, whom he hath not rayſed vp, yf the deed rise not agayne. For yf the deed rise not agayne, then is Christ also not risen agayne. But yf Christ be not risen agayne, then is youre faith in vayne, and ye are yet in youre synnes: they also that are fallē a slepe in Christ, are perished. If in this life onely we hope on Christ, then are we of all men the most miserable.

But now is Christ risen from the deed, and is become * yf first frutes of them that slepe. For by one man cometh death, and by one man the resurreccion of the deed. For as they all dye in Adam, so shal they all be made alyue in Christ, but every one in his order. The first is Christ, then they that belōge vnto Christ, whan he cometh. Then the ende, whā he shal deliuer vp the kyngdome vnto God the father, whan he shal put downe all rule, and all superiourite, & power. * For he must raygne, tyll he haue put all his enemies vnder his fete. The last enemy that shal be destroyed, is death, for he hath put all thinges vnder his fete. But whā he sayeth, that all thinges are put vnder him, it is manifest that he is excepted, which put all thinges vnder him. Whan all thinges shal be subdued vnto him, then shal the sonne himselfe also be subiecte vnto him, which put all thinges vnder him, that God maye be all in all.

The first Epistle

¶ Well speakinges corruppe good maners. Awake righte vp, and synne not: for some haue not y^e knowlege of God. This I saye to youre shame.

1oh. 11. c But some man mighte saye: How shal the deed aryse? And with what maner off body shal they come? Thou foole, y^e which thou sowest is not quychened, excepte it dye. And what sowest thou? thou sowest not y^e body that shalbe, but a bare come, namely of wheate, or of some other. But God geuech it a body as he wil, and vnto euery one of y^e seedes his owne body.

¶ All fleshe is not one maner of fleshe, but there is one maner fleshe of men, another of beastes, another of fishes, another of byrdes. And there are heavenly bodie, and there are earthy bodie: but the heavenly haue one glory, and y^e earthy another. The Sonne hath one clearenes, the Moone hath another clearenes, and the starres haue another clearenes: for one starre excelleth another in clearenes: Euen so the resurreccion of the deed. It is sowne in corrupcion, and shal ryse in vncorruption: It is sowne in dishonoure, and shal ryse in glory: It is sowne in weaknesse, and shal ryse in power: It is sowne a naturall body, and shal ryse a spirituall body.

Gen. 1. b If there be a naturall body, there is a spirituall body also. As it is wyrtten: The first man Adam was made in to a naturall life, and the last Adā in to a spiritual life. Howbeit the spirituall body is not the first, but y^e naturall, and then the spirituall. The first man is of the earth, earthy: y^e seconde mā is frō heauē, heavenly. As the earthy is, soch are they also that are earthy: and as y^e heavenly is, soch are they also y^e are heavenly. And as we haue borne the ymage of the earthy, so shal we beare the ymage of the heavenly also. This I saye brethren, that flesh and bloude can not inheret y^e kyngdome of God: neither shal corrupcion inheret vncorruption.

Phil. 3. c
Beholde, I saye vnto you a mystery: We shal not all slepe, but we shal all be chaunged, and that sodenly and in the twinklynge of an eye, at the tyme of the last trompe. For the trompe shal blowe, and the deed shal ryse vncorruptible, and we shalbe chaunged. For this corruptible must put on vncorruption, and this mortall must put on immortallite. But whan this corruptible shal put on vncorruption, and this mortall shal put on immortallite, the shal the worde be fulfilled that is wyrtte: Death is swallowed vp in victory. Death, where is thy styng? Hell, where is y^e victory? The styng of death is syn-

Therfore my deare brethre, be ye stedfast, vnmoueable, and allwaye rich in the worke of the LORDE, for as moch as ye knowe, that youre labour is not in vayne in the LORDE.

The XVI. Chapter.

Concernynge the gadderynge that is made for the sayntes, as I haue ordeyned in the congregacions of Galacia, euen so do ye also. Vpon some Sabbath daye let every one of you put aside by himselfe, and laye vp what so euer he thinketh mete, that the colleccion be not to gather whan I come. Whan I am come, whom so euer ye shal alowe by youre letters, the wyll I sende to brynge youre liberalite vnto Ierusalem. Neuertheles yf it be mete that I go thither also, they shal go with me. But I wil come vnto you, whan I go thowroure Macedonia: for thowroure Macedonia wyl I take my iourney. With you peradventure wyl I abyde, or els wynter, that ye maye brynge me on my waye, whither so euer I go.

I wyl not se you now in my passage, for I hope to abyde a whyle with you, yf the LORDE shal suffre me. But I wil tary at Ephesus vntyll whitsontyde. For a greace and frutesfull doore is opened vnto me, and there are many aduersaries. If Timotheus come, se that he be without feare with you, for he worketh y^e worke of the LORDE as I do. Let no man therfore despise him, but conuaye him forth in peace, that he maye come vnto me, for I loke for him with the brethren.

As for brother Apollo, be ye sure, that I greatly desyred him to come vnto you with the brethre. And his mynde was not at all to come at this tyme, but he wyl come whā he hath oportunitie. Watch ye, stande fast in the faith, quyte you like men, and be strong: let all youre thinges be done in loue.

But brethren (ye knowe the house off Stephana, that they are the first frutes in Achaia, and that they haue appoynted the selues to mynister vnto the sayntes) I exhort you to be obedient vnto soche, and to all that helpe and labour. I am glad of the comynge of Stephana and Fortunatus, and Achaicus. For loke what was lackynge vnto me on youre parte, y^e haue they suppleed: they haue refreshed my sprete and youre. Knowe them therfore that are soch.

The seconde Epistle of the Apostle S. Paul, to the Corinthians.

The first Chapter.

Paul an Apostle of Jesus Churst, by the will of God, and brother Timotheus. Vnto the congregacion of God which is at Corinth, with all the sayntes which are in all Achaia.

* Grace be with you, and peace fro God our father, and from the LORDE Jesus Churst. Gal 1.6
Eph 1.2
1. Pet 1.2

Blessed be God the father of our LORDE Jesus Churst, the father of mercy and of God of all comforte, which comforteth vs in all our trouble: in so much that we are able to comforte them that are in any maner of trouble, with the same comforte wherewith we our selues are comforted of God. For as the afflictions of Churst are plenteous in vs, even so is his consolacion plenteous by Churst. But whether we haue trouble or comforte, it is done for your welch. If it be trouble, it is done for your comforte and health, which health sheweth his power, in that ye suffer the same afflictions which we suffer. If it be comforte, it is done also for your comforte and health. Therefore is our hope fast for you, in as much as we knowe, that, like as ye are partakers of the afflictions, so shal ye be partakers also of the consolacion.

Brethren we wolde not haue you ignorant of our trouble, which happened vnto vs in Asia, for we were greued out of measure passinge strength, so that we euen despaired of life, and had concluded in our selues that we must needs dye. But this was done, because we shulde not put our trust B in oure selues, but in God, which rayseth vp the deed to life agayne: which deliuered vs from so greete a death, and yet deliuereth daylie, On whom we trust, that he wil deliuer vs here after also, by the helpe of youre prayer for vs: that on oure behalfe many thankes may be geuen by many personnes, for the gifte that is geuen vs.

1. Cor. 4. c

For oure reioysinge is this, even the testimony of oure conscience, that in synghenes & godly parenesse, not in fleshlye wysdome, but in the grace of God, we haue had oure conuersacion in the worlde, but most of all with you. For Gods sonne Jesus Christ, which was preached amonge you by vs (namely, by me and Siluanus and Timotheus) was not yee and naye, but in him it was yee. For all the promyses of God are yee in him, & are Amē in him, to the prayse of God by vs. But it is God which stablysheth vs wth you in Christ, and hath anoynted us, and sealed us, and geuen the earnest of the sprete in oure hertes.

Whe I call God to recorde vnto my soule, that to sauoure you withall I came not agayne vnto Corinthum. Not that we are lordes ouer youre faich, but we are helpers of youre ioye, for ye stonde in faich. But I determyned this wth my selfe, that I wolde not come agayne to you in heuynes. For yf I make you sory, who is it that shal make me glad, but the same which is made sory by me? And the same haue I wrytten vnto you, lest whā I come, I shulde take heuynes of them, of whom I oughte to reioyse: for somoch as I haue this confidence in you all, that my ioye is the ioye of you all. For in greete trouble and anguysh of hert wrote I vnto you with many teares: not y^e shulde be sory, but that ye mighte perceave the loue, which I haue most specially vnto you.

But yf eny man haue caused sorowe, the same hath not made me sory, but partely, lest I shulde greue you all. It is sufficient, that the same man is so rebuked of many, so that from hence forth ye oughte the more to forgiue him and to comforte him, lest he be swallowed vp in ouer moch heuynesse. Wherefore I exhorte you, that ye shewe loue vpo him. For therfore dyd I wryte vnto you, also, that I mighte knowe the prose of you, whether ye were obediēt in all chinges. But loke vnto whō ye forgiue eny thinge, I forgiue hi also. For I also, yf I forgiue ought vnto eny mā, that forgiue I for youre sakes in the rowme of Christ, lest we shulde be preuented of Sathan. For his thoughtes are not vnkowne vnto vs.

But whā I came to Troada to preach y^e Gospell of Christ (and a dore was opened vnto me in y^e LODRE) I had no rest in my spere, because I founde not Titus my brother: but I toke my leue of them, and wente awaye in to Macedonia. Yet thankes be vnto God, which allwaye geueth vs the victory in Christ, and openeth y^e sauoure of his knowlege by vs in every place. For we are vnto God the good sauoure of Christ, both amonge thē y^e are saued, & amonge thē y^e perishe. To these, y^e sauoure of death vnto death: but vnto y^e other, the sauoure of life vnto life. And who is mete thereto? For we are not as many are, which choppe & chaunge the worde of God, but eue out of purenesse, and out of God, in y^e sighte of God, so speake we in Christ.

Wheynne we then agayne to prayse o^ur selues? Or nede we (as some other) of pistles of commendacion vnto you or letters of commendacion from you? Ye are oure epistle wrytten in oure hertes: which is vnderstonde and red of all mē, in that ye are knowne, how that ye are y^e epistle of Christ, mynistrd by vs, and wrytten, not with ynke, but with the sprete of the lyuynge God: not in tables of stone, but in fleshy tables of the hert. Soch trust haue we thorow Christ to God warde, not that we are sufficient of oure selues to thynke eny thinge, as of oure selues, but oure ablenesse commeth of God, which hath made vs able, to be & mynistrers of the new Testament: not of the letter, but of the sprete. For yf the officethat preacheth damnacion be glorious, much more both the office that preacheth righteousnes excede in glory. For y other parte that was glorified is nothinge glorified in respecte of this excedinge glory. For yf that which is done awaye, be glorious, much more shal y which remayneth, be glorious.

But euen vnto this daye whan Moses is red, the vayne hangeth before their herthes: Neuertheles whā they turne to the LORDE, the vayne shalbe taken awaye. For the LORDE is a spiete: z where the spiete of the LORDE is, there is libertie. But now the glory of y LORDE appeareth in vs all with open face, and we are chaunged into the same ymage, from one clearnes to another, eue as of the spiete of the LORDE.

The III. Chapter.

Iherfore seyng we haue soch an office (euen as mercy is come vpon vs) we saynte not, but cast from vs the clothes of vnonestye, and walke not in craftines: nether corruppe we the woide of God but open the trueth, and repute oure selues to every mans consyence in the sighte of God.

But this treasure haue we in earthen vessels, that y power which excelleth might be of God, and not of vs. We are troubled on euery syde, yet are we not without shyft. We are in pouertie, but not vterly without somewhat. We are persecuted, but we are not forsaken. We are oppressed, neuertheles we perish not. We allwayes beare aboute in oure body the dyenge of the LORDE Jesus y the life also of the LORDE Jesus might appeare in oure body. For all thinges do I for youre sakes, that the pléteous grace by the thātesgeyng of many, maye redounde to the prayse of God. Therfore are we not weery, but though of outwarde man be corrupte, yet the inwarde is renewed daye by daye. We prayse not oure selues agayne vnto you, but geue you an occasion to reioyse of vs, & ye maye haue to reioyse agaynst them, which reioyse after the outwarde appearance, and not after the hert. For yf we do to moch, we do it vnto God: yf we kepe measure, we do it for youre sakes. pyng, y^e seruēt mynde for me, so y^e I now reioyse y^e more. For wher as I made you so ry by the letter, it repenteth me not, though I dyd repete. For I se, that the same epistle made you sory (though it were but for a ceason). But now I reioyce, not that ye were sory, but that ye were sory to repentance. For ye sorowed godly, so that in nothinge ye were hurte by vs. For godly sorowe causeth repentance vnto saluacion, not to be repented of: but worldly sorowe causeth death. Beholde, where as ye haue had godly sorowe, what diligence hath it wrought in you? Vce a sufficiet answere, displeasure, feare, desyre, a seruēt mynde, punysshment. For in all poyntes ye haue shewed youre selues, that ye are cleare in that matter.

C Wherfore though I wrote vnto you, yet is it not done for his cause that dyd hurte, ne ther for his cause that was hurte, but that youre diligence (which ye haue for vs in the sighte of God) mighte be manifest wth you. Therfore are we comforted, because ye are comforted: but exceddingly the more ioyed we, for the ioye of Titus, because his spiete was refreshed of you all. I am therfore not now ashamed, though I boasted my selfe vnto him of you: but like as all is true that I haue spokē vnto you, enen so is oure boasting vnto Titus founde true also. And his inwarde affeccion is more abundaunt towarde you, whan he remembreth the obedience of you all, how ye receaued him with feare and trēblyng. The VIII. Chapter.

21 Do you to wit (brethren) the grace of God, which is geue in the congregacions of Macedonia. For their reioyinge was most abundaunt, whan they were tryed by moch trouble: & though they were exceddinge poore, yet haue they geue exceddinge richely, and that in synghenesse. For to their power (I beare recorde) yee and beyonde their power, they were wyllinge of their awne acorde, and prayed vs with greate instaunce, that we wolde receaue their benefite and fellowshipe of the hādteachinge that is done for the sayntes: And not as we looked for, but gave ouer them selues first to the L O R D E, and afterwarde vnto vs by y^e wyl of God, so that we coude not but desyre Titus, that like as he had begonne afore he wolde even so accomplish the same benivolence amonge you. Now as ye are riche in all poyntes, in faith and in worde, and in knowlege, and in all diligence, and in youre

loue towarde vs, enen so se that ye be plenteous also in this benivolēce. This I saye not as commaūdyng, but seynge, ether are so diligent, I proue youre loue also, whether it be perfecte or no. For ye knowe the liberallite of oure L O R D E Iesus Christ, which though he be riche, yet for youre sakes he became poore, y^e ye thow his pouerte mighte be made riche.

And my counsell herin I geue, for this is profitable for you, which haue begonne a yeare ago, not onely to do, but also to wyl. But now performe the dede also, that like as there is a ready mynde to wil, there maye be a ready mynde also to performe the dede. of that which ye haue. For yf there be a wyllinge mynde, it is accepted acordinge to that a man hath, not acordinge to that he hath not. This is not done to the intent, that other shulde haue ease, and ye cōbraunce, but that it be a lyke. Let youre abundaunce suffer their lacke in this tyme off derth, that their abundaunce also herafter maye supplie youre lacke, that there maye be equallite. As it is wrytten: he y^e gathered moch, had not the more: and he that gathered litle, wanted nothinge. Thākes be vnto God, which put in the hert of Titus, the same diligence towarde you. For he accepted the request in dede, yee he was rather so well wyllynge, that of his awne acorde, he came vnto you.

We haue sent with him that brother, whose prayse is in the Gospell thow out all the congregacions. Not onely that, but he is chosen also of the congregacions, to be a felowe with vs in oure iourney, for this benivolence that is mynistred by vs vnto the prayse of the L O R D E, and to steepe vp youre prompt mynde, and to bewarre, lest eny mā reporte euell of vs because of this plenteousnes, which is mynistred by vs: and therfore make we provision for honest thinges, not onely before the L O R D E, but also before men.

We haue sent with them also a brother of oures, whom we haue oft proued diligent in many thinges, but now moch more diligent. And this haue we done in greate hope towarde you, whether it be for Titus sake (which is my felowe and helper amonge you) or for oure brethren (which are Apostles of the cōgregacions, & the prayse of Christ.) Shewe now the prose off youre loue and off oure boasting of you, vnto these, and opely in the sighte of the cōgregacions.

If the handreachinge vnto y^e sayn-
tes, it is no nede for me to wryte vn-
to you: for I knowe youre redynesse
of mynde, wherof I boast my selfe amonge them of Macedonia, and saye: Achaia was ready a yere agoo. And youre feruentnesse hath prouoked many. Neuertheles yet haue we sent these brethien, lest our reioysinge
ouer you shulde be in vayne in this behalfe,
that ye mighte be ready, as I haue reported of you: lest whan they of Macedonia come with me, and fynde you vnprepared, we (I wyl not saye ye) shulde be ashamed in this presumpcion of boasting.

Wherfore I thoughte it necessary to ex-
horte the brethien, to come before hande vn-
to you, for to prepare this blessinge promy-sed afore, that it mighte be ready, so that it be a blessinge, and not a defraudinge. This I thynke: that he which soweth litle, shal
reape litle also: and he which soweth plenteously, shal likewise reape plenteously, euery one
acordinge as he hath purposed in his hert,
not grudgynge, or of compulsion. For God loveth a chearfull gauer. God is able to make you riche in all grace, and ye in all thinges hauynge sufficiet to the uttermost, maye be riche to all maner of good workes. As it is wrytten: he hath sparsed abroad and geue to y^e
poore, his righteousnes remayneth for ever.

He that getteth sede vnto the sower, shal mynistre bred also for fode, and shal multi-plye youre sede, and increase the frutes of y^e righteousnes, that in all thinges ye maye be made riche vnto all singlenesse, which cau-
seth thorow vs, thankes geuynge vnto God.
For the handreachinge of this colleccion not
onely supplieeth the nede off the sayntes,
but also is abundaunt herin, that for this laudable mynistracion many mighte geue thankes
vnto God, and prayse God for y^e obedient professynge of the Gospell of Christ, and for y^e singlenesse in distributyng vnto the,
and to all men, and in their prayer for you,
which longe after you, for the abundaunt
grace of God in you. Thankes be vnto God for his vnoutspeakeable gifte.

The X. Chapter.

If Paul my selfe beset you by the mekenesse and softnesse off Christ, which when I am present amonge you, am
of small reputacion, but am bolde towarde
you beyng absent. I beset you that I nede not be bolde whan I am present, and to vse y^e boldnesse wherewith I am supposed to be bolde, agaynst some, which repute vs as though we walked after y^e flesh: for though

we walke in the flesh, yet fighte we not after a fleshy maner. For the wapens of our warre are not fleshy, but mightie before God to cast downe strong holdes, wherewith
we ouerthrowe ymaginacions, and euery hye thinge which exalteth it selfe agaynst the knowlege of God, and brynge in to captiuite all vnderstandynge to the obedience of Christ, and are ready to take vengeance on all disobedience, whan youre obedience is fulfilled. Loke ye on thinges after y^e vter appareance?

If any man trust of himselfe that he is Chris-
tes, let him thinke this also by himselfe, y^e
like as he is Christes, and so are we Christes
also. And though I shulde boast my selfe
somewhat more of our auctorite, which y^e LORDE hath geue vs to edifye and not to destroye, it shulde not be to my shame. This I saye, lest I shulde seme, as though I wen-te aboute to make you afraied with letters.
For the pistles (saye they) are sore and stron-ge, but his bodely presence is weake, and his speache rude. Let him which is soche, thinke on this wyse, that as we are in worde by letters whan we are absent, soch are we also in deede whan we are present. For we darre not reken or compare our selues, vnto some that praise them selues: Neuertheles whyle they measure them selues by them selues, and holde onely of them selues, they vnderstande nothinge.

Howbeit we wil not boast of selues aboue
measure, but onely acordinge to the measure of the rule, wherewith God hath distributed vnto vs the measure to reach even vnto
you. For we stretch not of selues to farre as though we had not reached vnto you. For euen vnto you haue we come with the Gos-pell of Christ, and boast not our selues out of measure in other mens laboures: yee and we hope whan youre faith is increased in you, that we wil come farther (acordinge to oure measure) and preach the Gospell vnto
them that dwell beyonde you, and not to re-
ioyse in that, which is prepared with another mans measure.

The XI. Chapter.

Let him that reioyseth, reioyse in the LORDE: for he which prayseth him sel-
fe, is not allowed, but he whos y^e LOR-DE prayseth. Wolde God ye coulde suffre me a litle in my foloshnes, yet do ye forbea-re me. For I am gelous ouer you to godly gelousy. For I haue married you vnto one man, to brynge a chaste virgin vnto Christ. But I feare, lest as y^e serpent begyled Eue to his fittelie, and so y^e wyttes shulde be corrupted.

te from the synglenesse that is in Christ. For yf he that cometh vnto you, preach another Jesus, whom we haue not preached, or yf ye receaue another spere, & ye haue not receaued, or another Gospell which ye haue not accepted, ye might right well haue bene cōtent. For I suppose that I am no lesse the the hye Apostles are. And though I be rude in speakynge, yet am I not rude in knowlege. Howbeit amōge you I am knowne to the vttemost. Or dyd I synne therin because I submytted my selfe, that ye mighte be exalted?

As surely as the truech of Christ is in me, this reioysinge shal not be taken frome in the regions of Achaia. Wherfore? because I shulde not lone you? God knoweth. Ne uercheles what I do and wyl do, that do I to cut awaye occasion, from the which seke occasion, that they mighte boast the selues to be like vnto vs. For soch false Apostles & disceatfull workers fashion them selues like vnto the Apostles of Christ. And that is no marvell: for Sathan him selfe is chaunged into y^e fashion of an angell of light. Therefore is it no greate thinge, though his mynisters fashion them selues as though they were the preachers of righteousness, * whose ende shalbe acordinge to their dedes. 1. Pet. 2. a

C I saye agayne, lest eny man thynke that I am folish: or els take me euen now as a fo le, & I maye boast my selfe a litle also. That I speake now, that speake I not after the LORDE, but as it were in folishnes, whyle we are now come to boasting: Seynge that many boast them selues after y^e flesh, I wil boast my selfe also. For ye suffre folles gladly, in so moch as ye youre selues are wyse. For ye suffre euen yf a man brynge you in to bondage, yf a man put you to dishonesty, yf a man take ought fro you, yf a man exalte him selfe ouer you, yf a man smyte you on the face, I speake concernynge rebuke, as though we were weake.

Wherin so ener now eny man darre he bolde (I speake folishly) therin darre I be bolde also. They are Hebrewes, so am I. They are Israelites, euen so am I. They are the scde of Abraham, so am I. They are the mynisters of Christ (I speake as a fo le) I am more: in laboures more abundaunt, in strypes aboute measure, in prisonmentes more plentifully, in deatch oft. * Of the Jewes recea- Deut. 25. a

 Who is offended, & I burne not? Xf I must nedes make my boast, I wil boast my selfe of myne infirmyte. God y^e father of oure LORDE Jesus Christ, which is blessed for euer, knoweth that I lye not. * At Damascon the Act. 9. d

The XII. Chapter.

I profite me nothinge (no doute) to A to boaste. Ne uercheles I wil come to y^e visions and reuelacions off the LORDE. I knowe a man in Christ aboute fourtene yeares ago (whether he was in y^e body, I can not tell: or whether he was out of the body, I can not tell, God knoweth.) the same was taken vp in to the thirde heauen: and I knowe the same man (whether he was in y^e body or out of the body, I can not tell, God knoweth) how that he was take vp in to Paradise, and herde wordes not to be spoken, which no man can utter. Here of will I boast, but of my selfe wil I make no boast, excepte it be of myne infirmytes. And though I wolde boast my selfe, I dyd not foolishly, for I wolde saye the truech. But I refrayne my selfe, lest eny mā shulde thinke of me above y^e he seyth in me, or heareth of me. * And lest I shulde exalte my selfe out of measure because of the hye reuelacions, there is a warnynge geuen vnto my flesh, euen y^e messanger of Satan, to buffet me, that I shulde not exalte my selfe out off measure: for y^e which I besought the LOR

DE thysse, that it mighte departe fro me. And he sayde vnto me: My grace is sufficient for the. For my strength is made perfecte thorow weaknes. Very glad therefore wil I reioyse in my weaknes, that the strength of Christ may dwell in me.

B Therefore am I contente in infirmities, in rebukes, in necessities, in persecutions, in anguishes for Christes sake: for whā I am weake, thē am I stronge. I am become a foole i boasting my selfe: Ye haue compelled me. For I oughte to be comended of you, * in so much as I am in nothinge inferior to y^e hye Apostles. Though I be nothinge, yet are y^e tokens of an Apostle wrought amonge you, with all paciēce, with signes, & with wōders & with mightie dedes. For what is it, wherein ye are inferiours to the other congregations? excepte it be y^e I haue not bene grievous vnto you. Forgeue me this wronge. Beholde, I am ready the thirde tyme to come vnto you, and wyl not be chargeable vnto you. * For I seeke not y^{ours}, but you. For y^e childre ought not to gather treasure for the elders, but the elders for the children. I wil very gladly bestowe, and wyl be bestowed for y^{ours} soules: though y^e more I loue you, the lesse am I loved agayne.

But let it be so that I grieve you not, nevertheless for so much as I was craftye, I toke you wth gyle. Have I defrauded you by any of thē, whō I sent vnto you? I desired Titus, & with him I sent a brother: dyd Titus defraude you? Have we not walked in one spiere? Wete we not in like fote-steppes? Agayne, thynke ye y^e we excuse oure selues? We speake in Christ in the sighte off God. But all this (dearly beloved) is done for y^e edifyenge. For I feare, lest whan I come, I shal not fynde you soch as I wolde: and lest ye shal fynde me soch as ye wolde not: lest there be amonge you, debates, envyenges, wrathes, stryngynges, bacbytynges, whysperynges, swellinges, vprours: lest whan I come agayne, God bringe me worce amonge you & lest I be constrained to bewaile many of thē y^e haue synned before, & haue not repented ouer y^e uncleinesse and whordome, and wantonnes, which they haue comytted.

The XIII. Chapter.

Now come I the thirde tyme vnto you. * In the mouth of two or thre witnesses shal every matter be stablished. I haue tolde you before, & tell you before as present y^e seconde tyme, & wyte it now beyng absent, vnto thē which in tyme passyd haue synned, & to all other: & yf I come agayne, I wil not spare, seyng that ye

* prone y^{ours} selues, whether ye are in the B faith, examē y^{ours} selues. Or knowe ye not 1. Cor. 11. d y^e selues, y^e Jesus Christ is in you? Excepte ye be cast awayes. But I trust ye knowe, y^e we are not cast awayes. I desyre before God y^e ye do no euell: not y^e we shulde seme comendable, but y^e ye shulde do y^e which is good, & let vs be as cast awayes. For we maye do nothinge agaynst y^e truethe, but for y^e truethe. We are glad whan we are weakē, & ye stronge: & the same also we wyssh for, namely y^e p^{er}fectnesse. The Epistle The Epistle of the Apostle S. Paul to the Galathians.

The first Chapter.

Paul an Apostle (not of men, nor by mā, but by Jesus Christ & by God the father, which ray- sed him vp frō y dead) & all the brethē which are w me. Vnto the cō gregaciōs in Galacia.

* Grace be with you, and peace frō God the father, and oure LORDE Jesus Christ, which gane him selfe for oure synnes, that he mighte deliuer vs from this present euil wolde, acordinge to the wyll of God oure father, to whom be prayse for euer and euer. Amen.

I marvell y ye are so soone turned (from him that called you in the grace of Christ) vnto another Gospel: which is nothinge els, but that there besome, which * trouble you, and intende to peruertethe Gospel of Christ.

Wherecheles though we oure selues, or an angell from heauē preach vnto you eny other Gospel, thē y which we haue preached vnto you, the same be acursed. As we haue sayde afore, so saye we now agayne: If eny mā preach vnto you eny other thinge, thē y ye haue receaued, y same be acursed. Preach I men now or God: Or go I aboute to please men: If I shulde yet please men, I were not the seruaunt of Christ.

But I certifie you brethien, y the Gospel which is preached of me, is not of men. For I nether receaued it ner lerned it of mā, but by the reuelacion of Jesus Christ. For ye haue herde of my conuersacion afore tyme in the Jeweshippe, how that beyōde measure I persecuted the cōgregacion of God, and spoyled it, and priuayled in the Jewe shippe aboue many of my companions in my nacion, & was a moch more feryent man teyner of the tradicions of the fathers.

But whan it pleased God which separa- ted me from my mothers wombe, and called me by his grace, for to declare his sonne in me, that I shulde preach him thorow the Gospel amonge the Heythen, immediatly I commenēd not of the matter with flesh and bloude: nether came I to Jerusalem vnto them which were Apostles before me: but wente my wayes in to Arabia, and came agayne to Damascon. Then after thre yea- re I came to Jerusalem to se Peter, and abode with him systene dayes. As for the other Apostles, I sawe none of them, saue James the LORDES brother.

The thinges that I wyte vnto you, be- helde, * God knoweth, I lye not. After that wente I in to the coastes of Syria and Celi- cia: but of face I was vnkowne to y Christen congregacions in Jewye. Wherecheles they had herde onely, that: he that persecut- ed vs in tyme passed, preacherh now y saith which some tyme he destroyed: and they pray sed God in me.

The II. Chapter

Then after fourtene yeaues, * I wente up agayne to Jerusalem with Bar- nabas, and toke Titus with me also. But I wente vp by reuelacion, and com- menēd with thē of y Gospel, which I preach amonge the Heythē: but specially with thē which were in reputacion, lest I shulde run- ne or had runne in vayne. * But Titus which was also with me, was not compelled to be circūcysed, though he was a Greke: and that because of certayne incommers beyng- ge false brethē, which came in amōge other, to spye out oure libertye, which we haue in Christ Jesus, that they mighte brynge vs in to bondage: To whom we gaue no row- me, no not for the space of an houre, as con- cernynge to be broughte in to subieccion: y the crueth of the Gospel mighte comtynue with you.

As for thē that semed to be greate, what they were in tyme passed, it maketh no mat- ter to me. * For God lokech not on the out- warde appareance of men. Wherecheles they which semed greate, taught me nothin- ge: but contrary wyse, whan they sawe that the Gospel ouer the vncircumcision was cō- mytted vnto me, as y Gospel ouer y circū- cision was commytted vnto Peter. (For he y was mightie with Peter to the Apostle-)

But whā Peter was come to Antioche, I withstode him in & face: for he was worthy to be blamed. For afore there came certayne from James, he ate with the heythē. But whā they were come, he withdrew and separated himselfe, fearinge thē which were of the circumcision. And the other Jewes dyssembled with him likewise, in so much & Barnabas was brought in to their simulation also. But whan I sawe that they walked not right after & truethe of the Gospell, I sayde vnto Peter openly before all: If thou beyng a Jewe, lyuest after the maner of the Gentyles, and not as do the Jewes, why causest thou the Gentyles then to lyue as do the Jewes?

Though we be Jewes by nature, and not synners of the Gentyles, yet (in so much as we knowe, that a man is not made righteous by the dedes of the lawe, but by the faith on Jesus Christ) we haue beleued also on Jesus Christ, & we might be made righteous by the faith of Christ, and not by the dedes of the lawe, because that by the dedes of the lawe no fleshy shal be iustified.

Phil. 1. a

If we then which seke to be made righteous by christ, shulde be yet founde synners & selues, is not Christ then the mynister of synne? God forbyd. For yf I buylde agayne & which I haue destroyed, then make I my selfe a trespasser. But I thorow the lawe am deed vnto the lawe, that I might lyue vnto God. I am crucified with Christ, yet do I lyue: neuerthelesse now not I, but Christ lyueth in me. For yf I lyue in yf fleshe, I lyue in the faith of yf sonne of God which loved me, and gaue himselfe for me. I cast not awaye the grace of God. For yf righteousness come by the lawe, then dyed Christ in vayne.

Thus y lawe was scolemaster vnto Christ,
that we might be made righteous by faith.
But now that faith is come, we are no mo

art not a seruaunt, but a sonne. If thou be a sonne, then art thou the heyre of God tho-row Christ. Notwithstandinge whan ye knowe not God, ye dyd seruyce vnto them,
which by nature are no Goddes. But now seyng ye knowe God (yeerather are know-ne off God) how is it * that ye turne you
backe agayne vnto the weake and beggerly tradicions, wher vnto ye desyre agayne a freshe to be in bondage?

Obserue dayes and monethes, and tymes and yeares. I am in feare of you, lest I haue bestowed labour on you in vayne. Bre-thre I beseeke you, be ye as I am, for I am as ye are. Ye haue not hurte me at all. For ye knowe how that in weaknes after y flesh
I preached y Gospell vnto you at the first:
and my tentacion which I suffred after the flesh, ye despyed not, nether abhorred, but receaued me as an angell of God, yee euen
as Christ Iesus. How happy were yethen?
For I beare you recorde, that yf it had bene

possible, ye had plucked out youre owne eyes, and geue them vnto me. Am I therfore become yo enemy, because I tell you y truethe?

They are gelous ouer you amysse. Yee
they wolde make you to fall backe, that ye might be feruent to the warde. It is good to be feruent, so y it be allwaye in a good thin-
ge, and not onely whan I am present w you.
My litle children (of whom I traualle in byrth agayne, vntyll Christ be fashioned in
you) I wolde I were w you now, and coulde
chaunge my voyce, for I stode i doute of you.

Tell me ye that wylbe vnder the lawe, haue ye not herde the lawe? For it is wrytten,
that Abraham had two sonnes * the one by
a bonde mayde, * the other by a fre woman.
As for him that was of the boode mayde, he was borne after y flesh: but he which was
of the fre woman, was borne by promes.
These wordes betoken somwhat. For these women are the two Testamentes: The one from the mount Sina, that gendireth vnto bondage, which is Agar. For Agar is called in Arabia y mount Sina, and reacheth vnto Ierusalem which now is, and is in bondage with hir childien.

* But Ierusalem that is aboue, is the fre woman, which is the mother of vs all. For it is wrytten: * Reioyse thou baren, that bea-rest no childre: breake forth and crye thou y trauaylest not, for the desolate hath many mo childre, then she which hath an husban-
de. As for vs (brethren) we are the childien of Isaac acordinge to the promes.

* But like as at that tyme, he that was borne after the flesh, persecuted him y was borne after the spiete, euen so is it now also.
But what sayeth the scripture? Put awaye
the bonde mayden and hir sonne: for the sonne of y bondmayde shal not be heyre with
y sonne of the fre woman. So now brethren, we are not childien of the bonde mayde, but
of the fre woman.

The V. Chapter.

Sonde fast therfore in the libertye
wherwith Christ hath made vs fre,
and be not wrapped agayne in the yocke off bondage. Beholde, I Paul saye vnto you: If ye be circumcysed, Christ profiteth you nothinge at all. I testifie agayne vnto every man which is circumcysed,
that he is bounde to kepe the whole lawe.
Ye are gone quyte from Christ, as many off
you as wylbe made righteous by the lawe,
and are fallen from grace. But we wayte
in the spiete off hope, to be made righteous by faith. * For in Christ Iesu nether is

But brethie, ye are called vnto liberty, onely let not youre libertie be an occasion vnto the flesh, but by lone serue one another. For all the lawe is fulfilled in one worde, namely in this: * lo ue thy neghbour as thy selfe. But yf ye byte and deuoure one another, take hede, that ye be not consumed one of another.

Beholde, with how many wordes I haue wrytten vnto you with myne awne hande. They that wil please in the flesh, constrayne you to be circumcysed, onely lest they shulde be persecuted with the crosse of Christ. For euē they them selues which are circumcysed, kepe not the lawe, but wolde haue you circūcysed, that they mighte reioyse in youre flesh. But God foibyd that I shulde reioyse, saue onely in the crosse of oure LORDE Iesus Christ, wherby the woilde is crucified vnto me, and I vnto the woilde. * For in Christ Iesu nether circūcision a wayleth eny thinge, ner uncircumcision, but a new creature. * And as many as walke acordinge to this rule, peace and mercy be vpon thē, and vpon Israel of God. From hence forth let no man put me to busynesse, * for I beare in my body the markes of the LORDE Iesu. Brethren, the grace of oure LORDE Iesu Christ be with youre spirete Amen.

For by * reuelacion was this mystery shewed vnto me, as I wrote aboue in fewe wordes: wherby whan ye rede it, ye maye perceaue myne vnderstondynge in y^e mystery of Christ, which (mystery) in tymes past was not opened vnto the childre of mē as it is now declared to his holy Apostles and prophetes by the spire: namely, that the heythen shulde be inheritors also, and of the same body, and partakers of his promes in Christ by the Gospell, wherof I am made a mynister accordinge to the gifte of the grace of God, which is geuen me accordinge to the workynge of his power.

as it becometh y^e callinge wherin
ye are called, with all humblenes off mynde
and mekenes, and longe sufferinge, forbea-ringe one another in loue, and be diligent to kepe the vnite of the spiret thorow the bon-

ye are called in one hope of youre callinge.

1. Cor. 12. b to the operacion as every membre hath his measure) and maketh, that y body groweth
to the edifieng of it selfe in loue.

This I saye therfore, and testifie in the LORDE, that ye walke nomore * as y other
theychen walke in the vanite of their mynde,
blynded in their vnderstondinge, beyng
straungers frō the life which is in God tho-
row the ignorance that is in them, because of the blyndnes of their hert: which beyng
past repentance, haue geuē them selues

ouer vnto wantonnes, to worke all maner of uncleannes euen with gredynesse.

But ye haue not so learned Chust, yf so
be that ye haue herde of him, & are taught in him, euen as the trueth is in Jesu. So then as concernynge the conuersacion in tyme past * laye from you that olde man which marreth himselfe thorow disceuable lus-
tes: but be ye renued in the spiret of youre mynde, and put on that new man, which is shapen after God, in true righteousnes and holynes. * Wherfore put awaye lyenge, and speake every man the trueth vnto his negh-boure, for as moch as we are membres one of another. * Be angrie, but synne not. Let not y Sonne go downe vpo youre wiath:
nether geue place to the bacbyter. He that hath stollen, let him steale nomore: * but let him labour rather, and do some good with his hondes, that he maye haue to geue vnto
him that nedeth.

Let no filthy communicacion proceade
out of youre mouth, but that which is good to edifye withall, whā nebe is, that it be gracious to heare. And greue not the holy spire-te of God, wherwith ye are * sealed vnto y daye of redempcion. Let all bytternes, and fearshes, and wiath, and roaringe, & cursed speakyng be farre frō you with all maliciousnes. But be ye curteous one to another, mercifull, * and forgeue one another, euē as God hath forgeuen you in Chust.

The V. Chapter.

Be ye the * folowers therfore of God
as deare children, and walke in loue,
euen as Chust loued vs, and * gaue
him selfe for vs an offerynge and sacrifice
of a swete sauoure vnto God. As for whor-dome and all uncleannes, or couetousnes, let it not be named amōge you, as it becommeth sayntes: * nether fylchines, ner folish talkyn-ge, ner ieastynge (which are not comly) but rather geuyng of thākes. * For be sure, that no whore monger, or vncleane person, or co-uetous person (which is a worshipper off ymages) hath inheritaunce in the kyngdome of Chust and of God. * (Let no man dis-ceauē you with vayne wordes) for because of these commeth the wrath of God vpon
the children of vnbelene. Be not ye therfore companions with them. For sometyme ye were darke nesse, * but now are ye lighte in the Walke as the children of lighte. (* For the frute of the spiret is all maner of goodnes, and righteousnes and trueth:) and prone what is pleasing vnto the LORDE, and haue no fellowship with y vnfruitfull workes of darknes, but rather rebuke the. For it is shame even to name those thinges, which are done of them in secreete. But all thinges are manifest, when they are rebuked of the lighte. For what so euer is manifest, that same is lighte. Therfore sayeth he: * Awake thou that sleepest, and stande vp fro the bedd, and Christ shal geue the lighte.

* Take hede therfore how ye walke circumspectly, not as the vnwyse, but as y wyse, and redeme the tyme, for it is a miserable tyme. Wherfore be not ye vnwyse, but vnderstande what the wil of the LORDE is, * and be not drunken with wyne, wherein is excessse: but be full of the spicke * and talke amonge youre selues of psalmes, and ymnes, and spirituall songes, synginge and makynge melody vnto the LORDE in youre hertes * geuyng thankes alwayes for all thinges vnto God the father, in the name of oure LORDE Iesus Christ, submyttinge yourselves one to another in the feare of God.

Let the women submytte them selues vnto their husbannes, as vnto the LORDE. * For the husbände is the wyues heade, euē as Christ also is the heade of the congregacion, and he is the Saviour of his body. Therfore as the congregacion is in subieccion to Christ, likewise let the wyues be in subieccion to their husbannes in all thinges.

Ye husbannes loue youre wyues, even as Christ loued the congregacion, * and gaue himselfe for it, to sanctifye it, * and clenched it in the fountayne of water by the worde, to make it vnto himselfe a glorious congregacion, hauynge no spot ner wrynkle, ner eny such thinge, but that it shulde be holy and without blame.

So oughte men also to loue their wyues, enen as their awne bodyes. Let that loueth his wife, loueth himselfe. For no mā euer yet hated his awne fleshe, but nourisheth and cherisheth it, even as the LORDE doth also the congregacion. For we are membres of his body, of his flesh and of his bones. * For this cause shal a man leaue father and mother, and cleue vnto his wife, and they two shal be one flesh: This is a greate secreete: but I speake of Christ and the congregacion. Neuertheles do ye so, that every one of you loue his wife enen as himselfe: but let the wife feare hir husbände.

The VI. Chapter.

Ye children, obey youre elders in the LORDE, for that is righte. Honour thy father and thy mother (* That is the first commandement, that hath eny promes) that thou mayest prospere, and lyue longe vpon earth. And ye fathers, prouoke not youre children vnto wrath, but brynge the vp in the nourture and informacion of the LORDE.

* Ye seruantes, obey youre bodily masters, with feare and tremblynge, in syngeles of youre hert, even as vnto Christ, not with scruyce onely in the eye sighte, as men pleasers: but as the seruantes off Christ, doynge the wyll off God from the hert with good wyll. Thynke that ye serue the LORDE and not me: and be sure, that what good soeuer a man doth, he shal receaue is a gayne of the LORDE, whether he be bonde or fre.

And ye masters, do even the same vnto the, puttyng awaye threatenynge, and knowe that even youre master also is in heauen, * nether is there eny respecte of persones with him.

Synally my biethren, be stronge in the LORDE, and in the power of his might: put on the arm of God, that ye may stande stedfast agaynst the craftie assautes off the deuell. For we wrestle not agaynst flesh and bloude, but agaynst rule, agaynst power namely, agaynst the rulers of the worlde, of the darknesse of this worlde, agaynst y spires of wickednes vnder the heauen. For this cause take ye the armour of God, y ye maye be able to resiste in the euell daye, and stande perfecte in all thinges.

* Stande therfore, and youre loynes gird aboute with the truth, hauynge on the brest plate of righteounes, and shod vpo y fete with the gospell of peace, that ye maye be prepared: About all thinges take holde of the shyld of faith, wherewith ye maye quenche all the fyrie dartes of the wicked. And take the helmet of saluacion, & the swerde of the spicke, which is the worde of God.

* And praye allwayes with all maner of prayer and supplicacion in the spicke, and watch there vnto with all instaunce and supplicacion for all sayntes and for me, that the worde maye be genen me, that I maye open my mouth boldly, to utter the secretes of the Gospell, wherof I am a messaunger in bondes, that I maye speake therein frely, as it becommeth me to speake.

But that ye maye also knowe, what case I am in, and what I do, Tychicus my deare

brother and faithfull mynister in the LORDE, shal shewe you all: whom I haue sent vnto you for the same cause, that ye mighte knowe what case I stonde in, and that he mighte comforte your hertes.

Peace be vnto the brethre, and loue with faith, from God the father, & from the LORDE Iesu Christ. Grace be with all them that loue oure LORDE Iesus Christ vnfaynedly. Amen.

Sent from Rome vnto the Ephesians, by Tichicus.

The Epistle of the Apostle S. Paul to the Philippians.

The summe of this epistle.

Chap. I. He exhorteth them to increace in loue, in knowlege and experience of godly thinges: maketh mention of his prisonment at Rome, is glad to heare Christ preached, is content ether to dye or lyue, and prayeth them to lede a godly conuersacion, to be of one mynde, and to feare no persecucion.

Chap. II. He exhorteth them to vniue and brotherly loue, and to beware of strife and vaine glory: And for a sure ensample he layeth Christ before them.

Chap. III. He warneth thē to beware of false teachers, whom he calleth dogges and enemies of Christ, and reproveth mā's owne righteousnesse.

Chap. IIII. He saluteth certayne of them, exhorteth them to be of honest conuersacion, and thanketh them because of the prouision, that they made for him beyng in prison.

The first Chapter.

Paul and Timotheus the seruantes of Iesu Christ. Vnto all the sayntes in Iesu Christ, which are at Philippos, with the Bishoppes and mynisters.

Grace be with you and peace from God oure father, and from the LORDE Iesus Christ.

* I thanke my God, as oft as I remembre you (which I allwayes do in all my prayers for you all, and praye with gladnesse) because of youre fellowship which ye haue in the Gospell from the first daye vnto now, and am surely certified of this, & he which hath begonne that good worke in you, shal go forth with it vntyll y daye of Iesus Christ: as it becommeth me to iudge of you all, because I haue you in my hert, as those that are partakers with me of grace in my bondes, in defendinge and stablyshinge of the Gospell.

For God is my * recorde, how I longe after you all euen fro the very hert rote in Iesus Christ. And for the same I praye, & yd loue maye increace more & more in all maner of knowlege and in all experience, & ye maye proue what is best, that ye maye be pure, & soch as hurte no mans conscience, vnto the daye of Christ: fylled with the frutes of righteousness, which come by Iesus Christ vnto the glorie and prayse of God.

I wolde ye vnderstode brethien, that my busynes is happened vnto the greater furtheraunce of the Gospell, so that my bondes in Christ are manifest thorow out all y iudgment hall, and in all other places: In so much that many brethien in the LORDE, are boldened thorow my bodes, and darre more largely speake the worde without feare. Some (no doute) preach Christ of enuye and stryfe, but some of good wil. The one parte preacheth Christ off stryfe and not purely, supposynge to adde more aduersite vnto my bondes. The other parte of loue, for they knowe that I lye here for the defence of the Gospell.

What then? So that Christ be preached all maner of wayes (whether it be done by occasion or of true meaning) I reioyce therein, and wil reioyce. For I knowe that the same shal chaunce to my saluacion, & thorow youre prayer and mynistryng of the spire of Iesu Christ, as I loke for and hope, that in nothinge I shalbe ashamed: but & with all cofidence (as allwayes in tymes past, eue so now) Christ shalbe magnified in my body whether it be thorow life or thorow deatch. For Christ is to me life, & deatch is to me auantage. But in as much as to lyue in y flesh is frutesfull to me for the worke, I wote not what I shal chose, for both these thinges lye harde vpon me. * I desyre to be lowsed, & to be with Christ, which thinge were much better (forme) but to abyde in the flesh is more nedefull for you.

The Epistle

D And this am I sure of, that I shal abyde, and contynne with you all, for the furtheraunce and ioye of youre faith, that ye maye abundantly reioyse in Christ Iesu thorow me, by my comynge to you agayne. Onely let youre conuersacion be * as it becometh the Gospell of Christ, that whether I come & se you, or els be absent, I maye yet heare of you that ye cōtinue in one spere and one soule, labourynge (as we do) to mayntayne the faith of the Gospell, and in nothinge fearinge youre aduersaries, which is to them a token off perdition, but vnto you of saluacion, and that of God. For vnto you it is geuen, not onely that ye shulde beleue on Christ, but also suffre for his sake, and to haue euen the same fighte, which ye haue sene in me, and now heare of me.

The II. Chapter.

AS there be amonge you eny consolation in Christ, yf there be eny comforte of loue, yf there be eny fellowship off the spere, yf there be eny compassion and mercy, fulfyll my ioye, that ye drawe one waye, hauynge one loue, beyng of one accorde, and of one mynde: that there be nothinge done thorowstryfe and vayne glory, but that thorow mekenesse of mynde every man esteeme another better then himselfe: and let every mā loke not for his awne profet, but for the profet of other.

Let the same mynde be in you, that was in Christ Iesu: which beyng in the shappe of God, thought it not robbery to be equall with God, but made himselfe of no reputation, and toke vpon him the shappe of a seruaunt, * became like another man, and was founde in his apparell as a man: he humbled himselfe, and became obedient vnto the death, euen vnto the death of the crosse.

Wherfore my dearly beloued, as ye haue all wayes obeyed (not onely in my presence, but now also moch more in my absence) euen so worke out youre awne saluacion with feare and tremblynge. * For it is God which worketh in you both the wyll and the deed,

I trust in the LORDE Iesus, to sende Timotheus shortly vnto you, that I also maye be of good comforte, whan I knowe what case ye stonde in. For I haue no man that is so like mynded to me, which with so pure affeccio careth for you: for all other seeke their awne, not that which is Iesus Christes. But ye knowe the profet of him: for as a child vnto the father, so hath he mynistrd vnto me in the Gospell. Him I hope to sende, as soone as I knowe how it wyll go with me. But I trust in the LORDE, that I also my selfe shal come shortly.

Nevertheless I thoughte it necessary to sende vnto you the brother Ephraimitus, which is my companion in laboure and fellowe souldyer, and youre Apostell, and my mynister at mynede, for so moch as he longed after you all, and was full of heynenes, because ye had herde that he was sicke. And no dout he was sicke, and that nye vnto death: but God had mercy on him, and not on him onely, but on me also, lest I shulde haue had sorowe vpon sorowe.

I haue sent him therfore the more haistely, that ye mighte se him, and reioyce agayne, and that I also mighte haue the lesse sorowe. Receaue him therfore in the LORDE with all gladnes, * and make moch of soche: for because of the worke of Christ, he wente so farre, that he came nye vnto death, and regarded not his life, to fulfyll that seruyce which was lackynge on youre parte toward me.

ORGAN my brethren, reioyce in the LORDE. Where as I wyte euer one thinge vnto you, it greueth me not, and maketh you the sinner. Bewarre off dogges, bewarre off cnell workers, bewarre off discension: * for we are the circumcision, euen we that serue God in the spere, and reioyce in Christ Iesu, and haue no confidence in the flesh, though I haue wherof I mighte reioyce in y^e flesh. If eny ocher man thynke that he hath wherof he mighte reioyce in the flesh, moch more I, which was circūcysed on the eight daye, one of the people of Israel, of the trybe off Ben Iamin, an hebrue of the hebrues: as concernynge the lawe * a Pharise: as concernynge feruentnes * I persecuted the cōgregation: and as touchinge the righteousnes which is in the lawe, I was vnrēbutable.

* But the thinges that were vauntage vnto me, haue I counted losse for Chustes sake. Yee I thynke all thinges but losse, for that excellent * knowleges sake of Christe Iesu my LORDE: for whom I haue counted all thinge losse, and do indge them but donge, that I mighte wyne Christe, & be founde in him, not hauynge myne awne righteousnes which cometh of the lawe, but by the faith of Christ (namely) the righteousnes which cometh of God in faith, to knowe him and the vertue of his resurreccion, and the fellowship of his passion, * that I maye be conformable vnto his death, yff by eny meanes I mighte attayne to the resurreccion from the deed. Not that I haue attained vnto it all ready, or that I am already perfecte: but I folowe, yf I maye comprehend that, wherin I am comprehended off Christe Iesu. Brethren, I counte not my selfe yet that I haue gotten it: but one thinge I saye: I forget that which is behynde, and stretch my selfe vnto that which is before, & pcease vnto y^e marck apoynted, to opeyne the rewarde of the hye callinge of God in Christe Iesu.

Let vs therfore (as many as be perfecte) be thus wyse mynded: and yf ye be otherwyse mynded, I praye God open euen this vnto you. Neuertheles in that wher vnto we are come, let vs procede by one rule, that we maye be of one accorde. Brethren, be ye y^e followers of me, and loke on the which walke euē so as ye haue vs for an ensample. For many walke (off whom I haue tolde you often, but now I tell you wepyng) euē enemies of the crosse of Christe, whose ende is damnacion, * whose God is the bely, & whose glory shalbe to their shame, which are earthly mynded. * But oure conuersacion is in heauen, from whence we loke for the Sauoure Iesu Christe y^e LORDE, * which shal chaūge o^r vyle body, y^e it maye be like fashioned vnto his glorious body, acordinge to y^e workynge wherby he is able to subdue all thinges vnto himselfe.

Wherfore my brethre dearly beloued & I longed for, my ioye & my crowne contynue so in the LORDE ye beloued. I praye Euodias, & beseeke Syntyche, that they be of one mynde in the LORDE. Yee and I beseeke the my faithfull yock fellows, helpe the women, which haue laboured with me in the Gospell, with Clement & with my other helpers, * whose names are in the booke of life. Reioyce in the LORDE allwaye, & agayne I saye, Reioyse. Let youre softnes be knowne vnto all men. The LORDE is enen at hande. Be not carefull, but in all thinges let y^e petitions in prayer and supplicacion, with geuyng of thankes be knowne before God. And y^e peace of God, which passeth all vnderstōdinge, kepe youre hertes and myndes in Christe Iesu.

Furthermore brethren, what soeuer thinges are true, what soeuer thinges are honest, what soeuer thinges are iust, what soeuer thinges are pure, what soeuer thinges pertaine to loue, what soeuer thinges are of honest repute: yf there be eny vertuous thinge, yf there be eny laudable thinge, haue those same in y^e mynde, which ye haue both lerned and receaued, and herbe and sene in me: those thinges do, and the God of peace shal be with you. I reioyse greatly in y^e LORDE, that now at the last ye are renyued agayne to care for me, as ye cared for me afore, but ye lacked oportunitie. I speake not this because of necessite: for I haue lerned in what soeuer estate I am, * therewith to be contente I can be lowe, and I cā be hye. Every where and in all thinges I am mee, both to be full, and to be hongrie: to haue plenty, and to suffre nede. I can do all thinges thorow Christe, which strengeth me. Notwithston dinge ye haue done well, that ye bare parte with me in my tribulacion.

But ye of Philippos knowe, that in the begynnynge of the Gospell whan I departed fro Macedonia, no congregacion bare parte with me concernynge geuyng and receauynge, but ye onely. For vnto Tessalonica ye sent once and afterwarde agayne vnto my necessite. Not that I seeke gistes, but I seeke the frute, that it be abundaunt in y^e rekenynge. For I haue all, and haue plenty. I was euen fylled whā I receaued of Epaphroditus, that which came from you, an odoure of sweetenes, * a sacrifice accepted & pleasaunt vnto God. My God fulfill all y^e nede, acordinge to his riches in glory iⁿ Christe Iesu.

The Epistle

Salute all y^e sayntes in Christ Jesu. The sayntes salute you, but specially they that

ge allwayes for you (sence we herde of youre faith in Christ Jesu, and of youre loue to all sayntes) for y^e hopes sake which is layed vp
in stoare for you in heauen: of the which ye desyre that ye mighte be fulfylled with the knowlege of his will, in all wysdome and spirituall vnderstondinge, that ye mighte

He now reconcyled in the body of his flesh thorow death, to make you holy, and unblameable & without fante in his awne sighte, yf ye contynue grounded and stablished in the faith, and be not moved awaye from y hope of the Gospell, wherof ye haue herde: which is preached amonge all creatures y are vnder heauen, wherof I Paul am made a mynister.

Now ioye I in my sufferynge, which I suffre for you, and fulfill that which is behynde of the passions of Christ in my flesh, for his bodyes sake, which is the congregation, wherof I am made a mynister, acordinge to y Godly office of preachinge, which is geuen vnto me amonge you, that I shulde richely preach the worde of God, namely, that mystery which hath bene hyd sence the worlde beganne, and sence the begynnyng of tymes: but now is opened vnto his sayntes, to whom God wolde make knowne the glorious riches of this mystery amonge y heythen: which (riches) is Christ in you, cū he that is the hope of glory, whō we preach, and warne all men, and teach all men in all wysdome, to make everyman perfecte in Christ Jesu: Wherin I also labour, and stryue acordinge to the workynge of him which worketh mightely in me.

The II. Chapter.

Wolde ye knowe what fightinge I haue for youre sakes, and for them of Laodicea, and for as many as haue not sene my personne in the flesh, that their hertes mighte be comforted and knytt together in loue, to all riches of full vnderstōdinge, which is in the knowlege of the mystery of God the father and of Christ, in whom are hyd all the treasures of wysdome and knowlege.

This I saye, lest any man shulde begyle you with entysinge wordes. For though I be absent in the flesh, yet am I presene with you in the spiete: ioyenge, and beholdinge youre order and the stedfastnes of youre faith in Christ. As ye haue therfore receaued Christ Jesu the LORDE, euen so walke in him, and be roted & buylded in him, and be stedfast in faith, as ye haue learned: & be plenteous in the same in geuyngethankes.

Beware lest any mā spoyle you thorow philosophy and disceatfull vanite after the tradicions of men, and after the ordinaūces of the worlde, and not after Christ. For in him dwelleth all the fulnes of the Godhead bodily, and ye are complete in him, which is the heade of all rule and power: in whom also ye are circumcysed with circumcision without handes, by puttyng of the synfull body of the flesh: (namely) with the circumcysion of Christ, in that ye are buried with him thorow baptyme: in whom ye are also rysen agayne thorow faith, that is wrought by the operation of God, which raysed him vp from the deed.

And with him he quychened you, whan ye were deed in synnes, and in the vncircumcision of youre flesh, and hath forgiven vs all synnes, and put out the handwrytinge that was agaynst vs (cōtayned in the lawe wrytten) and that hath he taken out of the waye, and fastened it to the crosse: And hath spoyled rule and power, and hath made a shewe of them openly, and triumphed ouer them in his awne persone.

Let no man therfore trouble youre consciences aboute meate or drynke, or for a pece of an holy daye, as the holy daye of y newe Moone, or of the Sabbath dayes, which are the shadowe of the thinges that were for to come: but the body selfe is in Christ. Let no man make you shote at a wronge mark, which after his owne chosynge walketh in humblenes and spirituall ye of angels, thinges which he neuer sawe, and is wayne, and pust vp in his owne fleshly mynde: and holdeth not himselfe to the heade, wherof the whole body by ioyntes and complex recea- neth nourishment, and is knyt together, and so groweth to the greatnes that commeth of God.

Wherfore yf ye be deed with Christ from the ordinaūces of the worlde, why are ye holden the with soch tradicions, as though ye lyued after the worlde? As whan they saye: Touch not this, taist not that, handle not that. All these thinges do hurte vnto men, because of the abuse of them, which abuse cometh onely of the commaundementes and doctrynes of men: which thinges haue a shyne of wysdome thorow chosen spiritualtie and humblenes, and in that they spare not the body, and do the flesh no worshipec vnto his nebe.

The III. Chapter.

If ye be rysen now with Christ, seke those thinges then which are aboue where Christ is, syttinge on the righte hande of God. Set youre mynde on the thinges which are aboue, not on y thinges that are vpon earth. For ye are deed, and youre life is hyd with Christ in God. But whan Christ o life shal shewe himselfe, the shal ye also appeare with him in glory.

The Epistle

Ephes. 2. 3. * Mortifye therfore youre members which are vpon earth, whoredome, vncleannes, vnnatural lust, euell concupiscence, and couetousnes, which is a worshippynge of Idols: * for which thinges saues the wrath of God cometh vpon the children of vnbelleue: in the which thinges ye walked some tyme, whan ye lyued in them.

Rom. 8. 2. * But now put all awaye fro you: wrath, fearcenesse, maliciousnes, cursed speakynge, fylthie wordes out of youre mouth. & ye not one to another. * Put of y^e oldema with his workes, and put on y^e newe, which is renued in knowlege after y^e ymage of him that made him: * where there is no Greke, Jewe, circumcision, vncircumcision, Barbarous, Sithian, boode, fre: but Christ is all and in all.

B Now therfore as the electe of God, holy and beloued, put on tender mercye, kyndnes, humblenes of mynde, mekenesse, longe sufferynge, forbearinge one another, and forgeyng one another, yf eny man haue a quarrell agaynst another. Like as Christ hath forgiven you, euen so do ye also. But aboue all thinges put on lone, which is the bonde of perfectnesse. And the peace of God rule in youre hertes, to the which (peace) ye are called also in one body: and se y^e ye be thankfull.

Ephes. 5. b Let y^e worde of Christ dwell in you plentifully in all wysdome. * Teach and exhorte youre awne selues with psalmes and ymnes, and spirituall songes which haue sauoure with them, synginge in youre hertes to the LORDE. * And what soeuer ye do in worde or worke, do all in the name of the LORDE Jesu, * and geue thankes vnto God the father by him.

Ephes. 6. a * Ye seruantes, be obedient vnto youre bodely masters in all thinges, not with eye seruyce as men pleasers, but in synglenes of hert, fearinge God. What so euer ye do, do it hertely, euen as vnto the LORDE and not vnto men. And be sure, that of the LORDE ye shal receaue the rewarde of y^e enheritaunce: for ye serue the LORDE Christ. Contynue in prayer, and watch in the same with thankesgeuyng, and praye also together for vs, that God open vnto vs the dore of the worde, to speake the mystery of Christ (wherfore I am also in bonds) that I maye utter y^e same, as it becometh me to speake. * Walke wysely towards them that are without, and redeme y^e tyme. We geue thankes vnto God allwaye for you all, makynge mētion of you in e^r prayers without ceassynge, and call to remembraunce youre worke in the faith, and youre labour in loue, & youre patience in hope, & which is our LORDE Jesus Chust before God our father: Because we knowe (brethren, beloved of God) how that ye are electe: for our Gospell hath not bene with you in worde onely, but both in power and in the holy goest, and in moch certayntie, as ye knowe after what maner we were amonge you for youre sakes.

to the Thessalonians. Fo. lxxix.

And ye became the folowers of vs and of the LORDE: and receaued the worde in moch affliction with ioye of the holy goest: so that ye were an example to all that beleued in Macedonia and Achaia. For frō you was the worde of the LORDE noysed out, not onely in Macedonia & Achaia, but in all quarters also is yō faith in God spred abrode so that it nedeth not vs to speake eny thinge at all. For they them selues shewe of you, what maner of entrynge in we had vnto you, and how ye are turned vnto God from ymages, for to serue the lyuynge and true God, and to loke for his sonne from heaue: whom he raysed vp from the deed, euen Jesus, which hath deliuered vs frō the wrath to come.

Act. 1.6

1oh. 1.6

The II. Chapter.

For ye youre selues (brethren) knowe of our intraunce vnto you, how that it was not in wayne, but as we had suffred afore, & were shamefully intreated at Philippos (as ye knowe) we were bolde in our God, & to speake vnto you of the Gospell of God with moch stryuyng. For our ex- hertacion was not to brynge you to erreure ner yet to vnclennes, nether was it with gy- le: but as we are allowed of God, that the Gospell shulde be comyncted vnto vs to preache, euen so we speake, & not as though we wolde please mē, but God, which tryeth our herces.

Act. 16.6

Gal. 1.6

For we haue not gone aboute with flate- ringe wordes (as ye knowe) ner wayted for our owne profic: & God is recorde) nether soughte we prayse of men, nether of you ner of eny other, whan we mighte haue bene chargeable vnto you as the Apostles off Chust, but we were tender amonge you.

Phil. 1.6

Like as a noisse cherisheth hir children, euen so had we hartely affection towarde you, and wolde with good wyl haue dealte vnto you, not onely the Gospell of God, but our lyues also, because ye were deare vnto vs.

23

We remembre brethren our labour and tranayle. For daye and night wroughte we (because we wolde not be chargeable vnto eny of you) and preached the Gospell of God amonge you. We are witnesses, and so is God, how holyly and iustly and vnblameable we behaued our selues amonge you that beleue: as ye knowe, how that as a father his children, euen so exhorted we and comfor- ted and besoughte euery one of you, that ye wolde walke worthely before God, which hath called you vnto his kyngdome & glory.

Act. 10.6
2. Thess. 2.2

The first Epistle

For this cause thanke we God without ceasing, because that whā ye receaved of vs the worde of the preaching of God, ye receaved it not as þ̄ worde of men, but (eue as it is of a truthe) the worde of God, which worketh in you that belene.

C For ye brethren are become the folowers off the congregacions off God which in Jewry are in Christ Jesu, so that ye haue suffred euen like thinges of youre kynsmen, as they haue suffred of the Jewes. Which as they put the LORDE Jesus to death, and their awne prophetes, euen so haue they persecuted vs also, and please not God, and are contrary to all men, & forbyddinge vs to speake vnto the heythens that they mighte be saued, to fulfill their synnes allwaye: for the wrath is come vpon them already vnto ȳtremost.

But we (brethren) for as moch as we haue bene kepte from you for a season, as concerninge the bodily presence, but not in the hert, we haue haisted the more with greates desyre to se you personally. Therfore wolde we haue come vnto you, (I Paul) two tymes, & but Sathan withstode vs. For who is oure hope, or ioye, or crowne of reioysing? are not ye it in ȳ sighte of oure LORDE Jesus Christ at his comynge? Yes ye are oure prayse and ioye.

The III. Chapter.

A Therefore sence we coulde no longer forbear, we thought it good to remayne at Athens alone, & sent Timothens oure brother and mynister of God, and oure helper in þ̄ gospell of Christ, to stablysh you and to comforte you in youre faith, that noman shulde be moued in these troubles: (for ye youre selues knowe, that we are euen appoynted there vnto. And whan we were with you, we tolde you before, that we shulde suffre tribulacion, euen as it is come to passe, & as ye knowe.) For this cause seyng I coulde no longer forbear, I sent, that I mighte haue knowlege of youre faith, lest happily the tempter had tempted you, and lest oure laboure had bene in vayne.

B But now that Timothens is come frō you vnto vs, and hath shewed vs of youre faith and loue, & how that ye haue allwaye good remembraunce of vs, desyringe to se vs as we also longe to se you: therfore brethren we haue consolacion in you in all oure trouble and necessite thorow youre faith. For now are we alyue, yf ye stonde stedfast in ȳ LORDE. For what thankes can we recom-

to the Thessalonians.

pence to God agayne for you, because of this ioye that we haue concerninge you before oure God? We praye exceedingly daye and night, that we mighte se you presently, and fulfill that which is lackyng in ȳr faith.

God himselfe oʳ father & oʳ LORDE Jesus Christ gyde our iourney vnto you. But the LORDE increace you, & make you flowe ouer in loue one towarde another, and towarde all men (euen as we do towarde you) that ȳr hertes maye be stable and vnblameable in holynes before God oure father, at the comynge of oure LORDE Jesus Christ with all his sayntes.

The III. Chapter.

Furthermore we beseeke you brethren and exhorte you in the L O R D E Jesus, that ye increace more and more, euen as ye haue receaved of vs how ye oughte to walke and to please God. For ye knowe what commaundementes we gaue you by oure LORDE Jesus Christ. For this is the will of God, euen youre sanctification, that ye shulde absteyne from whoredome, & ȳ every one of you shulde knowe how to kepe his vessell in holynes and honoure, & not in the lust of concupiscence, & as the heythens which knowe not God. And that no man go to farre, ner defraude his brother in bargayninge. For the LORDE is the auenger of all such thinges, as we haue sayde & testified vnto you afore tyme. For God hath not called vs to uncleannesse, but vnto holynes. & he therfore that despyseth, despyseth not man, but God, & which hath geuen his holy sperte in to you.

But as touchinge brotherly loue, ye neede not that I wyte vnto you, & for ye youre selues are taught of God to loue one another: yee and that thinge ye do vnto all the brethren, which are thorow out all Macedonia. But we beseeke you brethren that ye increace yet more and more, and that ye study to be quyet, and to medle with youre awne busynesse, & and to worke with youre awne handes, as we commaunded you, that ye maye walke honestly towarde thē that are without, and that nothinge be lackyng vnto you.

We wolde not brethren that ye shulde be ignorant concerninge them which are fallen a slepe, that ye sorrowe not as other do which haue no hope. For yf we beleue that Jesus dyed and rose agayne, euen so thē also which slepe by Jesus, shal God brynge with him. For this we saye vnto you in the worde of the LORDE, & that we which lyue and are remainyng in the comynge of the LORDE,

The V. Chapter.

1. W Of y tymes and seasons (brethre)
it is no nede to wryte vnto you. For ye youre selues knowe perfectly, that the daye of the LORDE shal come euen as a thefe in the nighte. For when they shal saye: Tush, It is peace, there is no daunger,
then shall soden destruction come vpo the,
euen as the payne of a woman trauaylinge with childe, and they shal not escape. But ye brethien are not in darknes, that that daye shulde come on you as a thefe. Ye are altogether children of lighte, and children of the daye. We are not of the night, nether of darknesse.

2. W Therefore let vs not slepe as do other,
but let vs watch, and be sober. For they that slepe, slepe in the nighte: and they that be drunken, are drunken in the nighte. But let vs which are of the daye, be sober, armed w
the brestplate of faith and loue, and with 3
helmet of hope to saluacion.

3. W For God hath not appoynted vs vnto wrath, but to obtayne saluacion by 3 mea-nes of oure LORDE Iesu Christ, which dyed for vs: that whether we wake or slepe, we shulde lyue together with him. Wherfore comforte youre selues together, and edifye
one another, euen as ye do.

4. We beseeke you brethien, that ye knowe
them which labour amonge you, and haue
the oversight of you in the LORDE, and ge-ue you exhortacion, that ye haue the more in loue for their workes sake, and be at peace with them. We desyre you brethie, warne them that are unruly, comforte the feble mynded, forbear the weak, be patient toward all men. Se that none recompence euell for euell vnto eny man: but euer folowe that which is good, both amonge youre selues and to all men.

5. Reioyse alwaye, praye contynnally, in all thinges be thankfull: for this is the wyll
of God in Christ Iesu toward you. Quench

praye God, that youre whole sperte, soule &

which hath called you, which wil also do it.
Brethien, praye for vs. Greete all the brethie

The first Epistle

E For this is a true sayenge, and by all meanes worthy to be receaved, * that Christ Jesus came in to y^e worlde to saue synners, of whom I am chiefe. Notwithstandynge for this cause obtayned I mercy, that Jesus Christ mighte principally shewe in me all longe pacience, to the ensample of them which shulde beleue in him vnto eternall life. So then vnto God kyng euerlastinge, immortall and * invisible, and wyse onely, be honoure and prayse for ever and ever Amen.

This commandement commytte I vnto the (my sonne Timotheus) acordinge to y^e prophecies which in tyme past were prophced of the, that thou in them shuldest fighte a good fighte, hauynge faith & good conscience, which some haue put awaye fro them, and as concernynge faith haue made shypwrake: of whose nombere is * Hymeneus and * Alexander, * whom I haue deliuered vnto Sathan, that they might be taught, nomore to blaspheme.

The II. Chapter.

A Exhorte therfore, y^e aboue all thinges, prayers, supplicacions, intercessions and geuyng of chautes be had for all men * for kynges, and for all that are in auctorite, that we maye lyue a quyet & peaceable life in all godlynes and honestie. For that is good and accepted in y^e sighte of God oure Sauoure, which wil haue all men saued, and to come vnto the knowlege of y^e truethe. For there is one God, and * one mediator betwene God and men, (namely) the man Christ Jesus, which gaue him selfe a ranfome for all men, that at his tyme it shulde be preached, wherunto * I am ordeyned a preacher & an Apostle (I tell y^e truethe in Christ and lye not) a teacher of the heythē in faith and in the truethe.

B I wil therfore that men praye, in all places, liftynge vp pure haides without wyth or dowtynge. * Likewyse also the women, that they araye them selues in comly apparell with shamefastnes and discrete behaueour, not with broided heer, or golde, or perles, or costely araye: but with such as it becommeth women that professe godlynes thorow good woikes. * Let the woman lerne in sylence with all subieccion. I suffre not a woman to teach * ner to haue auctorite ouer the man, but for to be in sylence. For Adam was first formed, and the Eve: Adam also was not disceined, but the woman was disceined, and hath brought in the trasgression. Notwithstandynge thorow bearynge of children she shal be saued, yf she contynne in faith and in loue & in the sanctifyenge with discrecion.

The III. Chapter.

This is a true sayenge: If a man covet y^e office of a Bisshoppe, he desyreth a good worke. But a Bisshoppe must be blamelesse, * the husbāde of one wyfe, sober, discrete, manerly, harberous, * apte to teach: Not geuen to moch wyne, no fighter, not geuen to filthy lucre: but gentle, abhorrynge stryfe, abhorrynge couetousnes: & one that ruleth his awne house honestly, hauynge obedient children with all honestye. (But yf a man can not rule his owne house, how shal he care for the congregacion of God?) He maye not be a yōge scholar, lest he be puse vp, and fall in to the iudgment of y^e euell speaker. He must also haue a good reporte of them which are without, lest he fall in to the rebuke and snare of the euell speaker.

Likewyse must the * mynisters be honest, not double tonged, not geuen to moch wyne, nether vnto fylthie lucre, but hauynge the mystery of faith in pure conscience. And let them first be proued, and then let them mynister, yf they be blamelesse.

Euen so must their wyues be honest, not euell speakers, but sober and faithfull in all thinges. Let the mynisters be, every one the husbāde of one wyfe, and soch as rule their children well, and their owne householdes. * For they that mynister well, get them selues a good degree and greate libertye in the faith which is in Christ Jesu.

These thinges wyte I vnto the, trustynge shortly to come vnto the: but yf I tary longe, that then thou mayest yet haue knowlege, how thou oughtest to behaue thy selfe in Gods house, which is the congregacion of the lyuynge God, the piler and grounde of truethe: and without naye, greate is that mystery of godlynes. * God was shewed in the flesh: was iustified in the spere: * was seene of angels: was preached vnto the heythē: was beleued on in the worlde: * was receaued vp in glory.

The IIII. Chapter.

The spere speaketh euidently, * that in y^e latter tymes some shal * departe from the faith, and shal geue hede vnto spettes of erroure, and deuylishe doctrynes, of them which speake false thorow ypcrysie, and haue their conscience marked with an whote yron, forbyddynge to mary, and comandyng to abstayne fro the meates,

which God hath created to be receaved w
geuyng e thankes of them which beleue and knowe the trueth. * For euery creature off
God is good, and nothinge to be refused, y is receaved with thankesgeuyng: for it is sanctified by the worde of God and prayer.
If thou shalt put the brethien in remembraunce of these thinges, thou shalt be a good mynister of Jesu Chust, * which hast bene nourished vp in the wordes of faith and
of good doctryne, which thou hast folowed
hither to.

B * As for vngoodly and olde wyuesh fa-
bles, cast them awaye, but exerceyse thy selfe vnto godlynes. For bodely exerceyse profy-teth litle, but godlynes is profytable vnto
all thinges, as a thinge which hath promyses of the life that is now, and of the life for
to come. This is a sure sayenge, & of all par-tes worthy to be receaved. For therfore we laboure and suffre rebuke, because we hope
in the lyuynge God, which is the Sauoure
of all men, but specially of those that beleue.
Such thinges commaunde thou and teach.
* Let no man despise y youth, * but be thou
vnto them that beleue, an ensample, in wor-
de, in couersacion, in loue, in y spere, in faith,
in purenesse.

Geue attendaunce to readyng, to exhortacion, to doctryne, vntyll I come. Be not negligent in the gifte that is geuen the tho-
row prophete, * with layege on of the han-des of the Elders. These thinges exerceyse, and geue thy selfe vnto them, that thine increase maye be manifest vnto every man.
Take hede vnto thy selfe, and to learnynge,
cōtynue in these thinges. For yf thou so do,
thou shalt saue thy selfe, and them that hea-
re the.

These thinges teach and exhorte. If any mā teach otherwyse, and agreeth not vnto the wholsome wordes of oure LORDE Iesus Chust, and to the doctryne of godlynes, he is puffed vp, and knoweth nothynge, but waysteth his brayne aboute questions and strynges of wordes: wherof sprynge enuie, stryfe, raylinges, euell surmysinges, vayne disputaciōs of soch men as haue corrupte myndes, and are robbed of the trueth, which thynke that godlynes is lucre: From soch separate thy selfe. Howbeit it is great advantage, who so is godly, and holdeth him content with that he hath. For we broughte nothynge into the worlde, therfore is it a playne case that we can cary nothynge out. Whan we haue fode and rayment, let vs therewith be content. For they that wylbe riche, fall in to the tēptacion and snare, and in to many folishe & noysome lustes, which drowne men in destruccion and damnacion. For Couetousnes is the roote of all euell, which whyle some lusted after, they erred from the faith, and tangled them selues with many sorowes.

But thou man of God, flye soche thinges: folowe righteounes, godlynes, faith, loue, pacience, mekenes: fighte a good fighte of faith: laye honde on eternall life, where vnto thou art called, and hast professed a good profession before many witnesses.

I geue the charge before God, which quyeteneth all thinges, & before Iesu Chust, which vnder Pontius Pilate witnessed a good witnessynge, that thou kepe the commendement, without spot, vnreprouable, vncyll the appearynge of oure LORDE Iesus Chust, which appearynge (at his tyme) he shal shewe that is blessed, and mightie onely, the kynge of all kynges, and LORDE of all lordes: which onely hath immortallite, and dwelleth in a lighte, that no man can attayne: whom no man hath sene, neither can se. Vnto whom be honoure and empyre everlastinge, Amen.

Charge the which are riche in this worlde, that they be not proude, ner trust in the vncertayne riches, but in the lyuynge God (which geueth vs abundantly all thinges to enioye them:) That they do good: that they be rich in good workes: that they geue and distribute with a good wyll: gatheryn

The summe of this epistle.

Chap. I. Paul exhorte Timothy to stedfastnesse and pacience in persecucion, and to continue in the doctryne that he had taught him. A commendacion of Onesiphorus.

Chap. II. Like as in the first chapter, so here he exhorte him to be constant in trouble, to suffer manly, and to hyde fast in the wholsome doctrine of oure LORDE Iesus Chust.

Chap. III. He prophecieth of the perelous tymes, setteth out ypocrites in their colours, telleth vs what they be within, for all their fayre faces outwardly. Persecucion for the gospel.

Chap. IIII. He exhorte Timothy to be seruice in the worde, and to suffer aduersite: maketh mention of his awne death, and byddeth Timothy come vnto him.

B * Be not thou ashamed therfore of y testimony of^r LORDE, nether of me, * which am his prisoner: but suffre thou aduersite also w the Gospell, acordinge to the power of God * which hath saued vs, and called vs with an holy callinge: not acordinge to our dedes, but acordinge to his owne purpose and grace, which was geuen vs in Christ Jesu before the tyme of the worlde, but is now declared openly by the appearynge of oure Sauoure Jesu Christ. * Which hath taken awaye y power of death, and hath broughed life and immortalite vnto lighte, thorow the Gospell: * wherunto I am appoynted a preacher and an Apostell, and a teacher of the heythen: for the which cause I also suffre these thinges, neuertheles I am not ashamed. For I knowe whom I have beleued, and am sure that he is able to kepe that which I have commytted vnto his keepynge agaynst that daye.

C * Holde the after y ensample of the wholsome wordes, which thou heardest of me, concernynge faith and loue in Christ Jesu. This hye charge kepe thou thorow the holy goost, which dwelleth in vs. This thou knowest, that all they which are in Asia, be turned fro me, of which sorte are Phigelus and Hermogenes. The LORDE geue mercy vnto the house of Onesiphorus: for he of refreshed me, and was not ashamed of my cheyne: but whan he was at Rome * he soughte me out very diligently, and founde me. The LORDE graunte vnto him, that he maye fynde mercy with the LORDE in that daye. And how much he mynistred vnto me at Ephesus, thou knowest very well.

The II. Chapter.

Thou therfore my sonne, be stronge thorow the grace which is in Christ Jesu. And what thinges thou hast herde of me by many witnesses, * the same commytte thou vnto faithfull men, which are apte to teach other. Thou therfore suffre affliction as a good souldyer off Christ. No mā that warreth, tangleth himselfe with wordly busynesses, z that because he wolde please him, which hath chosen him to be a souldyer. And though a man stryue for a masterye, yet is he not crowned, excepte he stryue lawfully. * The husbandman that laboureth, must first enioye the frutes. Consydre what I saye. The LORDE shal geue the vnderstandynge in all thinges.

Remembre that Jesus Christ, beyng of the seide of David, rose agayne fro the deed, acordinge to my Gospell, wherein I suffre as an euell doer euen vnto bandes: but the worde of God is not bounde. * Therfore suffre I all for the electes sakes, that they also mighte optayne the saluacion in Christ Jesu with eternall glory.

This is a true sayenge: * If we be deed w him, we shal lyue with him also: * If we be pacient, we shal also raigne with him: * If we denye him, he also shal denye vs: * If we beleue not, yet abyderth he faithfull, he can not denye himselfe. Of these thinges put thou them in remembraunce, and testifie before the LORDE, that they stryue not aboute wordes, which is to no profit, but to peruerthe the hearers.

Study to shewe thy selfe vnto God a laudable workman, that nedeth not to be ashamed, denyng the worde of truthe iustly. * As for vngoodly and wayne talkynges, eschue them: for they helpe much to vngodlynnes, and their worde fretteth as doth a canker: Of whose nombre is * Hymentes z Philetus, which as concernynge the truthe have erred, sayenge, that the resurreccion is past already, and haue destroyed the faith of dyuerse personnes.

But y sure grounde of God stondest fast, and hath this seale: * The LORDE knoweth them that are his, and let every mā that calleth vpon the name of Christ, departe from iniquyte. Not withstandynge * in a greate house are not onely vessels of golde and of syluer, but also of wode and of searthe: some for honoure, and some to dishonoure. But yf a man pouрге himselfe from soch felowes, he shalbe a vessel sanctified vnto honoure, mete for the LORDE, and prepared vnto all good workes. * Sle thou the lustes of youth, but folowe righteousnes, faith, loue, peace, with all them that call vpon the LORDE with pure hert. * As for folish questions and soch as teach not, put them fro the: for thou knowest that they do but geber stryfe. The seruant of the LORDE ought not to stryue, but to be gentle vnto every man: apte to teach, one that can forbear the euell, one y can * with mekenesse enfourmethem y resist: yf God at eny tyme wyl geue them repentance for to knowe the truthe, and to turne agayne from the snare of the deuell, which are holden in prison of him at his will.

The first Epistle of the Apostle S. Peter.

The summe of this Epistle.

Chap. I. He sheweth that thorow the abundant mercy of God we are begotten agayne to a lyvely hope: and how faith must be tried: how the saluacion in Christ is no newes, but a thinge propheted of olde. He exhorteth them to a godly conuersacion, for so moch as they are now borne a new by th^e worde of God.

Chap. II. He exhorteth men to laye asyde all vyce, sheweth that Christ is the foundation wher vpon they be buylt, prayeth them to absteyne fro fleshly lustes, and to obeye worldly rulers. How seruauntes shulde behaue them selues toward their masters. He exhorteth to suffre after the ensample of Christ.

Chap. III. How wyues ought to ordre them selues toward their husbandes and in their apparell. The durye of me toward their wyues. He exhorteth all men to vnte and loue, and patiently to suffre trouble. Of true baptyme.

Chap. IIII. He exhorteth men to cease from synne, to spende no more tyme in vyce, to be sober and apte to prayer, to loue ech other, to be patient in trouble, and to beware that no man suffre as an euell doer, but as a Christen man, and not to be ashamed.

Chap. V. A speciall exhortacion for all bishoppes or prestes to fede the flocke of Christ, and what their dutie is, and what reward they shal haue yf they be diligit. He exhorteth yonge personnes to submytt the selues to the elder, every one to loue another, to be sober, & to warde, that they maye resist the enemye.

thurer, or as a thefe, or as an euell doer, or as a busy body in other mens matters. If any man suffre as a Christen man, let him not be ashamed, but let him prayse God on this behalfe. For þe tyme is come, that iudgmeēt must begynne at the house of God. If it first begynne at vs, what shal the ende be of the which beleue not the Gospell of God? And yf yf righteous scarcely be saved, where shal þe vngodly & synner appeare? Wherefore let them that suffer acordinge to the will off God, commytte their soules vnto him with well doynge, as to the faithfull creator.

The V. Chapter.

And the Elders which are amonge you I exhorce, which am also an Elder, and a witness off the afflictions in Christ, and partaker of the glory that shal be opened. Seede Chyestes flocke which is amonge you, and take the oversight of the, not as though ye were cōpeiled therto, but wyllingly: not for the desyre of filchye lucre, but of a good mynde: not as though ye were lordes ouer the parishēs, but that ye be an ensample to the flocke: & whan the chiefe shepherde shal appeare, ye shal receaue the vncorruptable crowne of glory.

Likewyse ye yōger submytte youre selues vnto the elder. Submytte youre selues every man one to another, and knye yō selues together in low lynes of mynde. For God resisteth the proude, but geueth grace to the humble. Submytte yō selues therefore vnder the mightie hande of God, that he maye exalte you whan the tyme is come. Cast all youre care on him, for he careth for you.

Be sober and watch, for yō aduersary yf deuell, walketh aboute as a roaringe lyon, seekyng whom he maye deuoure, whom resiste stedfast in the faith, and knowe, that youre brethien in the worlde haue euen the same afflictions.

But yf God of all grace, which hath called you to his euerlastinge glory in Christ Iesu, shal his owne selfe make you perfect, which suffre a litle season: eue he shal settle, strength, and stablish you. To him be prayse and domynion for euer and euer, Amen.

By Siluanus youre faithfull brecher (as I suppose) haue I wrytē vnto you breuely, exhortinge and testifyng, how that this is the true grace of God wherein ye stōde. The companions of youre eleccion that are at Babilon, salute you, and Marcus my sonne. Greete ye one another with the kysse of loue. Peace be with you all which are in Christ Iesus, Amen.

The seconde Epistle of the Apostle S. Peter.

The summe of this epistle.

Chap. I. For so moch as the power of God hath genen them all thinges pertayninge vnto life, he exhorteth the to flye the corrupcion of worldly lust, to make their callinge sure with good workes and frutes of faith. He maketh mencion of his owne death, declaringe the LORDE Iesus to be the true sonne of God, as he himself hath sene vpon the mount.

Chap. II. He prophecieth of false teachers, and sheweth their punysshment.

Chap. III. He exhorteth men to beware of soch as wolde make the beleue, that the daye of the LORDE were slacken commynge: prayeth them to lede a godly life, and to loke verily for the commynge of the LORDE, whose lōge tarienge is saluacion, and because he wolde haue no man lost, but wolde receaue all mē to repentaunce.

The first Chapter.

Simon Peter a seruāts and an Apostle of Iesus Christ.

1. Pet. 1.1

Vnto the which haue oprayned like faith with vs in the righteousnes that cometh of oure God, and Sau-

oure Iesus Christ.

Grace and peace be mulciplied with you thorow the knowlege of God and of Iesus Christ oure LORDE.

Ioh. 1.1
Col. 1.1

For so moch as his godly power hath geuen vs all thinges (that pertayne vnto life and godlynes) thorow the knowlege of him that hath called vs by his owne glorie and power, wherby the excellent and most greate promyses are genē vnto vs: namely, that ye by the same shulde be partakers of the godly nature, yf ye flye the corrupte lust of the worlde: Geue ye all youre diligence therefore here vnto, and in youre faith mynister vertue: in vertue, knowlege: in knowlege, temperancy: in temperancy, pacience: in pacience, godlynes: in godlynes, brotherly loue: in brotherly loue, generall loue. For yf these thinges be plenteous in you, they will not let you be yble nor vnfrutefull in y knowlege of oure LORDE Iesus Christ. But he that lacketh these thinges, is blynde, & gropeth for the waye with the hāde, and hath forgotten, that he was clesed from his olde synnes.

Etherfore wil I not be negligēt to put you allwayes in remembraunce of such thinges: though ye knowe them youre selues, and be stablished in the present tyneth. Notwithstandinge I thinke it mete, as longe as I am in this * tabernacle, to stere you vp by puttinge you in remembraunce. For I am sure, that I must shortly put of my tabernacle, even as oure LORDE Iesus Christ hath shewed vnto me. Yet wyl I do my diligēce, that allwaye after my departynge ye maye haue wherewith to kepe these thinges in remembraunce.

For we folowed not deceaueable fables, whan we declared vnto you the power and commynge of oure LORDE Iesus Christ: * but with oure eyes we sawe his maiestie, whan he receaued of God the fader honou-
re & prayse, by a voyce that came vnto him from the excellent glory, after this maner:
* This is my deare sonne, in whom I haue delyte. And this voyce herde we broughte downe frō heauen, whan we were with him on the holy mount.

We haue also a sure worde of prophēcie, and ye do well that ye take hede ther vnto, as vnto a lighte * that shyneth in a darke place vntyll the daye dawne, and the daye starre arysē in youre hertes. And this shal ye knowe first, that no prophēcie in the scripture is done of eny priuate interpretacion.
* For the prophēcie was neuer broughte by the wyll of man, but the holy men of God spake, as they weremoued of y holy goost.

The i. Chapter.

Where there were false prophetes also amonge the people, * even as there shalbe false teachers amonge you likewyse, which pruely shal brynge in damnable sectes, even denyenge the LORDE that hath boughtethem, and shal brynge vpon them selues swift damnacion: and * many shal folowe their damnable wayes, by whō the waye of the trueth shal be euell spokē of: and thorow couetousnes shal they with fay-ned wordes make marchaundise of you, vpo whō the iudgment is not negligēt in tarienge of olde, and their damnacion slepeth not.

This first vnderstonde, & that in the last dayes there shal come mockers, which wyll walke after their awne lustes, & saye: Where is the promes of his commynge? For sence the fathers fell on slepe, euery thinge cōtynuerth as it was from the begynnyng of y^e creature. This they knowe not (and that wylfully) how that the heauens were afore tyme also, and the earth out of the water, & was in the water by the worde of God, & yet was the worlde at that tyme destroyed by the same with the floude. But the heauens which are yet, and y^e earth, are kepte in stoare by his worde, to be reserued & vnto fyre agaynst the daye of iudgment and damnacion of vngodly men.

Dearely beloved, be not ignorant of this one thinge, & how that one daye is with the LORDE as a thousande yeare: and a thousande yeare as one daye. The LORDE is not slacke to fulfyll his promes (as some mē counte slacknesse) but is & paciēt to vs warde, & and wyl not that eny mā shulde be lost, but that everyman shulde amende himselfe. Neuertheles, the daye of the LORDE shal come euen as a thefe in the night: in the which (daye) the heauens shal perishe with a greate noyse, and the Elementes shal melte with heate, and the earth and y^e workes that are therin, shal burne.

Wherefore dearly beloved, seynge that ye loke for soch thinges, be diligent, y^e ye maye be founde before him in peace without spot and vndefyled: and counte the long sufferynge of oure LORDE youre saluacion, Euen as oure dearly beloved brother Paul (acor dyng to the wysdome geue vnto him) wrote vnto you: yee speakeinge therof almost in all Epistles, wherein are many thinges harde to be vnderstonde, which they that are vnlearned and vnstable, peruerter, as they do the other scriptures also, to their awne damnacion.

Ye therfore beloved, seynge ye knowe it before hande, beware, lest ye also be plucked awaye thorow the erreure of y^e wicked, and fall from yo^r owne stedfastnes. But growe in grace, and in the knowlege of oure LORDE and Sauoure Jesus Christ. To him be prayse now and for ever, Amen.

of S. Iohn. Ho. xcviij.

The first Chapter.

21

That which was from
y begynnynge, which we haue herde, which we haue sene with
o' eyes, which we haue loked vpon, and
o' handes haue handled of the worde of life: and the life hath appeared, and we haue

sene, and beare wytnes, and shewe vnto you
y life that is euerlastinge, which was with the fater, and hath appeared vnto vs. That which we haue sene z herde, declare we vnto
you, that ye also maye haue fellowshipe with vs, and that oure fellowshipe maye be with the fater and with his sonne Iesus Chust.
And this wyte we vnto you, that youre
ioye maye be full.

And this is the tydinges which we haue
herde of him, z declare vnto you, that God
is lighte, and in him is no darknes at all.
If we saye that we haue fellowshipe with him, and yet walke in darknes, we lye, and do not the trueth. But yf we walke in lighte, euen as he is in lighte, then haue we fel-
lshippe together, and the bloude of Iesus
Chust his sonne clenseth vs from all synne.

* If we saye that we haue no synne, we disceane oure selues, and the trueth is not in vs. But yf we knowlege oure synnes, he is faithfull and iust to forgene vs oure synnes, z to clense vs from all vnrightheousnes. If we saye, we haue not synned, we make him a lyar, and his worde is not in vs.

The II. Chapter.

21

W little children, these thinges wyte
I vnto you, that ye shulde not syn-
ne: and yf eny man synne, we haue
an advocate with the fater, euen Iesus Chust which is righteons: and he it is that optayneth grace for oure synnes: not for oure synnes onely, but also for the synnes of all the worlde. And hereby are we sure that we knowe him, yf we kepe his comaundemē

tes. * He that sayeth: I knowe him, and kepeth not his comaundemētes, is a lyar, and the trueth is not in him, But who so kepeth
his worde, in him is the lone of God perfecte
in dede. * Hereby knowe we, that we are in him. He y sayeth he abydeth in him, oughte
to walke euen as he walked.

Brethren, I wyte no new comaundement vnto you, but that olde comaundement, which ye haue herde from the begyn-nyng. The olde comaundement is the worde, which ye haue herde from the begynnynge. Agayne, a new comaundemēt wyte I vnto you, a thinge that is true in him z also in you: for the darknesse is past, and the true
lighte now shyneth.

He that sayeth he is in lighte, and hateth
his brother, is yet in darknesse. He y loueth his brother, abydeth in the lighte, and there is none occasion of euell in him. But he y hateth his brother, is in darknes, and walketh in darknes, and can not tell whither he goeth, for y darknes hath blynded his eyes.

Babes, I wyte vnto you, that yf syn-nes are forgivenen you for his names sake. I wyte vnto you fathers, how that ye haue
knowne him which is from y begynnynge.
I wyte vnto you yongemē, how that ye haue overcome the wicked. I wyte vnto you litle children, how that ye haue knowne the fater. I haue wrytten vnto you fathers,
how that ye haue knowne him, which is frō
the begynnynge. I haue wrytten vnto you yongemen, how that ye are stronge, and the worde of God abydeth in you, and ye haue
oucome that wicked.

Se that ye loue not the worlde, nether y thinges that are in the worlde. If eny man loue the worlde, the loue of the fater is not in him: for all that is in the worlde (namely
the lust of the flesh, and the lust of the eyes, and the pryde of life) is not of the fater, but of the worlde. And the worlde passeth awaye and the lust therof. But he that ful-fylleth the wyll of God, abydeth for ever.

Litle children, it is the last houre, and (as ye haue herde that Antechrist shal come)
euen now are there many become Antechris-tes already: wherby we knowe, that it is y last houre. They wente out frō vs, but they were not of vs: for yf they had bene of vs,
they wolde no doute haue contynued with vs. But that they maye be knowne, how that they are not all of vs.

But ye haue the anoyntinge of him y is holy, z ye knowe all thiges. I haue not wryt-te vnto you, as though ye knewe not y trueth

The first Epistle

But ye knowe it, & are sure, & no lye cometh of y^e truth. Who is a lyar, but he & denyeth & Jesus is Christ: The same is & Antichrist, & denyeth the father & y^e sonne. Whosoever denyeth the sonne, the same hath not the father. Loke what ye haue herde now from & begynnyng, let the same abyde in you. & y^e which he herde from the begynnyng shall remayne in you, then shall ye also abyde in & sonne and in the father. And this is the promise & he hath promysed vs, euē eternall life.

This haue I wyrtē vnto you cōcerninge the that disceave you. And the anoyntinge which ye haue receaved of him, dwelleth in you: & ye neede not & eny mā teach you, but as the anoyntinge teacheth you all thinges, even so is it true, & is no lye. And as it hath taughte you, euē so abide ye therein. And now babes, abyde in hī, & whā he shall appeare, we maye be bolde, & not be made ashamed of him at his commynge. & y^e knowe & he is righteous, knowe also that he which doth righteousness, is borne of him.

The III. Chapter.

Holde what loue the father hath shewēd on vs, & we shulde be called the childrē of God. Therefore y^e wolde knoweth you not, because it knoweth not him. Dearly beloved, we are now & childrē of God, and yet hath it not appeared what we shalbe. But we knowe & when he shall appeare, we shal be like him: for we shal se him as he is. And euery man & hath this hope in him, pougeth him selfe, euen as he is pure. Who so euer cōmyttech synne, cōmyttech vnrighteousnes also, and synne is vnrighteousnes. And ye knowe that he appeared to take awaye oure synnes: and in him is no synne. Who so euer abydet in him, synneth not: who so euer synneth, hath not sene him nether knowe him.

Babes, let no man disceave you. He that doeth righteousness, is righteous, euen as he is righteous. He that commyttech synne, is of the deuell: & for the deuell synneth sence y^e begynnyng. For this purpose appeared the sonne of God, to loose the workes of the deuell. & Who so euer is borne of God, synneth not: for his & sede remayneth in him, & he cā not synne, because he is borne of God. & By this are the children of God knowne & the children of the deuell. Who so euer doeth not righteousness, is not of God, nether he that loneth not his brother.

For this is the trydnges which ye haue herde from the begynnyng, that ye shulde loue one another, & not as Cain, which was

of the wicked, and slewe his brother. And wherfore slewe he him: & euen because his owne workes were euell, and his brothers righteous. & Marnayle not (my brechren) though the worlde hate you. We knowe & we are translated from death vnto life, because we loue the brechren. He that loneth not his brother, abydet in death. & Who so euer hateth his brother, is a manslayer. And ye knowe that a manslayer hath not eternall life abydinge in him.

Hereby haue we perceaued loue, that he gaue his life for vs, and therfore ought we also to geue oure lyues for the brechre. But he & hath this worlde good, & seyth his brother haue neede, and shutteth vp his hert fro him, how dwelleth the loue of God in him? My litle children, & let vs not loue with word nether with tonge, but with & dede, and with the truth. Hereby knowe we, that we are of the verite, and can quyte oure hertes before him. But yf oure hert condemne vs, God is greater the oure hert, and knoweth all thinges. Dearly beloved, yf oure hert condemne vs not, then haue we a fre boldnes to God warde. & And what so euer we are, we shal receaue it: because we kepe his cōmaundementes, and do those thinges, which are pleasant in his sighte.

And this is his cōmaundement, that we belene on y^e name of his sonne Jesus Christ, and loue one another, & as he gaue cōmaundement. And he that kepeth his cōmaundementes, dwelleth in him, and hem him. And hereby knowe we that he abydet in vs, euen by the sperte which he hath geuen vs.

The III. Chapter.

Dearly beloved, beleue not ye every sperte, & but proue the spertes, whether they be of God. For many false prophetes are gone out in to the worlde. Hereby shall ye knowe the sperte of God: Every sperte which confesseth, that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh, is of God: And every sperte which confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh, is not off God. And this is that sperte of Antechrist, off whom ye haue herde, how that he shall come, and euen now already is he in the worlde. Little children, ye are off God, and haue overcome them: for greater is he that is in you, then he that is in the worlde. They are off the worlde, therefore speake they off the worlde, and the worlde herkeneth vnto them. We are of God, & he that knoweth God, herkeneth vnto vs:

The first Epistle

he that is not of God, heareth vs not. Here by knowe we the spere of trueth, and y^e spere of erreure.

B Dearly beloved, let vs loue one another, for loue commeth of God. And every one y^e loueth, is borne of God, and knoweth God. He that loueth not, knoweth not God: for God is loue. By this appeared the loue of God to vs warde, because that God sent his onely begotten sonne in to this worlde, that we mighte lyue thowow him. Herein is loue, not that we loued God, but that he loued vs, and sent his sonne to make a gremet for oure synnes.

Dearly beloved, yf God so loued vs, we oughte also to loue one another. No man hath sene God at any tyme. Yf we loue one another, God dwelleth in vs, and his loue is perfecte in vs. Hereby knowe we that we dwell in him, and he in vs, because he hath geuen vs of his spere. And we haue sene, and testifie that the father sent the sonne to be the Sauoure of the worlde. Whosoever now confesseth y^e Jesus is the sonne of God in him dwelleth God, and he in God: and we haue knowne and beleued the loue that God hath to vs.

C God is loue, and he that dwelleth in loue dwelleth in God, and God in him. Herein is the loue perfecte with vs, that we shulde haue a fre boldnesse in the daye of iudgment: for as he is, eu^e so are we in this worlde. Feare is not in loue, but perfecte loue casteth out feare: for feare hath paynesfulnes. He that feareth, is not perfecte in loue.

Let vs loue him, for he loued vs first. Yf any man saye: I loue God, and yett hateth his brother, he is a lyar. For he that loueth not his brother whom he seyth, how can he loue God, whom he seyth not? And this commaundement haue we of him, that he which loueth God, shulde loue his brother also.

The V. Chapter.
Who so ever beleueth that Jesus is Christ, is borne of God. And whosoever loueth him that begat, loueth him also which was begotten of him. By this we knowe that we loue Gods children, whan we loue God, and kepe his commaundementes. For this is the loue of God, that we kepe his commaundementes, and his commaundementes are not greuous. For all that is borne of God, overcommeth the worlde: and this is the victory that overcometh the worlde, eu^e oure faith. Who is it y^e overcometh the worlde, but he which beleueth that Jesus is the sonne of God?

of S. Ihon. So. xcix.

This is he that cometh with water and bloude, enen Jesus Christ: not with water onely, but with water and bloude. And it is the spere that beareth wytnes: for the spere is the trueth. (For there are thre which beare recorde in heauen: the father, the worde, and the holy goost, and these thre are one.) And there are thre which beare recorde in earth: the spere, water and bloude, and these thre are one.

If we receaue the witnesse of men, the witnesse of God is greater: for this is the wytnesse of God, which he testified of his sonne. He that beleueth on y^e sonne of God, hath the wytnes in him selfe. He that beleueth not God, hath made him a lyar. And this is that recorde, eu^e y^e God hath geue vs euerlastinge life. And this life is in his sonne. He that hath the sonne of God, hath life: he that hath not the sonne of God, hath not life.

These thinges haue I wytted vnto you, which beleue on the name of the sonne of God, that ye maye knowe, how that ye haue eternall life, and that ye maye beleue on y^e name of the sonne of God. And this is the fre boldnesse which we haue towarde him, that yf we are any thinge acordinge to his wyll, he heareth vs. And yf we knowe that he heareth vs what so euer we are, then are we sure that we haue y^e petitions, which we haue desired of him.

If any man se his brother synne a synne not vnto death, let him aye, and he shal geue him life, for the y^e synne not vnto death. There is a synne vnto death, for the which I saye I not that a man shulde praye. All vnrighteousnes is synne, and there is synne not vnto death.

We knowe, that whosoever is borne of God, synneth not: but he that is begotten of God, keperh himselfe, and y^e wicked toucheth him not. We knowe that we are of God, and the worlde is set altogether on wickednes. But we knowe, that the sonne of God is come, and hath geuen vs a mynde, to knowe him which is true: and we are in him y^e is true, in his sonne Jesus Christ.

This is the true God, and euerlastinge life. Babes kepe youre selues from ymages. Amen.

He wryteth vnto a certayne lady, reioyseth that her children walke in the truth, exhorteth the vnto loue, warneth them to beware of such disceauers as denye that Iesus Christ came in the flesh, prayeth them to conynne in the doctryne of Christ, and to haue nothyng to do with them that bryng not this lettyng.

Alder. To y electe lady and hir childre whom I loue in the truth: not I onely, but all they also that haue knowne the truth, for the truthe sake which dwelleth in vs, and shalbe with vs for ever.

Grace, mercy, and peace be with yen fro the LORDE Iesus Christ & sonne of the father in the truth and in loue.

I am greatly reioysed, that I haue founde amonge thy children, them that walke in y truth, as we haue receaued a commaundment of the father. And now lady I beseeke the (not as though I wrote a new commaundment vnto the, but the same which we haue had from the begynnynge) that we loue one another. And this is the loue, that we walke after his commaundmentes.

This is the commaundment (as ye haue herde fro the begynnynge) that we shulde walke therein. * For many disceauers are come in to the wolde, which confesse not y Iesus Christ is come in the flesh: this is a disceauer and an Antechrist. Take hede to youre selues, that we lose not that which we haue wrought, but that we maye receaue a full rewarde. Who so ever transgresseth, and abydeh not in the doctryne of Christ, hath not God: he that abydeh in y doctryne of Christ, hath both the father and the sonne.

* If any man come vnto you, and brynge not this doctryne, receaue him not in to the house, nether salute him: for he that salueth him, is partaker of his euell dedes. I had many thynges to wryte vnto you: neuertheless I wolde not wryte w papyre and ynke, but I trust to come vnto you, and to speake with you mouth mouth, that oure ioye maye be full. The children of thy electe sister salute the. Amen.

He is glad of Gaius, that he walketh in the truth, exhorteth him to be lowng vnto the poore christen in their persecucion, sheweth the vnynde dealyng of Diotrephes, and the good reporte of Demetrius.

Alder. To the beloued Gaius, whom I loue in the truth. My beloued, I wryte the in all thynges, that thou prospere and faie well even as thy soule prospereth. I reioysed greatly, whan the biethien came, and testified of the truth that is in y, how thou walkest in the truth. I haue no greater ioye, the to heare that my childre walke in the truth.

My beloued, * thou doest faithfully what so euer thou dost to the biethien and to straungers, which haue borne witness of thy loue before the congregacion: and thou hast done well that thou dyddest brynge them forwarde on their iourney, worthely before God. For because of his names sake they wente forth, and toke nothyng of the theythen. We therefore oughte to receaue such, that we mighte be helpers vnto the truth.

I wrote to the congregacion, but Diotrephes, which loueth to haue the premyence amonge them, receaued vs not. Wherefore, yf I come, I wil declare his dedes which he doeth, leastinge vpo vs with malicious wordes: nether is he therewith content. Not onely he himselfe receaueth not the biethien, but also he forbyddeh them that wolde, and thrusteth them out of the congregacion.

My beloued, folowe not y which is euell, but that which is good. He that doeth well, is of God: but he that doeth euell, seyth not God. Demetrius hath good reporte of all men, and of the truth: yee and we oure selues also beare recorde, and ye knowe that oure recorde is true. I had many thynges to wryte, but I wolde not wryte ynke, and per wryte vnto the. But I trust shortly to se the and so wyl we speake together mouth to mouth. Peace be with the. The louers salute the. The first Chapter.

GOD in tyme past diuersly & many wayes, spake vnto y fathers by prophetes, but in these last dayes he hath spoken vnto vs by his sonne, * whom he hath made heyre of all thinges, by whom also he made the worlde. * Which (sonne) beyng the brightnes of his glory, & the very ymage of his substaunce, bearyng vp all thinges with the worde of his power, * hath in his owne personne purged oure synnes, and is set on the righte hande of the maiestie on hye: beyng eue as moche more excellent then y angels, as he hath oprayned a more excellent name then they.

For vnto which of the angels sayde he at eny tyme: * Thou art my sonne, this daye haue I begotten the: And agayne: * I will be his father, & he shalbe my sonne: And agayne, whā he bryngeth in the fyrst begotten sonne in to the worlde, he sayeth: * And all the angels of God shal worshippe him. And of the angels he sayeth: He maketh his angels spirtes, & his mynisters flames of fyre. But vnto y sonne he sayeth: * God, y seate endureth for ever & euer: the cepter of y kyngdome is a right cepter. Thou hast loued righteousnes, & hated iniquyte: wherfore God (which is thy God) hath anoynted the with the oyle of gladnesse aboue y felowes. * And thou LORDE in y begynnynge hast layed the foundation of the earth, and y heaues are the workes of thy handes, * they shal perishe, but thou shalt endure: they all shal ware olde as doth a garmēt, and as a vesture shalt thou chaunge them, and they shalbe chaunged. But thou art y same, and thy yeares shal not fayle. Vnto which of the angels sayde he at eny tyme: * Syr thou on my righte hande, tyll I make thyne enemies thy fote stole: Are they not all mynistrynge spirtes, sent to mynister for their sakes, which shalbe heyres of saluacion?

A Herfore we oughte to geue the more hede vnto the thinges which we haue herde, lest we perishe. For yf the worde which was spokē by angels, was stedfast, and euery trasgression and dishobedience receaued a iust recompence of rewarde, how shal we escape, yf we despyse so grea-

After thou haddest for a litle season made him lower thē þ angels, thou crownedst him with honoure and glory, and hast set him aboue the workes of thy handes. Thou hast put all thinges in subieccion vnder his fete. * In that he subdued all thinges vnto him, he lefte nothinge that is not put vnder him. And we se þ they coulde not enter in because of vnbeleue.

The Epistle

The III. Chapter.

Let vs feare therfore, lest eny of vs forsaunge the promes of entrynge in to his rest, shulde seme to come behinde: for it is declared vnto vs as well as vnto the. But the worde of preachinge helped not the, whā they that herde it, beleued it not. (For we which haue beleued, enter in to his rest) acordinge as he sayde: Euen as I haue swome in my wrath, They shal not enter in to my rest. And that (spake he) verely longe after that the workes fro the begynnyng of the worlde were made: For he spake in a certayne place of the seuenth daye, on this wyse: And God rested on the seuenth daye from all his workes. And in this place agayne: They shal not come in to my rest.

Seynge it foloweth the, that some must enter there in to: and they, to whom it was first preached, entred not therein for vnbelue-nes sake, therfore appoynteth he a daye agayne after so longe tyme, and sayeth: Todaye (as it is rehearsed by Dauid) Todaye yf ye shal heare his voyce, then harden not youre hertes. For yf Iosua had geuen them rest, the wolde he not a fterwarde haue spoken, of another daye. Therfore remayneth there yet a rest vnto the people of God. For he that is entred in to his rest, ceaseth from his workes, as God doth from his

Let vs make haist therfore to enter in to that rest, lest eny man fall after the same ensample of vnbeleue. For the worde of God is quicke, and mightie in operacion, and sharper than eny two edged swerde, and entrencheth thorow, euen to the denydinge of the soule & the sperte, and of y ioyntes & the mary, and is a iudger of the thoughtes & intētes of the hert, nether is there eny creature invisible in the sighte of him. But all thinges are naked & bare vnto the eyes of hi of whō we speake.

The V. Chapter.

Seynge then that we haue a greate hye priest, eue Iesus the sonne of God, which is entred in to heauen, let vs holde oure profession. For we haue not an hye priest which can not haue compassion on our infirmities, but was in all poyntes cepted, like as we are, but without synne. Let vs therfore go boldly vnto the seate of grace that we maye receaue mercy, and synde grace to helpe in the tyme of nede.

For euery hye priest that is taken fro among men, is ordeyned for men in thinges pertaininge to God, to offer giftes and sacrifices for synne: which can haue compassion on the ignorant, and on them that are out of the waye, for so moch as he himselfe also is compased aboute with infirmyte. Therfore is he bounde to offer for synnes, as well for him selfe as for the people. And nomā taketh the honoure vnto himselfe, but he that is called of God, as was Aaron.

Euen so Christ glorified not himselfe to be made hye priest, but he the sayde vnto him: Thou art my sonne, this daye haue I begotten the. As he sayeth also in another place: Thou art a priest for euer after the order of Melchisedech. And in the dayes of his flesh, he offered vp prayers & supplications, with strong cryenge & teares vnto him the was able to saue him fro death: & was herde also, because he had God in honoure. And though he was Gods sonne, yet lerned he obedience, by those thinges which he suffered. And he beyng made perfecte, became the cause of euerlastinge saluacion, vnto all the the obeye him, and is called of God an hye priest after the order of Melchisedech. Wherof we haue many thinges to saye, which are hard to be vntered, because ye are dull of hearynge. For where as concerninge the tyme ye oughte to be teachers, yet haue ye nede agayne, the we teach you the first preceptes of the worde of God: and are become such as haue nede of mylke, and not stronge meate. For euery one that is fed yet with mylke, is vnexper- te in the worde of righteousnes, for he is but a babe. But stronge meate belongeth vnto them the are perfecte, which thorow custome haue their wyttes exercysed to iudge both good and euell.

The VI. Chapter.

Therfore let vs leaue the doctryne that pertainyng to the begynnyng of a Chysten life, and let vs go vnto perfeccion: and now nomore laye the founda- tion of repentaunce from deed workes, and of faith toward God, of baptyme, of doctry- ne, of layenge on of handes, of resurreccion of the deed, & of eternall iudgment. And so wil we do: yf God permitt. For it is not possible, that they which were once lighted, and haue tasted of the heauely gyfte, and are be- come partakers of the holy goost, & haue tasted of the good worde of God, and of the power of the worlde to come, yf they fall awaye (and concerninge them selues cruci- fy the sonne of God afreshe, and make a mocke off him) that they shulde be renued agayne vnto repentaunce.

The VII. Chapter.

This Melchisedech * kynge of Salem
(which beyng priest of the most hye
God, met Abraham as he returned agayne from the slaughter of the kynge, &
blessed him, vnto whom Abraham also gaue tithes of all the goodes) first is by interpreta-cion kynge of righteousness: after that is he kynge of Salem also (that is to saye, kynge
of peace) without father, without mother,
without kynne, and hath nether begynnyn-
ge of dayes, ner ende of life: but is likened vn-
to the sonne of God, and contynueth a priest
for euer.

But cōsider how greate a man this was,
to whom the Patriarke Abraham gaue tithes of the spoyle, * And verely the children
of Leni, whan they receaue the priesthode,
haue a commandement accordynge to the lawe, to take the tithes of the people, that is to saye, of their brethre, though they also came out of the loynes of Abraham.

But he whose kynred is not counted among ge them, receaued tithes of Abraham, and blessed him that had the promes. Now is it so without all naysayenge, that the lesse receaueth blessing of y better. And here men that dye, receaue tithes. But there he receaneth tithes, of whom it is witnessed that he lyueth. And to saye the trueth, Leni himsel-fe also which receaueth tithes, payed tithes
in Abraham: for he was yet in the loynes of his father Abraham, whan Melchisedech
met him.

If now therfore perfeccion came by the priesthode of the Leuites (for vnder the same (priesthode) the people receaued the lawe)
what neded it then furthumore, that another priest shulde ryse after the order of Melchisedech, and not after the order of Aaron?

* For yf the priesthode be translated, the of necessite must the lawe be translated also.
For he of whom these thinges are spoken, is of another trybe, of the which neuer man ser-
ued at the altare.

For it is euident, * that oure LORDE spion-ge of the trybe of Juda, to the which trybe Moses spake no thinge cōcernynge priestho-de, And it is yet a more euident thinge, yf after the symilitude of Melchisedech there ary-se another priest, which is not made after y lawe of the carnall commaundement, but after the power of the endlesse life (For he testifieth: Thou art a priest for euer after the order of Melchisedech) then the commandement that wente before, is disanulled, because of his weaknesse, and vnprofitablenes.
For the lawe made no thinge perfecte, but
was an introduccion of a better hope, by y which hope we drawe nye vnto God. And for this cause is it a better hope, & it was not promysed without an ooth. Those pres-tes were made without an ooth, but this priest with an ooth, by him that saye vnto
him: The LORDE swaie, and wyl not re-pente: Thou art a priest for euer after the order of Melchisedech. Thus is Iesus become a stablissher of so moch a better Testamēte.

And amonge them many were made pres-
tes, because they were not suffred to endure
by the reason of death. But this man, because that he endureth euer, hath an everlastinge priesthode. Wherfore he is able also euer
to saue them, that come vnto God by him:
& lyueth euer, * to make intercession for vs.

For it became vs to haue soch an hye priest as is holy, innocent, vndefyled, separate from synners, and made hyer then heauen:

For yf that first (Testament) had bene faultles, then shulde no place haue bene soughte for the secōde. For in rebukynge the he sayeth: Beholde, the dayes wyll come (sayeth the LORDE) that I wyl synish vpo the house of Israel, and vpon the house off Juda, a new Testament: not as the Testament which I made with their fathers, in that daye whan I toke them by the handes, to ledethem out of the londe of Egypte: for they contynued not in my Testament, and I regarded them not, sayeth the LORDE.

For this is the Testament, that I wil make w the house of Israell after those dayes, sayeth the LORDE. I wyl geue my lawes in their mynde, and in their hertes wyl I wryte them: And I wil be their God, and they shal be my people: and they shal not teach every mā his neghbour, and every man his brother, sayenge: knowe y LORDE, for they shal knowe me from the leest to the most of them: for I wil be mercifull ouer their vnrightheousnes: And on their synnes and on their iniquities wyl I not thynke enymore. The IX. Chapter.

That first Tabernacle verely had ordinaunces, and seruynge off God and outwarde holynes. For there was made a foretabernacle, wherin was y candilstick, and the table, and the shewe bield: and this is called y Holy. But behynde the seconde wayle was the Tabernacle which is called holiest of all, which had the golden censor, and the Arke of the Testament overlaid rounde aboute with golde, wherin was the golden pot with Manna, and Aarons rodd that floushed, and the tables of the Testament: Aboue therin were the Cherubins off glory ouershadowynge the Mercyseate: Of which thinges it is not now to speake perticularly.

When these thinges were thus ordeyned, the prestes wente allwayes in to the first Tabernacle, and executed y seruyce of God. But in to the seconde wente the hye prest alone once in the yere, not without bloude, which he offred for himselfe and for the ignorance of the people. Wherwith the holy goest this signifyeth, that the waye of holynes was not yet opened, whyle as yet the first Tabernacle was stoundynge. Which was a synilitude for the tyme then present, in the which were offred giftes and sacrifices, and coulde not make perfecte (as partaynyng to the conscience) him, that dyd the Gods seruyce onely with meates and drynkes, and dyuerse washinges, and iustifinges of the flesh, which were ordeyned vnto the tyme of refornacion.

But Christ beyng an hye prest of good thinges to come, came by a greater and a more perfecte Tabernacle, not made with handes, that is to saye, not of this maner buyldynge: nether by the bloude of goates or calves: but by his owne bloude entred he once for all in to the holy place, and hath founde eternall redempcion. For yf the bloude off oxen and off goates, and the ashes off the cowe whan it is sprentled, haloweth the vncleane as touchynge the purificacion of the flesh, how much more shal the bloude of Christ (which thorow the eternall spere offred him selfe without spot vnto God) pouрге oure conscience from deed workes, for to serue the lyvinge God: And for this cause is he y mediator of the new Testament, that thorow death which chaunced for the redempcion of those transgressions (that were vnder

Gal. 3. c

* For a Testamēt taketh auctorite when men are deed: for it is of no value, as longe as he that made it is alyue. For the which cause that first Testamēt also was not ordeyned without bloude. For when all the commaundementes (acordinge to the lawe) were red of Moses vnto all the people, he toke y^e bloude of calves and of goates, with water and purple wolle and ysope, and sprentled the booke and all the people, sayenge: * This is the bloude of the Testament, which God hath appoynted vnto you. And the Tabernacle and all the vessels of the Gods seruyce sprentled he with bloude likerwyse. And almost all thinges are purged with bloude after the lawe: and without sheddyng of bloude is no remysion. It is necessary then, that the similitude of heauenly thinges be purified with soche: but y^e heauenly thinges themselves are purified with better sacrifices, then are those.

For Christ is not entred into the holy places y^e are made with handes (which are but similitudes of true thinges) but into the very heauen, for to appeare now before the face of God for vs: Not to offer himselfe offe

* as the hye priest entreth in to the holy place euery yeare with straunge bloude: for the must he often haue suffred sence the worlde beganne. But now in the ende of the worlde hath he appeared once, to put synne to flight, by the offerynge vp of himselfe. And as it is appoynted vnto me y^e they shal once dye, and then cometh the iudgmet: * Euen so Christ was once offred, to take awaye the synnes of many. And vnto them that loke for him, shal he appeare agayne without synne vnto saluacion.

For the lawe * which hath but the shadowe off good thinges to come, and not the thinges in their awne fashion, can neuer by the sacrifices which they offer yeare by yeare continually, make the commers there vnto perfecte: Els shulde they haue ceassed to haue bene offred, because that the offerers once purged, shulde haue had nomore conscience of synnes. Neuertheles in those sacrifices there is made but a remembraunce of synnes euery yeare. * For it is impossible y^e the bloude of oxen and of goates shulde take awaye synnes.

Wherefore when he cometh in to the worlde, he sayeth: * Sacrifice & offerynge thou woldest not haue, but a body hast thou ordeyned me. Burnt offerynges and synne offerynges hast thou not allowed. Then sayde J: Lo, I come. The begynnyng of the booke it is wrytten of me, that I shulde do y^e wyll of God. Aboue whā he had sayde: Sacrifice and offerynge, and burnt sacrifices & synne offerynges thou woldest not haue, neither hast allowed (which yet are offered after y^e lawe). For with one offerynge hath he made perfecte for euer, the that are sanctified. dyeth without mercy vnder two or thre witnesses: Of how moch soer punysshment (suppose ye) shal he be counted worthy, which treadeth vnder fote the sonne of God, and couereth the bloude of y Testamēt (wherby
he is sanctified) an vnwholy thinge, z both dishonoure to the spire of grace: For we knowe him that hath sayde: Vengeaunce
is myne, I wil recompence, sayeth the LOR-DE. And agayne: The LORDE shal iudge his people. * It is a fearfull thinge to fall in to the handes of the luyng God.

But call ye to remembraunce y dayes y are past, i y which after ye had receaued lighte,
ye endured a greate sighte off aduersities:
partly whyle all mē wōdred z gased at you
for the shame and tribulacion that was done vnto you: and partly whyle ye became co-panyons of them which so passed their tyme. For ye haue suffred with my bōdes, and toke a worth y spoylinge of youre goodes,
and that with gladnes, knowynge in youre
selues, how that ye haue in heauen a better
z an enduringe substance. Cast not awaye therfore y confidence, which hath so greate a rewarde. * For ye haue nede of patience,
that after ye haue done the wil of God, ye might receaue the promes. * For yet ouer a litle whyle, and then he that shal come, wyl
come, and wyl not tary. * But the iust shal
lyue by his faith: And yf he withdraue him-
selfe awaye, my soule shal haue no pleasure in him. As for vs, we are not of those which withdraue them selues to damnacion: but
of them that beleue to the wynnynge of the soule.

The XI. Chapter.

Bith is a sure confidence of thinges
which are hoped for, and a certaynte of thinges which are not sene. By it y Elders were well reported of. Thoro-faith we vnderstonde, that the worlde and all the thinges which are sene, were made of naughte by the worde of God.

* By faith offered Abell vnto God a more plenteous sacrifice: by the which he optay-ned wytnesse, that he was righteous: God
testifyng of his gistes, by the which also
he beyng deede, yet speaketh.

* By faith was Enoch takē awaye, that he shulde not se death: and was not foun-de, because God had taken him awaye. For afore he was taken awaye, he had recorde
that he pleased God. But without faith it is vnpossible to please God. For he that commeth vnto God, must beleue that God is, z

y he is a rewarder of them that seke him.

* By faith Noe honoured God, after y
he was warned of thinges which were not sene, z prepared the Arke, to y sauinge of his housholde: thoro the which Arke he condemned the worlde, and became heyre of the righteousnes, which cometh by faith.

By faith Abraham (whā he was called) obeyed, to go out in to the place, which he shulde afterwarde receaue to inheritaunce:
and he wente out, not knowynge whither
he shulde go.

By faith was he a straunger in the lōde
of promes as in a straunge countre, z dwelt
in tabernacles: and so dyd Isaac z Jacob,
heyres with him of the same promes: for he
loked for a cite which hath a foundacion,
whose buylder and maker is God.

By faith Sara also receaued strength to be with childe, and was deliuered of a childe
whan she was past age, because she iudged
him to be faithfull which had promysed.
And therfore spronge there of one (yee euen
off one which was as good as deede concernyng the body) so many in multitude * as the starrs off the slye, and as the sonde off
the See shore, which is innumerable.

All these dyed acordinge to faith, and re-
ceaued not the promyses, but sawe thē afar
re off, and belened them, and saluted them:
* and cōfessed, that they were straungers z
pilgrims vpo earth. For they that saye soch thinges, declare, that they seke a naturall countre. And doubtles yf they had benemyn-de full off that countre from whence they came out, they had leysure to haue returned agayne. But now they desyre a better, that is to saye, a heauēly. * Wherfore God is not ashamed of thē, euē to be called their God:
for he hath prepared a cite for them.

By faith Abraham offered vp Isaac, whā
he was tempted, and gaue ouer his onely begotten sonne, in whom he had receaued the promyses, of whom it was sayde: In Isaac
shal thy sede be called: For he considered, y
God was able to rayse vp agayne from the deed. Therefore receaued he him for an en-sample.

By faith Isaac blessed Jacob and Esau, concernynge thinges to come.

By faith Jacob, whan he was a dyenge,
blessed both the sonnes off Joseph, z bowed
himselfe toward the toppe of his cepter.

By faith Joseph whan he dyed, remem-
bred y departynge of the childre of Israel, z

Exod. 2. a gaue commaundement concernynge his bones.
Exod. 2. a By faith Moses whā he was borne, was hyd thre monethes of his Elders, because they sawe that he was a proper childe, nether feared they the kynge's commaundement.
Exod. 2. b By faith Moses whan he was greates,
 refused to be called the sonne of Pharaos
 doughter: and chose rather to suffre aduersite with the people of God, then to enioye y pleasures of synne for a season: and esteemed
 the rebuke of Christ greater riches, then the treasure of Egypte: for he had respecte vnto
 the reward.
Exod. 11. f By faith he forsoke Egypte, and feared
 not the fearcenes of the kynge: for he endured, euē as though he had sene him which is inuisible.
Exod. 12. b By faith he helde Easter, and the effu-
 sion of bloude, lest he which slewe the firstbo-
 ne, shulde touche them.
Exod. 14. e By faith they passed thorow the reed
 See as by drye lande: which whā the Egipcians assayed to do, they were drowned.

 they were compassed aboute seven dayes.

 tion. But other were racked, and accepted
 no delyuerance, that they mighte optayne

 be, in tribulacion, in vexacion, which (men)
 the worlde was not worthy of: they wan-
 dred aboute in wyldernes, vpon moun-
 taines, in dennes and caues of the earth.
 And these all thorow faith optayned good
 reporte, and receaued not y promys: because God had prouyded a better thinge for vs,
 that they without vs shulde not be made perfecte.

Wherfore seyng we haue so greates a multitude of witnesss aboute vs
 let vs also laye awaye all y pressech downe, and the synne that hangeth on,
 and let vs runne with pacience vnto the ba-tayll that is set before vs, lokyng vnto Jesus y aucto and synisher of faith: which whan the crosse was layed before him, abode
 the crosse, and despysed the shame, and is set downe on y righte hāde of y trone of God.
 Considre him therfore that endured soch spea-
 kinge agaynst hē of synners, lest ye be weery
 and faynte in youre myndes: for ye haue not yet resisted vnto bloude, stryuyng agaynst
 synne, and haue forgotten the consolacion,
 which speaketh vnto you as vnto childien:
 My sonne, despysē not the chastenynge off
 the LORDE, nether faynte whan thou art rebuked of him: for whō the LORDE loneth,
 him he chasteneth, yee and he scourgeth eue-
 ry sonne that he receaueth.
 If ye endure chastenynge, God offereth himselfe vnto you as vnto sonnes. What sonne is that, whom the father chasteneth
 not? If ye be not vnder correccion (wherof all are partakers) then are ye bastards and not sonnes. Morouer seyng we haue had fathers off oure flesh which corrected vs, &
 we gaue them reuerence, shulde we not then
 moch rather be in subieccion vnto y father of spirituall giftes, y we mighte lyue? And they verely for a few dayes nurtred vs after their awne pleasure: but he lerneth vs
 vnto y which is profitable, that we mighte receaue of his holynes. No maner chastisynge for the present tyme semeth to be ioyous,
 but greuous: neuertheles afterwarde it brin-
 geth the quyet frute of righteousnes, vnto them which are exercysed therby. Life vp therfore the handes which were let downe,
 and the weake knees, and se that ye haue
 straight steppes vnto youre fete, lest eny haltinge turne you out of the waye, yee let it rather be healed.
 Solowe after peace with all men, and ho-lyne, without the which no man shal se the LORDE, and loke well, that no mā be destitute of the grace of God, lest there sprynge vp eny bytter rote, and cause disquyetnes, and therby many be defyled: that there be no
 whoremonger, or vncleane person, as Esau,
 which for one meate sake solde his byrth
 righte. For ye knowe, how that afterwarde whan he wolde haue inhereted the blessynge, he was put by: for he foude no place of

trompe, and y^e voyce of wordes: which they
that herde, wyshed awaye, that the worde shulde not be spoken to them, for they were not able to abyde that which was spoken.
* And yf a beest had touched the mountay-
ne, it must haue bene stoned, or thrust thorow
with a darre. And so terrible was the sighte which appeared, that Moses sayde: I feare and quake. But ye are come to the mount Sion, and to the cite of the lynyng God, to the celestia^l * Jerusalem, and to the multitude of many thousande angels, and vnto

te men, and to Jesus the mediator of the Set that ye despyse not him that speaketh

vnto you: for yf they escaped not which refused him that spake on earth, moche more shal
we not escape, yf we turne awaye from him
that speaketh from heaue: whose voyce shal
ke the earth at that tyme. But now promy-seth he, z sayeth: * Yet once more wyl I shake, not the earth onely, but also heauen. No
doute that same that he sayeth yet once mo-

thinges which are shaken, as off thinges
which are made: that y^e thinges which are not shakē, maye remayne. Wherefore, seynge we receaue the vnmoueable kyngdome, we haue grace, * wherby we maye serue God, z

which are also in the bodye. Let wedlocke be had in pryce in all poyntes, z let y^e chamber be vndefyled. For whorkepers and aduouterers God wil iudge. Let youre conuer-sacion be without couetousnes, * and be content with that ye haue already, for he hath sayde: * I wyl not sayle the nether ferake

what man maye do vnto me. Remembre

haue declared vnto you the worde of God.

aboutē wth dyuerse and straunge lernynge:
for it is a good thinge that the herte be sta-
blyshed with grace, and not with meates,
which haue not profited them, that haue
had their pastyme in them. We haue an altare, wherof they haue no power to eate, which serue in the Tabernacle. For the bodies of those beestes, whose bloude is broughte in to the holy place by y^e hye prest to pour ge synne, are brent without the tētes. Therfore Jesus also, to sanctifye y^e people by his awne bloude, * suffred without y^e gate. Let vs go forth therfore out of the tentes, and suffre rebuke with him: * for here haue we no
cōtynuyng cite, but we seeke one to come.

* Let vs therfore by him offre allwayes
vnto God the sacrifice of prayse: that is to saye, the frute of those lippes which cor. fesse his name. To do good and to distribute forget not, * for wth such sacrifices God is pleased. Obey them that haue the ouersight off
you, and submytte youre selues vnto them:
for they watch for youre soules, even as they
that must geue accōptes therfore, that they
maye do it with ioye, and not with grefe:
for that is an vnprofitable thinge for you.
Praye for vs. We haue confidence, because we haue a good cōscience in all thinges, and desyre to lyue honestly. But I desyre you y^e more abundantly, that ye so do, y^e I maye
be restored vnto you the more quychly.

The God of peace (that broughte agayn

te shepherde of the shepe thorow the blou-de of the everlastinge Testament) make you
perfecte in all good woikes, to do his wyl, workyng in you that which is pleasaunt in his sighte thorow Jesus Chust, to whom be praise for ever and ever Amen. I beseeke you brethren, suffre the worde of exhortacion, for
I haue wyrtten vnto you in few wordes.

brethren of Italy salute you. Grace be with you all, Amen.

The Epistle The Epistle of S. James.

The summe of this epistle.

Chap. I. He exhorteth to reioyse in trouble, to be feruent in prayer with stedfast beleue, to loke for all good thinges from aboue, to forsake all vyce: and thankfully to receaue the worde of God, not onely hearynge it and speakynge of it, but to do thereafter in dede. True religion or deuotion what it is.

Chap. II. He forbyddeth to haue any respecte of personnes, but to regarde the poore as well as the ryche, to be louynge and mercifull, and not to boast of faith where no dedes are: for it is but a deed faith, where good workes followe not.

Chap. III. What good and euell commeth thowrow the tonge. The dutye of such as be lerned. The difference betwixte the wysdome of the gospell and the wysdome of the worlde.

Chap. IIII. Warre and fightinge commeth of voluptuousnesse. The frendshipe of the worlde is enemyte before God. An exhortacion to flye flaunder and the vanite of this life.

Chap. V. He threateneth the wicked ryche, exhorteth vnto pacience, to beware of swearynge, one to knowlege his fautes to another, one to praye for another, and one to labour to brynge another to the truthe.

The first Chapter.

21

James the seruante of God and of the LORDE Jesus Chnst, sendeth gretinge to the xij. trybes which are scattered here & there.

My brethren, counte it excedyngre ioye whē ye fall in to diuers temptacions, for as moche as ye knowe, how y^e the * tryinge of youre faith bringeth pacience: and let pacience haue her parfect worke, y^e yemaye be parfecte and sounde, lackinge nothinge.

* If eny of you lacke wysdome, let him aske of God, which giveth to all men indifferentlye, and casteth no man in the teth: and it shal be geue him. But let him aske in faith and wauer not. For he that douteth, is lyke the waves of y^e See, tost of the wynde, and caried wth violence. Nether let y^e man thinke that he shal receaue enythyng of y^e LORDE. A wauerynge mynded mā ys vnstable in all his waies.

B Let the brother of lowe degre reioyce, in y^e he is exalted: and the rich, in y^e he is made lowe. For enē as the flō of y^e grasse shal be vanyshe awaye. The Sonne rysyth wth heat and the grasse wydereth, & his floure faileth awaye, and the beautie of the passion of it of S. James.

perissheth: even so shal the ryche man perissh with his abundaunce.

Happy is the man that endureth in tēptacion, for when he is tryed, he shal receaue the crowne of life, which the LORDE hath promised to them that loue him.

Let no man saye when he is tempted, y^e he is tempted of God. For God tēpteth not vnto euell, nether tēpteth he eny man. But eny mā is tēpted, drawne awaye, & entysed of his awne cōcupiscēce. The whē lust hath conceaued, she bringeth forth synne, & synne when it is fynished, bringeth forth death.

Ette not my deare brethē. * Every good gifte, & euery parfait gift, is from aboue, and cometh downe from y^e father of light, with whom is no variableness, nether is he chaunged vnto darknes. * Of his awne will begat he vs with the worde of life, that we shulde be the fyrst frutes of his creatures.

* Wherfore deare brethien, let euery man be swifte to heare, slowe to speake, and slowe to wrath. For the wrath of mā worketh not that which is righteous before God.

Wherfore laye aparte all fylthines, all superfluite of malicioufnes, & receaue with meeknes y^e worde y^e is grafted in you, which is able to saue youre soules. * And se that ye be doers of y^e worde & not heares only, deceauinge youre awne selues. * For yf eny heare the worde, and do it not, h^e is like vnto a mā that beholdeth his bodily face in a glasse. For assone as he hath looked on him selfe, he goeth his waye, and forgetteth immediatly what his fashion was. * But who so looketh in y^e perfect lawe of libertie, and continueth therein (yf he be not a forgetfull hearer, but a doer of the worke) the same shalbe happie in his dede.

If eny man amonge you seme deuoute, & refrayne not his tōge: but deceaue his awne herte, this mannes deuotion is in vayne. Pure deuotion and vndefiled before God the father, is this: to visite the frendlesse and widowes in their aduersite, and to kepe him selfe vnspotted of the * worlde.

The II. Chapter.

Brethien, haue not the faich of oure LORDE Jesus Chnst y^e LORDE of glory in * respecte of persons. If ther come in to yo^r cōpany a mā wth a golde rynge and in goodly aparell, & ther come in also a poore man in vyle raymēt, & ye haue a respecte to him y^e weareth the gaye clothinge & saye vnto hī: Sit thou here iⁿ a good place, & saye vnto y^e poore, stonde thou there or sit here vnder my fote stole: are ye not parciall

Mat. 5. a

Harken my beare beloued brethre. Hath not God chosen the poore of this worlde, which are ryche in faith, and heyres of the kyngdom which he promysed to thē that loue him? But ye haue despised the poore. Are not the rich they which oppresse you? they which drawe you before iudges? Do not they speake euill of that good name after which ye be named.

Leuit. 19. c

If ye fulfill the royall lawe according to the scripture which saith: Thou shalt loue thyne neighbour as thy selfe, ye do well. But yf ye regarde one person more then another, ye comit synne, and are rebuked of the lawe as transgressours. Whosoener shal kepe the whole lawe, and yet fayle in one poynt, he is gyltie in all. For he that sayde: Thou shalt not commit adulterie, sayed also: thou shalt not kill. Though thou do none adulterie, yet yf thou kill, thou art a transgressor of the lawe. So speake ye, and so do as they that shalbe iudged by the lawe of libertie. For ther shalbe iudgement merces to him that sheweth no mercy, and mercy reioiseth against iudgment.

What a wayleth it my brethre, though a man saye he hath faith, when he hath no dedes? Can faith saue him? If a brother or a sister be naked or destitute of dayly fode, and one of you saye vnto them: Departe in peace, God sende you warmnes and fode: not withstandinge ye geue them not tho thinges which are nedfull to the body: what helpeth it them? Wilt thou vnderstode o thou wayne man that faith with out dedes is deed: Was not Abraham oure facher iustified thorow workes when he offered Isaac his sonne vpon the aulter? Thou seist how y faith wrought with his dedes, and through y dedes was the faith made perfect: & the scripture was fulfilled which saith: Abraham beleued God and it was reputed vnto him for rightewesnes: and he was called y frende of God. Ye se then how that of dedes a man is iustified, and not of faith only. Likewise also was not Raab the harlot iustified thorow workes, when she receaued the messengers, and sent them out another waye? For as the body, with oute the sprete is deed, euen so faith wth out dedes is deed.

The III. Chapter.

My brethre, be not euery man a master, remembryng how that we shall receaue the more damnacion: for in many thinges we synne all. As a man synne not in worde, the same is a perfecte man, & able to tame all the body. Beholde, we put bittes into the horses mouthes y they shulde obeye vs, and we turne aboute all the body. Beholde also y shypes, which though they be so gret, and are dryuen of scarce windes, yet are they turned about with a very finale helme, whither soener the violence of the gouerner wyll. Euen so the tonge is a lytell member, and bosteth great thinges.

Mat. 23. a

Eccle. 14. a

19. c. 25. b

Beholde how gret a thinge a lytell fyre kindleth, and the tonge is fyre, and a worlde of wyckednes. So is the tonge set amonge oure membres, that it defileth the whole body, and setteth a fyre all that we haue of nature, and is it selfe set a fyre euen of hell.

27

All the natures of beastes, and of byrdes, and of serpentes, and thinges of the see, are meked and tamed of the nature of man. But the tonge can no man tame. It is an vntuely euill full of deadly poyson. Therewith blesse we God the facher, and therewith curse we men which are made: after the similitude of God. Out of one mouth proceedeth blessinge and cursynge. My brethre these thinges oughe not so to be. Doth a fountayne sende forth at one place swete water and bytter also? Can the sygge tree, my Brethren, beare oline beries: ether a vyne beare sygges? So can no fountayne geue bothe salt water and freshe also. If eny man be wyse and endued with learnynge amonge you, let him shewe the workes of his good couersacion in mekenes that is coupled with wysdome.

Gen. 1. d

28

But yf ye haue bitter enuyenge and stryfe in yo^r hertes, reioyce not: nether be lyars agaynst the truethe. This wysdome descendeth not from aboue: but is erthy, and naturall, and dyuelishe. For where enuyenge and stryfe is, there is vnstabilenes and all maner of euell workes. But the wisdom that is fro aboue, is fyrst pure, the peacable, gentle, and easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good frutes, without indyngne, and without simulation: yce, and the frute of rightewesnes is sown in peace, of thē that mayntene peace.

The IIII. Chapter.

From whence cometh warre and fightynge amonge you: come they not here hence: even of yo^r voluptuousnesses that rayne in youre me^mbers. Ye lust, and have not. Ye envie and have indignacion, and can not obtayne. Ye fight & warre, and have not, because ye are not. Ye are & receave not because ye are amysse: enē to cōsume it wth yo^r voluptuousnes. Ye aduouterars, & wemē that breke matrimonie: knowe ye not. how that the frenshippe of ꝑ wo^rlde is ennimate to godwarde. Whosoever wilbe a frende of the wo^rlde, is made ꝑ enemie of god. E^ther do ye thinke ꝑ the scripture sayth in wayne. The . spiret ꝑ dwelleth in you, lusteth even contrary to enie: but geueth more grace.

Submit youre selues to God, and resist the deuill, & he wil flye frō you. Draw nye to God & he wil draw nye to you. Clense y^o bondes ye synners, and pouge youre hertes wth wauerynge mynded. Suffre afflictions: forowe ye and wepe. Let youre laughter be turned to moynge, and youre ioye to heynynes. Cast downe youre selues before the LORDE, and he shal life you vp. Backbite not one another, brethien. He that backbiteth his brother, and he ꝑ iudgeth his brother, backbiteth the lawe, and iudgeth the lawe. But and yf thou iudge the lawe, thou art not an obseruer of the lawe: but a iudge. There is one lawe geuer, which is able to saue and to destroye. What art thou that iudget another man?

* Go to now ye that saye: to daye & to morow let vs go into soche a citie and continue there a yeaer, and bye and sell, and wyne: & yet cā not tell what shal happē to morowe. For what thinge is youre life? It is even a vapoure that apereth for a lytell tyme, and thē vanysheth awaye: For that ye ought to say: yf the LORDE wil, and yf welue, let vs do this or that. But now ye reioyce in youre bostinges. All soche reioysynge is euell. Therefore to him that knoweth how to do good, and doth it not, to him it is synne.

The V. Chapter.

GO to now ye riche men, Wepe, and howle on y^o wretchednes that shal come vpon you. Your riches is corrupte, youre garnētes are motheaten. Your golde & y^o siluer are cancred, & the rust of them shalbe a witnes vnto you, & shal eat your flesh, as it were fyre. Ye haue heaped treasure togedder in y^o last dayes: Beholde, the hye of the labourers which haue reaped downe youre felde (which hye is of you kept backe by fraude) cryeth: and the cryes of thē which haue reaped, are entred in to the eares of the LORDE Sabaoth. Ye ha ue lined in pleasure on the earth and in wante. Ye haue noryshed youre hertes, as in a daye of slaughter. Ye haue cōdemned and haue killed the iust, and he hath not resisted you.

Be pacient therfore brethien, vnto the cōmyng of the LORDE. Beholde, the husbāde man wayteth for the precious frute of ꝑ earth, and hath longe pacience there vpon, vntill he receave the cry and the latter rayne. Be ye also pacient therfore, and settle youre hertes, for the cōmyng of the LORDE draweth nye. Godge not one agaynst another brethien, lest ye be damned. Beholde, the iudge stonderth before the doore. Take (my brethien) the prophetes for an ensample of sufferynge aduersitie, and of longe pacience, which spake in the name of the LORDE. Beholde we counte them happy which endure. Ye haue hearde of ꝑ paciēce of Job, and haue knowen what ende the LORDE made. For the LORDE is very pitifull and mercifull.

But aboue all thinges my brethie, sweare not, nether by heauē, nether by earth, nether by eny other othe. Let youre ye be ye, and y^o naye naye: lest ye faule in to ypocricy. If eny of you be euell vered, let hi praye. If eny of you be mery, let him singe Psalmes. If eny be diseased amonge you, let him call for the elders of the congregacion, & let thē praye ouer him, and anoynte him wth oyle in the name of the LORDE: and y^o prayer of faith shal saue the sicke, and the LORDE shal raise him vp: and yf he haue cōmitted synnes, they shalbe forgiven him.

Knowlege youre fautes one to another: and praye one for another, that ye maye be healed. The prayer of a righteous man auayleth moche, yf it be seruēt. * Elias was a man mortall euen as we are, and he prayed in his prayer, that it might not rayne: & it rayned not on the earth by the space of thre yeaeres and sixe monethes. And he prayed agayne, and yf heauē gaue rayne, & ꝑ earth brought forth her frute.

Brethien, yf eny of you erre frō the trueth and another conuert him, let ꝑ same knowe that he which conuerted the synner from goynge astraye out off his waye, shal saue a soule frō death, and shal hyde the multitude of synnes.

The Reuelacion

of S. Iohn. Ho. ciiij.

I Iohn youre brother and cōpanyon in tribulacion, and in the kyngdome and paciēce which is in Jesu Chryste, was in the yle of Patmos for the worde of God, and for þe witnessynge of Jesu Chryste. I was in the spire on a sonda ye, and herde bechynde me, a gret voyce, as it had bene of a trompe, sayenge: I am Alpha and Omega, the fyrst and þe laste. That thou seist, wite in a boke, and sende it vnto the cōgregacions which are in Asia, vnto Ephesus and vnto Smyrna, and vnto Pergamos, and vnto Thyatira, and vnto Sardis, and vnto Philadelphia, and vnto Laodicia.

C And I turned backe to se the voyce that spake to me. And whē I was turned: I sawe seuē goldē candelstyckes, and in the myddes of the candelstyckes, one like vnto the sonne of man clothed with a lynnin garnēt downe to the ground, and gyrd aboute the brest with a golden gyrdle. His heed, and his heares were whyte, as whyte woll, z as snowe: and his eyes were as a flamme of fyre: and his fete like vnto brasse, as though they brēc in a fornace: and his voyce as the sounde of many waters. And he had in his right honde seuē starres. And out of his mouth went a sharpe two edged swerde. And his face shone euen as the sonne in his strength.

D And when I sawe him, I fell at his fete, euen as deed. And he layde his right honde vpon me, sayenge vnto me: feare not. I am the fyrst, and the laste, and am alyue, and was deed. And beholde, I am alyue forever more: and haue the keyes of hell z of deth. Wryte therfore the thinges which thou hast sene, and the thinges which are, and þe thinges which shalbe fulfyllid here after: z the mistery of the seven starres which thou sawest in my right honde, and the seven golden candelstickes. The seven starres are the angels of the seven congregacions: And the seven candelstyckes which thou sawest, are the seven congregacions.

The II. Chapter.

A Unto the angell of the congregacion of Ephesus wryte: These thinges sayth he that holdeth the seven starres in his right honde, and walketh in the myddes of the seven goldē candelstickes: I knowe thy workes, and thy labour, and thy paciēce, z howe thou cannest not forbear them which are euill: and examinest them which saye they are Apostles, and are not: z hast founde the lyars and hast suffred. And hast paciēce: and for my names sake hast laboured and hast not faynted. Neuerthelesse

I haue somwhat agaynst the, for thou hast leste thy fyrst loue. Remember therfore fro whence thou art fallen, and repent, and do the fyrst workes. Or elles I wyl come vnto the shortly, and wil remoue thy candelstycke out of his place, excepte thou repent. But this thou hast because thou hatest þe dedes of the Nicolaitans, which dedes I also hate. Let him þe hath eares, heare, what y spire saith vnto the congregacions. To him that overcommeth, will I geue to eate of the tree of life, which is in the myddes of þe paradysē of God.

And vnto the angell of the congregacion of Smyrna wryte: These thinges saith he that is fyrst, and the last, which was deed, and is alyue: I knowe thy workes and tribulacion and pouerte, but thou art ryche: And I knowe the blaspheny of them which call them selues Jewes and are not: but are the cōgregacion of Sathan. Feare none of the thinges which thou shalt soffre. Beholde, y deuell shal cast of you in to prison, to tempte you, and ye shal haue tribulacion x. dayes. Be faithfull vnto the deeth, and I wil geue y a crowne of life. Let him that hath eares, heare, what the spire saith to the congregacions: He that overcometh, shal not be hurte of the seconde deeth.

And to the angell of the congregacion in Pergamos wryte: This sayth he which hath the sharpe swerde with two edges: I knowe thy workes, and where thou dwellest, euen where Sathans seat is, and thou kepest my name, z hast not denyed my faith. And in my dayes Antipas was a faithfull witnes of myne, which was slayne amonge you, where Sathan dwelleth. But I haue a fewe thinges agaynst the: that thou hast here, chē that manyntayne the doctryne of Balaam, which taught in Balak, to put occasion of syn before the children of Israell, that they shulde eate of meate dedicat vnto ydoles, and to commyt fornicacion. And all the congregacions shal knowe, & I am he which searcheth the reynes and hertes. And I wil geue vnto every one of you acordinge vnto youre woikes.

Vnto you I saye, and vnto other of the of Thiatyia, as many as haue not this lerynge and which haue not knowen the depnes of Sathan (as they saye) I wil put vpon you none other burthen, but & which ye haue already. Holde fast tyll I come, and whosoever overcometh and kepeth my woikes vnto & ende, to him wil I geue power ouer nacions, and he shal rule them with a rodde of yron: and as the vessels of a pecter, shal he breake them to shewers. The III. Chapter.

Write vnto the angell of the congregacion off Sardis: this sayth he that hath the seven spiretes of God, & the seven starres. I knowe thy woikes, thou hast a name that thou lyuest, and thou art dead. Be awake, and strength the thinges which remaine, that are redy to dye. For I haue not founde thy woikes perfecte before God. Remember therefore how thou hast receaued and hearde, and holde fast, and repent. If thou shalt not watche, I wil come on the as a thefe, and thou shalt not knowe what houre I wil come vpon & Thou hast a fewe names in Sardis, which haue not defyled their garmentes: and they shal walke with me in whyte, for they are worthy. He that overcommeth, shalbe clothed in whyte araye, and I wil not put out his name out of the booke of life, & I wil confesse his name before my father, and before his angels. Let him & hath eares, heare, what the spirete sayth vnto the congregacions.

And write vnto & angell of the congregacion of Philadelphia: this sayth he & is hely and true, which hath the keye of David: which openyth and no man shutteth, and shutteth and no man openeth. I knowe thy woikes. Beholde, I haue set before the an open doore, and no man can shut it, for thou hast a lyttell strength and hast not denyed my name. Beholde, I shal geue some of the congregacion of Sathan, which call themselves Iewes and are not, but do lye: Beholde: I wil make them, that they shal come & worshippe before thy fete: and shal knowe that I haue loved the.

Because thou hast kept the wordes of my patience, therefore wil I kepe the from the houre of temptacion, which will come vpon all the wolde, to tempte them that dwell vpon the earth. Beholde, I come shortly. Holde that which thou hast, that no man take awaye thy crowne. Him that overcometh, wil I make a pyllar in the temple of my God, and he shal goe no more out.

And I will write vpon him, the name of my God, and the name of & cite of my God, newe Jerusalem, which cometh downe out of heauen from my God, and I will write vpon him my newe name. Let him that hath eares, heare, what the spirete sayth vnto the congregacions.

And vnto the angell of the congregacion, which is in Laodicia write: This sayth Amen the faithfull and true witness, the begynnyng of & creatures of God. I knowe thy woikes, & thou art nether colde nor hot: I wolde thou were colde or hote. The III. Chapter.

And I saw this I looked, and beholde, a dore was open in heauē, and the fyrste voyce which I hearde, was as it were of a trompet talkinge with me, which sayde: come vp hydder, and I wil shewe the thinges which must be fulfilled her after. And immediately I was in the spiete: and beholde, a seate was set in heauen, and one sat on the seate. And he that sat, was to loke vpon like vnto a iaspere stone, and a sardyne stone: And there was a rayne bowe aboute the seate, in syght liketo a Smaragde. And aboute the seate were xiiij. seates. And vpon the seates xiiij. elders syttinge clothed in whyte rayment, and had on their heades crownes of golde.

Dan. 7. b
Apo. 10. b

And out of y^e seate proceded lighenynges, and thundrynges, and voyces, and there wer seven lāpes of fyre, burninge before the seate, which are the seven spieces of God. And before the seate there was a see of glasse like vnto crystall, and in the mydes off the seate, and rounde aboute the seate, were foure beestes full of eyes before and behynde. And the first beest was like a lion, the seconde beest like a calfe, and the thyrde beest had a face as a man and the fourth beest was like a flyenge egle. And the foure beestes had ech one off them vii. wynges aboute him, and they were full of eyes with in. And they had no rest daye nether night, sayenge: holy, holy, holy, is the LORDE God almyghty, which was, and is, and is to come.

And when those beestes gaue glory and honour and thankes to him that sat on the seate, which lyueth for ever and ever: y^e xiiij. elders fell downe before him that sat on the trone, and worshipped him y^e lyueth for ever, and cast their crownes before y^e trone, sayenge: thou art worthy LORDE to receaue glory, and hono^r, and power, for thou hast created all thinges, and for thy willes sake they are, and were created.

The V. Chapter.

And I sawe in the right hōde of him, that sat in the trone, a boke wrytten with in and on the backside, sealed with seven seales. And I sawe a strōge angell preachinge with a loude voyce: Who is worthy to open the boke, and to loose the seales ther of? And nomā in heauē ner in earth, nether vnder y^e earth, was able to opē y^e boke, nether to loke thereon. And I wepte moch, because no man was founde worthy to open and to rede the boke, nether to loke thereon.

Azec. 1. b

of S. Ihon. Ho. ciiij.

And one of the elders sayde vnto me: wepe not: Beholde, the lyon which is off the trybe of Iuda, y^e rote of David, hath obtained to opē the boke, and to loose the seven seales therof. And I behelde, and lo, in the myddes of the seate, and of y^e foure beestes, and in the myddes of y^e elders, stode a lambe as though he had bene kylled, which had seven hornes and seven eyes, which are the seven spietes of God, sent in to all the worlde. And he came and toke the boke out of the right hōde of him that sat vpon the seate.

And when he had taken the boke, the foure beestes and the xiiij. elders fell downe before the lambe, hauinge harpes and golden vialles full of odoures (which are y^e prayers of the sayntes) and they songe a newe songe saynge: thou art worthy to take the boke and to opē the seales therof: for thou wast kylled, and hast redeemed vs by thy bloud, out of all kynredes, and tōges, and people, and nations, and hast made vs vnto y^e God, kynges and priestes, and we shal raygne on y^e earth.

And I behelde, and I herd the voyce of many angilles aboute the trone, and aboute the beestes and y^e elders, and I herde thousand thousandes, sayenge with a loude voyce: Worthy is the lambe that was killed, to receaue power, and riches and wysdome, and strength, and honoure and glory, and blessinge. And all creatures, which are in heauē, and on the earth, and vnder the earth, and in the see, and all y^e are in the, herd I sayenge: blessinge, honoure, glory, and power, be vnto him, y^e sitteth vpon the seate, and vnto the lābe for evermore. And the foure beestes saide: Amen. And y^e xiiij. elders fell vpon their faces, and worshipped him that lyueth for evermore.

The VI. Chapter.

And I sawe when the lābe opened one of the seales, and I herde one of the foure beestes saye, as it were the noyse off thonder: come and se. And I sawe, and beholde: there was a whyte horisse, and he y^e sat on him had a bowe, and a crowne was geuen vnto him, and he went forth conqueringe and for to ouercome. And whē he opened the seconde seale, I herde the seconde beeste saye: come and se. And there went out another horisse that was reed, and power was geuen to him that sat there on, to take peace from the earth, and that they shulde kylle one another. And there was geue vnto him a gret swerde.

And when he opened the thyrde seale, I herde the thyrde beeste saye: come and se. And I behelde, and lo, a blacke horisse: and he that sat on him, had a payre of balances in his honde. And I herde a voyce in the myddes of the foure bestes saye: a measure of wheate for a peny, and thre measures of barley for a peny: and oyle and wyne se thou hurte not.

And when he opened the fourth seale, I herde the voyce of the fourth beste saye: come and se. And I lokyd, and beholde a pale horsse, and his name that sat on him was death, and hell folowed after him, and power was geuen vnto them ouer the fourth parte of the earth, to kyll with sword, and with hunger, and with death, of the vermen of the earth.

And when he opened the fyfthe seale, I sawe vnder the altare, the soules of them that were kyllid for the worde of God, and for y^e testimony which they had, and they cryed with a lowde voyce sayyng: How longe taryest thou. LORDE holy and true, to iudge and to avenge oure bloude on them that dwell on the earth. And longe whyte garmentes were geuen vnto euery one of them. And it was sayde vnto them, that they shulde reste for a lytle season, vntyll the number of their felowes, and bretheren, and of them that shulde be kyllid as they were, were fulfilled.

And I behelde when he opened the sixte seale, and loo, there was a grette earthquake, and y^e sonne was as blacke as sacke clothe made of heare. And the mone waxed euē as bloude: and the starres of heauen fell vnto the earth, euē as a syggetree casteth from her her sygges, when she is shaken off a mighty wynde. And heauen wanysshed awaye, as a scroll when it is rolled togedder. And all mountayns and yles, were moued out of their places. And the kynges of y^e earth, and the grette men, and the rich men, and the chiefe captaynes, and the myghty men, and euery free man, hyd them selues in denes, and in rockes of y^e hylles, and sayde to the hylles, and rockes: fall on vs, and hyde vs from the presence of him that sitteth on the seate, and from the wrath of the lambe, for the grete daye of his wrath is come. And who can endure it?

The VII. Chapter.

And after that sawe I foure angels scode on y^e foure corners of the earth, holdyng y^e foure wyndes of y^e earth, y^e y^e wyndes shulde not blowe on y^e earth, ne ther on y^e see, nether on any tree. And I sawe another angel ascende fro the ryng of the sonne: which had the seale of y^e lyuynge God and he cryed with a lowde voyce to the foure angelles (to whom power was geuen to

And I herde the nombre of them which were sealed, and there were sealed an c. and xliij. M. of all the trybes of the children of Israell. Of y^e trybe of Iuda were sealed xij. M. Of the trybe of Ruben were sealed xij. M. Of the trybe of Gad were sealed xij. M. Of the trybe of Asser were sealed xij. M. Of the trybe of Neptalym were sealed xij. M. Of the trybe of Zabulon were sealed xij. M. Of the trybe of Joseph were sealed xij. M. Of the trybe of Benjamin were sealed xij. thousande.

After this I behelde, and lo, a gret multitude (which no man coulde nombre) of all nacions and people, and tonges, stode before the seate, and before the lambe, clothed wth longe whyte garmentes, and palmes in their hondes, and cryed with a lowde voyce, sayyng: saluacion be ascribed to him that sitteth vpon the seate of oure God, and vnto the lambe. And all the angels stode in the compase of the seate, and of the elders and of the foure bestes, and fell before y^e seate on their faces, and worshipped God, sayenge, amen: Blessyng and glory, wysdome and thankes, and honour, and power and might, be vnto oure God for euermore Amen.

And one of the elders answered, sayenge vnto me: what are these which are arrayed in longe whyte garmentes, and whence came they? And I sayde vnto him: LORDE thou wotest. And he sayde vnto me: these are they which came out of gret tribulacion, and made their garmentes large, and made the whyte in the bloude of the lambe: therefore are they in the presence of the seate of God and serue him daye and night in his temple, and he that sitteth in the seate, wyll dwell amonge them. They shal hunger no more, nether thurst, nether shal the sonne lyght on them, nether any heate: For the labe which is in the myddes of the seate, shal fede them, and shal leade them vnto fountaynes of lyuynge water, and God shal wype awaye all teares from their eyes.

sawe seuen angels standing before God, and to them were geuen seuen trumpettes. And another angell cam and stode before the aultre, hauynge a golden senser, and moch of odoures was geuen vnto him, that he shulde offre of the prayers of all sayntes vpon the golden aultre, which was before the seate. And the smoke of the odoures which came of the prayers of all sayntes, ascended vppe before God out of the angelles honde. And the angell toke the senser, and fylled it with fyre of the aultre, and caste it into the earth, and voyces were made, and thōdrynges and lighnynges, and earthquake.

23 And the seuen angels which had the seuen trumpettes, prepared them selues to blowe. The first angel blewe, and there was made hayle and fyre, which were myngled with bloud, & they were cast in to the earth: and the thyrde parte of trees was burnt, and all grene grasse was brient. And the seconde angell blewe: and as it were a greare mountayne burnynge with fyre was cast in to the see, and the thyrde parte of the see turned to bloud, and the thyrde parte of the creatures which had life, dyed, and the thyrde part of shippes were destroyed.

And the thyrde angell blewe, and there fell a greate starre from heauen, burnynge as it were a lampe, and it fell in to the thyrde parte of the ryuers, and in to fountaynes of waters, and the name of the starre is called Wounnood. And the thyrde parte of the waters was turned to Wounnood. And many men dyed of the waters, because they were made bytter. And the fourth angel blew, and the thyrde parte of y Sonne was smytten, and y thyrde parte of the mone, & the thyrde parte of starres: so that the thyrde parte of them was darkened. And the daye was smytte, that the thyrde parte of it shulde not shyne, and lyke wyse the nyght. And I behelde, and herde an angel flyenge thorowe themyddes of heaue, and sayenge with a lowde voyce: Wo, wo, wo to the inhabitants of the earth, because of the voyces to come of the trompe of the thre angels which were yet to blowe.

The IX. Chapter.

2 24 And the fyfte angell blewe, & I sawe a starre fall from heaue vnto y earth. And to him was geue the keye of the bottomlesse pytt. And he opened the bottomlesse pytt, and there arose the smoke of a greate founace. And the Sonne, and y ayer were darkened by the reason of the smoke of the pytt. And there came out of the smoke locustes vpon the earth: and vnto the was geuen power as the scorpions of the earth haue power. And it was sayde vnto them, that they shulde not hurt the grasse of the earth: nether eny grene thinge: nether eny tre: but onely those men which haue not the seale in their forhedes, and to them was commaunded, that they shulde not kyll the, but that they shulde be vexed fyue monethes, and their payne was as the payne that cometh of a scorpion, when he hath stonge a man. And in those dayes shal me seke death, and shal not fynde it: and shal desyre to dye, and death shal flye from them.

And the similitude of the locustes was lyke vnto horses prepared vnto battayll, and on their heades were as it were crownes, lyke vnto golde: and their faces were as it had bene the faces of men. And they had heere as the heere of remen. And their terhe were as the terhe of lyons. And they had habbergions, as it were habbergions of yron. And the sounde of their wynges, was as y sounde of charettes when many horses runne together to battayle. And they had tayles lyke vnto scorpions, and there were stynges in their tayles. And their power was to hurt me fyue monethes. And they had a kinge ouer them, which is the angel of the bottomlesse pytt, whose name in the hebrew tongue, is Abaddon: but in the greke tongue, Apollyon. One wo is past, and beholde two woes come yet after this.

And the sixte angel blewe, and I herde a voyce from the foure corners of the golden aultre which is before God, sayenge to the sixte angel, which had the trompe: Loose the foure angels, which are bounde in the greater ryuer Eufrates. And y foure angels were loosed, which were prepared for an houre, for a daye, for a moneth, and for a yere, for to slee the thyrde parte of men. And the nombre of horsmen of warre, were twenty tymes xlii. And I herde y nombre of them. And thus I sawe the horses in a vision, and them that sat on the hauynge fyry habbergions of a yalowe and brynistony coloure, and the heades of y horses were as the heades of lyons. And out of their mouthes went forth fyre, and smoke, and brymstone. And of these thre was the thirde parte of men kyllled: that is to saye, of fyre, smoke, and brymstone, which proceeded out of the mouthes of the: For their power was in their mouthes

Also they repented not of their murther, and of their witchcraft, nether of their whordome, nether of their thefte.

The X. Chapter.

And I sawe another mightye angell come doune fro heauen, clothed with a cloude, and the rayne bore vpon his heed. And his face as it were & Sonne, and his fete as it were pyllars of fyre: and he had in his honde a lytell boke opyn: and he put his right fote vpon & see, and his left fote on & earth. And cryed with a lowde voyce, as when a lyon roareth. And when he had cryed, seuen thondres spake their voyces. And when the seuen thondres had spokē their voyces, I was aboute to wryte. And I herde a voyce from heauen sayenge vnto me: seale vp those thinges which the seuen thondres spake, and wryte them not.

Dan. 12. b

And the angel which I sawe stonde vpon the see, and vpon the earth, lifte vpe his honde to heauen, and swore by him that liueth for euermore, which created heauen, and the thinges that therein are, and & see, and the thinges which are therein: that there shalbe no more tyme: but in the dayes of the voyce of the seuenth angel, when he shal begynne to blowe, the mystery of God shalbe fynished, as he preached by his seruantes the prophetes.

And the voyce which I herde from heauen, spake vnto me agayne, and sayde: go and take the lytle boke which is open in the honde of the angel, which stondech vpon the see, and vpon the earth. And I went vnto the angel, and sayde vnto him: geue me the lytle boke. And he sayde vnto me: Take it, and eate it vp, and it shal make thy belly bytter, but it shalbe in thy mouth as swete as hony. And I toke the lytle boke out of his honde, and ate it vp, and it was in my mouth as swete as hony, and as sone as I had eaten it, my belly was bytter. And he sayde vnto me: thou muste prophesy agayne vnto the people, and to the theythen, and tonges, and to many kynges.

shal reigne for euermore. And the foure and twentye Elders, which sat before God on their seatts, fell vpon their faces, and worshipped God sayenge: we geue the thankes LORDE God allmyghte: which art and wast, and art to come, for thou hast receaued thy greate might, and hast raygned. And the heythen were angry, & thy wrath is come, and the tyme of the deed that they shulde be indged, and that thou shuldest geue rewarde vnto thy seruantes the prophetes and sayntes, and to the that feare thy name, small & greate: and shuldest destroye them which destroye the earth. And the temple of God was opened in heauen, and there was sene in his temple the arcke of his testament: and there folowed lighnynges, and voyces, and thondrynges and earth quake, and a greate hayle.

And there appeared a greate token in heauen. A woman clothed with the Sonne, and the mone vnder her fete, and vpon her heed a crowne of twelue starres. And she was with childe, and cryed trauailling in byrth, and payned redy to be deliuered. And there appeared another token in heauen, and beholde a greate reed dragon, hauinge seven heades, and ten hornes and seue crownes vpo his heades: and his tayle dme the thyrde parte of the starres, and cast them to the earth.

And the dragon stode before the womā, which was ready to be deliuered: for to deuoure her childe as sone as it were borne. And she brought forth a man childe, which shulde rule all nacions with a rod of yron. And her sonne was taken vp vnto God, and to his seate. * And the woman fled in to wyldernes, where she had a place prepared off God, that they shulde fede her there a M.ij.C. and lx. dayes.

And there was a greate batayll in heauē Michael and his angels foughte with the dragon, and the dragon fought and his angels, and preuailed not, nether was their place founde any more in heauen. And the greate dragon that olde serpent (called the deuill and Sathanas) was cast out. Which disceaue all the worlde. And he was cast in to the earth, and his angelles were cast out with him also.

And I harde a lowde voyce, which sayde in heauen: Now is saluaciōn, and strenght and the kyngdome become oure Gods, and y power his Chustes: for he is cast downe, which accused them before God daye and night. And they ouercame him by the blou-

de of the lambe, and by the worde of their testimony, and they loued not their lyues vn to the deeth. Therfore reioyce ye heauens, and ye that dwell in them. Wo to the inhabitors of the earth, and of the see: for the deuill is come downe vnto you, which hath greate wrath, because he knoweth, that he hath but a short tyme.

And when the dragon sawe, that he was cast vnto the earth, he persecuted the woman, which brought forth the man childe. And to the woman were geue two wynges of a greate egle: that she might flye in to the wyldernes, in to her place, where she is noryshed for a tyme, two tymes, and halffe a tyme, from the presence of the serpēt. And the dragon cast out of his mouth water after the womā, as it had bene a ryuer, that he might cause her to be caught of y floud. And the earth holpe the woman, and the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed vp the ryuer which the dragon cast out of his mouth. And the dragon was wroth with the womā: and went and made warre with the remnant of hyr fede, which kepe the commaundementes of God, and haue the testimony of Jesus Chust. And I stode on the see sonde.

The XIII. Chapter.

And I sawe a beest rise out of the see, hauinge seven heades, and x. hornes, and vpon his hornes x. crownes, and vpo his heed, the names of blasphemy. And the beest which I sawe was lyke a catt of the mountayne, and his fete were as the fete of a bear, and his mouth as the mouthe of a lyon. And y dragō gaue him his power and his seate, and greate auctonite: and I sawe one of his heades as it were wounded to death, and his dedly wounde was healed. And all the wolde wōdied at the beest, and they worshipped the dragon which gaue power vnto the beest, and they worshipped the beest, sayenge: who is like vnto the beest: who is able to warre with him?

And there was geuen vnto him a mouth to speake greate thinges & blasphemies, and power was geuen vnto him, to do xliij. monethes. And he opened his mouth vnto blasphemy agaynst God, to blaspheme his name, and his tabernacle and them that dwell in heauen. * And it was geuen vnto him to make warre with the sayntes, and to ouercome them. And power was geuen him ouer all kynred, tonge, and nacion: * and all that

Dwell upon the earth worshippe him: whose names are not wrytten in the booke of life of the lambe, which was kylled from the begynnyng of the worlde. If eny man haue an eare, let him heare. He that leadech in to captiuite, shal go in to captiuite: he that killeth with a swearde, must be killed with a swearde. Here is the pacience, and the faith of the sayntes.

And I behelde another beest commynge vp out of the earth, and he had two hornes like a lambe, and he spake as dyd the dragō. And he dyd all that the first beest coulde do in his presence, and he caused the earth, and them which dwell therein, to worshippe the first beest, whose deadly wounde was healed. And he dyd greates wonders, so that he made fyre come downe from heauen in the sight of men. And deceaued them that dwelt on the earth by the meanes of those signes which he had power to do in the sight of the beest, sayenge to them that dwelt on the earth: that they shulde make an ymage vnto the beest, which had the wounde of a swearde and dyd liue.

And he had power to geue a spiete vnto the ymage of the beest, and that the ymage of the beest shulde speake, and shulde cause, that as many as wolde not worshippe the ymage of the beest, shulde be kylled. And he made all bothe smale and greates, ryche and poore, fre and bond, to receaue a marke in their right hondes, or in their foreheades. And that no man might by or sell, saue he had the marke, or the name of the beest, ether the nombre of his name. Here is wisdom. Let him that hath wyt, count the nombre of the beest. For it is the nombre of a man, and his nombre is sixe hondred, thre score and sixe.

The XIII. Chapter.

And I looked, and lo, a lambe stode on the moūt Syon, and with him C. and xliij. thousande hauinge his fathers name wrytten in their foreheades. And I herde a voyce from heauen, as the sounde of many waters, and as the voyce of a greates thondre. And the voyce that I herde, was as the harpers that playe vpon their harpers. And they songe as it were a newe songe, before the seate, and before the foure beestes, and the elders, and no man coulde learne the songe, but the hondred and xliij. M. which were redemed from the earth. These are they, which were not defyled with women, for they are virgynes. These folowe the lambe whither soeuer he goeth. These were redemed from men, beyng the first frutes vnto God and to the lambe, and in their mouthes was founde no gyle. For they are without spot before the throne of God.

And I sawe an angell flye in the myddes of heauen hauinge an euerslastinge Gospell, to preache vnto them that sit and dwell on the earth, and to all nacions, kinredde, and toges and people, sayenge with a lowde voyce: Feare God, and geue honour to him, for the houre of his iudgement is come: and worshippe him: that made heauen and earth, and the see, and the fountaynes off water. And there folowed another angell, sayenge: She is fallen, she is fallen: euē Babylon that greates cite, for she made all nacions drynke off the wyne off hyr whoredome.

And the thyrde angel folowed the, sayenge with a lowde voyce: If eny man worshippe the beest and his ymage, and receaue his marke in his forehead, or on his honde, the same shall drynke of the wyne of the wrath of God, which is powred in the cuppe of his wrath. And he shalbe panysshed in fyre and brymstone, before the holy Angels, and before the lambe.

And the smoke of their torment ascendeth vp evermore. And they haue no rest daye ner nyght, which worshippe the beest and his ymage, and whosoever receaueth the prync of his name. Here is the pacience of sayntes. Here are they that kepe the commaundementes and the faith off Iesū.

And I herde a voyce from heauen, sayenge vnto me: wryte: Blessed are they which hereafter dye in the LORDE. See the spiete sayeth, that they rest from their laboures, for their workes folowe them. And I looked and behelde, a whyte cloude, and vpon it stode one syttinge like vnto the sonne of man, hauinge on his heed a golden crowne, and in his hōde a sharpe sylle. And another angell came out of the temple, cryenge with a lowde voyce to him that sat on the cloude: Thruste in thy sylle and reepe: for the tyme is come to reepe, for the corne of the earth is ripe. And he that sat on the cloude thrust in his sylle on the earth, and the earth was reaped.

And another angell came out of the temple, which is in heauen, hauinge also a sharpe sylle. And another angell came out from the aultre, which had power ouer fyre, and cryed with a loude crye vnto hym that had the sharpe syckle, and sayde: Thruste in thy sharpe syckle, and gather the clusters of y^e earth, for hit grapes are ripe. And the angell thrust in his syckle on the erthe, and cutt downe the grapes of the vynyarde of the earth, and cast them in to the greate wynefat of y^e wrath of God: & the wynefat was trodden without the cite, and bloude came out of the fat, euen vnto the horssse brydles by the space of a thousande and sixe hundredeth furlonges.

The XV. Chapter.

And I sawe another signe in heuen grett & mervellous. vii. angelis havinge the seven laste plagis, for in the is fulfilled the wrath of god. And I sawe as it were a glassye see, mingled with fyre, and them that had gotten victory of the beest, and of his ymage, and of his marke, and of the nombre of his name, stonde on the glassye see, havinge y^e harpes of God: and they songe the songe of Moses the servaunt of God, and the songe of the lambe, saynge: Greate and marvellous are thy workes LORD God almyghty, iust and true are thy wayes, thou kynge of sayntes. Who shal not feare the LORD and glorifie thy name? For thou only art holy, for all gentiles shall come and worshippe before the, for thy iudgmentes are made manifest.

Iere. 10. 2

And after that, I looked, and beholde, the temple of the Tabernacle of testimony was open in heauen, and the seven angelles came out of the temple, which had the seven plagis, clothed in pure and bryght lynnē, and havinge their brestes gyded with golden gerdelles. And one of the foure beestes gave vnto the seven angelles seven golden vialles, full of the wrath of God which liueth for evermore. And the temple was full of smoke for the glory off God, and for his power, and no man was able to entre in to the temple, tyll the seven plagis of the seven angels were fulfilled.

Eze. 44. 2

The XVI. Chapter.

And I herde a greate voyce out of the temple, sayenge to the seven angels: go youre wayes, poure out youre vialles of wrath vpon the earth. And the fyist went, and poured out his viall vpon the earth, and there fell a noysom & a sore botch vpon the men which had the marke of the beest, and vpon them that worshipped his ymage. And the seconde angel shed out his viall vpon the see, and it turned as it were in to the bloud of a deed man: and every lyvinge thinge dyed in the see. And the thyrde angel shed out his viall vpon the ryuers and fountaynes of waters, and they turned to bloude. And I herde an angel saye: LORD which art and wast, thou art righteous and holy, because thou hast geue soche iudgmentes, for they shed the bloude of sayntes, and prophetes, and therfore hast thou geuen them bloude to drynke: for they are worthy. And I herde another angell out of the altar, saye: euen so LORD God almighty, true and righteous are thy iudgmentes.

And the fourth angell poured out his viall on the Sonne, and power was geuen vnto him to vex men with heate of fyre. And the men raged in gret heate, and spake euell of the name of God, which had power ouer those plagis, and they repented not, to geue him glory. And the fyste angell poured out his viall vpon the seate of the beest, and his kyngdome waxed derke, and they gnerue their tonges for sorowe, and blasphemed the God of heauē for sorowe, and payne of their sores, and repented not of their dedes.

And the sixte angell poured out his viall vpon the gret ryuer Euphrates, and the water dried vp, that the waye of the kynges of the Easte shulde be prepared. And I sawe thre vncleane spretes like frogges come out of the mouth of the dragon, and out off the mouth off the beest, and out off the mouth of the false prophet. For they are the spretes of deuels workynge myracles, to go out vnto the kynges of the earth and of the whole worlde, to gaddre them to the battayle of that gret daye of God almighty. Beholde, I come as a thefe. Happy is he that watcheth and kepeth his garmentes, lest he be founde naked, and men se his filchynes. And he gaddered them togedder in to a place, called in the hebreue tonge, Armagedon.

And the seventh angell poured out his viall in to the ayre. And there came a greate voyce out of heauen from the seate, sayenge: It is done. was denyed in to thre parties. And the cities of nacions fell. And greate Babilon came in remembraunce before God, to geue vnto hyr the cuppe of wyne of the fearenes of his wrath. And every yle fled away, and the mountaynes were not founde. And there fell a greate hayle, as it had bene talentes, out of heauē vpon the men, and the men blasphemed God, because of the plague of the hayle, for it was greate, and the plague of it sore.

The XVII. Chapter.

And there cam one of the seuen angels, which had the seuen vialles, and talked with me, sayenge vnto me: Come, I wil shewe the the iudgment of the greate whore, that sitteth vpon many waters, with whom the kynges of the earth haue commytted whordome, and the inhabitants of the earth are drunken with the wyne of her fornicacion. And he caryed me awaye into the wildernes in y^e sprete. And I sawe a woman syt vpon a rose colored beest, full of names of blasphemie, which had seuen heades & ten homes. And y^e woman was arrayed in purple and rose color, and decked with golde, precious stone, and pearles, and had a cupp of golde in her honde, full of abominacions, and fylthines of her whordome. And in her forhed was a name wyrttē, a mystery: greate Babilon the mother of whordome, and abominaciōs of the earth. And I sawe the wyse drunkē with the bloude of sayntes, and with the blond of the witnesses of Iesu. And when I sawe her, I wondred with greate mervayle.

And the angell sayde vnto me: wherfore mervayllest thou? I wil shewe the the mystery of the woman, and of the beest that beerich her, which hath seuen heades, and ten homes. The beest that thou seest, was, and is not, and shall ascende out of the bottomlesse pytt, and shal go in to perdition, and they that dwell on the earth shal wondre (whose names are not wyrtten in the booke of life from the begynnyng of the worlde) when they beholde the beest that was, and is not. And here is a mynde, that hath wisdom.

The seuen heades are seuen mountanes, on which the woman sitteth: they are also seuen kynges. Syue are fallen, and one is, and the other is not yet come. When he cometh, he muste continue a space. And the beest that was, and is not, is euē the eyght, and is of the seuen, and shal go in to destruction. And y^e ten homes which thou sawest, are ten kynges, which haue not yet receaved the kyngdome, but shal receave power as kynges at one houre with y^e beest. These haue one mynde, and shal geue their power and strength vnto y^e beeste. These shal fyght with the lambe, and the lābe shal ouercome them: For he is • L O R D E of all lordes, and Kinge of all kynges: and they that are on his syde, are called, and chosen and faithfull. And the ten homes, which thou sawest vpon the beest, are they that shal hate the whore, and shal make her desolate, and naked, and shall eat hir fleshe, and burne her with fyre. For God hath put in their hertes, to fulfill his wyll, and to do with one consent, for to geue hir kyngdome vnto the beest, vntill the wordes of God be fulfilled. And the womā which thou sawest, is that greate cite, which raigneth ouer the kynges of the earth. Esa. 1. b

The XVIII. Chapter.

After that I sawe another angel come downe fro heauē, havinge greate power, and y^e earth was lyghtened with his bryghtnes. And he cryed mightely with a stronge voyce, sayenge: She is fallen, she is fallen, even greate Babilon, and is become the habitation of devils, and y^e holde of all foule spretes, and a cage of all uncleane and hatefull bydes: for all nacions haue drunken of the wyne of the wrath of her whordome. And poure in dubble to her in the same cuppe, which she fylled vnto you. And as moche as she glorified her selfe and lyued wantonly, so moch poure ye in for her of punysshment, and sorowe, for she sayeth in her herte: I syt beinge a quene, and am no wyddowe, and shall se no sorowe. and sorowe, and hunger, and she shalbe brēt with fyre: for stronge is the LORDE God which shal iudge her.

C And the kynges of the earth shal bewepe her and wayle ouer her, which haue committed fornicacion and lyued wantonly with her, when they shal se the smoke of her burnynge, and shal stonde a farre off for feare of her punysshment, sayenge: Alas, Alas, that greate cite Babylon, that mighty cite: for at one houre is thy iudgment come. And the marchauntes off the earth shal wepe and wayle in them selues, because no man will bye their ware any more, the ware of golde, and syluer, and of precious stones, off pearle, and sylke, and purple, and scarlet, and all thyngen wode, and all manner vessels of yuery, and all manner vessels of most precious wode, and of brasse, and of yron, and synomon, and odours, and oymmentes, and frankynsence, and wyne, and oyle, and fyne fleure, and wheate, and catell, and shepe, and hoises, and charrettes, and bodies and soules of men.

D And the apples that thy soule lusted after, are departed from the. And all thinges which were deyncie, and had in pryce, are departed from the, and thou shalt fynde them no more. The marchauntes of these thinges which were wexed ryche by her, shal stonde a farre off for feare of the punysshment of her, wepyng and waylinge, and sayenge: alas alas, that greate cite, that was clothed in sylke, and purple, and scarlet, and decked with golde, and precious stone, and pearles: for at one houre so greate ryches is come to naught.

And every shippe gouerner, and all they that occupie shippes, and shippmen which worke in the see, stode a farre off, and cryed, when they sawe the smoke of her burnynge, and sayde: what cite is like vnto this greate cite? And they cast dust on their heades, and cryed wepyng, and waylinge, and sayde: Alas, Alas the greate cite, wherein were made ryche all that had shippes in the see, by the reason of her wares: for at one houre is she made desolate.

E Reioyce ouer her thou heauē, and ye holy Apostles, and prophetes: for God hath geuen youre iudgment on her. And a mighty angell toke vp a greate stone lyke a mylstone, and cast it in to the see, sayenge: with suche violence shal that greate cite Babylon be cast, and shalbe founde nomore. And the voyce of harpers, and musicions, and of pypers, and trempetters, shalbe herde no more in the: and no crafter man (of what soeuer craft he be) shalbe founde any more in the: and the sounde of a myll shalbe herde no more in the: and the voyce of the brydegrome and of the bryde, shalbe herde nomore in the for thy marchauntes were prynces of the earth. And with thyne inchaſtment were deceaued all nacions: and in her was founde the bloude of the prophetes, and of the sayntes, and of all that were slayne vpon the earth.

The XIX. Chapter.

After that, I herde the voyce of much people in heauen, sayenge: Alleluia. Saluacion and glory and honour, and power be ascribed to the LORDE of God, for true and righteous are his iudgements, because he hath iudged the greata whore (which did corrupt y earth with her fornicacion) and hath auenged the bloud of his seruantes of her hond. And agayne they sayde: Alleluia. And smoke rose vp for ever more. And y xiiij. elders, and the foure bestes fell downe, and worshipped God that sat on the seate, sayenge: Amen: Alleluia. And a voice came out of the seate, sayenge: prayse of LORDE God all ye that are his seruantes, and yet hat feare him both small and greate.

And to her was graunted, that she shulde be arayed with pure and goodly sylke. (As for the sylke, it is the rightewesnes of sayntes.) And he sayde vnto me: Blessed are they which are called vnto the Lambes supper. And he sayde vnto me: these are the true sayenges of God. And I fell at his fete, to worshippe him. And he sayde vnto me: Se thou do it not. For I am thy felowe seruaut, and one of thy brethren, and of them that haue the testimony of Iesus. Worshippe God. For the testimony of Iesus is y spierte of prophesy. And I sawe heauē open, and beholde, a whyte horſſe and he ſat vpon him, was called faithfull and true, and in rightewesnes dyd iudge and make battayle. vesture dypt in bloude, and his name is called, y worde of God. And y warriers which were in heauen, folowed him vpon whyte horsses, clothed with whyte and pure sylke and out of his mouthe wente a sharpe swerde, that with it he shulde synye the heu- then. And he shall rule them with a rodde of yron, and he trode the wynefatte of the fearenesse and wrath of allmightye God. And hath on his vesture and on his thyghe a name wrytten: Kyng of all kynges, and LORDE of all lordes.

And I sawe an angell stonde in the Sonne, and he cryed with a lowde voyce, sayen- ge to all the fowles that flye by the myddes vnder the heauen: Come and gaddre youre selues togedder vnto the supper of the gret God, that ye maye eate the fleshe of kynges, and of hys captaynes, and the fleshe of mighty men, and the fleshe of horsses, and of the that syt on them, and the fleshe of all free men and bond men, both of small and greate. And I sawe the beeste and the kynges of y earth, and their warriers gad- dred togedder, to make battayle agaynst him that sat vpon the horss, and agaynst his swordiers.

And the beeste was taken, and with him that false prophet that wrought myracles before him, with which he disceined them that receaued the beestes marke, and then that worshipped his ymage. These both were cast in to a ponde of fyre burnynge w brymstone: and the remnaunte were slayne with the swerde of him that sat vpon the horss, which swerde proceded out of his mouth, and all the foules were filled with their fleshe.

The XX. Chapter.

And I sawe an angell come downe from heauen, hauinge the keye of the bottomlesse pyt, and a gret chayne in his honde. And he toke the dragon that olde serpent (which is the deuell and Sata- nas) and he bounde him a thousand yeaes: and cast him in to the bottomlesse pyt, and he bounde him, and set a seale on him, that he shuld disceane the people nomoare, tyll the thousand yeaes were fulfilled. And af- ter that muste he be lowsed for a littell sea- son.

And I sawe seates, and they sat vpon them, and the iudgement was geuen vnto them: and I sawe the soules of them that of S. Ihon.

were beheaded for the witnes of Iesu, and for the worde of God: which had not wor- shipped the beest, nether his ymage, nether had taken his marke vpon their forehea- des, or on their hondes: and they lyled, and raygned with Christ a thousand yeaes: but the other of the deed men lyled not agay- ne, vntill the thousand yeaes were synished. This is that fyist resurreccion. Blessed and holy is he that hath parte in the fyist resur- reccion. On soch hath the seconde deeth no power, but they shalbe the prestes of God and of Christ, and shall raygne with him a thousand yeaes.

And when the thousand yeaes are expy- red, Sathan shalbe lowsed out of his prison, and shal go out to deceaue the people which are in the foure quarters of the earth. Gog and Magog, to gadder them togedder to batayle, whose nombie is as the sonde off the see: and they went vp on the playne of the earth, and compased the tentes of the sayntes aboute, and the beloued cite. And fyre cam downe from God out of heauen, and deuoured them: and the deuell that disceined them, was cast in to a lake of fyre and brymstone, where the beest and the false prophet were, and shalbe tormented daye and night for euermore.

And I sawe a gret whyte seate, and him that sat on it, from whose face fled awaye both the earth and heauen, and their place was nomore founde. And I sawe the deed, both gret and small stonde before God: And the boke were opened, and another boke was opened, which is (the boke) of life, and the deed were iudged of the thinges which were wrytten in the boke accordinge to their dedes: and the see gaue vp her deed, which were in her, and deeth and hell deli- uered vp the deed, which were in them: and they were iudged euery man accordynge to his dedes. And deeth and hell were cast in to the lake of fyre. This is that second deeth. And whosoeuer was not founde wrytten in the boke off life, was cast in to the lake of fyre.

The XXI. Chapter.

And I sawe a newe heauen and a newe earth. For the fyist heauen, and the fyist earth were vanished awaye, and there was nomore see. And I Ihon sawe that holy cite newe Ierusalem come downe from God out of heauen, prepared second death.

And there came vnto me one of the seuen
angels, which had the seuen vials full of the seuen last plagues: and talked with me, sayen-
ge: come hydder, I wil shewethe the bryde,
y labes wyfe. And he caryed me awaye in y spere to a greate and an hye mountayne, and he shewed me the greate cite, holy Ierusalem
descendinge out of heauen from God, hauynge the bryghtnes of God. And her shynynge was lyke vnto a stone most precious, even a Jaspar cleare as cristall: & had greate and hye walles, and had twelue gates, and at y
gates twelue angels: and names wyrtten,
which are the twelue trybes of Israel: on the est parte thre gates, and on the north sy-
de thre gates, and towarde the south thre gates, and from the west thre gates: and the wall of the cite had twelue foundacions, and in them the names of the lambes twelue Apostles.

Zach. 1. a And he that talked with me, had a golden rede to measure the cite with all, and the gates therof, and the wall therof. And the cite was bylt foure square, and the length
was as large as the bredth of it, and he measured the cite with the rede twelue M. fur-longes: and the length and the bredth, and y heyth of it, were equall. And he measured the wall therof, an cxliij. cubittes, after y measure of a man, which the angel had.
And the buyldinge of the wall of it was of Jaspar. And the cite was of pure golde, like vnto cleare glasse: and y foundacions of the walles and of y cite were garnysched with all maner of precious stones. The fyft foundacion was a Jasper, the seconde a Saphy-re, y thyrde a Calcedony, the fourth a Sma-ragde: the fyft a Sardonyx: the sixt a Sardeos: the seuenth a Crysolite, the eyght be-rall: the nynt a Topas: the tenth a Cryso-prasos: the eleventh a Jacynthe: the twelfte

an Amacist.

And the twelue gates were twelue pear-
les, and every gate was of one pearle, and y
strete of the cite was pure golde, as a tho-roweshynge glasse. And I sawe no temple therin. For the LORDE God allmighty and the lambe is the temple of it, and the cite hath no nede of the Sonne, nether of the mone to lyghten it. For the bryghtnes of God doth lyght it: and the lambe is the lyght of
it. And y people which are saued, shal wal-ke in the light of it: and the kynges of the earth shal bryng their glory vnto it. And the gates of it shal not be shut by daye. For there shalbe no nyght there. And there shal entre in to it none vncleane thinge: nether
what soeuer worketh abhominacion: or ma-keth lyes: but they which are wyrtten in the lambes boke of life.

The XXII. Chapter.

out of the seate of God and of y lam-
be in the myddes of the strete of it, and of ether syde of the ryuer was there wod of life: which bare twelue maner of frutes: and gave frute every moneth: and the leaues of the wodd serued to heale the people with all.

And there shalbe no more curse, but the seate of God and y labbe shalbe in it: and his seruautes shal serue him: And shal se his face, and his name shalbe in their for heades.
And there shalbe no night there, and they
nede no candle, nether light of the Sonne:
for the LORDE God geneth the light, and
they shal reygne for euermore.

And he sayde vnto me: these sayenges are faithfull, and true. And the LORDE God of the holy prophetes sent his angell to shew
we vnto his seruautes, the thinges which muste shortly be fulfyllid. Beholde, I come shortly. Happy is he y kepeth y sayenge of

I Iesus haue sent myne angell, to testifie vnto you these thinges in the cōgregacions. I am the rote and the generacion of David, and the bright morninge starre. And yf eny man shal mynyshe of the wordes of the boke of this prophesy, God shal take awaye his parte out of the boke of life, and out of the holy cite, and frō the thinges which are wrytten in this boke. he which testifieth these thinges, sayth: Yee I come quychly, Amen.
